So he went in to stay with them. ³⁰ When he was at the table with them, he took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them. ³¹ Then their eyes were opened, and they recognized him; and he vanished from their sight. ³² They said to each other, "Were not our hearts burning within usⁱ while he was talking to us on the road, while he was opening the scriptures to us?" ³³ That same hour they got up and returned to Jerusalem; and they found the eleven and their companions gathered together. ³⁴ They were saying, "The Lord has risen indeed, and he has appeared to Simon!" ³⁵ Then they told what had happened on the road, and how he had been made known to them in the breaking of the bread.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

JOHN

Character

IT HAS LONG BEEN RECOGNIZED that the Gospel of John differs significantly from the other Gospels. It has characters and events that the other three do not mention, and it lacks stories that are prominent in them. It uses language that is rich in symbolism and subtle shades of meaning. Irony and paradox are common in John; people often misunderstand what Jesus says, but in a way that opens up new levels of meaning. Instead of speaking in parables and short sayings about the kingdom of God, Jesus speaks in long, difficult monologues about himself, his relation to God, and the need to believe in him. Since the second century C.E., it has been common to think of John as the “spiritual Gospel,” more theological than historical. However, recent study has shown that John has a certain grounding in history.

Historical Setting

Of all the NT Gospels, John presents by far the most hostile picture of relations between Jesus and the Jews. Throughout the book, Jesus rebukes “the Jews” for their failure to recognize or understand him. For their part, they try to stone him, and people who confess him as the Messiah are put out of the synagogue, so that his disciples are “afraid of the Jews” (9.22; 16.2; 20.19). Yet Jesus and his disciples were Jews themselves! It is not likely that Jewish Christians were expelled from synagogues before the 80s C.E., and even then this did not happen everywhere.

It is now widely recognized that this state of affairs reflects the circumstances not of Jesus himself but of a Christian group some years after his death. The Gospel of John seems to have been written in a specific Christian community in the late first century that was undergoing a painful separation from the Jewish society to which its members had belonged. Their claim that Jesus was the Messiah, and indeed the Son of God, brought disciplinary action from the synagogue authorities (who apparently belonged to the Pharisees; see 7.45–48; 12.42). For some, the punishment only emboldened their confession of belief. Others apparently sought to remain within the synagogue as secret Christians (12.42–43; 19.38).

It is important to remember, then, that when John speaks of “the Jews,” it refers not to the Jewish people as a whole, but to the synagogue authorities of a particular time and place; or sometimes to Jewish believers whose faith, or their courage in expressing it, fell short in the writer’s view. The hostile debates between “the Jews” and Jesus in John indicate the intensity of the conflict between the synagogue authorities and the Jewish Christian community in which this Gospel was written.

Purpose

The aim of the Gospel is stated clearly in John 20.31: to encourage its readers to believe that Jesus is the Messiah and the Son of God. Given the historical circumstances sketched above, this probably means that the book was intended to inspire members of the community to maintain their belief during a troubled time, rather than to convert outsiders. There are many things in John that have meaning only for those who are Christians already. Yet even nonbelievers who are open to the Christian message may find John’s powerful symbolic presentation of Jesus as Light of the World and Bread of Life moving and attractive.

Author and Sources

A tradition going back to the second century identifies the author of this Gospel as John the son of Zebedee, one of Jesus’ disciples. Since the book also speaks of a “disciple whom Jesus loved” and seems to connect him with its writing (19.26, 35; 21.20–24), this beloved disciple has often been identified with John. However, the Gospel itself does not make this identification and neither mentions John nor names its author. It may be that the author developed the book from traditions about Jesus that had been handed on by one of his disciples. It has also been suggested that an earlier document focusing on Jesus’ miraculous “signs” (2.11) was incorporated into the Gospel. After its first writing, John was evidently further expanded: chs. 15–17 and 21 seem to have been added later, by the original author or by someone from the same circles.

John is thus a book with a complex history, whose origins are not entirely clear to us. Yet even if its author can no longer be identified with certainty, the importance of its conception of Jesus remains.

Date and Place of Writing

John has always been recognized as the latest of the four Gospels. Its references to expulsion of Christians from the synagogue and its highly developed theology suggest a date in the 80s or 90s c.e. Second-century tradition placed the writing of John in Ephesus, and this remains quite possible, though other places have also been suggested.

Theology and Religious Background

John lays more stress on the divinity of Jesus than do any of the other Gospels, so much so that Jesus is presented as being alien to this world (8.23). Such beliefs were the focus of the conflict between the Christian community and the synagogue authorities, which left the community itself feeling alienated from the world. A number of parallels to John's language and thought are found in other ancient religious writings, including Gnostic texts, the Dead Sea Scrolls, and other Jewish writings. Along with the synagogue conflict, influences from such sources may have had a part in the development of this Gospel's beliefs. John states quite clearly that the community's ideas about Jesus changed after Jesus' lifetime and describes this development as the work of the Holy Spirit (12.16; 14.25–26; 16.12–13). By claiming that the divine Son of God truly "became flesh," i.e., was fully human, John presents the Christian belief that in Jesus God entered into human history to save human beings. It is this belief that is embodied in the symbolism and paradoxes of this Gospel. David K Rensberger

The Word Became Flesh

1 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. ²He was in the beginning with God. ³All things came into being through him, and without him not one thing came into being. What has come into being ⁴in him was life,^a and the life was the light of all people. ⁵The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not overcome it.

6 There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. ⁷He came as a witness to testify to the light, so that all might believe through him. ⁸He himself was not the light, but he came to testify to the light. ⁹The true light, which enlightens everyone, was coming into the world.^b

b Or He was the true light that enlightens everyone coming into the world

1.1–18 The prologue introduces the central theme of this Gospel: the divine Savior has come into the world, has been rejected by many, but has given eternal life to those who accepted him. Some hold that at least parts of the prologue (e.g., vv. 1–5, 10–11, 14, 16) were originally a separate poem, adapted for this purpose. In these verses a word in one clause often leads into the next clause. Also cf. this prologue with 1 Jn 1.1–4, which is probably based on it. 1.1 In the beginning. See Gen 1.1; Prov 8.22. Word, not simply a spoken word (like God's words of creation in Gen 1), but the Logos, in Greek thought the divine principle of reason that gives order to the universe and links the human mind to the mind of God. 1.2–4 He, him, or possibly "it," i.e., the Logos. 1.4 A major part of John's message is that

Jesus brought divine life into the world. Here this life is associated with creation; elsewhere it is described as "eternal life," the life of resurrection beyond death that is given now to those who believe in Jesus. See 3.16; 5.21–29; 6.32–40, 51–58; 11.25–26; 14.6; 17.1–3. 1.5 Light, darkness. See Gen 1.3–4; 1 Jn 2.8–11. Overcome, or "comprehend"; see also 12.35 (overtake). 1.6–8 The contrast with John the Baptist (also 1.15) links the prologue to the beginning of the story itself (1.19–34); see also 3.22–36. The strong insistence in all these places that John was not the Messiah suggests some rivalry between his followers and the Christian community for which this Gospel was written. 1.9 Light. See 3.18–19; 8.12; 9.5; 12.46; Isa 9.2; 42.6–7; 60.1–3. 1.10 The world, not simply the natural order, but what was his own,^c and his own people did not accept him.¹² But to all who received him, who believed in his name, he gave power to become children of God,¹³ who were born, not of blood or of the will of the flesh or of the will of man, but of God.

¹⁴ And the Word became flesh and lived among us, and we have seen his glory, the glory as of a father's only son,^d full of grace and truth. ¹⁵ (John testified to him and cried out, "This was he of whom I said, 'He who comes after me ranks ahead of me because he was before me.'") ¹⁶ From his fullness we have all received, grace upon grace. ¹⁷ The law indeed was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. ¹⁸ No one has ever seen God. It is God the only Son,^e who is close to the Father's heart,^f who has made him known.

The Testimony of John the Baptist

¹⁹ This is the testimony given by John when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, "Who are you?" ²⁰ He confessed and did not deny it, but confessed, "I am not the Messiah."^g

²¹ And they asked him, "What then? Are you Elijah?" He said, "I am not." "Are you the prophet?" He answered, "No."

²² Then they said to him, "Who are you? Let us have an answer for those who sent us. What do you say about yourself?"

²³ He said,

"I am the voice of one crying out in the wilderness,

'Make straight the way of the Lord,'"

as the prophet Isaiah said.

²⁴ Now they had been sent from the Pharisees. ²⁵ They asked him, "Why then are you baptizing if you are neither the Messiah,^g nor Elijah, nor the prophet?" ²⁶ John answered them, "I baptize with water. Among you stands one whom you do not know, ²⁷ the one who is coming after me; I am not worthy to untie the thong of his sandal." ²⁸ This took place in Bethany across the Jordan where John was baptizing.

²⁹ The next day he saw Jesus coming toward him and declared, "Here is the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of Such a statement about the divine Logos would have seemed extraordinary in ancient religious thought. Lived among us. The OT speaks several times of God coming to live among the people of God (e.g., Ex 25.8; Ezek 37.27; Zech 2.10–11; also Sir 24.8), and associates the presence of God with God's glory (Ex 16.10; 24.15–18; 29.43–46; 40.34–38; 1 Kings 8.10–11; Pss 26.8; 63.2; Ezek 11.22–23; 44.4). Many of these passages have to do with the tabernacle or the temple; cf. Jn 2.18–22. A father's only son, lit. "an only one from a [or the] father." 1.15 See 1.27, 30; note on 1.6–8. 1.17 Came, or "came into existence." 1.18 No one has ever seen God. See also 1 Jn 4.12. God the only Son, lit. "the only God."

1.19–34 John the Baptist's testimony to Jesus is more developed in John than in the other Gospels (cf. Mt 3.1–12; Mk 1.2–8; Lk 3.1–18). Only Luke also includes speculation that John might be the Messiah, the anointed king expected at the end of time (cf. Jn 1.20; Lk 3.15; see also Acts 13.25; note on Jn 1.6–8). 1.19 The Jews, i.e., the Jewish authorities, identified in 1.24 as the Pharisees (see Introduction). Levites in NT times assisted the priests in the temple rituals and worked as administrators, guards, musicians, singers, etc. 1.21 Many Jews expected the return of Elijah (Mal 4.5–6; see also Mt 11.14; Mk 6.15; 8.28; 9.4–5, 11–13; Lk 1.17) or the rise of a prophet like Moses (Deut 18.15; see also Jn 6.14; 7.40, 52; Acts 3.22–24; 7.37) in the last days. 1.23 John the Baptist quotes Isa 40.3. 1.26 Whom you do not know. See 1.10. 1.27 The one . . . coming after me. See 1.15. 1.28 The exact location of Bethany across the Jordan (i.e., east of the Jordan River) is not known. 1.29 The Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. Cf. 1 Jn 2.2. Why Jesus is called the Lamb is not quite clear. Bulls, goats, and sheep were used as sacrifices for sin (see Lev 4–5), but not lambs. John presents Jesus as the Passover lamb (see notes on 19.14; 19.36), but that lamb is not a sacrifice for sin. The reference may be to the lamb of Isa 53.7, but that is not certain.

the world! ³⁰This is he of whom I said, 'After me comes a man who ranks ahead of me because he was before me.' ³¹I myself did not know him; but I came baptizing with water for this reason, that he might be revealed to Israel." ³²And John testified, "I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it remained on him. ³³I myself did not know him, but the one who sent me to baptize with water said to me, 'He on whom you see the Spirit descend and remain is the one who baptizes with the Holy Spirit.' ³⁴And I myself have seen and have testified that this is the Son of God."^{h}

The First Disciples of Jesus

³⁵ The next day John again was standing with two of his disciples, ³⁶and as he watched Jesus walk by, he exclaimed, "Look, here is the Lamb of God!" ³⁷The two disciples heard him say this, and they followed Jesus. ³⁸When Jesus turned and saw them following, he said to them, "What are you looking for?" They said to him, "Rabbi" (which translated means Teacher), "where are you staying?" ³⁹He said to them, "Come and see." They came and saw where he was staying, and they remained with him that day. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon. ⁴⁰One of the two who heard John speak and followed him was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. ⁴¹He first found his brother Simon and said to him, "We have found the Messiah" (which is translated Anointed^{i}). ⁴²He brought Simon^{j} to Jesus, who looked at him and said, "You are Simon son of John. You are to be called Cephas" (which is translated Peter^{k}).

⁴³ The next day Jesus decided to go to Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, "Follow me." ⁴⁴Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. ⁴⁵Philip found Nathanael and said to him, "We have found him about whom Moses in the law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus son of Joseph from Nazareth." ⁴⁶Nathanael said to him, "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" Philip said to him, "Come and see." ⁴⁷When Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him, he said of him, "Here is truly an Israelite in whom there is no deceit!" ⁴⁸Nathanael asked him, "Where did you get to know me?" Jesus answered, "I saw you under the fig tree before Philip called you." ⁴⁹Nathanael replied, "Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!" ⁵⁰Jesus answered, "Do you believe because I told you that I saw you under the fig tree? You will see greater things than these." ⁵¹And he said to him, "Very truly, I tell you,^{l} you will see heaven opened and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man."

"Israel" was the name given to Jacob (Gen 32.28), who had been deceitful (Gen 27.34–36). 1.49 The Son of God, the King of Israel. In ancient Israel, the king might be thought of metaphorically as God's son (2 Sam 7.14; Pss 2.7; 89.26), but in John, Jesus' sonship means his divinity. John also associates Jesus' messianic kingship with prophetic powers (see note on 6.14–15), here seen in Jesus' supernatural knowledge about Nathanael. 1.50 Greater things. See 5.20; 14.12. 1.51 Angels of God ascending and descending, another reference to Jacob/Israel (Gen 28.12). The origin of the term Son of Man in the Gospels is not clear; it may come ultimately from Dan 7.13–14. In John, it often represents Jesus' role as a link between heaven and earth; see 3.13; 5.26–27; 6.62; see also Mk 14.62.

The Wedding at Cana

2 On the third day there was a wedding in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there. ²Jesus and his disciples had also been invited to the wedding. ³When the wine gave out, the mother of Jesus said to him, “They have no wine.” ⁴And Jesus said to her, “Woman, what concern is that to you and to me? My hour has not yet come.” ⁵His mother said to the servants, “Do whatever he tells you.” ⁶Now standing there were six stone water jars for the Jewish rites of purification, each holding twenty or thirty gallons. ⁷Jesus said to them, “Fill the jars with water.” And they filled them up to the brim. ⁸He said to them, “Now draw some out, and take it to the chief steward.” So they took it. ⁹When the steward tasted the water that had become wine, and did not know where it came from (though the servants who had drawn the water knew), the steward called the bridegroom ¹⁰and said to him, “Everyone serves the good wine first, and then the inferior wine after the guests have become drunk. But you have kept the good wine until now.” ¹¹Jesus did this, the first of his signs, in Cana of Galilee, and revealed his glory; and his disciples believed in him.

¹² After this he went down to Capernaum with his mother, his brothers, and his disciples; and they remained there a few days.

Jesus Cleanses the Temple

¹³ The Passover of the Jews was near, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. ¹⁴In the temple he found people selling cattle, sheep, and doves, and the money changers seated at their tables. ¹⁵Making a whip of cords, he drove all of them out of the temple, both the sheep and the cattle. He also poured out the coins of the money changers and overturned their tables. ¹⁶He told those who were selling the doves, “Take these things out of here! Stop making my Father’s house a marketplace!” ¹⁷His disciples remembered that it was written, “Zeal for your house will consume me.” ¹⁸The Jews then said to him, “What sign can you show us for doing this?” ¹⁹Jesus answered them, “Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.” ²⁰The Jews then said, “This temple has been under construction for forty-six

2.1–12 This miracle is found only in John. 2.1 The third day seems to continue the series of days from 1.29, 35, 43. Wedding festivities usually lasted a week; those invited might be expected to contribute provisions such as wine. According to 21.2, Cana, in central Galilee, was the hometown of Nathanael (1.45). 2.4 What concern is that to you and to me is a negative response (cf. 2 Kings 3.13) but not necessarily a disrespectful one. It is also not necessarily disrespectful for Jesus to call his mother woman; see 19.26. Jesus’ hour means the hour of his death (see note on 7.30; cf. 4.21). 2.6 Rites of purification, e.g., washing of hands and vessels (see Mk 7.1–4). 2.8 Chief steward, perhaps a servant acting as headwaiter, or one of the guests chosen as a master of ceremonies (Sir 32.1). 2.11 The first of his signs. A second sign is mentioned in 4.54 (though others happen in between; see 2.23) and other, unrecorded signs in 20.30. This may suggest that John’s Gospel is partly based on a source that focused on miraculous signs of Jesus. In John such signs have a complex relation to believing (see 2.23–3.3; 4.48; 6.2, 14, 26, 30; 7.31; 9.16; 12.37). Glory. See note on 1.14. 2.12 Capernaum, a prosperous city near the northern end of the Sea of Galilee that Jesus made the center of his ministry (see 6.17, 24, 59; Mt 4.13; 11.23; Mk 2.1). His brothers. See also 7.3–5.

2.13–22 The cleansing of the temple is found at the end of Jesus’ mission in the other Gospels (e.g., Mk 11.15–18), which is more likely to be correct historically, since it may have been one reason for his crucifixion. John uses the story here to introduce Jesus’ confrontation with the Jewish authorities. 2.13 Passover occurs in March or April (see Ex 12.1–13.10; Deut 16.1–8). As many as one hundred thousand people might make the pilgrimage to Jerusalem for this festival. 2.14 Cattle, sheep, and doves, animals used as sacrifices. Money changers converted foreign currency into the coins allowed in the temple. This activity took place in the outer area of the temple, where non-Jews were allowed to come. 2.15 The whip is not mentioned in the other Gospels, nor are the sheep and cattle. 2.16 Stop making my Father’s house a marketplace. See Zech 14.21. 2.17 The quotation is from Ps 69.9. 2.18 On the demand for a sign, see 6.30; Mk 11.27–33; see also Mt 12.38–39; Mk 8.11–13. 2.19–21 On the misunderstanding here, see notes on 3.4; 7.33–36. In Mt 26.59–61; Mk 14.55–59 (cf. Acts 6.14), it is said that Jesus was falsely accused of making such a claim (v. 19). 2.20 The temple here would have been the Second Temple, built in the sixth century B.C.E. (Ezra 1; 3; 5–6; Hag 1–2; Zech 6.9–15). King Herod the years, and will you raise it up in three days?" ²¹But he was speaking of the temple of his body. ²²After he was raised from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this; and they believed the scripture and the word that Jesus had spoken.

²³ When he was in Jerusalem during the Passover festival, many believed in his name because they saw the signs that he was doing. ²⁴But Jesus on his part would not entrust himself to them, because he knew all people ²⁵and needed no one to testify about anyone; for he himself knew what was in everyone.

Nicodemus Visits Jesus

3 Now there was a Pharisee named Nicodemus, a leader of the Jews. ²He came to Jesus^m by night and said to him, "Rabbi, we know that you are a teacher who has come from God; for no one can do these signs that you do apart from the presence of God." ³Jesus answered him, "Very truly, I tell you, no one can see the kingdom of God without being born from above."ⁿ ⁴Nicodemus said to him, "How can anyone be born after having grown old? Can one enter a second time into the mother's womb and be born?" ⁵Jesus answered, "Very truly, I tell you, no one can enter the kingdom of God without being born of water and Spirit. ⁶What is born of the flesh is flesh, and what is born of the Spirit is spirit.^o ⁷Do not be astonished that I said to you, 'You^p must be born from above.'^q ⁸The wind^o blows where it chooses, and you hear the sound of it, but you do not know where it comes from or where it goes. So it is with everyone who is born of the Spirit." ⁹Nicodemus said to him, "How can these things be?" ¹⁰Jesus answered him, "Are you a teacher of Israel, and yet you do not understand these things?"

11 "Very truly, I tell you, we speak of what we know and testify to what we have seen; yet you^r do not receive our testimony. 12 If I have told you about earthly things and you do not believe, how can you believe if I tell you about heavenly things? 13 No one has ascended into heaven except the one who descended from heaven, the Son of Man.^s 14 And just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, 15 that whoever believes in him may have eternal life.^t

16 "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him may not perish but may have eternal life.

17 "Indeed, God did not send the Son into the world to condemn the world, but in order that the world might be saved through him. 18 Those who believe in him are not condemned; but those who do not believe are condemned already, because they have not believed in the name of the only Son of God. 19 And this is the judgment, that the light has come into the world, and people loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil. 20 For all who do evil hate the light and do not come to the light, so that their deeds may not be exposed. 21 But those who do what is true come to the light, so that it may be clearly seen that their deeds have been done in God."^r

Jesus and John the Baptist

22 After this Jesus and his disciples went into the Judean countryside, and he spent some time there with them and baptized. 23 John also was baptizing at Aenon near Salim because water was abundant there; and people kept coming and were being baptized 24 — John, of course, had not yet been thrown into prison.

25 Now a discussion about purification arose between John's disciples and a Jew.^u 26 They came to John and said to him, "Rabbi, the one who was with you across the Jordan, to whom you testified, here he is baptizing, and all are going to him." 27 John answered, "No one can receive anything except what has been given from heaven. 28 You yourselves are my witnesses that I said, 'I am not the Messiah,^v but I have been sent ahead of him.' 29 He who has the bride is the bridegroom. The friend of the bridegroom, who stands and hears him, rejoices greatly at the bridegroom's voice. For this reason my joy has been fulfilled. 30 He must increase, but I must decrease."^w

The One Who Comes from Heaven

31 The one who comes from above is above all; the one who is of the earth belongs to the earth and speaks about earthly things. The one who comes from heaven is above all. 32 He testifies to what he has seen and heard, yet no one accepts his testimony. 33 Whoever has accepted his testimony has certified^x this, that God is true. 34 He whom God has sent speaks the words of God, for he gives the Spirit without measure. 35 The Father loves the

Jesus and the Woman of Samaria

4 Now when Jesus^y learned that the Pharisees had heard, "Jesus is making and baptizing more disciples than John" ²—although it was not Jesus himself but his disciples who baptized— ³he left Judea and started back to Galilee. ⁴But he had to go through Samaria. ⁵So he came to a Samaritan city called Sychar, near the plot of ground that Jacob had given to his son Joseph. ⁶Jacob's well was there, and Jesus, tired out by his journey, was sitting by the well. It was about noon.

⁷ A Samaritan woman came to draw water, and Jesus said to her, "Give me a drink." ⁸(His disciples had gone to the city to buy food.) ⁹The Samaritan woman said to him, "How is it that you, a Jew, ask a drink of me, a woman of Samaria?" (Jews do not share things in common with Samaritans.)^z ¹⁰Jesus answered her, "If you knew the gift of God, and who it is that is saying to you, 'Give me a drink,' you would have asked him, and he would have given you living water." ¹¹The woman said to him, "Sir, you have no bucket, and the well is deep. Where do you get that living water?" ¹²Are you greater than our ancestor Jacob, who gave us the well, and with his sons and his flocks drank from it?" ¹³Jesus said to her, "Everyone who drinks of this water will be thirsty again, ¹⁴but those who drink of the water that I will give them will never be thirsty. The water that I will give will become in them a spring of water gushing up to eternal life." ¹⁵The woman said to him, "Sir, give me this water, so that I may never be thirsty or have to keep coming here to draw water."

¹⁶ Jesus said to her, "Go, call your husband, and come back." ¹⁷The woman answered him, "I have no husband." Jesus said to her, "You are right in saying, 'I have no husband'; ¹⁸for you have had five husbands, and the one you have now is not your husband. What you have said is true!" ¹⁹The woman said to him, "Sir, I see that you are a prophet. ²⁰Our ancestors worshiped on this mountain, but you^a say that the place where people must worship is in Jerusalem." ²¹Jesus said to her, "Woman, believe me, the hour is coming when you will worship the Father neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem. ²²You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, for salvation is from the Jews. ²³But the hour is coming, and is now here, when the true

4.1–6 This travel story brings Jesus to Samaria for his conversation with the woman at the well. 4.1 On Jesus' baptizing, see 3.22. 4.4 He had to go through Samaria. There were in fact other routes from Judea to Galilee, but the most direct lay through Samaria. 4.5 Sychar is the same as the OT city Shechem; see Gen 33.18–19; Josh 24.32. 4.6 Jacob's well is not mentioned in the OT. Noon, in the heat of the day, was an unusual time to draw water. 4.7–26 In her dialogue with Jesus, the woman gains an increasing recognition of who he is (vv. 9, 12, 19, 25). 4.9 Though both Jews and Samaritans were descended from ancient Israel and practiced similar religions, there was long-standing hostility between them. Thus it was also unusual for Jews to buy food (v. 8) from Samaritans. 4.10 Living water. See also 7.37–39. In Hebrew, the term means spring water (see Jer 2.13; Zech 14.8).

4.11–15 There is a similar dialogue in 6.30–35 contrasting what Jesus gives with what the ancestors had. See also Isa 55.1; Rev 21.6; 22.17. 4.12 Are you greater. See also 8.53. 4.15 The woman's misunderstanding is similar to a number of others in John; see notes on 3.4; 7.33–36. 4.16 Husband. Perhaps this subject is raised because, in the OT, the meeting of a man and a woman at a well often leads to marriage; see Gen 24.10–61; 29.1–20; Ex 2.15–21. 4.18 Though it is often suggested, five husbands probably does not refer to the five nations in the anti-Samaritan account in 2 Kings 17.24–41. 4.19–20 The woman raises an issue suitable for a prophet to discuss. Our ancestors, i.e., the ancestors of both Jews and Samaritans. You, i.e., the Jews. This mountain. The Samaritans believed that Mount Gerizim, not Jerusalem, was the place designated by God for worship (see Deut 11.26–30; 27.1–13; Josh 8.30–35). They had once had a temple on the mountain, which was near Sychar (Shechem), where this story takes place. 4.23 John speaks several times of an hour [that] is coming, and is now worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and truth, for the Father seeks such as these to worship him. ²⁴God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth.” ²⁵The woman said to him, “I know that Messiah is coming” (who is called Christ). “When he comes, he will proclaim all things to us.” ²⁶Jesus said to her, “I am he,^b the one who is speaking to you.”

²⁷ Just then his disciples came. They were astonished that he was speaking with a woman, but no one said, “What do you want?” or, “Why are you speaking with her?” ²⁸Then the woman left her water jar and went back to the city. She said to the people, ²⁹“Come and see a man who told me everything I have ever done! He cannot be the Messiah,^c can he?” ³⁰They left the city and were on their way to him.

³¹ Meanwhile the disciples were urging him, “Rabbi, eat something.” ³²But he said to them, “I have food to eat that you do not know about.” ³³So the disciples said to one another, “Surely no one has brought him something to eat?” ³⁴Jesus said to them, “My food is to do the will of him who sent me and to complete his work. ³⁵Do you not say, ‘Four months more, then comes the harvest’? But I tell you, look around you, and see how the fields are ripe for harvesting. ³⁶The reaper is already receiving^d wages and is gathering fruit for eternal life, so that sower and reaper may rejoice together.

³⁷For here the saying holds true, ‘One sows and another reaps.’ ³⁸I sent you to reap that for which you did not labor. Others have labored, and you have entered into their labor.”

³⁹ Many Samaritans from that city believed in him because of the woman’s testimony, “He told me everything I have ever done.” ⁴⁰So when the Samaritans came to him, they asked him to stay with them; and he stayed there two days. ⁴¹And many more believed because of his word. ⁴²They said to the woman, “It is no longer because of what you said that we believe, for we have heard for ourselves, and we know that this is truly the Savior of the world.”

Jesus Returns to Galilee

⁴³ When the two days were over, he went from that place to Galilee ⁴⁴(for Jesus himself had testified that a prophet has no honor in the prophet’s own country). ⁴⁵When he came to Galilee, the Galileans welcomed him, since they had seen all that he had done in Jerusalem at the festival; for they too had gone to the festival.

here (5.25–29; 16.21, 32). See also notes on 7.30; 12.23; 16.25. Spirit and truth are connected with Jesus and belief in him in John. See 1.14, 17, 33; 3.5–8; 6.63; 7.39; 8.31–32; 14.6; 17.17–19; 18.37; 20.22. 4.25 Christ is the Greek equivalent of the Hebrew word Messiah. 4.26 I am he. See note on 8.24. 4.27–30 The Samaritans’ movement toward Jesus (4.30, 39–40) forms the backdrop for his dialogue with the disciples (4.31–38). 4.27 It was against the social customs of that time for a Jewish religious teacher to be speaking with a woman in public. 4.29 He cannot be the Messiah, can he? or, “Could he perhaps be the Messiah?” 4.31–38 Jesus has a better food (vv. 32, 34) than the disciples know (see note on 3.4), just as he had a better water than the woman thought (4.7–15). 4.34 Food ... work. See 6.27–29; see also note on 5.19–20. 4.35–36 The harvest of people that is Jesus’ work (cf. Lk 10.2) includes the Samaritans. The sower planted grain (see Mk 4.3–8) and the reaper harvested it several months later when it was ripe; but the time for this “harvest” has already come. 4.38 Others might refer to Moses and the prophets, to the teachers of the Samaritans, or to Christian missionaries. 4.39–42 Now the Samaritan “harvest” is reaped, first through the woman’s testimony, then through direct contact with Jesus. 4.42 Savior of the world. See 3.17; 12.47; 1 Jn 4.14. 4.43–45 Jesus finally reaches the goal for which he had set out in 4.3. 4.44 See Mk 6.4. Jesus’ own country is Galilee (1.46; 7.41–42, 52); the claim that he has no honor there, though the Galileans welcome him (v. 45), may indicate doubts about their enthusiasm based on signs (see note on 2.11). 4.45 Festival. See 2.13, 23.

4.46–54 The story of the healing of the official’s son is comparable to that of the centurion’s servant (which also takes place at Capernaum) in Mt 8.5–13; Lk 7.1–10. 4.46 Cana ... water into wine. See 2.1–11. Royal official, presumably in the service of Herod Antipas, the son of King Herod the Great (Mk 6.14; see “The Herods: A Simplified Family Tree,” p. 1862). From Cana to Caperna-into wine. Now there was a royal official whose son lay ill in Capernaum. ⁴⁷When he heard that Jesus had come from Judea to Galilee, he went and begged him to come down and heal his son, for he was at the point of death. ⁴⁸Then Jesus said to him, "Unless you^e see signs and wonders you will not believe." ⁴⁹The official said to him, "Sir, come down before my little boy dies." ⁵⁰Jesus said to him, "Go; your son will live." The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him and started on his way. ⁵¹As he was going down, his slaves met him and told him that his child was alive. ⁵²So he asked them the hour when he began to recover, and they said to him, "Yesterday at one in the afternoon the fever left him." ⁵³The father realized that this was the hour when Jesus had said to him, "Your son will live." So he himself believed, along with his whole household. ⁵⁴Now this was the second sign that Jesus did after coming from Judea to Galilee.

Jesus Heals on the Sabbath

5 After this there was a festival of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

2 Now in Jerusalem by the Sheep Gate there is a pool, called in Hebrew^f Beth-zatha,^g which has five porticoes. ³In these lay many invalids—blind, lame, and paralyzed.^h 5 One man was there who had been ill for thirty-eight years. 6 When Jesus saw him lying there and knew that he had been there a long time, he said to him, "Do you want to be made well?" 7 The sick man answered him, "Sir, I have no one to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up; and while I am making my way, someone else steps down ahead of me." 8 Jesus said to him, "Stand up, take your mat and walk." 9 At once the man was made well, and he took up his mat and began to walk.

Now that day was a sabbath. 10 So the Jews said to the man who had been cured, "It is the sabbath; it is not lawful for you to carry your mat." 11 But he answered them, "The man who made me well said to me, 'Take up your mat and walk.'" 12 They asked him, "Who is the man who said to you, 'Take it up and walk'?" 13 Now the man who had been healed did not know who it was, for Jesus had disappeared inⁱ the crowd that was there. 14 Later Jesus found him in the temple

5.1–7.52 It has sometimes been suggested that ch. 5 belongs after ch. 6. This would make a good connection between ch. 5 and ch. 7, since the retreat in 7.1 would be directly caused by the dispute in ch. 5 (cf. also 7.19–24; 5.16–18). The connection between chs. 4 and 6 would also be good, since Jesus would still be in Galilee to make the trip mentioned in 6.1. However, if this were the original arrangement, it would be hard to explain how the chapters got into their present order.

5.1–18 Though this miracle story is found only in John, other controversies over healing on the sabbath are found in the other Gospels: Mt 12.9–14; Mk 3.1–6; Lk 13.10–17; 14.1–6. See also Jn 7.21–24; 9.13–17. 5.1 There are several possibilities for the festival referred to here, including Passover and Pentecost in the spring and the New Year and the Festival of Booths in the fall; but perhaps the author did not mean to be specific. (See "Jewish Festivals in the Gospel of John," p. 2017.) 5.2 Sheep Gate, probably a gate in the northern wall of Jerusalem, near the temple (see Neh 3.1). In that area there are remains of a double pool which may be Beth-zatha. The pools are surrounded by four porticoes (walkways with columns to support their roofs), and there is a fifth portico between the two pools. 5.3–5 Though v. 4 is striking, it is not found in the best manuscripts (see text note h), and its wording in Greek is unlike the rest of the Gospel of John. Therefore it was probably not originally part of this Gospel. 5.8 Stand up . . . and walk. See also Mk 2.9, 11. 5.10 The Jews, as usual in John, refers to the authorities, not to the Jewish people in general; see Introduction. Not lawful. The law has few details about particular activities that are forbidden on the sabbath (see Ex 20.8–11; 31.12–17; 35.2–3; Lev 23.3; Deut 5.12–15), but carrying burdens on the sabbath is opposed in Neh 13.15–21; Jer 17.19–27, and this prohibition was accepted and developed in Jewish tradition. 5.14 Do not sin any more. and said to him, "See, you have been made well! Do not sin any more, so that nothing worse happens to you." ¹⁵The man went away and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had made him well. ¹⁶Therefore the Jews started persecuting Jesus, because he was doing such things on the sabbath. ¹⁷But Jesus answered them, "My Father is still working, and I also am working." ¹⁸For this reason the Jews were seeking all the more to kill him, because he was not only breaking the sabbath, but was also calling God his own Father, thereby making himself equal to God.

The Authority of the Son

¹⁹ Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, the Son can do nothing on his own, but only what he sees the Father doing; for whatever the Father does, the Son does likewise. ²⁰The Father loves the Son and shows him all that he himself is doing; and he will show him greater works than these, so that you will be astonished. ²¹Indeed, just as the Father raises the dead and gives them life, so also the Son gives life to whomever he wishes. ²²The Father judges no one but has given all judgment to the Son, ²³so that all may honor the Son just as they honor the Father. Anyone who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent him. ²⁴Very truly, I tell you, anyone who hears my word and believes him who sent me has eternal life, and does not come under judgment, but has passed from death to life.

²⁵ "Very truly, I tell you, the hour is coming, and is now here, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear will live. ²⁶For just as the Father has life in himself, so he has granted the Son also to have life in himself; ²⁷and he has given him authority to execute judgment, because he is the Son of Man. ²⁸Do not be astonished at this; for the hour is coming when all who are in their graves will hear his voice ²⁹and will come out—those who have done good, to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil, to the resurrection of condemnation.

³⁰ "I can do nothing on my own. As I hear, I judge; and my judgment is just, because I seek to do not my own will but the will of him who sent me.

Witnesses to Jesus

³¹ "If I testify about myself, my testimony is not true. ³²There is another who testifies on my behalf, and I know that his testimony to me is true. ³³You sent messengers to John, and he testified to the truth. ³⁴Not that I accept such human testimony, but I say these things so that you may be saved. ³⁵He was a burning and shining lamp, and you were willing to rejoice for a while in his light. ³⁶But I have a testimony greater than John's. The works that the Father has given me to complete, the very works that I am doing, testify on my behalf that the Father has sent me. ³⁷And the Father who sent me has himself testified on my behalf. You have never heard his voice or seen his form, ³⁸and you do not have his word abiding in you, because you do not believe him whom he has sent.

³⁹ "You search the scriptures because you think that in them you have eternal life; and it is they that testify on my behalf. ⁴⁰Yet you refuse to come to me to have life. ⁴¹I do not accept glory from human beings. ⁴²But I know that you do not have the love of God in^k you. ⁴³I have come in my Father's name, and you do not accept me; if another comes in his own name, you will accept him. ⁴⁴How can you believe when you accept glory from one another and do not seek the glory that comes from the one who alone is God? ⁴⁵Do not think that I will accuse you before the Father; your accuser is Moses, on whom you have set your hope. ⁴⁶If you believed Moses, you would believe me, for he wrote about me. ⁴⁷But if you do not believe what he wrote, how will you believe what I say?"

Feeding the Five Thousand

6 After this Jesus went to the other side of the Sea of Galilee, also called the Sea of Tiberias.¹ ²A large crowd kept following him, because they saw the signs that he was doing for the sick. ³Jesus went up the mountain and sat down there with his disciples. ⁴Now the Passover, the festival of the Jews, was near. ⁵When he looked up and saw a large crowd coming toward him, Jesus said to Philip, "Where are we to buy bread for these people to eat?" ⁶He said this to test him, for he himself knew what he was going to do. ⁷Philip answered him, "Six months' wages^m would not buy enough bread for each of them to get a little." ⁸One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, said to him, ⁹"There is a boy here who has five barley loaves and two fish. But what are they among so many people?" ¹⁰Jesus said, "Make the people sit down." Now there was a great deal of grass in the place; so theyⁿ sat down, about five thousand in all. ¹¹Then Jesus took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, he distributed them to those who were seated; so also the fish, as much as they wanted. ¹²When they were satisfied, he told his disciples, "Gather up the fragments left over, so that nothing may be lost." ¹³So they gathered them up, and from the fragments of the five barley loaves, left by those who had eaten, they filled twelve baskets. ¹⁴When the people saw the sign that he had done, they began to say, "This is indeed the prophet who is to come into the world."

Jesus Walks on the Water

16 When evening came, his disciples went down to the sea, ¹⁷got into a boat, and started across the sea to Capernaum. It was now dark, and Jesus had not yet come to them. ¹⁸The sea became rough because a strong wind was blowing. ¹⁹When they had rowed about three or four miles,^o they saw Jesus walking on the sea and coming near the boat, and they were terrified. ²⁰But he said to them, "It is I;^p do not be afraid." ²¹Then they wanted to take him into the boat, and immediately the boat reached the land toward which they were going.

The Bread from Heaven

22 The next day the crowd that had stayed on the other side of the sea saw that there had been only one boat there. They also saw that Jesus had not got into the boat with his disciples, but that his disciples had gone away alone. ²³Then some boats from Tiberias came near the place where they had eaten the bread after the Lord had given thanks.^q ²⁴So when the crowd saw that neither Jesus nor his disciples were there, they themselves got into the boats and went to Capernaum looking for Jesus.

25 When they found him on the other side of the sea, they said to him, "Rabbi, when did you come here?" ²⁶Jesus answered them, "Very truly, I tell you, you are looking for me, not because you saw signs, but because you ate your fill of the loaves. ²⁷Do not work for the food that perishes, but for the food that endures for eternal life, which the Son of Man will give you. For it is on him that God the Father has set his seal." ²⁸Then they said to him, "What must we do to perform the works of God?" ²⁹Jesus answered them, "This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he has sent." ³⁰So they said to him, "What sign are you going to give us then, so that we may see it and believe you? What work are you performing?" ³¹Our ancestors ate the manna in the wilderness; as it is written, 'He gave them bread from heaven to eat.'"^r ³²Then Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, it was not Moses who gave you the bread from heaven, but it is my Father who gives you the true bread from heaven. ³³For the bread of God is that which^r comes down from heaven and gives life to the world." ³⁴They said to him, "Sir, give us this bread always."

35 Jesus said to them, "I am the bread of life. Whoever comes to me will never be hungry, and whoever believes in me will never be thirsty. ³⁶But I said to you that you have seen me and yet do not believe. ³⁷Everything that the Father gives me will come to me, and anyone who comes to me I will never drive away; ³⁸for I have come down from heaven, not to do my own will,

6.16–21 Jesus' walking on the sea is also connected with the feeding miracle in Mk 6.45–52. 6.18 Sudden, violent storms are not uncommon on the Sea of Galilee. 6.20 It is I translates the same Greek words as I am he elsewhere in John; see note on 8.24. 6.22–24 A transitional passage. 6.23–24 Tiberias was on the southwest shore and Capernaum near the northern end of the Sea of Galilee. 6.25–34 From the very beginning of the discourse on the bread of life, Jesus seems critical of his audience. 6.26 Not because you saw signs. See Ex 16. Bread from heaven. See Ex 16.4; Ps 78.23–25. 6.33 That which, or he who (text note r). 6.35–40 The ideas of coming to Jesus, seeing him and believing in him, and being given to him by God are closely associated in this passage. They are related to the situation of the early Christian community within the synagogue, where only some were coming to join those who believed that Jesus was the Messiah (see Introduction). 6.35 Cf. 4.14; 7.37–39. 6.36 I said to you, perhaps a reference to 6.26; see also 3.12. On seeing and believing, see also 6.30. 6.37 Everything ... the Father gives me. Cf. 6.44–45; 10.28–29; 17.2, 6, 9. 6.38 Not ... my own will. See 4.34; 5.30; 12.27; Lk 22.42.

but the will of him who sent me. ³⁹And this is the will of him who sent me, that I should lose nothing of all that he has given me, but raise it up on the last day. ⁴⁰This is indeed the will of my Father, that all who see the Son and believe in him may have eternal life; and I will raise them up on the last day."

⁴¹ Then the Jews began to complain about him because he said, "I am the bread that came down from heaven." ⁴²They were saying, "Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How can he now say, 'I have come down from heaven?'" ⁴³Jesus answered them, "Do not complain among yourselves. ⁴⁴No one can come to me unless drawn by the Father who sent me; and I will raise that person up on the last day. ⁴⁵It is written in the prophets, 'And they shall all be taught by God.' Everyone who has heard and learned from the Father comes to me. ⁴⁶Not that anyone has seen the Father except the one who is from God; he has seen the Father. ⁴⁷Very truly, I tell you, whoever believes has eternal life. ⁴⁸I am the bread of life. ⁴⁹Your ancestors ate the manna in the wilderness, and they died. ⁵⁰This is the bread that comes down from heaven, so that one may eat of it and not die. ⁵¹I am the living bread that came down from heaven. Whoever eats of this bread will live forever; and the bread that I will give for the life of the world is my flesh."

⁵² The Jews then disputed among themselves, saying, "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?" ⁵³So Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you. ⁵⁴Those who eat my flesh and drink my blood have eternal life, and I will raise them up on the last day; ⁵⁵for my flesh is true food and my blood is true drink. ⁵⁶Those who eat my flesh and drink my blood abide in me, and I in them. ⁵⁷Just as the living Father sent me, and I live because of the Father, so whoever eats me will live because of me. ⁵⁸This is the bread that came down from heaven, not like that which your ancestors ate, and they died. But the one who eats this bread will live forever." ⁵⁹He said these things while he was teaching in the synagogue at Capernaum.

The Disciples' Response

⁶⁰ When many of his disciples heard it, they said, "This teaching is difficult; who can accept it?" ⁶¹But Jesus, being aware that his disciples were complaining about it, said to them, "Does this offend you? ⁶²Then what if you were to see the Son of Man ascending to where he was before? ⁶³It is the spirit that gives life; the flesh is useless. The words that I have spoken to you are spirit and life. ⁶⁴But among you there are some who do not believe." For Jesus knew from the first

6.39 Raise it up on the last day. Cf. 5.21–29; 11.23–26. 6.41–47 As in 3.1–15; 9.24–34, people resist the idea that God may act in an unexpected way (cf. 6.29); hence, as in 6.35–40, it is those who are willing to hear and learn who are drawn by God. 6.41 The OT story of the manna (6.31, 49) is surrounded by incidents in which the people complain (Ex 15.22–17.7). 6.42 See Mk 6.1–6; cf. However, these verses seem to refer to it and contain similarities to the words of Jesus at the Last Supper in chs. 14–17. Some scholars hold that vv. 52–58 display a theology that is too sacramental to have been written by the author of this Gospel and therefore must be a later addition; others find them consistent with John's claim that the Word became flesh (1.14). 6.52–53 Cf. the form of these verses with 3.4–5 and with the "misunderstandings" discussed in the note on 7.33–36. 6.53 Jesus' flesh and blood are the bread and wine of the Lord's Supper. 6.54 The last day. See 6.39–40, 44. 6.55 True food. See also 6.27. 6.56 Abide in me. See note on 14.20. 6.57 On living because of Jesus, see 14.19. who were the ones that did not believe, and who was the one that would betray him. ⁶⁵And he said, "For this reason I have told you that no one can come to me unless it is granted by the Father."

⁶⁶ Because of this many of his disciples turned back and no longer went about with him. ⁶⁷ So Jesus asked the twelve, "Do you also wish to go away?" ⁶⁸ Simon Peter answered him, "Lord, to whom can we go? You have the words of eternal life. ⁶⁹ We have come to believe and know that you are the Holy One of God."^s ⁷⁰ Jesus answered them, "Did I not choose you, the twelve? Yet one of you is a devil." ⁷¹ He was speaking of Judas son of Simon Iscariot,^t for he, though one of the twelve, was going to betray him.

The Unbelief of Jesus' Brothers

7 After this Jesus went about in Galilee. He did not wish^u to go about in Judea because the Jews were looking for an opportunity to kill him. ² Now the Jewish festival of Booths^v was near. ³ So his brothers said to him, "Leave here and go to Judea so that your disciples also may see the works you are doing; ⁴ for no one who wants^w to be widely known acts in secret. If you do these things, show yourself to the world." ⁵ (For not even his brothers believed in him.) ⁶ Jesus said to them, "My time has not yet come, but your time is always here. ⁷ The world cannot hate you, but it hates me because I testify against it that its works are evil. ⁸ Go to the festival yourselves. I am not^x going to this festival, for my time has not yet fully come." ⁹ After saying this, he remained in Galilee.

Jesus at the Festival of Booths

¹⁰ But after his brothers had gone to the festival, then he also went, not publicly but as it were^y in secret. ¹¹ The Jews were looking for him at the festival and saying, "Where is he?" ¹² And there was considerable complaining about him among the crowds. While some were saying, "He is a good man," others were saying, "No, he is deceiving the crowd." ¹³ Yet no one would speak openly about him for fear of the Jews.

¹⁴ About the middle of the festival Jesus went up into the temple and began to teach. ¹⁵ The Jews were astonished at it, saying, "How does this man have such learning,^z when he has never been taught?" ¹⁶ Then Jesus answered them, "My teaching is not mine but his who sent

7.1–52 On the order of the chapters, see note on 5.1–7.52. 7.1–10 Jesus' puzzling words and actions here may be meant to portray him as coming and going only when he is ready, since only he knows his "time" or "hour." 7.1 Jews might perhaps mean "Judeans," but is more likely a reference to the Jewish authorities (see note on 7.13). On the Jews' efforts to kill him, see 5.18. 7.2 The festival of Booths, or Tabernacles (Hebrew Sukkoth), was a seven-day harvest festival observed in October (Lev 23.34–43; Deut 16.13–17; Neh 8.14–18; see "Jewish Festivals in the Gospel of John," p. 2017). The whole of chs. 7–8 is set during this festival, which drew many pilgrims to Jerusalem in the first century C.E. It also included ceremonies involving the pouring out of water (see 7.37–38) and the lighting of great lights (see 8.12) in the temple. 7.6 Jesus' time is the same as his hour in 7.30 (see note there). 7.7 The world . . . hates. See 3.19–21; 15.18–19, 24–25. 7.8 It is conceivable that not going (lit. "not going up") to this festival also means that Jesus is not "going up" (i.e., returning to God; see 20.17) at this festival, because his time has not yet fully come (see notes on 7.6; 7.30). 7.10 In secret. See also 7.1, and Jesus' hiding in 8.59; 11.54; 12.36. 7.11–15 Jesus' arrival at the festival causes division and uncertainty. 7.12 Complaining, or "whispering." Acts 4.13. 7.16–24 This section has many parallels with ch. 5: cf. 7.16–17 with 5.19, 30; 7.18 with 5.31, 41–44; 7.19–23 with 5.16–18. 7.16–17 On the source of Jesus' teaching, see 8.26–28; note

me. ¹⁷Anyone who resolves to do the will of God will know whether the teaching is from God or whether I am speaking on my own. ¹⁸Those who speak on their own seek their own glory; but the one who seeks the glory of him who sent him is true, and there is nothing false in him.

¹⁹“Did not Moses give you the law? Yet none of you keeps the law. Why are you looking for an opportunity to kill me?” ²⁰The crowd answered, “You have a demon! Who is trying to kill you?” ²¹Jesus answered them, “I performed one work, and all of you are astonished. ²²Moses gave you circumcision (it is, of course, not from Moses, but from the patriarchs), and you circumcise a man on the sabbath. ²³If a man receives circumcision on the sabbath in order that the law of Moses may not be broken, are you angry with me because I healed a man’s whole body on the sabbath? ²⁴Do not judge by appearances, but judge with right judgment.”

Is This the Christ?

²⁵Now some of the people of Jerusalem were saying, “Is not this the man whom they are trying to kill? ²⁶And here he is, speaking openly, but they say nothing to him! Can it be that the authorities really know that this is the Messiah?^a ²⁷Yet we know where this man is from; but when the Messiah^a comes, no one will know where he is from.” ²⁸Then Jesus cried out as he was teaching in the temple, “You know me, and you know where I am from. I have not come on my own. But the one who sent me is true, and you do not know him. ²⁹I know him, because I am from him, and he sent me.” ³⁰Then they tried to arrest him, but no one laid hands on him, because his hour had not yet come. ³¹Yet many in the crowd believed in him and were saying, “When the Messiah^a comes, will he do more signs than this man has done?”^b

Officers Are Sent to Arrest Jesus

³²The Pharisees heard the crowd muttering such things about him, and the chief priests and Pharisees sent temple police to arrest him. ³³Jesus then said, “I will be with you a little while longer, and then I am going to him who sent me. ³⁴You will search for me, but you will not find me; and where I am, you cannot come.” ³⁵The Jews said to one another, “Where does this man intend to go that we will not find him? Does he intend to go to the Dispersion among the Greeks and teach the Greeks? ³⁶What does he mean by saying, ‘You will search for me and you

In ancient times insanity was often understood as demon possession. Thus the crowd is claiming that Jesus is “out of his mind.” See also 8.48–52; 10.20–21. 7.21 One work, i.e., the healing narrated in 5.1–9. Astonished. See 7.48. 7.27–29 The subject of where this man is from is an important one in John. The world’s claim to know Jesus’ origin (cf. 7.41–42; see also 6.42) is in fact false (see 8.14; 9.29; cf. 3.8; 19.9). Jesus’ retort (vv.28–29) is therefore ironic or sarcastic. 7.28 I have not come on my own. See 7.17; see also 5.30; 8.28, 42; 12.49–50; note on 14.10. You do not know him. See 8.19, 55; 15.21; 16.3; 17.25. 7.30–31 On the division of opinions here, see note on 7.12. 7.30 Jesus’ hour is that of his death and glorification (see note on 12.23; see also notes on 4.23; 16.25). Until that hour, no one can harm him (see 7.6, 8, 44; see also 2.4; 8.20, 59; 10.31, 39). 7.31 Signs. See notes on 2.11; 6.14–15. 7.32 The combination of chief priests and Pharisees refers to the Sanhedrin, or governing council (11.47), which had at its disposal a small force of police, mainly for keeping order in the temple (see 18.3). 7.33–36 This kind of misunderstanding (see also 8.21–22), which ironically proves to be more true than the speaker knows, is common in John (see 6.52; 8.53, 57; 11.51–52; 19.14; note on 3.4). 7.33 A little while. Rivers of Living Water

37 On the last day of the festival, the great day, while Jesus was standing there, he cried out, "Let anyone who is thirsty come to me, ³⁸and let the one who believes in me drink. As^c the scripture has said, 'Out of the believer's heart^d shall flow rivers of living water.'" ³⁹Now he said this about the Spirit, which believers in him were to receive; for as yet there was no Spirit,^e because Jesus was not yet glorified.

Division Among the People

40 When they heard these words, some in the crowd said, "This is really the prophet." ⁴¹Others said, "This is the Messiah." ^fBut some asked, "Surely the Messiah^f does not come from Galilee, does he? ⁴²Has not the scripture said that the Messiah^f is descended from David and comes from Bethlehem, the village where David lived?" ⁴³So there was a division in the crowd because of him. ⁴⁴Some of them wanted to arrest him, but no one laid hands on him.

The Unbelief of Those in Authority

45 Then the temple police went back to the chief priests and Pharisees, who asked them, "Why did you not arrest him?" ⁴⁶The police answered, "Never has anyone spoken like this!" ⁴⁷Then the Pharisees replied, "Surely you have not been deceived too, have you? ⁴⁸Has any one of the authorities or of the Pharisees believed in him? ⁴⁹But this crowd, which does not know the law—they are accursed." ⁵⁰Nicodemus, who had gone to Jesus^g before, and who was one of them, asked, ⁵¹"Our law does not judge people without first giving them a hearing to find out what they are doing, does it?" ⁵²They replied, "Surely you are not also from Galilee, are you? Search and you will see that no prophet is to arise from Galilee."

The Woman Caught in Adultery

8 ⁵³Then each of them went home, ¹while Jesus went to the Mount of Olives. ²Early in the morning he came again to the temple. All the people came to him and he sat down and began to teach them. ³The scribes and the Pharisees brought a woman who had been caught in adultery; and making her stand before all of them, ⁴they said to him, "Teacher, this woman was caught in the very act of committing adultery. ⁵Now in the law Moses commanded us to stone such women. Now what do you say?"

authority (leader) and a Pharisee, has shown tentative interest in Jesus (3.1–21). Whether John presents Nicodemus as one who truly believed in him, however, is in doubt. Here Nicodemus begins to defend Jesus but goes no further than an appeal to the law (i.e., the Pharisees' law). See also notes on 3.1–21; 12.42–43; 19.39. 7.52 Galilee was regarded by many Pharisees as religiously lax; see also 1.46. Search, i.e., the scriptures. No prophet is to arise, or, with some manuscripts, "the prophet is not to arise" (see 7.40–41).

7.53–8.11 On the basis of the best manuscripts and other ancient evidence (see text note j), scholars generally agree that this story was not originally part of the Gospel of John. It may, however, be based on early oral traditions about Jesus. 8.1–2 Cf. Lk 21.37–38. 8.3 Though the scribes are often named alongside the Pharisees in the other Gospels, they are never mentioned elsewhere in John. 8.5 Such women. In 6They said this to test him, so that they might have some charge to bring against him. Jesus bent down and wrote with his finger on the ground. 7When they kept on questioning him, he straightened up and said to them, "Let anyone among you who is without sin be the first to throw a stone at her." 8And once again he bent down and wrote on the ground.^h 9When they heard it, they went away, one by one, beginning with the elders; and Jesus was left alone with the woman standing before him. 10Jesus straightened up and said to her, "Woman, where are they? Has no one condemned you?" 11She said, "No one, sir."ⁱ And Jesus said, "Neither do I condemn you. Go your way, and from now on do not sin again."^j

Jesus the Light of the World

12 Again Jesus spoke to them, saying, "I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness but will have the light of life." 13Then the Pharisees said to him, "You are testifying on your own behalf; your testimony is not valid." 14Jesus answered, "Even if I testify on my own behalf, my testimony is valid because I know where I have come from and where I am going, but you do not know where I come from or where I am going. 15You judge by human standards;^k I judge no one. 16Yet even if I do judge, my judgment is valid; for it is not I alone who judge, but I and the Father^l who sent me. 17In your law it is written that the testimony of two witnesses is valid. 18I testify on my own behalf, and the Father who sent me testifies on my behalf." 19Then they said to him, "Where is your Father?" Jesus answered, "You know neither me nor my Father. If you knew me, you would know my Father also." 20He spoke these words while he was teaching in the treasury of the temple, but no one arrested him, because his hour had not yet come.

Jesus Is from Above

21 Again he said to them, "I am going away, and you will search for me, but you will die in your sin. Where I am going, you cannot come." 22Then the Jews said, "Is he going to kill himself? Is that what he means by saying, 'Where I am going, you cannot come'?" 23He said to them, "You are from below, I am from above; you are of this world, I am not of this world. 24I told you that you would die in your sins, for you will die in your sins

8.21–30 A dialogue in which Jesus' hearers repeatedly fail to understand his mysterious words; yet at the end, many believe in him. 8.21–22 On the ironic misunderstanding here, see note on 7.33–36. Jesus is not going to kill himself, but he is going to give up his life, and John makes clear that his death is fully under his control (10.17–18; 15.13; 18.4–8; 19.28–30). 8.23 I am from above. See also 3.3, 31; 19.11. I am not of this world. See also 18.36; note on 17.14–16. 8.24 The expression I am he (or just I am) is part of Jesus' revelation of his divine identity in John. It functions virtually as a divine name, based on OT assertions of God's identity (see, e.g., Ex 3.14; Isa 43.10–11, 25; 51.12). Sometimes other descriptions (such as light or bread) are added to the I am. See 4.26; 6.20, 35;

unless you believe that I am he.”^m 25 They said to him, “Who are you?” Jesus said to them, “Why do I speak to you at all?”ⁿ 26 I have much to say about you and much to condemn; but the one who sent me is true, and I declare to the world what I have heard from him.” 27 They did not understand that he was speaking to them about the Father. 28 So Jesus said, “When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will realize that I am he,^m and that I do nothing on my own, but I speak these things as the Father instructed me. 29 And the one who sent me is with me; he has not left me alone, for I always do what is pleasing to him.” 30 As he was saying these things, many believed in him.

Jesus and Abraham

31 Then Jesus said to the Jews who had believed in him, “If you continue in my word, you are truly my disciples; 32 and you will know the truth, and the truth will make you free.” 33 They answered him, “We are descendants of Abraham and have never been slaves to anyone. What do you mean by saying, ‘You will be made free?’”

34 Jesus answered them, “Very truly, I tell you, everyone who commits sin is a slave to sin. 35 The slave does not have a permanent place in the household; the son has a place there forever. 36 So if the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed. 37 I know that you are descendants of Abraham; yet you look for an opportunity to kill me, because there is no place in you for my word. 38 I declare what I have seen in the Father’s presence; as for you, you should do what you have heard from the Father.”^o

39 They answered him, “Abraham is our father.” Jesus said to them, “If you were Abraham’s children, you would be doing^p what Abraham did, 40 but now you are trying to kill me, a man who has told you the truth that I heard from God. This is not what Abraham did. 41 You are indeed doing what your father does.” They said to him, “We are not illegitimate children; we have one father, God himself.” 42 Jesus said to them, “If God were your Father, you would love me, for I came from God and now I am here. I did not come on my own, but he sent me. 43 Why do you not understand what I say? It is because you cannot accept my word. 44 You are from your father the devil, and you choose to do your father’s desires. He was a murderer from the beginning and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks according to his own nature, for he is a liar and the father of lies. 45 But because I tell the truth, you do not believe me. 46 Which of you convicts me of sin? 48 The Jews answered him, "Are we not right in saying that you are a Samaritan and have a demon?" 49 Jesus answered, "I do not have a demon; but I honor my Father, and you dishonor me. 50 Yet I do not seek my own glory; there is one who seeks it and he is the judge. 51 Very truly, I tell you, whoever keeps my word will never see death." 52 The Jews said to him, "Now we know that you have a demon. Abraham died, and so did the prophets; yet you say, 'Whoever keeps my word will never taste death.' 53 Are you greater than our father Abraham, who died? The prophets also died. Who do you claim to be?" 54 Jesus answered, "If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing. It is my Father who glorifies me, he of whom you say, 'He is our God,' 55 though you do not know him. But I know him; if I would say that I do not know him, I would be a liar like you. But I do know him and I keep his word. 56 Your ancestor Abraham rejoiced that he would see my day; he saw it and was glad." 57 Then the Jews said to him, "You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?"^q 58 Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, before Abraham was, I am." 59 So they picked up stones to throw at him, but Jesus hid himself and went out of the temple.

A Man Born Blind Receives Sight

9 As he walked along, he saw a man blind from birth. 2 His disciples asked him, "Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" 3 Jesus answered, "Neither this man nor his parents sinned; he was born blind so that God's works might be revealed in him. 4 We must work the works of him who sent me^s while it is day; night is coming when no one can work. 5 As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world." 6 When he had said this, he spat on the ground and made mud with the saliva and spread the mud on the man's eyes, 7 saying to him, "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam" (which means Sent). Then he went and washed and came back able to see. 8 The neighbors and those who had seen him before as a beggar began to ask, "Is this not the man who used to sit and beg?" 9 Some were saying, "It is he." Others were saying, "No, but it is someone like him." He kept saying, "I am the man." 10 But they kept asking him, "Then how were your eyes opened?" 11 He answered, "The man called Jesus made mud, spread it on my eyes, and said to me, 'Go to Siloam and wash.' Then I went

9.1–41 It has been suggested that the blind man in this story is intended to represent the Christian community in its struggle with the synagogue authorities (see Introduction). Like the Samaritan woman in 4.1–42, but unlike the sick man in 5.2–15, the blind man increasingly recognizes Jesus' identity (vv. 11, 17, 33, 38). The question of who is a sinner also runs through the entire chapter (see vv. 2–3, 16, 24–25, 31–33, 34, 41). 9.2 Cf. 5.14. Punishment of children for their parents' sins is spoken of in Ex 20.5; 34.7; Ps 109.13–15; Isa 65.6–7. In Ezek 18, on the other hand, the idea is condemned. 9.3 He was born blind. These words are not actually in the Greek text of Jesus' reply. The point seems to be not to find a cause or a purpose for the man's blindness but to present it as an occasion for doing God's works of healing (see 4.34; 5.17–21, 36; 10.32–38; 14.10–12; 17.4). 9.4–5 The works of him who sent me. See 4.34. Day, night, light. See note on 8.12. Night . . . when no one can work. On one level, this refers to the end of Jesus' own life (v. 5). But the use of we (v. 4) extends it to Jesus' followers, who do even greater works than he (14.12) in the time available to them. See also 11.9–10; 12.35–36. 9.6 See also Mk 8.23. 9.7 The pool of Siloam was fed by the waters of the spring Gihon running beneath the city of Jerusalem through a tunnel and washed and received my sight." 12 They said to him, "Where is he?" He said, "I do not know."

The Blind Man and the Pharisees

13 They brought to the Pharisees the man who had formerly been blind. 14 Now it was a sabbath day when Jesus made the mud and opened his eyes. 15 Then the Pharisees also began to ask him how he had received his sight. He said to them, "He put mud on my eyes. Then I washed, and now I see." 16 Some of the Pharisees said, "This man is not from God, for he does not observe the sabbath." But others said, "How can a man who is a sinner perform such signs?" And they were divided. 17 So they said again to the blind man, "What do you say about him? It was your eyes he opened." He said, "He is a prophet."

18 The Jews did not believe that he had been blind and had received his sight until they called the parents of the man who had received his sight 19 and asked them, "Is this your son, who you say was born blind? How then does he now see?" 20 His parents answered, "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind; 21 but we do not know how it is that now he sees, nor do we know who opened his eyes. Ask him; he is of age. He will speak for himself." 22 His parents said this because they were afraid of the Jews; for the Jews had already agreed that anyone who confessed Jesus^t to be the Messiah^u would be put out of the synagogue. 23 Therefore his parents said, "He is of age; ask him."

24 So for the second time they called the man who had been blind, and they said to him, "Give glory to God! We know that this man is a sinner." 25 He answered, "I do not know whether he is a sinner. One thing I do know, that though I was blind, now I see." 26 They said to him, "What did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?" 27 He answered them, "I have told you already, and you would not listen. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to become his disciples?" 28 Then they reviled him, saying, "You are his disciple, but we are disciples of Moses. 29 We know that God has spoken to Moses, but as for this man, we do not know where he comes from." 30 The man answered, "Here is an astonishing thing! You do not know where he comes from, and yet he opened my eyes. 31 We know that God does not listen to sinners, but he does listen to one who worships him and obeys his will. 32 Never since the world began has it been heard that anyone opened the eyes of a person born blind. 33 If this man were not from God, he could do nothing." 34 They answered him, "You were born entirely in sins, and are you trying to teach us?" And they drove him out.

The Blind Man and Jesus

35 Jesus heard that they had driven him out, and when he found him, he said, "Do you believe in the Son of Man?" 36 He answered, "And who is he, sir?" 37 Jesus said to him, "You have seen him, and the one speaking with you is he." 38 He said, "Lord,^w I believe." And he worshiped him. 39 Jesus said, "I came into this world for judgment so that those who do not see may see, and those who do see may become blind.”⁴⁰ Some of the Pharisees near him heard this and said to him, “Surely we are not blind, are we?”⁴¹ Jesus said to them, “If you were blind, you would not have sin. But now that you say, ‘We see,’ your sin remains.

Jesus the Good Shepherd

10 “Very truly, I tell you, anyone who does not enter the sheepfold by the gate but climbs in by another way is a thief and a bandit.² The one who enters by the gate is the shepherd of the sheep.³ The gatekeeper opens the gate for him, and the sheep hear his voice. He calls his own sheep by name and leads them out.⁴ When he has brought out all his own, he goes ahead of them, and the sheep follow him because they know his voice.⁵ They will not follow a stranger, but they will run from him because they do not know the voice of strangers.”⁶ Jesus used this figure of speech with them, but they did not understand what he was saying to them.

⁷ So again Jesus said to them, “Very truly, I tell you, I am the gate for the sheep.⁸ All who came before me are thieves and bandits; but the sheep did not listen to them.⁹ I am the gate. Whoever enters by me will be saved, and will come in and go out and find pasture.¹⁰ The thief comes only to steal and kill and destroy. I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly.

¹¹ “I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep.¹² The hired hand, who is not the shepherd and does not own the sheep, sees the wolf coming and leaves the sheep and runs away—and the wolf snatches them and scatters them.¹³ The hired hand runs away because a hired hand does not care for the sheep.¹⁴ I am the good shepherd. I know my own and my own know me,¹⁵ just as the Father knows me and I know the Father. And I lay down my life for the sheep.¹⁶ I have other sheep that do not belong to this fold. I must bring them also, and they will listen to my voice. So there will be one flock, one shepherd.¹⁷ For this reason the Father loves me, because I lay down my life in order to take it up again.¹⁸ No one takes^x it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it up again. I have received this command from my Father.”

¹⁹ Again the Jews were divided because of these words.²⁰ Many of them were saying, “He has a demon and is out of his mind. Why listen to him?”²¹ Others were saying, “These are not the words of one who has a demon. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?”

10.1–21 Jesus is apparently still speaking to the Pharisees from 9.40. 10.1–5 This is the closest thing to a parable in the Gospel of John. It seems to present a highly realistic picture of Palestinian shepherding in ancient times. The “parable” focuses first on the gate (vv. 1–2) and then on the shepherd (vv. 3–5). 10.1 The sheepfold was an enclosure, often with stone walls, where several shepherds might bring their flocks for safety at night. 10.3–4 Cf. Jesus Is Rejected

22 At that time the festival of the Dedication took place in Jerusalem. It was winter, ²³and Jesus was walking in the temple, in the portico of Solomon. ²⁴So the Jews gathered around him and said to him, "How long will you keep us in suspense? If you are the Messiah,^y tell us plainly." ²⁵Jesus answered, "I have told you, and you do not believe. The works that I do in my Father's name testify to me; ²⁶but you do not believe, because you do not belong to my sheep. ²⁷My sheep hear my voice. I know them, and they follow me. ²⁸I give them eternal life, and they will never perish. No one will snatch them out of my hand. ²⁹What my Father has given me is greater than all else, and no one can snatch it out of the Father's hand.^z ³⁰The Father and I are one."

³¹ The Jews took up stones again to stone him. ³²Jesus replied, "I have shown you many good works from the Father. For which of these are you going to stone me?" ³³The Jews answered, "It is not for a good work that we are going to stone you, but for blasphemy, because you, though only a human being, are making yourself God." ³⁴Jesus answered, "Is it not written in your law,^a 'I said, you are gods'? ³⁵If those to whom the word of God came were called 'gods'—and the scripture cannot be annulled—³⁶can you say that the one whom the Father has sanctified and sent into the world is blaspheming because I said, 'I am God's Son'? ³⁷If I am not doing the works of my Father, then do not believe me. ³⁸But if I do them, even though you do not believe me, believe the works, so that you may know and understand^b that the Father is in me and I am in the Father." ³⁹Then they tried to arrest him again, but he escaped from their hands.

⁴⁰ He went away again across the Jordan to the place where John had been baptizing earlier, and he remained there. ⁴¹Many came to him, and they were saying, "John performed no sign, but everything that John said about this man was true." ⁴²And many believed in him there.

10.22–39 Jesus' last controversy with "the Jews" in John. As elsewhere, this debate reflects the beliefs of the Christian community in its conflict with the synagogue authorities (see Introduction). 10.22 The last indication of time was in 7.37. The festival of the Dedication (Hebrew Hanukkah) takes place in December. It commemorates the rededication of the temple by Judas Maccabeus in 164 B.C.E. (1 Macc 4.36–59; see "Jewish Festivals in the Gospel of John," p. 2017). 10.23 Portico of Solomon, a covered walkway on the eastern side of the temple area. See 1.19–34; 3.27–30.

11.1–44 Having spoken of himself as the good shepherd who lays down his life for the sheep (10.11–18), Jesus now risks his life to give life to his friend Lazarus (11.7–16; cf. 15.13). The result of this life giving is Jesus' own death

fume and wiped his feet with her hair; her brother Lazarus was ill.³ So the sisters sent a message to Jesus,^c "Lord, he whom you love is ill."⁴ But when Jesus heard it, he said, "This illness does not lead to death; rather it is for God's glory, so that the Son of God may be glorified through it."⁵ Accordingly, though Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus,⁶ after having heard that Lazarus^d was ill, he stayed two days longer in the place where he was.

7 Then after this he said to the disciples, "Let us go to Judea again."⁸ The disciples said to him, "Rabbi, the Jews were just now trying to stone you, and are you going there again?"⁹ Jesus answered, "Are there not twelve hours of daylight? Those who walk during the day do not stumble, because they see the light of this world.¹⁰ But those who walk at night stumble, because the light is not in them."¹¹ After saying this, he told them, "Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I am going there to awaken him."¹² The disciples said to him, "Lord, if he has fallen asleep, he will be all right."¹³ Jesus, however, had been speaking about his death, but they thought that he was referring merely to sleep.¹⁴ Then Jesus told them plainly, "Lazarus is dead."¹⁵ For your sake I am glad I was not there, so that you may believe. But let us go to him."¹⁶ Thomas, who was called the Twin,^e said to his fellow disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

Jesus the Resurrection and the Life

17 When Jesus arrived, he found that Lazarus^d had already been in the tomb four days.¹⁸ Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, some two miles^f away,¹⁹ and many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary to console them about their brother.²⁰ When Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went and met him, while Mary stayed at home.²¹ Martha said to Jesus, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died."²² But even now I know that God will give you whatever you ask of him."²³ Jesus said to her, "Your brother will rise again."²⁴ Martha said to him, "I know that he will rise again in the resurrection on the last day."

(11.45–53). Thus the story of the raising of Lazarus prepares readers for the passion narrative (chs. 18–19). 11.1 Bethany, not the same as Bethany across the Jordan, where John had baptized (see 1.28; note on 10.40). This Bethany lay just east of Jerusalem (11.18), across the Kidron Valley and on the eastern side of the Mount of Olives. It has been suggested that Mary and her sister Martha are the same women referred to in Lk 10.38–42, but this is uncertain. 11.2 Anointed. See 12.1–8. 11.4 It is for God's glory. Cf. 9.3. Glory, glorified. See 11.40; see also 2.11; 13.31–32; 14.13; 17.1. 11.6 Jesus seems deliberately to let Lazarus die (see also 11.14–15, 21, 32, 37). However, Lazarus might already have been dead by the time the message arrived, and Jesus' delay would have timed his arrival in Bethany after the finality of Lazarus's death had been confirmed (see note on 11.17). As elsewhere (2.3–4; 7.1–10), Jesus acts at his own time. 11.8 The Jews were . . . trying to stone you. See 10.31; see also 8.59. Some scholars suggest that the Greek word usually rendered Jews should be translated "Judeans" here and elsewhere in ch. 11. Others see little difference between the people here and "the Jews" elsewhere in John; see Introduction. 11.9 Twelve hours of daylight. The point is apparently that Jesus knows that his

"hour" has not yet come (see note on 7.30), so that he can safely travel to Judea. The light of this world. See 8.12; 9.4–5; 12.35–36. 11.11 Fallen asleep, a common euphemism for death (see Mt 27.52). 11.12–13 On the disciples' misunderstanding here, see notes on 3.4; 7.33–36. 11.15 I am glad I was not there. See note on 11.6. 11.16 Thomas. See 14.5; 20.24–29; 21.2. Die with him. Cf. 13.36–38. 11.17 In the tomb four days. Jewish custom at that time required that burial take place the same day as the death, if possible. Jewish belief also held that the soul lingered near the body for three days, so that death was truly final on the fourth day. Jesus' two-day delay, plus one day's travel each way between Bethany and Jesus' location across the Jordan (10.40), would make four days if Lazarus died and was buried on the same day the messenger left Bethany to tell Jesus that he was ill (see 11.3–6). 11.18 Bethany. See note on 11.1. 11.20 She went and met him. People in mourning normally did not leave the house during the first seven days, except to go to the tomb to grieve for the deceased (see note on 11.31). 11.21 See note on 11.6. 11.22 Whatever you ask. See also 14.13–14; 15.7, 16; 16.23–24. 11.23–27 Cf. 4.25–26. 11.24 Many Jews of that time believed that there would be a final resurrection, though others denied this (see Mk 12.18–27;

25 Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life.^g Those who believe in me, even though they die, will live, 26 and everyone who lives and believes in me will never die. Do you believe this?" 27 She said to him, "Yes, Lord, I believe that you are the Messiah,^h the Son of God, the one coming into the world."

Jesus Raises Lazarus

28 When she had said this, she went back and called her sister Mary, and told her privately, "The Teacher is here and is calling for you." 29 And when she heard it, she got up quickly and went to him. 30 Now Jesus had not yet come to the village, but was still at the place where Martha had met him. 31 The Jews who were with her in the house, consoling her, saw Mary get up quickly and go out. They followed her because they thought that she was going to the tomb to weep there. 32 When Mary came where Jesus was and saw him, she knelt at his feet and said to him, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died." 33 When Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her also weeping, he was greatly disturbed in spirit and deeply moved. 34 He said, "Where have you laid him?" They said to him, "Lord, come and see." 35 Jesus began to weep. 36 So the Jews said, "See how he loved him!" 37 But some of them said, "Could not he who opened the eyes of the blind man have kept this man from dying?"

38 Then Jesus, again greatly disturbed, came to the tomb. It was a cave, and a stone was lying against it. 39 Jesus said, "Take away the stone." Martha, the sister of the dead man, said to him, "Lord, already there is a stench because he has been dead four days." 40 Jesus said to her, "Did I not tell you that if you believed, you would see the glory of God?" 41 So they took away the stone. And Jesus looked upward and said, "Father, I thank you for having heard me. 42 I knew that you always hear me, but I have said this for the sake of the crowd standing here, so that they may believe that you sent me." 43 When he had said this, he cried with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come out!" 44 The dead man came out, his hands and feet bound with strips of cloth, and his face wrapped in a cloth. Jesus said to them, "Unbind him, and let him go."

The Plot to Kill Jesus

45 Many of the Jews therefore, who had come with Mary and had seen what Jesus did, believed in him. 46 But some of them went to the Pharisees and told them what he had done. 47 So the chief priests and the Pharisees called a meeting of the council, and said, "What are we to do? This man is performing many signs. 48 If we let him go on like this, everyone will believe in him, and the Romans will come and destroy both our holy placeⁱ and our nation." 49 But one of them, Caiaphas, who was high priest that year, said to

As elsewhere (5.24–29; 6.40, 54; 8.51), Jesus brings the future resurrection and eternal life into the present. 11.27 Martha responds with belief not in Jesus' statement or its logic but in Jesus himself, and it is this belief that brings life (20.31). 11.31 Going to the tomb. 11.45–53 The decision to put Jesus to death results from his giving life to Lazarus; cf. Mk 14.1–2. 11.46 See also 5.15. 11.47–48 The council, i.e., the Sanhedrin, the highest Jewish court and governing body (see note on 7.32). A man doing signs might intend to challenge the rule of the Romans and so bring on an attack; see note on 6.14–15. A generation after Jesus' time, the Jewish revolt of 66–70 c.e. resulted in the destruction of Jerusalem, including the temple (holy place), and in the death or captivity of thousands of Jews. 11.49 That year. The high-priesthood was theoretically a hereditary lifetime position (Num 25.10–13), but in the first century c.e. the office holder was subject to approval by the Roman governor and the position changed hands them, "You know nothing at all! ⁵⁰You do not understand that it is better for you to have one man die for the people than to have the whole nation destroyed." ⁵¹He did not say this on his own, but being high priest that year he prophesied that Jesus was about to die for the nation, ⁵²and not for the nation only, but to gather into one the dispersed children of God. ⁵³So from that day on they planned to put him to death.

⁵⁴ Jesus therefore no longer walked about openly among the Jews, but went from there to a town called Ephraim in the region near the wilderness; and he remained there with the disciples.

⁵⁵ Now the Passover of the Jews was near, and many went up from the country to Jerusalem before the Passover to purify themselves. ⁵⁶They were looking for Jesus and were asking one another as they stood in the temple, "What do you think? Surely he will not come to the festival, will he?" ⁵⁷Now the chief priests and the Pharisees had given orders that anyone who knew where Jesus^j was should let them know, so that they might arrest him.

Mary Anoints Jesus

12 Six days before the Passover Jesus came to Bethany, the home of Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. ²There they gave a dinner for him. Martha served, and Lazarus was one of those at the table with him. ³Mary took a pound of costly perfume made of pure nard, anointed Jesus' feet, and wiped them^k with her hair. The house was filled with the fragrance of the perfume. ⁴But Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples (the one who was about to betray him), said, ⁵"Why was this perfume not sold for three hundred denarii^l and the money given to the poor?" ⁶(He said this not because he cared about the poor, but because he was a thief; he kept the common purse and used to steal what was put into it.) ⁷Jesus said, "Leave her alone. She bought it^m so that she might keep it for the day of my burial. ⁸You always have the poor with you, but you do not always have me."

The Plot to Kill Lazarus

⁹ When the great crowd of the Jews learned that he was there, they came not only because of Jesus but also to see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. ¹⁰So the chief priests planned to put Lazarus to death as well, ¹¹since it was on account of him that many of the Jews were deserting and were believing in Jesus.

The high-priesthood was not generally regarded as carrying prophetic powers. The sense may be that this anointing of Jesus foreshadows his impending death. Jewish burial customs included anointing the body with perfumed oil (see Lk 23.56). 12.9–11 Lazarus is also endangered because Jesus gave him life; see 11.45–53. 12.9 Crowd. was coming to Jerusalem. ¹³So they took branches of palm trees and went out to meet him, shouting,

"Hosanna!

Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord —
the King of Israel!"

¹⁴Jesus found a young donkey and sat on it; as it is written:

¹⁵ "Do not be afraid, daughter of Zion.

Look, your king is coming, sitting on a donkey's colt!"

¹⁶His disciples did not understand these things at first; but when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things had been written of him and had been done to him. ¹⁷So the crowd that had been with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead continued to testify.ⁿ ¹⁸It was also because they heard that he had performed this sign that the crowd went to meet him. ¹⁹The Pharisees then said to one another, "You see, you can do nothing. Look, the world has gone after him!"

Some Greeks Wish to See Jesus

²⁰ Now among those who went up to worship at the festival were some Greeks. ²¹They came to Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee, and said to him, "Sir, we wish to see Jesus." ²²Philip went and told Andrew; then Andrew and Philip went and told Jesus. ²³Jesus answered them, "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified. ²⁴Very truly, I tell you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains just a single grain; but if it dies, it bears much fruit. ²⁵Those who love their life lose it, and those who hate their life in this world will keep it for eternal life. ²⁶Whoever serves me must follow me, and where I am, there will my servant be also. Whoever serves me, the Father will honor.

Jesus Speaks About His Death

²⁷ "Now my soul is troubled. And what should I say — 'Father, save me from this hour'? No, it is for this reason that I have come to this hour. ²⁸Father, glorify your name." Then a voice came from heaven, "I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again." ²⁹The crowd standing there heard it and said that it was thunder. Others said, "An angel has spoken to him." ³⁰Jesus answered, "This voice has come for your sake, not for mine. ³¹Now is the judgment of this world; now the ruler of this world will be driven out. ³²And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all people^o to myself." ³³He said this to indicate the kind of death he was to die. ³⁴The crowd answered him, "We have heard from the law that the Messiah^p remains forever. that the Son of Man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of Man?" ³⁵Jesus said to them, "The light is with you for a little longer. Walk while you have the light, so that the darkness may not overtake you. If you walk in the darkness, you do not know where you are going. ³⁶While you have the light, believe in the light, so that you may become children of light."

The Response to Jesus

After Jesus had said this, he departed and hid from them. ³⁷Although he had performed so many signs in their presence, they did not believe in him. ³⁸This was to fulfill the word spoken by the prophet Isaiah:

"Lord, who has believed our message, and to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?"

³⁹And so they could not believe, because Isaiah also said,

⁴⁰ "He has blinded their eyes and hardened their heart, so that they might not look with their eyes,
and understand with their heart and turn—
and I would heal them."

⁴¹Isaiah said this because^q he saw his glory and spoke about him. ⁴²Nevertheless many, even of the authorities, believed in him. But because of the Pharisees they did not confess it, for fear that they would be put out of the synagogue; ⁴³for they loved human glory more than the glory that comes from God.

Summary of Jesus' Teaching

⁴⁴ Then Jesus cried aloud: "Whoever believes in me believes not in me but in him who sent me. ⁴⁵And whoever sees me sees him who sent me. ⁴⁶I have come as light into the world, so that everyone who believes in me should not remain in the darkness. ⁴⁷I do not judge anyone who hears my words and does not keep them, for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. ⁴⁸The one who rejects me and does not receive my word has a judge; on the last day the word that I have spoken will serve as judge, ⁴⁹for I have not spoken on my own, but the Father who sent me has himself given me a commandment about what to say and what to speak. ⁵⁰And I know that his commandment is eternal life. What I speak, therefore, I speak just as the Father has told me."

13.1–17.26 The story of the Last Supper in John is unlike that in any of the other Gospels. In the other Gospels this supper is the Jewish Passover meal (Mt 26.17–19; Mk 14.12–16; Lk 22.7–13); John says that the Passover was to be eaten on the following evening, after Jesus' crucifixion (13.1; 18.28; 19.14). Jesus' final words to the disciples in chs. 13–16 are also unique to John. A few of the sayings do have parallels in the other Gospels, but those parallels are not placed at the Last Supper. Likewise the lengthy prayer in ch. 17 has no equivalent in the other Gospels. Most scholars conclude that these "farewell discourses," like the rest of John, reflect the understanding of Jesus as it had developed in the Christian community for which John was written (see note on 14.25–26). The discourses also fit the category of "last words" or "testament" spoken by a leader before dying (see also Gen 48–49; Deut 33; Josh 23–24; Acts 20.17–38).

own who were in the world, he loved them to the end. ²The devil had already put it into the heart of Judas son of Simon Iscariot to betray him. And during supper ³Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he had come from God and was going to God, ⁴got up from the table,^r took off his outer robe, and tied a towel around himself. ⁵Then he poured water into a basin and began to wash the disciples' feet and to wipe them with the towel that was tied around him. ⁶He came to Simon Peter, who said to him, "Lord, are you going to wash my feet?" ⁷Jesus answered, "You do not know now what I am doing, but later you will understand." ⁸Peter said to him, "You will never wash my feet." Jesus answered, "Unless I wash you, you have no share with me." ⁹Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, not my feet only but also my hands and my head!" ¹⁰Jesus said to him, "One who has bathed does not need to wash, except for the feet,^s but is entirely clean. And you^t are clean, though not all of you." ¹¹For he knew who was to betray him; for this reason he said, "Not all of you are clean."

¹² After he had washed their feet, had put on his robe, and had returned to the table, he said to them, "Do you know what I have done to you? ¹³You call me

Teacher and Lord—and you are right, for that is what I am. ¹⁴So if I, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet. ¹⁵For I have set you an example, that you also should do as I have done to you. ¹⁶Very truly, I tell you, servants^u are not greater than their master, nor are messengers greater than the one who sent them. ¹⁷If you know these things, you are blessed if you do them. ¹⁸I am not speaking of all of you; I know whom I have chosen. But it is to fulfill the scripture, 'The one who ate my bread^v has lifted his heel against me.'¹⁹ I tell you this now, before it occurs, so that when it does occur, you may believe that I am he.^w ²⁰Very truly, I tell you, whoever receives one whom I send receives me; and whoever receives me receives him who sent me."

Jesus Foretells His Betrayal

²¹ After saying this Jesus was troubled in spirit, and declared, "Very truly, I tell you, one of you will betray me." ²²The disciples looked at one another, uncertain of whom he was speaking. ²³One of his disciples—the one whom Jesus loved—

13.1–5 The story of Jesus washing the disciples' feet is found in no other Gospel. 13.1 An introduction to the final chapters of John. Passover. See notes on 2.13; 6.4. Jesus knew. See 18.4; 19.28. On Jesus' hour, see 17.1; notes on 7.30; 12.23. He loved them to the end. See 13.34; 15.12–13. 13.2 See 13.26–30; Lk 22.3–4. 13.3 He had come from God and was going to God. See 16.28. 13.4–5 It was ordinary hospitality to offer guests water to wash their feet after a journey in sandals on dusty roads (Lk 7.44). A host was not expected to wash his guests' feet for them, but a slave might be assigned this task, or disciples might wash their teacher's feet. 13.6–11 This dialogue may transform the foot washing into a symbol of baptism. On the other hand, the foot washing may represent Jesus' death for the disciples, so that Peter's objection is similar to that in Mk 8.31–33. 13.7 See 13.36; see also 2.22; 12.16. 13.10 Bathed, possibly a reference to the Jewish ritual of purification (cf. 2.6); if this were done at home one would be clean and need only foot washing upon arriving for dinner. You are clean. See 15.3. 13.10–11 Not all of you. See 13.18, 21–30; see also 6.64, 70–71; 17.12.

13.12–20 These verses both interpret the foot washing and introduce themes treated later in chs. 13–17. 13.14–15 It is not known whether the Christian community for which this Gospel was written practiced foot washing in the literal sense. If so, they probably also understood the action and this text as symbolizing humble service in love toward one another; see 13.34; 15.12–13. 13.15 Do as I have done. See also 14.12; 17.18; 20.21. 13.16 See 15.20; see also Mt 10.24–25. Jesus said to him, "Do quickly what you are going to do." ²⁸Now no one at the table knew why he said this to him. ²⁹Some thought that, because Judas had the common purse, Jesus was telling him, "Buy what we need for the festival"; or, that he should give something to the poor. ³⁰So, after receiving the piece of bread, he immediately went out. And it was night.

The New Commandment

³¹ When he had gone out, Jesus said, "Now the Son of Man has been glorified, and God has been glorified in him. ³²If God has been glorified in him,^a God will also glorify him in himself and will glorify him at once. ³³Little children, I am with you only a little longer. You will look for me; and as I said to the Jews so now I say to you, 'Where I am going, you cannot come.'⁴ I give you a new commandment, that you love one another. Just as I have loved you, you also should love one another. ³⁵By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

Jesus Foretells Peter's Denial

³⁶ Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, where are you going?" Jesus answered, "Where I am going, you cannot follow me now; but you will follow afterward." ³⁷Peter said to him, "Lord, why can I not follow you now? I will lay down my life for you." ³⁸Jesus answered, "Will you lay down your life for me? Very truly, I tell you, before the cock crows, you will have denied me three times.

Jesus the Way to the Father

If it were not so, would I have told you that I go to prepare a place for you?^c ³And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and will take you to myself, so that where I am, there you may be also. ⁴And you know the way to the place where I am going."^d ⁵Thomas said to him, "Lord, we do not know where you are going. See 13.1; 15.12–13. 13.36–37 Precisely because they cannot in fact lay down their lives like Jesus (cf. 10.11–18; 15.13), the disciples cannot follow where he is going now. Afterward. Mk 14.27–31; Lk 22.31–34) takes place in Jn 18.15–18, 25–27. 14.1–3 Following the disturbing message in 13.36–38, these verses are comforting, for they introduce the subject of Jesus' return, which is then taken up and interpreted in several ways in the rest of ch. 14. Some scholars see these different conceptions as the work of different writers or editors. In any case, they render the actual Second Coming of Jesus, so important elsewhere in the NT, less significant in John. 14.3 Where I am, there you may be also. Whoever has seen me has seen the Father. How can you say, 'Show us the Father'? ¹⁰Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father is in me? Only John uses this term to speak of the Holy Spirit (see 14.26; 15.26; 16.7; cf. 1 Jn 2.1). 14.17 Spirit of truth, another term for the Holy Spirit unique to John in the NT (see 15.26; 16.13), though it is used in the Dead Sea Scrolls. The world cannot not receive or know the Spirit of truth because the Spirit is associated with Jesus (who is the truth; 14.6), whom the world also does not receive (1.11–12) or know (7.28; 8.19; 16.3). 14.18–24 Jesus' return as his abiding presence in the believers (see note on 14.1–3). See 14.15–17 for similar statements made about the Spirit. 14.19 This verse could also be translated, "In a little while the world will no longer see me; but you will see me, because I live and you will live." 25 "I have said these things to you while I am still with you. 26 But the Advocate,^j the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you everything, and remind you of all that I have said to you. 27 Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled, and do not let them be afraid. 28 You heard me say to you, 'I am going away, and I am coming to you.' If you loved me, you would rejoice that I am going to the Father, because the Father is greater than I. 29 And now I have told you this before it occurs, so that when it does occur, you may believe. 30 I will no longer talk much with you, for the ruler of this world is coming. He has no power over me; 31 but I do as the Father has commanded me, so that the world may know that I love the Father. Rise, let us be on our way.

Jesus the True Vine

15 "I am the true vine, and my Father is the vinegrower. 2 He removes every branch in me that bears no fruit. Every branch that bears fruit he prunes^k to make it bear more fruit. 3 You have already been cleansed^k by the word that I have spoken to you. 4 Abide in me as I abide in you. Just as the branch cannot bear fruit by itself unless it abides in the vine, neither can you unless you abide in me. 5 I am the vine, you are the branches. Those who abide in me and I in them bear much fruit, because apart from me you can do nothing. 6 Whoever does not abide in me is thrown away like a branch and withers; such branches are gathered, thrown into the fire, and burned. 7 If you abide in me, and my words abide in you, ask for whatever you wish, and it will be done for you. 8 My Father is glorified by this, that you bear much fruit and become^l my disciples. 9 As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you; abide in my love. 10 If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love, just as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his love. 11 I have said these things to you so that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be complete.

These chapters often take up themes from chs. 13–14 and develop them further. 15.1–6 In the OT the grapevine is used several times as a metaphor for Israel, with God as the vinegrower who tends it carefully but burns and destroys it if it is unfaithful. See Ps 80.8–16; Isa 5.1–7; 27.2–6; Jer 2.21; Ezek 15.1–6; 17.5–10; 19.10–14. 15.2–3 Pruning (the Greek root basically means cleanse) vine branches involves cutting back to the bare stem. You have already been cleansed. See also 13.10. 15.4–6 Abide in me. See note on 14.20. 15.7–17 Abiding in Jesus is discussed in relation to two themes, bearing fruit (vv. 7–8) and abiding in his love by keeping his commandments (vv. 9–15). The two themes are summed up in vv. 16–17. 15.7–8 See note on 14.12–14. 15.7 My words abide in you. Cf. 5.38; 8.31, 51; 14.23–24. 15.8 Become my disciples. See 13.35. 15.9 As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you. See note on 13.20. 15.10 If you keep my commandments. See 15.14; see also 14.15, 21–24. I have kept my Father's commandments. See note on 14.31. 15.11 That your joy may be complete. See 3.29; 16.24; 17.13; 1 Jn 1.4; 2 Jn 12. 15.12 See 13.34. 15.13 Lay down one's life, an expression found down one's life for one's friends. ¹⁴You are my friends if you do what I command you. ¹⁵I do not call you servants^m any longer, because the servantⁿ does not know what the master is doing; but I have called you friends, because I have made known to you everything that I have heard from my Father. ¹⁶You did not choose me but I chose you. And I appointed you to go and bear fruit, fruit that will last, so that the Father will give you whatever you ask him in my name. ¹⁷I am giving you these commands so that you may love one another.

The World's Hatred

¹⁸ "If the world hates you, be aware that it hated me before it hated you. ¹⁹If you belonged to the world,^o the world would love you as its own. Because you do not belong to the world, but I have chosen you out of the world—therefore the world hates you. ²⁰Remember the word that I said to you, 'Servants^p are not greater than their master.' If they persecuted me, they will persecute you; if they kept my word, they will keep yours also. ²¹But they will do all these things to you on account of my name, because they do not know him who sent me. ²²If I had not come and spoken to them, they would not have sin; but now they have no excuse for their sin. ²³Whoever hates me hates my Father also. ²⁴If I had not done among them the works that no one else did, they would not have sin. But now they have seen and hated both me and my Father. ²⁵It was to fulfill the word that is written in their law, 'They hated me without a cause.'

²⁶ "When the Advocate^q comes, whom I will send to you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who comes from the Father, he will testify on my behalf. ²⁷You also are to testify because you have been with me from the beginning.

16 "I have said these things to you to keep you from stumbling. ²They will put you out of the synagogues. Indeed, an hour is coming when those who kill you will think that by doing so they are offering worship to God. ³And they will do this because they have not known the Father or me. ⁴But I have said these things to you so that when their hour comes you may remember that I told you about them.

The Work of the Spirit

"I did not say these things to you from the beginning, because I was with you. ⁵But now I am going to him who sent me; yet none of you asks me, 'Where are you going?' ⁶But because I have said these things to you, sorrow has filled your only in the Gospel and Letters of John in the NT (see Jn 10.11, 15, 17; 13.37–38; 1 Jn 3.16). On the meaning of this expression within the Christian community, see 16.2. 15.15 Everything that I have heard from my Father. 15.18–16.4a This section on persecution is closely connected to the conflict between the synagogue authorities and the Christian community for which John was written (see Introduction). hearts. ⁷Nevertheless I tell you the truth: it is to your advantage that I go away, for if I do not go away, the Advocate^r will not come to you; but if I go, I will send him to you. ⁸And when he comes, he will prove the world wrong about^s sin and righteousness and judgment: ⁹about sin, because they do not believe in me; ¹⁰about righteousness, because I am going to the Father and you will see me no longer; ¹¹about judgment, because the ruler of this world has been condemned.

¹² "I still have many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. ¹³When the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into all the truth; for he will not speak on his own, but will speak whatever he hears, and he will declare to you the things that are to come. ¹⁴He will glorify me, because he will take what is mine and declare it to you. ¹⁵All that the Father has is mine. For this reason I said that he will take what is mine and declare it to you.

Sorrow Will Turn into Joy

¹⁶ "A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me." ¹⁷Then some of his disciples said to one another, "What does he mean by saying to us, 'A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me'; and 'Because I am going to the Father'?" ¹⁸They said, "What does he mean by this 'a little while'? We do not know what he is talking about." ¹⁹Jesus knew that they wanted to ask him, so he said to them, "Are you discussing among yourselves what I meant when I said, 'A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me'?" ²⁰Very truly, I tell you, you will weep and mourn, but the world will rejoice; you will have pain, but your pain will turn into joy. ²¹When a woman is in labor, she has pain, because her hour has come. But when her child is born, she no longer remembers the anguish because of the joy of having brought a human being into the world. ²²So you have pain now; but I will see you again, and your hearts will rejoice, and no one will take your joy from you. ²³On that day you will ask nothing of me.^t Very truly, I tell you, if you ask anything of the Father in my name, he will give it to you.^u ²⁴Until now you have not asked for anything in my name. Ask and you will receive, so that your joy may be complete.

Peace for the Disciples

²⁵ "I have said these things to you in figures of speech. The hour is coming when I will no longer speak to you in figures, but will tell you plainly of the Father. ²⁶On that day you will ask in my name. I do not say to you that I will ask

16.7 Advocate. See note on 14.16. 16.9 See 8.24; 15.22. 16.10 Perhaps a reference to the righteousness of Jesus, proven by his going to the Father. You will see me no longer. See 16.16–22; see also 14.19. 16.11 Judgment and condemned come from the same Greek root (cf. 3.17–18 with 5.24; 12.47–48). The ruler of this world, i.e., the devil. See 12.31; 14.30. 16.12–15 See note on 14.25–26. 16.13 Will speak whatever he hears, just as Jesus spoke only what he had heard from the Father (see 8.26–28; 12.49; 14.10; 15.15; 17.7–8). 16.15 All that the Father has is mine. See also 17.10.

16.16–33 The disciples' pain and confusion at Jesus' departure are contrasted with the joy and clarity of the Christian community at his return. The disciples speak here for the first time since ch. 14, in which these themes are also addressed. 16.16–17 See 16.5, 10; see also 7.33; 13.33; 14.19. 16.20 Cf. Mt 5.4; Lk 6.21. 16.21 Women's labor pains are frequently used by the OT prophets as a metaphor for times of crisis and trouble (Isa 13.7–8; 21.3; 26.17–18; Hos 13.13; Mic 4.9–10), and by the NT writers as a metaphor for the crisis of the end time (Mk 13.8; 1 Thess 5.3; Rev 12.1–6; cf. Rom 8.18–25). 16.22 I will see you again may refer both to Jesus' resurrection and to his second coming; see note on 14.1–3. 16.23–27 Here on that day seems to mean specifically Jesus' resurrection (see 14.20), though elsewhere in the NT it refers to his Second Coming on the last day (Mt 7.22; Lk 10.12; 17.31; 2 Thess 1.10; 2 Tim 1.18; 4.8). After Jesus' resurrection, God answers prayers in Jesus' name (see 15.16; cf. 14.13–14). 16.24 Ask and you will receive. See Mt 7.7–8; Lk 11.9–10; note on 14.12–14. So that your joy may be complete. See note on 15.11. 16.25 John often speaks of an hour that is coming and has already come (see 16.32; notes on 4.23; 7.30; 12.23). Only here and in 16.2–4 is there mention of an hour that is coming, but has not yet come. These passages therefore must be referring to a different "hour," the time of the Christian community after the Father on your behalf; ²⁷for the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God.^v ²⁸I came from the Father and have come into the world; again, I am leaving the world and am going to the Father."

²⁹ His disciples said, "Yes, now you are speaking plainly, not in any figure of speech! ³⁰Now we know that you know all things, and do not need to have anyone question you; by this we believe that you came from God." ³¹Jesus answered them, "Do you now believe? ³²The hour is coming, indeed it has come, when you will be scattered, each one to his home, and you will leave me alone. Yet I am not alone because the Father is with me. ³³I have said this to you, so that in me you may have peace. In the world you face persecution. But take courage; I have conquered the world!"

Jesus Prays for His Disciples

17 After Jesus had spoken these words, he looked up to heaven and said, "Father, the hour has come; glorify your Son so that the Son may glorify you, ²since you have given him authority over all people," to give eternal life to all whom you have given him. ³And this is eternal life, that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent. ⁴I glorified you on earth by finishing the work that you gave me to do. ⁵So now, Father, glorify me in your own presence with the glory that I had in your presence before the world existed.

⁶ "I have made your name known to those whom you gave me from the world. They were yours, and you gave them to me, and they have kept your word. ⁷Now they know that everything you have given me is from you; ⁸for the words that you gave to me I have given to them, and they have received them and know in truth that I came from you; and they have believed that you sent me. ⁹I am asking on their behalf; I am not asking on behalf of the world, but on behalf of those whom you gave me, because they are yours. ¹⁰All mine are yours, and yours are mine; and I have been glorified in them. ¹¹And now I am no longer in the world, but they are in the world, and I am coming to you. Holy Father, protect them in your name that you have given me, so that they may be one, as we are one. ¹²While I was with

See 3.2; 8.42; 13.3; 17.8. 16.29–30 The disciples are overconfident (as in 13.36–38), thinking mistakenly that now is the hour when Jesus will speak plainly (see note on 16.25) and they will believe. 16.32 You will be scattered, each one to his home. 17.1–26 Jesus' final prayer before his crucifixion (there is no prayer in the garden of Gethsemane in John). It has often been called a "high-priestly" prayer, but it makes little reference to Jesus' sacrifice. Rather, it shows how the Savior might intercede for his disciples before his departure. There are some parallels to the Lord's Prayer (see notes on 17.11; 17.15; 17.17). 17.1–5 A summary of Jesus' mission and his relationship to God. 17.1 The hour has come; glorify your Son so that the Son may glorify you. See 16.15. 17.11 Holy Father . . . your name. Cf. the Lord's Prayer (Mt 6.9; Lk 11.2). Since Jesus has God's name (see note on 17.6), he and God are one (see 10.30; note on 14.10), a unity based also on God's love (see 17.23–26). So that they may be one, as we are one. The Betrayal and Arrest of Jesus

18 After Jesus had spoken these words, he went out with his disciples across the Kidron valley to a place where there was a garden, which he and his disciples entered. ²Now Judas, who betrayed him, also knew the place, because Jesus often met there with his disciples. ³So Judas brought a detachment of soldiers together with police from the

Despite 3.16, the Christian community for whom John was written seems to have felt alienated from the world. Their conflict with the synagogue authorities convinced them that the world hated them, and that Jesus also did not belong to the world (3.31; 8.23). Indeed, John regards the evil one as the ruler of this world (12.31; 14.30; 16.11; 1 Jn 5.19). Despite this, they, like Jesus, are sent into the world (17.18), though they do not use the world's methods (18.36). The world refers not to the creation as such but to the human world that rejected God and the one whom God sent (see 1.10–11). 18.1–19.42 The passion narrative, i.e., the story of Jesus' trial and crucifixion. For John, this is the final act of the world's rejection of its redeemer (1.10–11; 3.19–21), yet it is also Jesus' glorification, his return to God (see note on 12.23). 18.1–11 The arrest (cf. Mt 26.30, 36, 47–56; Mk 14.26, 32, 43–52; Lk 22.39, 47–53). In John, Jesus virtually directs his own arrest; see 10.17–18. 18.1 The Kidron valley lies east of Jerusalem; by crossing it, one comes to the Mount of Olives. 18.3 Detachment, lit. a cohort, a unit of chief priests and the Pharisees, and they came there with lanterns and torches and weapons. ⁴Then Jesus, knowing all that was to happen to him, came forward and asked them, "Whom are you looking for?" ⁵They answered, "Jesus of Nazareth."^c Jesus replied, "I am he."^d Judas, who betrayed him, was standing with them. ⁶When Jesus^e said to them, "I am he,"^d they stepped back and fell to the ground. ⁷Again he asked them, "Whom are you looking for?" And they said, "Jesus of Nazareth."^c ⁸Jesus answered, "I told you that I am he."^d So if you are looking for me, let these men go." ⁹This was to fulfill the word that he had spoken, "I did not lose a single one of those whom you gave me." ¹⁰Then Simon Peter, who had a sword, drew it, struck the high priest's slave, and cut off his right ear. The slave's name was Malchus. ¹¹Jesus said to Peter, "Put your sword back into its sheath. Am I not to drink the cup that the Father has given me?"

Jesus Before the High Priest

¹² So the soldiers, their officer, and the Jewish police arrested Jesus and bound him. ¹³First they took him to Annas, who was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, the high priest that year. ¹⁴Caiaphas was the one who had advised the Jews that it was better to have one person die for the people.

Peter Denies Jesus

¹⁵ Simon Peter and another disciple followed Jesus. Since that disciple was known to the high priest, he went with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest, ¹⁶but Peter was standing outside at the gate. So the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out, spoke to the woman who guarded the gate, and brought Peter in. ¹⁷The woman said to Peter, "You are not also one of this man's disciples, are you?" He said, "I am not." ¹⁸Now the slaves and the police had made a charcoal fire because it was cold, and they were standing around it and warming themselves. Peter also was standing with them and warming himself.

The High Priest Questions Jesus

¹⁹ Then the high priest questioned Jesus about his disciples and about his teaching. ²⁰Jesus answered, "I have spoken openly to the world; I have always taught in synagogues and in the temple, where all the Jews come together. I have said nothing in secret. ²¹Why do you ask me? Ask those who heard what I said to them; they know what I said." ²²When he had said this, one of the police standing nearby struck Jesus on the face, saying, "Is that how you answer the high priest?" ²³Jesus answered, "If I have spoken wrongly, testify to the wrong. But if I have spoken rightly, why do you strike me?" ²⁴Then Annas sent him bound to Caiaphas the high priest.

Peter Denies Jesus Again

²⁵ Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They asked him, "You are not also one of his disciples, are you?" He denied it and said, "I am not." ²⁶One of the slaves of the high priest, a relative six hundred men, though it is debatable whether all of them would have been present. Only John mentions the presence of Roman soldiers at Jesus' arrest. He is also the only one to mention the Pharisees (on Pharisees, the chief priests, and the police, see note on 7.32). 18.4 Knowing all that was to happen to him. See 13.1–3; 19.28. Whom are you looking for? Cf. 20.15. 18.5–6 I am he is a divine revelation (see note on 8.24); hence they fall to the ground. 18.9 See 17.12; see also 6.39. 18.11 Cup. See Mk 14.36. 18.12–27 Jesus before the Jewish authorities (cf. Mt 26.57–75; Mk 14.53–72; Lk 22.54–71). Unlike the other Gospels, John does not have a trial before the Jewish Sanhedrin (see notes on 7.32; 11.47–48), perhaps because "the Jews" have already heard and condemned Jesus (see 10.24, 33). 18.12 Officer, lit. the tribune, commander of a Roman cohort (see note on 18.3; see also Acts 21.31–33; 22.22–29). 18.13 Annas had been high priest himself (6–15 c.e.) and remained influential. His sons also held the office, both before and after Caiaphas (see also Lk 3.2; Acts 4.6). Caiaphas . . . high priest that year. See note on 11.49. 18.14 See 11.50. 18.15 The other disciple has often been identified with the disciple whom Jesus loved (see note on 13.23), though this is not certain. 18.18 The story of Peter's denial is continued in 18.25–27. 18.19 The high priest apparently means Annas, who is still given the title in an honorary way (see note on 18.13). 18.20 See also Mk 14.49. 18.22–23 Cf. of the man whose ear Peter had cut off, asked, "Did I not see you in the garden with him?" ²⁷ Again Peter denied it, and at that moment the cock crowed.

Jesus Before Pilate

28 Then they took Jesus from Caiaphas to Pilate's headquarters.^f It was early in the morning. They themselves did not enter the headquarters,^f so as to avoid ritual defilement and to be able to eat the Passover. ²⁹ So Pilate went out to them and said, "What accusation do you bring against this man?" ³⁰ They answered, "If this man were not a criminal, we would not have handed him over to you." ³¹ Pilate said to them, "Take him yourselves and judge him according to your law." The Jews replied, "We are not permitted to put anyone to death." ³² (This was to fulfill what Jesus had said when he indicated the kind of death he was to die.)

33 Then Pilate entered the headquarters^f again, summoned Jesus, and asked him, "Are you the King of the Jews?" ³⁴ Jesus answered, "Do you ask this on your own, or did others tell you about me?" ³⁵ Pilate replied, "I am not a Jew, am I? Your own nation and the chief priests have handed you over to me. What have you done?" ³⁶ Jesus answered, "My kingdom is not from this world. If my kingdom were from this world, my followers would be fighting to keep me from being handed over to the Jews. But as it is, my kingdom is not from here." ³⁷ Pilate asked him, "So you are a king?" Jesus answered, "You say that I am a king. For this I was born, and for this I came into the world, to testify to the truth. Everyone who belongs to the truth listens to my voice." ³⁸ Pilate asked him, "What is truth?"

After he had said this, he went out to the Jews again and told them, "I find no case against him. ³⁹ But you have a custom that I release someone for you at the Passover. Do you want me to release for you the King of the Jews?" ⁴⁰ They shouted in reply, "Not this man, but Barabbas!" Now Barabbas was a bandit.

19 Then Pilate took Jesus and had him flogged. ² And the soldiers wove a crown of thorns and put it on his head, and they dressed him in a purple

18.28–19.16a Jesus' trial before Pilate (cf. Mt 27.1–31; Mk 15.1–20; Lk 23.1–25). This story is carefully arranged into seven scenes, alternating between Pilate's dialogues with the Jewish leaders outside his headquarters and episodes involving Jesus inside them. In the trial scenes, John emphasizes more than the other Gospels the political accusation that Jesus claims to be a king, in opposition to the Roman emperor. 18.28–32 Scene One: Jesus is handed over to Pilate (see note on 18.28–19.16a). 18.28 Headquarters, the praetorium, which included the governor's residence, military barracks, and an outdoor courtyard used as a court of judgment (19.13). The Roman governor of Judea resided in Caesarea, but because of the large crowds at Passover he came up to Jerusalem to help keep order. To avoid ritual defilement. Entering the house of a Gentile, where the law was never kept, would make a Jewish person religiously "unclean" and so unable to eat the Passover meal (see note on 11.55). 18.29 Pontius Pilate was the Roman governor of Judea in 26–36 C.E. Ancient Jewish authors represent him as harsh and unjust. Pilate is often thought of as willing to release Jesus but too weak to do so, but in John, Pilate's treatment of Jesus seems designed to ridicule Jewish kingship and to harass the Jews into accepting the emperor as their king.

18.31 We are not permitted to put anyone to death. Opinions differ, but it is probable that the Romans did not permit the Jewish authorities to carry out death sentences in most cases. 18.32 See 12.32–33. 18.33–38a Scene Two: Pilate's first interview with Jesus (see note on 18.28–19.16a). 18.33 On Pilate's question "Are you the King of the Jews?" and Jesus' reply (18.37), cf. Mk 15.2. On the significance of kingship, see note on 6.14–15. 18.36 Kingdom, or "kingship." Not from this world, i.e., "from above" (see 8.23; 19.11; note on 17.14–16). 18.37 Listens to my voice. See also 10.3–5, 16, 27.

18.38b–40 Scene Three: Barabbas is released instead of Jesus (cf. Mk 15.6–11; see note on 18.28–19.16a). 18.39 No mention of this custom has been found outside the Gospels. 18.40 Bandit. See note on 10.8. 19.1–3 Scene Four: Pilate's soldiers flog and mock Jesus (see note on 8.28–19.16a). 19.1 In Roman practice a prisoner was flogged only after he had been condemned to death (see Mt 27.26–31; Mk 15.15–20). Flogging whips often had bits of metal attached to them, producing severe wounds that sometimes proved fatal. Thus Jesus already has received a condemned person's beating (19.14–15) when he is presented by Pilate as King of the Jews, wearing the purple robe that was a symbol of royalty (see 19.2, 5; see also Lk 23.11).

robe. ³They kept coming up to him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" and striking him on the face. ⁴Pilate went out again and said to them, "Look, I am bringing him out to you to let you know that I find no case against him." ⁵So Jesus came out, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe. Pilate said to them, "Here is the man!" ⁶When the chief priests and the police saw him, they shouted, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" Pilate said to them, "Take him yourselves and crucify him; I find no case against him." ⁷The Jews answered him, "We have a law, and according to that law he ought to die because he has claimed to be the Son of God."

⁸ Now when Pilate heard this, he was more afraid than ever. ⁹He entered his headquarters again and asked Jesus, "Where are you from?" But Jesus gave him no answer. ¹⁰Pilate therefore said to him, "Do you refuse to speak to me? Do you not know that I have power to release you, and power to crucify you?" ¹¹Jesus answered him, "You would have no power over me unless it had been given you from above; therefore the one who handed me over to you is guilty of a greater sin." ¹²From then on Pilate tried to release him, but the Jews cried out, "If you release this man, you are no friend of the emperor. Everyone who claims to be a king sets himself against the emperor."

¹³ When Pilate heard these words, he brought Jesus outside and sat^h on the judge's bench at a place called The Stone Pavement, or in Hebrewⁱ Gabbatha. ¹⁴Now it was the day of Preparation for the Passover; and it was about noon. He said to the Jews, "Here is your King!" ¹⁵They cried out, "Away with him! Away with him! Crucify him!" Pilate asked them, "Shall I crucify your King?" The chief priests answered, "We have no king but the emperor." ¹⁶Then he handed him over to them to be crucified.

The Crucifixion of Jesus

So they took Jesus; ¹⁷and carrying the cross by himself, he went out to what is called The Place of the Skull, which in Hebrewⁱ is called Golgotha. ¹⁸There they crucified him, and with him two others, one on either side, with Jesus between them. ¹⁹Pilate also had an inscription written and put on the cross. It read, "Jesus of Nazareth,^j the King of the Jews." ²⁰Many of the Jews read this in-

Therefore, Pilate's declarations that Jesus is innocent may contain irony or sarcasm (see 18.38; 19.4, 6). See notes on 1.29; 19.36. Here is your King. Like other characters in John, Pilate speaks more truly than he realizes (see notes on 7.33–36; 11.51). See also notes on 18.29; 19.1. 19.15 We have no king but the emperor. One of the hymns of Passover declares to God, "We have no king but you"; a similar motto was used by Jewish anti-Roman revolutionaries. 19.16a Them, i.e., the Roman soldiers.

19.16b–30 The crucifixion (cf. Mt 27.32–56; Mk 15.21–41; Lk 23.26–49). Many of John's details are not found in the other Gospels. John shows a special interest here in the fulfillment of scripture (19.24, 28, 36–37). 19.17 Carrying the cross by himself. Cf. Mk 15.21. Only the crossbar was actually carried, the upright stake being already in place. Golgotha is Aramaic for "skull," so called, perhaps, because of the shape of the hill. 19.19 Roman authorities commonly displayed an inscription stating the charges against crucified criminals (though not usually on the cross itself). John's wording Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews differs slightly from the other Gospels. The Latin version of it (Jesus Nazarenus Rex Iudaeorum) is the source of the acronym INRI commonly seen in paintings of the crucifixion. 19.20 Greek was widely used, alongside Hebrew (or Aramaic), spoken by Jews, and Latin, spoken by Romans.

scription, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and it was written in Hebrew,^k in Latin, and in Greek. ²¹Then the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, "Do not write, 'The King of the Jews,' but, 'This man said, I am King of the Jews.'" ²²Pilate answered, "What I have written I have written." ²³When the soldiers had crucified Jesus, they took his clothes and divided them into four parts, one for each soldier. They also took his tunic; now the tunic was seamless, woven in one piece from the top. ²⁴So they said to one another, "Let us not tear it, but cast lots for it to see who will get it." This was to fulfill what the scripture says,

"They divided my clothes among themselves, and for my clothing they cast lots."

²⁵And that is what the soldiers did.

Meanwhile, standing near the cross of Jesus were his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. ²⁶When Jesus saw his mother and the disciple whom he loved standing beside her, he said to his mother, "Woman, here is your son." ²⁷Then he said to the disciple, "Here is your mother." And from that hour the disciple took her into his own home.

²⁸After this, when Jesus knew that all was now finished, he said (in order to fulfill the scripture), "I am thirsty." ²⁹A jar full of sour wine was standing there. So they put a sponge full of the wine on a branch of hyssop and held it to his mouth. ³⁰When Jesus had received the wine, he said, "It is finished." Then he bowed his head and gave up his spirit.

Jesus' Side Is Pierced

The tunic was an ankle-length, T-shaped garment, woven as a single piece and hemmed up the sides, which would be useless if torn. 19.24 Scripture, i.e., Ps 22.18. 19.25 Though the grammar is not precise, Mary the wife of Clopas is probably different from Jesus' mother's sister. 19.26–27 Jesus' mother is also mentioned in 2.1–5, 12; 6.42 (John never gives her name). The disciple whom he loved. See note on 13.23. Many suggestions have been made for a symbolic meaning for this incident (e.g., the church takes in the heritage of Israel; the church, or Mary herself, is mother to the Christian; there should be loving care within the church). None of them, however, can be confirmed with certainty. 19.28 When Jesus knew. See 13.1–3; 18.4. To fulfill the scripture. See also 13.18; 17.12. The scripture referred to here is Ps 69.21. 19.29 Sour wine, i.e., wine vinegar, perhaps diluted in a drink popular among soldiers. Hyssop, a shrub whose branches are too short and flexible for the purpose named (see 1 Kings 4.33). Its use in purification rites (Lev 14.4–6, 49–52; Num 19.6, 18; Ps 51.7) and especially its connection with Passover (see Ex 12.22) may suggest a symbolic meaning. 19.30 Finished, i.e., "completed"; see 4.34; 5.36; 17.4.

19.31–37 Events after the death of Jesus. 19.31–33 The day of Preparation, i.e., for the sabbath. In contrast to the other Gospels, in John this sabbath was also Passover day (see notes on 19.14; 13.1–17.26). Lest the crucified men die on that sabbath, which would begin at sundown, and also because Deut 21.22–23 forbids hanged bodies to remain overnight, the Jews desired to hasten the men's death. Death by crucifixion could take several days, so that breaking the legs was an act of mercy: by preventing them from pushing up to get their breath, it led to swift suffocation. There was no need to break Jesus' legs, since he was already dead. 19.34 Why the soldier would pierce [Jesus'] side is not clear. Various suggestions have been made regarding the biological significance of the blood and water, but John's interest is theological, not medical. The flow of blood and water may be meant to demonstrate Jesus' true physical humanity (cf. 1 Jn 5.6) or, less probably, to symbolize the Lord's Supper and baptism. 19.35 See also 21.24. The person referred to here may be the "beloved disciple" (see 19.26; may believe. His testimony is true, and he knows¹ that he tells the truth.) ³⁶These things occurred so that the scripture might be fulfilled, “None of his bones shall be broken.” ³⁷And again another passage of scripture says, “They will look on the one whom they have pierced.”

The Burial of Jesus

³⁸ After these things, Joseph of Arimathea, who was a disciple of Jesus, though a secret one because of his fear of the Jews, asked Pilate to let him take away the body of Jesus. Pilate gave him permission; so he came and removed his body. ³⁹Nicodemus, who had at first come to Jesus by night, also came, bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, weighing about a hundred pounds. ⁴⁰They took the body of Jesus and wrapped it with the spices in linen cloths, according to the burial custom of the Jews. ⁴¹Now there was a garden in the place where he was crucified, and in the garden there was a new tomb in which no one had ever been laid. ⁴²And so, because it was the Jewish day of Preparation, and the tomb was nearby, they laid Jesus there.

The Empty Tomb

20 Early on the first day of the week, while it was still dark, Mary Magdalene came to the tomb and saw that the stone had been removed from the tomb.

²So she ran and went to Simon Peter and the other disciple, the one whom Jesus loved, and said to them, “They have taken the Lord out of the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid him.” ³Then Peter and the other disciple set out and went toward the tomb. ⁴The two were running together, but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first. ⁵He bent down to look in and saw the linen wrappings lying there, but he did not go in. ⁶Then Simon Peter came, following him, and went into the tomb. He saw the linen wrappings lying there, ⁷and the cloth that had been on Jesus’ head, not lying with the linen wrappings but rolled up in a place by itself. ⁸Then the other disciple, who reached the tomb first, also went in, and he saw and believed; ⁹for as yet they did not understand the scripture, that he must rise from the dead. ¹⁰Then the disciples returned to their homes.

Jesus Appears to Mary Magdalene

¹¹ But Mary stood weeping outside the tomb. As she wept, she bent over to look^m into the tomb; ¹²and she saw two angels in white, sitting where the body of Jesus had been lying, one at the head and the other at the feet. ¹³They said to her, “Woman, why are you weeping?” She said to them, “They have taken away my Lord,

The myrrh and aloes (the latter is an aromatic wood) would have been in powdered form and were meant to reduce the odor of decay. The hundred (Roman) pounds (about 75 English pounds or 34 kilograms) of burial spices is much more than was necessary. It may represent either great honor or inadequate faith in Jesus’ resurrection. 19.41 The passion narrative ends, as it began, in a garden (18.1). 19.42 Day of Preparation. 20.1–31 The resurrection. Comparison with Mt 28; Mk 16; Lk 24 suggests that John has combined several sources, some of which may be related to sources used by the other Gospel writers. Mary Magdalene becomes a central figure. Her concern about where Jesus has been laid (20.2, 13, 15) connects different parts of the story; no one gives her any help but Jesus. 20.1–2 Mary discovers the empty tomb (cf. Mk 16.1–4). 20.1 Mary Magdalene (see also 19.25) is described only in Lk 8.2 (there is no reason to identify her with the woman in Lk 7.36–50). “Magdalene” probably means she came from the town of Magdala on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee. The stone was not mentioned in 19.38–42; see note on 11.38. 20.2 On the disciple . . . Jesus loved, see note on 13.23. 20.3–10 Two disciples come to the tomb (cf. Lk 24.12). 20.5 Linen wrappings. See 19.40. 20.7 The cloth . . . on Jesus’ head. Cf. 11.44. 20.9 Cf. 2.22; 12.16; Lk 24.25–27, 45–46. 20.11–13 Mary sees two angels in the tomb (cf. Mt 28.2–8; Mk 16.5–8; Lk 24.4–11).

and I do not know where they have laid him." 14 When she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, but she did not know that it was Jesus. 15 Jesus said to her, "Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you looking for?" Supposing him to be the gardener, she said to him, "Sir, if you have carried him away, tell me where you have laid him, and I will take him away." 16 Jesus said to her, "Mary!" She turned and said to him in Hebrew,ⁿ "Rabbouni!" (which means Teacher). 17 Jesus said to her, "Do not hold on to me, because I have not yet ascended to the Father. But go to my brothers and say to them, 'I am ascending to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God.'" 18 Mary Magdalene went and announced to the disciples, "I have seen the Lord"; and she told them that he had said these things to her.

19 When it was evening on that day, the first day of the week, and the doors of the house where the disciples had met were locked for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood among them and said, "Peace be with you." 20 After he said this, he showed them his hands and his side. Then the disciples rejoiced when they saw the Lord. 21 Jesus said to them again, "Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, so I send you." 22 When he had said this, he breathed on them and said to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit. 23 If you forgive the sins of any, they are forgiven them; if you retain the sins of any, they are retained."

Jesus and Thomas

24 But Thomas (who was called the Twin^o), one of the twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. 25 So the other disciples told him, "We have seen the Lord." But he said to them, "Unless I see the mark of the nails in his hands, and put my finger in the mark of the nails and my hand in his side, I will not believe."

26 A week later his disciples were again in the house, and Thomas was with them. Although the doors were shut, Jesus came and stood among them and said, "Peace be with you." 27 Then he said to Thomas, "Put your finger here and see my hands. Reach out your hand and put it in my side. Do not doubt but believe." 28 Thomas answered him, "My Lord and my God!" 29 Jesus said to him, "Have you believed because you have seen me? Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have come to believe."

Jesus Appears in Galilee

21 After these things Jesus showed himself again to the disciples by the Sea of Tiberias; and he showed himself in this way. ²Gathered there together were Simon Peter, Thomas called the Twin,^r Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples. ³Simon Peter said to them, "I am going fishing." They said to him, "We will go with you." They went out and got into the boat, but that night they caught nothing.

⁴ Just after daybreak, Jesus stood on the beach; but the disciples did not know that it was Jesus. ⁵Jesus said to them, "Children, you have no fish, have you?" They answered him, "No." ⁶He said to them, "Cast the net to the right side of the boat, and you will find some." So they cast it, and now they were not able to haul it in because there were so many fish. ⁷That disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, "It is the Lord!" When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he put on some clothes, for he was naked, and jumped into the sea. ⁸But the other disciples came in the boat, dragging the net full of fish, for they were not far from the land, only about a hundred yards^s off.

⁹ When they had gone ashore, they saw a charcoal fire there, with fish on it, and bread. ¹⁰Jesus said to them, "Bring some of the fish that you have just caught." ¹¹So Simon Peter went aboard and hauled the net ashore, full of large fish, a hundred fifty-three of them; and though there were so many, the net was not torn. ¹²Jesus said to them, "Come and have breakfast." Now none of the disciples dared to ask him, "Who are you?" because they knew it was the Lord. ¹³Jesus came and took the bread and gave it to them, and did the same with the fish. ¹⁴This was now the third time that Jesus appeared to the disciples after he was raised from the dead.

Jesus' Instructions to Peter

¹⁵ When they had finished breakfast, Jesus said to Simon Peter, "Simon son of John, do you love me more than these?" He said to him, "Yes, Lord; you know that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Feed my lambs." ¹⁶A second time he said to him, "Simon son of John, do you love me?" He said to him, "Yes, Lord; you know that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Tend my sheep." ¹⁷He said to him the third time, "Simon son of John, do you love me?" Peter felt hurt because he said to him the third time, "Do you love me?" And he said

21.1–25 Differences in the language and style of ch. 21, and the fact that 20.30–31 sounds like the end of a book, lead most scholars to believe that this chapter is an appendix or epilogue added on to the Gospel, perhaps by another member of the same Christian community and based on existing traditions. In Jn 20, as in Lk 24, all the appearances of Jesus were near Jerusalem; here, as in Mt 28.16–20; Mk 16.7, an appearance occurs in Galilee. 21.1–14 Jesus appears to the disciples by the Sea of Galilee. 21.1 Sea of Tiberias. Lk 5.1–11. 21.4 Did not know that it was Jesus. Cf. Lk 24.15–16. 21.7 That disciple whom Jesus loved. mean that Peter was wearing only a loincloth or a loose-fitting work smock and nothing else 21.9 Fish, bread. Cf. 6.9. 21.11 A hundred fifty-three. Many suggestions have been made for a symbolic interpretation of this number, often centering on the fact that 153 is the sum of all numbers from 1 through 17. At any rate the large number may be meant to symbolize the expansion of the church. 21.13 See note on 6.11.

21.15–23 Jesus' final dialogue with Peter. 21.15–17 Peter's threefold profession of his love parallels his threefold denial (18.15–18, 25–27). The first two times Jesus asks the question, the Greek verb for "love" is agapan, used, e.g., in Jn 3.16; 13.34; 15.12. The third time, and in all of Peter's replies, the Greek verb for "love" is philein, sometimes said to represent a lesser type of love. However, the two may be interchangeable: cf. 11.5; 14.21; 15.9; 21.7 (agapan) with 5.20; 11.3; 16.27; 20.2 (philein). Feed my lambs, and the variations on it, refer to Peter's leadership in the early church. 21.15 Simon son of John. to him, "Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Feed my sheep. ¹⁸Very truly, I tell you, when you were younger, you used to fasten your own belt and to go wherever you wished. But when you grow old, you will stretch out your hands, and someone else will fasten a belt around you and take you where you do not wish to go." ¹⁹(He said this to indicate the kind of death by which he would glorify God.) After this he said to him, "Follow me."

The Beloved Disciple

20 Peter turned and saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following them; he was the one who had reclined next to Jesus at the supper and had said, "Lord, who is it that is going to betray you?" ²¹When Peter saw him, he said to Jesus, "Lord, what about him?" ²²Jesus said to him, "If it is my will that he remain until I come, what is that to you? Follow me!" ²³So the rumor spread in the community^t that this disciple would not die. Yet Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but, "If it is my will that he remain until I come, what is that to you?"^u

24 This is the disciple who is testifying to these things and has written them, and we know that his testimony is true. ²⁵But there are also many other things that Jesus did; if every one of them were written down, I suppose that the world itself could not contain the books that would be written.

See 12.33; 18.32. Glorify God. See note on 12.23. Follow me. See also 12.25–26; Mk 1.17; Lk 5.11. 21.20 See 13.23–25. 21.23 According to legend, the apostle John (often identified with the disciple whom Jesus loved) lived to a great age. 21.24–25 The final verses address the writing of the Gospel. 21.24 See also 19.35. The Greek word translated has written does not necessarily mean "written with one's own hand." Thus the verse may mean only that the beloved disciple was responsible for the tradition on which this written gospel is based (esp. since 21.23 may imply that he was now dead). 21.25 Many other things that Jesus did. See also 20.30. On the books that would be written, cf. Eccl 12.12.

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

THE OPENING WORDS of the Acts of the Apostles (“In the first book”) signal its uniqueness in the NT. Only here do we have a companion volume (to the Gospel of Luke), and only Acts contains stories about the early church. The traditional title inaccurately represents the content of Acts, since few of the apostles are prominent and the most prominent figure is Paul, who is not an apostle by Luke’s definition (see 1.21–22). Nevertheless, the title indicates the shift in content from Luke’s Gospel, which is about Jesus, to Acts, which concerns the life and work of the church.

Genre

Precisely because it does contain stories about the church, Acts is often referred to as a book of history. That identification, however, overlooks the number of genres within Acts, such as biography, homily, and apology. To think of Acts exclusively as history can also obscure the way in which the author’s theological convictions shape the story that unfolds. For these reasons, Acts is best regarded under the general category of theological narrative.

Authorship

Early church tradition attributes the writing of both the Third Gospel and Acts to Luke, a physician and associate of Paul (Col 4.14; 2 Tim 4.11; Philem 24). The dedications to Theophilus (Lk 1.3; Acts 1.1), uniform literary style, and shared perspectives of the two volumes do make the common authorship of both Luke and Acts certain. However, neither volume identifies an author, no physician or disciple named Luke appears in Acts, and such medical language as is employed reflects widespread convention rather than technical training. The author remains anonymous, although he will be referred to as “Luke” in deference to tradition. From indications within the two volumes, it appears that Luke is a gentile Christian who has received a good education and has made careful study of Jewish scriptures.

Audience

Because Luke addresses both volumes to Theophilus, some readers have thought that Acts is written for an individual, perhaps a recent convert asking for instruction or a Roman official whose tolerance the church seeks. Dedicating books was a common practice, however, even books intended for a wide audience. Indeed, Theophilus means “lover of God,” suggesting that Luke may be writing for all such persons.

Date and Location of Composition

Luke probably wrote both volumes in about 80–90 c.e., although no precision is possible on this question. Acts must have been written after the appointment of Festus as procurator, in about 59 c.e. (Acts 24.27), and probably after the destruction of the Jerusalem temple in 70 c.e. (Lk 19.41–44; 21.20–24). Quotations from and allusions to Acts appear in Christian writings by the middle of the second century, which means it must have been completed before that time. Little in Acts helps to identify its place of composition, although various locations have been suggested, including Achaia, Macedonia, Antioch, Ephesus, Caesarea, and Rome.

Sources

Identifying the nature and extent of sources Luke may have used in writing Acts is a difficult problem. The existence of multiple Gospels enables readers to study their extensive similarities and draw conclusions regarding their sources, but Acts stands without such parallels. Even the evidence that Luke possessed written sources for the composition of his Gospel does not require the assumption that he also had written sources for Acts. The sections of Acts written in the first-person plural (“we”) often prompt the suggestion that Luke had a journal (his own or that of another of Paul’s companions), but the use of the first-person plural may simply be a stylistic device. Stories about given locales, such as Antioch or Caesarea, have led to theories that Luke had access to written traditions of churches in those cities; however, the unity of theme and style throughout Acts makes identification of sources impossible. Whatever sources Luke used, whether written or oral, they lie beyond recovery.

Style and Language

Gripping incidents and vivid characterizations, from the dramatic punishment of Ananias and Sapphira (5.1–11) to the speech of Paul before King Agrippa (26.2–23) to Paul’s later adventure on the high seas (27.1–44), make Acts inviting reading. Luke’s sophisticated use of the Greek language reflects the literary standards of his day. He also adjusts his style to make it suitable to particular contexts. In Acts 1–2, where he stresses the continuity of the church with Israel, he adopts a style imitative of the Septuagint, a Greek translation of the OT. When describing Paul's speech before the sophisticated Athenians (17.16–31), Luke refers to the pertinent philosophical schools and depicts the citizens in ways his contemporaries would have recognized. He often employs irony, as in his contrast between Peter, locked in prison by King Herod and yet freed by an angel, and Herod, free and yet destroyed by his own false pride (12.1–25).

Continuity with Luke's Gospel

Because the Gospels were grouped together in the canon, Acts stands separate from Luke. Yet readers of Acts will be helped if they bear in mind its many connections with the Third Gospel. Among the most important Lucan themes is the fulfillment of God's promises in the ministry of Jesus and the life of the church. From the annunciation to Mary (Lk 1.35) to the mission of the church (Acts 1.8) to Paul's journey to Rome (Acts 27.24), Luke underscores the absolute reliability of God's word. Another overriding theme is the work of the Holy Spirit, which plays a prominent role in Jesus' ministry (Lk 4.1), in the empowering of the church (Acts 2.1–13), and in guiding the church's witness (15.28; 16.6–7). A third connection between the two volumes is that important figures in Acts duplicate aspects of Jesus' life, as when Peter raises the dead (Acts 9.36–43; cf. Lk 7.11–17) or when Paul's final journey to Jerusalem and Rome echoes that of Jesus to Jerusalem (Acts 19.21; cf. Lk 9.51–52). Beverly Roberts Gaventa

The Ascension of Jesus

1 In the first book, Theophilus, I wrote about all that Jesus did and taught from the beginning² until the day when he was taken up to heaven, after giving instructions through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen. ³After his suffering he presented himself alive to them by many convincing proofs, appearing to them during forty days and speaking about the kingdom of

God. ⁴While staying^a with them, he ordered them not to leave Jerusalem, but to wait there for the promise of the Father. "This," he said, "is what you have heard from me; ⁵for John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with^b the Holy Spirit not many days from now."

⁶ So when they had come together, they asked him, "Lord, is this the time when you will restore the kingdom to Israel?" ⁷He replied, "It is not for you to

1.1–11 Acts begins with the ascension of Jesus and three promises to his apostles: the gift of the Holy Spirit, the spread of their witness to the ends of the earth, and the eventual return of Jesus. 1.1 Following a literary custom of his day, Luke gives his work a formal dedication. Theophilus, lit. "lover of God," may refer to a historical person or to anyone who loves God (see also Lk 1.3). 1.2–5 This scene repeats, but also conflicts with, the conclusion of Luke's Gospel (Lk 24.44–53). 1.3 Only here does the NT refer to a period of forty days between the resurrection and the ascension. In the synoptic Gospels, Jesus preaches about the kingdom of God as God's coming reign (see Lk 4.43; 9.27; 13.29); in Acts the phrase refers to the content of Christian preaching about Jesus (see, e.g., 8.12; 19.8; 28.23, 31). 1.5 John baptized. This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven.”

Matthias Chosen to Replace Judas

¹² Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a sabbath day's journey away. ¹³When they had entered the city, they went to the room upstairs where they were staying, Peter, and John, and James, and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James son of Alphaeus, and Simon the Zealot, and Judas son of^c James. ¹⁴All these were constantly devoting themselves to prayer, together with certain women, including Mary the mother of Jesus, as well as his brothers.

¹⁵ In those days Peter stood up among the believers^d (together the crowd numbered about one hundred twenty persons) and said, ¹⁶“Friends,^e the scripture had to be fulfilled, which the Holy Spirit through David foretold concerning Judas, who became a guide for those who arrested Jesus— ¹⁷for he was numbered among us and was allotted his share in this ministry.” ¹⁸(Now this man acquired a field with the reward of his wickedness; and falling headlong,^f he burst open in the middle and all his bowels gushed out. ¹⁹This became known to all the residents of Jerusalem, so that the field was called in their language Hakeldama, that is, Field of Blood.) ²⁰“For it is written in the book of Psalms, ²¹So one of the men who have accompanied us during all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, ²²beginning from the baptism of John until the day when he was taken up from us—one of these must become a witness with us to his resurrection.” ²³So they proposed two, Joseph called Barsabbas, who was also known as Justus, and Matthias. ²⁴Then they prayed and said, “Lord, you know everyone's heart. It is unclear whether the ends of the earth refers to the conversion of Gentiles (10.1–11.18), the arrival of Paul in Rome (28.16), or some event beyond the scope of Acts. 1.9 The cloud signifies the presence and activity of God (see Ex 24.15–18; Lk 9.34; 21.27). 1.10 Two men in white robes, probably to be understood as angels, indicate the importance of this event (see 5.19; Lk 1.11, 19; 24.4).

1.12–26 The apostles and other followers of Jesus return to Jerusalem, where they select a replacement for Judas. 1.12 The mount called Olivet (the Mount of Olives) is located just east of Jerusalem; cf. Lk 24.50, which places the ascension in Bethany, a village along the eastern side of the mount. A sabbath day's journey is approximately one-half mile. 1.13 The list of apostles coincides with the list in Lk 6.14–16 except for the omission of Judas Iscariot. 1.14 Luke frequently refers to prayer as an activity of the early church (e.g., 2.42; 6.4, 6; 10.9; 13.3; 28.8). This is the last reference to Mary in Luke-Acts. James, one of the brothers of Jesus, appears later in Acts (12.17; 15.13; 21.18), although Luke does not identify him as such (cf. Gal 1.19). 1.16 The scripture had to be fulfilled. For similar emphasis on divine necessity, see, e.g., 3.21; 9.16; Lk 24.44. It is not clear whether Luke refers to a specific passage of scripture or to scripture in a general sense. 1.18–19 On Judas's death, cf. Mt 27.3–10. Hakeldama transliterates an Aramaic expression. 1.20 The first quotation is adapted from Ps 69.25; the second from Ps 109.8. 1.21–22 In Luke's view, an apostle must have been with Jesus beginning from the baptism of John, which means that Paul will not acquire that title (except in 14.14). The primary task of the apostle is to witness with us to his resurrection; see, e.g., 2.32; 3.15; 4.33. 1.23 Neither Justus nor take the place^g in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas turned aside to go to his own place.”²⁶ And they cast lots for them, and the lot fell on Matthias; and he was added to the eleven apostles.

The Coming of the Holy Spirit

2 When the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in one place.² And suddenly from heaven there came a sound like the rush of a violent wind, and it filled the entire house where they were sitting.³ Divided tongues, as of fire, appeared among them, and a tongue rested on each of them.⁴ All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other languages, as the Spirit gave them ability.

⁵ Now there were devout Jews from every nation under heaven living in Jerusalem.⁶ And at this sound the crowd gathered and was bewildered, because each one heard them speaking in the native language of each.⁷ Amazed and astonished, they asked, “Are not all these who are speaking Galileans?”⁸ And how is it that we hear, each of us, in our own native language?⁹ Parthians, Medes, Elamites, and residents of Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia,¹⁰ Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of

g Other ancient authorities read the share

Matthias appears elsewhere in the NT. 1.26 On casting lots to determine God’s will, see Prov 16.33.

2.1–13 The coming of the Holy Spirit has been anticipated by promises made in Lk 24.49; Acts 1.4–5. 2.1 The Jewish festival of Pentecost (lit. “fiftieth”) derives its name from the fifty days that separate it from Passover (Lev 23.15–21). All together in one place may imply the presence of the full 120 mentioned in 1.15; Luke often refers to all believers being together, underscoring the unity of the community (e.g., Acts 2.44; 4.24; 5.12). 2.3 On seeing tongues, as of fire, see Isa 5.24; 1 Enoch 14.8–25; 71.5. Elsewhere in scripture fire accompanies the divine presence (Ex 19.18; Isa 66.15–16) and divine judgment (2 Thess 1.8).

2.4 Other languages, as the story that follows explains, refers to the gift of speaking in languages other than one’s own and contrasts with the ecstatic speech to which Paul refers in 1 Cor 14.1–25 and which requires inspired interpretation. 2.5 These devout Jews from every nation are Jews from the Diaspora who either have come for Passover or have long-term business that keeps them in Jerusalem. Since the inclusion of Gentiles within the church comes only with the conversion of Cornelius in 10.1–11.18, those present at Pentecost are carefully identified as Jewish. 2.9–11 The list of countries represented probably derives from similar lists found in ancient histories and geographies; it omits some locales

THE FULFILLMENT OF ACTS 1.8 IN THE FOLLOWING NARRATIVE

“you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you”

At Pentecost the gift of the Holy Spirit fulfills this promise (2.1–13).

“you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem”

The preaching of Peter and others in Jerusalem brings about the witness there (2.14–8.3).

“in all Judea and Samaria”

Persecution in Jerusalem forces Christians out into Judea; the Samaritan mission follows (8.4–25).

The “ends of the earth” may refer to the Ethiopian, who comes from a great distance (8.26–40), or to Cornelius, the first acknowledged gentile convert (10.1–11.18), or to the arrival of Paul in Rome (28.14). It may even refer to some event beyond the scope of the narrative in Acts.

Libya belonging to Cyrene, and visitors from Rome, both Jews and proselytes, ¹¹Cretans and Arabs—in our own languages we hear them speaking about God's deeds of power.” ¹²All were amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, “What does this mean?” ¹³But others sneered and said, “They are filled with new wine.”

Peter Addresses the Crowd

14 But Peter, standing with the eleven, raised his voice and addressed them, “Men of Judea and all who live in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and listen to what I say. ¹⁵Indeed, these are not drunk, as you suppose, for it is only nine o'clock in the morning. ¹⁶No, this is what was spoken through the prophet Joel:

- 17 ‘In the last days it will be, God declares, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams.
18 Even upon my slaves, both men and women, in those days I will pour out my Spirit;
and they shall prophesy.
19 And I will show portents in the heaven above

and signs on the earth below, blood, and fire, and smoky mist.

- 20 The sun shall be turned to darkness and the moon to blood, before the coming of the Lord's great and glorious day.
21 Then everyone who calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved.’

22 “You that are Israelites,^{h} listen to what I have to say: Jesus of Nazareth,^{i} a man attested to you by God with deeds of power, wonders, and signs that God did through him among you, as you yourselves know—²³this man, handed over to you according to the definite plan and foreknowledge of God, you crucified and killed by the hands of those outside the law. ²⁴But God raised him up, having freed him from death,^{j} because it was impossible for him to be held in its power. ²⁵For David says concerning him,

- ‘I saw the Lord always before me, for he is at my right hand so that I will not be shaken; 26 therefore my heart was glad, and my tongue rejoiced;
moreover my flesh will live

that figure prominently in Acts, such as Macedonia and Achaia. 2.12–13 As in the Gospels, miraculous events prompt amazement and questioning; see, e.g., Lk 4.36–37; 5.17–26. Wine was sometimes viewed as an enhancement to prophetic speech; see Plutarch Oracles at Delphi 406b; Obsolescence of Oracles 437d–e.

2.14–36 Peter's Pentecost speech signals the beginning of the Christian witness that was promised in 1.8; Lk 24.47–48. 2.14 Men of Judea and all who live in Jerusalem are not mutually exclusive groups; the repetition is for rhetorical effect. Similarly, raised his voice, let this be known to you, and listen to what I say are all solemn assertions designed to underscore the importance of the speech that follows. 2.15 Several of the speeches of Acts have as their pretext a defense against some charge, in this case drunkenness in the middle of the morning; see also 4.5–12;

7.1–53; 11.2–18. 2.17–21 A quotation from the Septuagint version of Joel 2.28–32, with small but significant alterations. Most important is the change from “afterward” (Joel 2.28) to in the last days (Acts 2.17), emphasizing the eschatological context of the church. In 2.18, Luke adds the phrase and they shall prophesy, making explicit what the text of Joel implies. 2.23 Luke consistently affirms both human responsibility for the death of Jesus and the inevitability of that death in God's plan; see, e.g., 3.14–18; 4.27–28; see also Lk 24.26, 44–48. The existence of a divine plan for all people is a prominent theme in Luke-Acts (e.g., Acts 4.28; 20.27). 2.25–28 Peter quotes Ps 16.8–11. 2.25 David serves a dual role in the speech: psalms ascribed to him become prophecies of Jesus, and he is the figure with whom Jesus is compared. The resurrection signals Jesus' superiority to David, whose tomb was thought to be well or let your Holy One experience corruption.

28 You have made known to me the ways of life;
you will make me full of gladness with your presence.'

29 "Fellow Israelites,^k I may say to you confidently of our ancestor David that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this day. ³⁰Since he was a prophet, he knew that God had sworn with an oath to him that he would put one of his descendants on his throne. ³¹Fore-seeing this, David^l spoke of the resurrection of the Messiah,^m saying,

'He was not abandoned to Hades, nor did his flesh experience corruption.'

³²This Jesus God raised up, and of that all of us are witnesses. ³³Being therefore exalted atⁿ the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he has poured out this that you both see and hear. ³⁴For David did not ascend into the heavens, but he himself says,

'The Lord said to my Lord,
'Sit at my right hand,

³⁵ until I make your enemies your footstool.'

³⁶Therefore let the entire house of Israel know with certainty that God has made him both Lord and Messiah,^o this Jesus whom you crucified."

The First Converts

³⁷ Now when they heard this, they were cut to the heart and said to Peter and to the other apostles, "Brothers,^k what should we do?" ³⁸Peter said to them, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ so that your sins may be forgiven; and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. ³⁹For the promise is for you, for your children, and for all who are far away, everyone whom the Lord our God calls to him." ⁴⁰And he testified with many other arguments and exhorted them, saying, "Save yourselves from this corrupt generation." ⁴¹So those who welcomed his message were baptized, and that day about three thousand persons were added. ⁴²They devoted themselves to the apostles' teaching and fellowship, to the breaking of bread and the prayers.

⁴³ Awe came upon everyone, because many wonders and signs were being done by the apostles. ⁴⁴All who believed were together and had all things in common; ⁴⁵they would sell their possessions and goods and distribute the proceeds^p to all, as any had need. ⁴⁶Day by day, as they spent much time together in the temple, known (see Josephus Jewish War 1.61; Antiquities 7.393; 13.249). 2.29 Since David's death is certain, the psalm cannot refer to him. 2.30 On God's oath to David, see Ps 132.11. 2.31 Peter quotes Ps 16.10. 2.32 Luke views witnessing as a defining characteristic of the apostolic task; see 1.22; 3.15; 4.33; 5.32; 10.41; 13.31.

2.34-35 Peter quotes Ps 110.1. 2.36 The speech culminates in the sharp contrast between human action (this Jesus whom you crucified) and that of God (God has made him both Lord and Messiah); see also 2.23-24; 3.15; 4.10.

2.37-47 The response to Peter's speech introduces central Lucan themes regarding the church's life. 2.37 Speeches in Acts are frequently interrupted when the climactic point is reached (see, e.g., 10.44; 17.32; 22.22). 2.38 The desired response to Christian proclamation includes repentance, baptism, forgiveness of sins, and reception of the Holy Spirit; these elements appear elsewhere in Acts, although not always in the same order (cf. 8.16; 10.44-48;

19.1-6). 2.39 The promise extends to those distant in time (your children) and in place (all who are far away; see 22.21; Isa 57.19; Sir 24.32). What is promised is, first of all, the gift of the Holy Spirit
(v. 38; cf. 1.4-5; 2.33), but also more generally the salvation promised to Israel (cf. 26.6) and offered by Jesus (13.23). 2.40 Corrupt generation.
See Deut 32.5; Ps 78.8; Phil 2.15.

2.42-47 The first of several summaries in which Luke characterizes the life of the earliest Christian community as a fellowship involving worship, study, and the sharing of possessions (see also 4.32-37; 5.12-16). Later incidents that seem to contradict these portraits suggest that Luke's characterization may be an idealized picture (e.g., 5.1-11; 6.1-6). 2.46 The temple continues as a place in which Christians worship;
see also Lk 24.53. 2.47 Consistently Luke emphasizes the growth and divine guidance of the church; see, e.g., 6.7; 9.15-17, 31; 11.1-21; 12.24; 14.1).

47praising God and having the goodwill of all the people. And day by day the Lord added to their number those who were being saved.

Peter Heals a Crippled Beggar

3 One day Peter and John were going up to the temple at the hour of prayer, at three o'clock in the afternoon. ²And a man lame from birth was being carried in. People would lay him daily at the gate of the temple called the Beautiful Gate so that he could ask for alms from those entering the temple. ³When he saw Peter and John about to go into the temple, he asked them for alms. ⁴Peter looked intently at him, as did John, and said, "Look at us." ⁵And he fixed his attention on them, expecting to receive something from them. ⁶But Peter said, "I have no silver or gold, but what I have I give you; in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth,^s stand up and walk." ⁷And he took him by the right hand and raised him up; and immediately his feet and ankles were made strong. ⁸Jumping up, he stood and began to walk, and he entered the temple with them, walking and leaping and praising God. ⁹All the people saw him walking and praising God, ¹⁰and they recognized him as the one who used to sit and ask for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him.

Peter Speaks in Solomon's Portico

11 While he clung to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them in the portico called Solomon's Portico, utterly astonished. ¹²When Peter saw it, he addressed the people, "You Israelites,^t why do you wonder at this, or why do you stare at us, as though by our own power or piety we had made him walk? ¹³The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, the God of our ancestors has glorified his servant^u Jesus, whom you handed over and rejected in the presence of Pilate, though he had decided to release him. ¹⁴But you rejected the Holy and Righteous One and asked to have a murderer given to you, ¹⁵and you killed the Author of life, whom God raised from the dead. To this we are witnesses. ¹⁶And by faith in his name, his name itself has made this man strong, whom you see and know; and the faith that is through Jesus^v has given him this perfect health in the presence of all of you.

17 "And now, friends,^w I know that you acted in ignorance, as did also your rulers. ¹⁸In this way God fulfilled what he had foretold through all the prophets, that his Messiah^x would suffer. ¹⁹Repent therefore, and turn to God so that your sins may be wiped out, ²⁰so that times of refreshing may come from the presence

3.1–10 This healing illustrates the wonders and signs done by the apostles (2.43) and prompts another speech by Peter. The healing itself follows the same general pattern as other healings in the Gospels. 3.1 It was customary to speak of going up when going to the temple (2 Kings 19.14; 20.5; Lk 18.10). Three o'clock in the afternoon, a regular time of prayer, was the hour of the afternoon sacrifice (Dan 9.21; Jdt 9.1; Josephus Antiquities 14.65). 3.2 Reference to the Beautiful Gate is puzzling, since ancient descriptions of the temple use no such title; generally, it is identified with the Nicanor Gate, a gate made of bronze. 3.4 Looked intently. See 13.9; 14.9. 3.6 Just as Peter urged repentance and baptism in the name of Jesus (2.38), so now the name is invoked and becomes the center of controversy when Peter and John are called before the council (4.5–20).

cerning Jesus' place in Israel's history. 3.11 The people, Luke's characteristic way of referring to Israel (see 3.9; 4.10; 5.34; 10.41; Lk 2.10, 32; 7.29). Solomon's Portico, a colonnade on the east side of the temple enclosure. 3.12 As at Pentecost, the speech begins by addressing a misunderstanding; see 2.14–15. 3.13 With the phrase the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, Luke connects God's action in Jesus to God's action in all of Israel's history (see Ex 3.6, 15–16; Lk 20.37). The reference to Jesus as God's servant or child recalls the servant figure of Isa 52.13–53.12. On Pilate's judgment, see Lk 23.13–16. 3.14 Calling Jesus the Holy and Righteous One (see also 7.52; 22.14) underscores the moral contrast between him and the people, who preferred to have Pilate release the murderer Barabbas (Lk 23.18–19). 3.17–18 See note on 2.23. 3.20 Times of refreshing could refer to periods of relief during eschatological distress or to the final of the Lord, and that he may send the Messiah^y appointed for you, that is, Jesus,²¹ who must remain in heaven until the time of universal restoration that God announced long ago through his holy prophets. ²²Moses said, 'The Lord your God will raise up for you from your own people^z a prophet like me. You must listen to whatever he tells you. ²³And it will be that everyone who does not listen to that prophet will be utterly rooted out of the people.' ²⁴And all the prophets, as many as have spoken, from Samuel and those after him, also predicted these days. ²⁵You are the descendants of the prophets and of the covenant that God gave to your ancestors, saying to Abraham, 'And in your descendants all the families of the earth shall be blessed.' ²⁶When God raised up his servant,^a he sent him first to you, to bless you by turning each of you from your wicked ways."

Peter and John Before the Council

4 While Peter and John^b were speaking to the people, the priests, the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees came to them, ²much annoyed because they were teaching the people and proclaiming that in Jesus there is the resurrection of the dead. ³So they arrested them and put them in custody until the next day, for it was already evening. ⁴But many of those who heard the word believed; and they numbered about five thousand.

⁵ The next day their rulers, elders, and scribes assembled in Jerusalem, ⁶with Annas the high priest, Caiaphas, John,^c and Alexander, and all who were of the high-priestly family. ⁷When they had made the prisoners^d stand in their midst, they inquired, "By what power or by what name did you do this?" ⁸Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, "Rulers of the people and elders, ⁹if we are questioned today because of a good deed done to someone who was sick and are asked how this man has been healed, ¹⁰let it be known to all of you, and to all the people of Israel, that this man is standing before you in good health by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth,^e whom you crucified, whom God raised from the dead. ¹¹This Jesus^f is 'the stone that was rejected by you, the builders;

it has become the cornerstone.'^g

restoration (see 3.21). 3.21 Universal restoration is not the restoration of Israel's kingdom (cf. 1.6) but is roughly the equivalent of salvation itself. 3.22-23 See Deut 18.15-20. 3.25 See Gen 22.18; 26.4. 3.26 First to you underscores the priority of Israel (see 13.46) and anticipates another stage of proclamation, that to the Gentiles; see also Rom 1.16.

4.1-22 In contrast to the positive reaction of the people to Peter's Pentecost speech (2.37-42), the speech at the temple (3.12-26) prompts the first official resistance to Christian preaching and sets the stage for Peter's defense (4.8-12). 4.1-2 Luke distinguishes the people, whom Peter and John address and who receive them gladly, from their rulers, who are hostile to the gospel. The captain of the temple (see 5.24, 26; Lk 22.52) maintained order in the temple precinct and ranked just below the high priest in authority. In Acts, the Sadducees serve as foils for Christian preaching, because they did not believe in the resurrection of the dead (see 23.6-10). Little information is available about this Jewish sect, but sources consistently associate it with the aristocracy and temple priesthood. 4.4 Five thousand refers literally to the number of males, suggesting that the number of believers was even larger. Since Luke often uses hyperbole for rhetorical impact (see, e.g., 4.16), any assessment of the accuracy of such figures is impossible. 4.6 Annas was high priest in 6-15 C.E., well before the time of this story, and is probably included because of his prominence; Caiaphas, son-in-law to Annas and high priest in 18-36/7 C.E.; John and Alexander, otherwise unknown. 4.8 Filled with the Holy Spirit recalls Lk 12.11-12; Peter speaks not his own words but those given him by the Spirit. 4.10 Again Luke contrasts the responses to Jesus: the leaders crucified him but God raised him from the dead (see 2.36). 4.11 See Ps 118.22 and its use in Mt 21.42; 1 Pet 2.7. 4.12 Salvation refers both to the physical healing of the lame man and to salvation from judgment or from the service of false gods (see 13.26; 16.17). 4.13 Luke understands boldness, or forthright speech, to be a hallmark of the apostles (see 4.29-31; 18.26; 28.31).

Peter and John and realized that they were uneducated and ordinary men, they were amazed and recognized them as companions of Jesus. ¹⁴When they saw the man who had been cured standing beside them, they had nothing to say in opposition. ¹⁵So they ordered them to leave the council while they discussed the matter with one another. ¹⁶They said, "What will we do with them? For it is obvious to all who live in Jerusalem that a notable sign has been done through them; we cannot deny it. ¹⁷But to keep it from spreading further among the people, let us warn them to speak no more to anyone in this name." ¹⁸So they called them and ordered them not to speak or teach at all in the name of Jesus. ¹⁹But Peter and John answered them, "Whether it is right in God's sight to listen to you rather than to God, you must judge; ²⁰for we cannot keep from speaking about what we have seen and heard." ²¹After threatening them again, they let them go, finding no way to punish them because of the people, for all of them praised God for what had happened. ²²For the man on whom this sign of healing had been performed was more than forty years old.

The Believers Pray for Boldness

²³ After they were released, they went to their friends^h and reported what the chief priests and the elders had said to them. ²⁴When they heard it, they raised their voices together to God and said, "Sovereign Lord, who made the heaven and the earth, the sea, and everything in them, ²⁵it is you who said by the Holy Spirit through our ancestor David, your servant:ⁱ

'Why did the Gentiles rage,

and the peoples imagine vain things?

²⁶ The kings of the earth took their stand, and the rulers have gathered together against the Lord and against his Messiah.^j

²⁷For in this city, in fact, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel, gathered together against your holy servantⁱ Jesus, whom you anointed, ²⁸to do whatever your hand and your plan had predestined to take place. ²⁹And now, Lord, look at their threats, and grant to your servants^k to speak your word with all boldness, ³⁰while you stretch out your hand to heal, and signs and wonders are performed through the name of your holy servantⁱ Jesus." ³¹When they had prayed, the place in which they were gathered together was shaken; and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke the word of God with boldness.

The Believers Share Their Possessions

³² Now the whole group of those who believed were of one heart and soul, and no one claimed private ownership of any possessions, but everything they owned was held in common. ³³With great power the apostles gave their testimony to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was upon them all. ³⁴There was not a needy person among them, for as many as owned lands or houses sold them and brought the proceeds of what was sold. ³⁵They laid it at the apostles' feet, and it was distributed to each as any had need.

4.16 All who live in Jerusalem surely exaggerates to dramatize the dilemma of the authorities. 4.22 The subject's age underscores the significance of the healing.

4.23–31 The community responds to persecution and the release of Peter and John. 4.24 Sovereign Lord. See 3 Macc 2.2; Lk 2.29 (translated "Master"); Rev 6.10 for this same way of addressing God. Who made . . . everything in them. See 14.15; 17.24; see also Ex 20.11; Ps 146.6; Isa 37.16. 4.25b–26 Ps 2.1–2. Connecting the psalm both to Jesus' death (4.27) and to the persecution of the church (4.29) allows Luke to assert that both events serve God's plan. 4.27 Cf. Lk

23.6–16, where Herod and Pilate seek to release Jesus. Perhaps they are included here as counterparts to the psalm's kings and rulers (4.26). 4.29 Servants here refers to those enslaved and translates a different Greek word (doulos) than in 4.25 or 4.27 (pais). 4.31 All filled with the Holy Spirit. See 2.4. Boldness. See 4.13; 9.27–28; 13.46; 28.31.

4.32–37 This second summary of the common life of believers (cf. 2.42–47) emphasizes the sharing of property in a way consistent with the Hellenistic ideal of friendship. 4.34 See Deut 15.4. 4.35 That money from donated property is placed at the apostles' feet (see also 4.37; 5.2)

³⁶There was a Levite, a native of Cyprus, Joseph, to whom the apostles gave the name Barnabas (which means "son of encouragement"). ³⁷He sold a field that belonged to him, then brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

Ananias and Sapphira

5 But a man named Ananias, with the consent of his wife Sapphira, sold a piece of property; ²with his wife's knowledge, he kept back some of the proceeds, and brought only a part and laid it at the apostles' feet. ³"Ananias," Peter asked, "why has Satan filled your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit and to keep back part of the proceeds of the land? ⁴While it remained unsold, did it not remain your own? And after it was sold, were not the proceeds at your disposal? How is it that you have contrived this deed in your heart? You did not lie to us¹ but to God!" ⁵Now when Ananias heard these words, he fell down and died. And great fear seized all who heard of it. ⁶The young men came and wrapped up his body,^m then carried him out and buried him.

⁷ After an interval of about three hours his wife came in, not knowing what had happened. ⁸Peter said to her, "Tell me whether you and your husband sold the land for such and such a price." And she said, "Yes, that was the price." ⁹Then Peter said to her, "How is it that you have agreed together to put the Spirit of the Lord to the test? Look, the feet of those who have buried your husband are at the door, and they will carry you out." ¹⁰Immediately she fell down at his feet and died. When the young men came in they found her dead, so they carried her out and buried her beside her husband. ¹¹And great fear seized the whole church and all who heard of these things.

The Apostles Heal Many

¹² Now many signs and wonders were done among the people through the apostles. And they were all together in Solomon's Portico. ¹³None of the rest dared to join them, but the people held them in high esteem. ¹⁴Yet more than ever believers were added to the Lord, great numbers of both men and women, ¹⁵so that they even carried out the sick into the streets, and laid them on cots and mats, in order that Peter's shadow might fall on some of them as he came by. ¹⁶A great number of people would also gather from the towns around Jerusalem, bringing the sick and those tormented by unclean spirits, and they were all cured.

The Apostles Are Persecuted

¹⁷ Then the high priest took action; he and all who were with him (that is, the sect of the Sadducees), being filled with suggests their authority over community life. 4.36 Whether Barnabas actually means son of encouragement is doubtful, but Barnabas's major role in Acts is encouraging the work of Paul (see, e.g., 9.27; 11.22-30). 4.37 This incident concretely illustrates the community's sharing of property and contrasts with the story that follows.

5.1-11 The story of the otherwise unknown Ananias and Sapphira underscores not only the importance of the community but especially the importance of Peter as its leader. The lie implicit in withholding proceeds from the sale of property is here interpreted as a lie to the Spirit and to God; see Josh 7. 5.3 As with the betrayal of Jesus by Judas (Lk 22.3, 31), this event occurs at Satan's instigation; nevertheless, Ananias and Sapphira are held responsible for their actions. 5.5 He . . . died. Following immediately on Peter's pronouncement that Ananias lied to God, this death enacts God's judgment. 5.7-11 The fact that Luke describes Sapphira's death separately reflects both the significance of the story and Luke's customary interest in female characters; see, e.g., Lk 1.5-58; 2.36-38; 7.11-17, 36-50; 8.1-3, 43-48. 5.11 Fear, or awe, often accompanies the divine presence (see 2.43; 5.5; 9.31; 19.17; Lk 1.12; 2.9; 5.26; 7.16; 8.37; 21.26). The word church appears here for the first time in Luke-Acts.

5.12-16 The third summary of community life (see 2.42-47; 4.32-37) emphasizes the healings accomplished by the apostles in answer to the prayer of 4.30. 5.12 Solomon's Portico. See note on 3.11. 5.15 Like the fringe of Jesus' clothing (Lk 8.44) or Paul's handkerchief (19.12), even Peter's shadow can heal.

5.17-42 The series of miracles, speeches, and confrontations that begins in 3.1 culminates in this dramatic confrontation with the authorities. 5.17 Sadducees. See note on 4.1-2.

jealousy, ¹⁸arrested the apostles and put them in the public prison. ¹⁹But during the night an angel of the Lord opened the prison doors, brought them out, and said, ²⁰“Go, stand in the temple and tell the people the whole message about this life.” ²¹When they heard this, they entered the temple at daybreak and went on with their teaching.

When the high priest and those with him arrived, they called together the council and the whole body of the elders of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought. ²²But when the temple police went there, they did not find them in the prison; so they returned and reported, ²³“We found the prison securely locked and the guards standing at the doors, but when we opened them, we found no one inside.” ²⁴Now when the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these words, they were perplexed about them, wondering what might be going on. ²⁵Then someone arrived and announced, “Look, the men whom you put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people!” ²⁶Then the captain went with the temple police and brought them, but without violence, for they were afraid of being stoned by the people.

²⁷ When they had brought them, they had them stand before the council. The high priest questioned them, ²⁸saying, “We gave you strict orders not to teach in this name,ⁿ yet here you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and you are determined to bring this man’s blood on us.” ²⁹But Peter and the apostles answered, “We must obey God rather than any human authority.^o” ³⁰The God of our ancestors raised up Jesus, whom you had killed by hanging him on a tree. ³¹God exalted him at his right hand as Leader and Savior that he might give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins. ³²And we are witnesses to these things, and so is the Holy Spirit whom God has given to those who obey him.”

³³ When they heard this, they were enraged and wanted to kill them. ³⁴But a Pharisee in the council named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law, respected by all the people, stood up and ordered the men to be put outside for a short time. ³⁵Then he said to them, “Fellow Israelites,^p consider carefully what you propose to do to these men. ³⁶For some time ago Theudas rose up, claiming to be somebody, and a number of men, about four hundred, joined him; but he was killed, and all who followed him were dispersed and disappeared. ³⁷After him Judas the Galilean rose up at the time of the census and got people to follow him; he also perished, and all who followed him were scattered. ³⁸So in the present case, I tell you, keep away from these men and let them alone; because if this plan or this undertaking is of human origin, it will fail; ³⁹but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them—in that case you may even be found fighting against God!”

They were convinced by him, ⁴⁰and when they had called in the apostles, they had them flogged. Then they ordered them not to speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go. ⁴¹As they left the council, they rejoiced that they were considered worthy to suffer dishonor for the sake of the name. ⁴²And every day in the temple and at home^q they did not cease to teach and proclaim Jesus as the Messiah.^r

5.28–29 See 4.17–20. 5.34 In Acts, the Pharisees appear to be natural allies of Christians because of their shared belief in resurrection (see 23.6–10). Gamaliel, who is referred to in Jewish writings as Gamaliel I or the Elder, is later identified as Paul’s teacher (22.3), but little is known about him. Luke’s description of him as a teacher of the law, respected by all the people, reveals a favorable assessment. 5.36 According to Josephus (Antiquities 20.97–98), Theudas declared himself a prophet and led a large group of people to the Jordan River, which he declared would part at his order. He was executed by the Romans around 44 C.E., well after the time of Judas the Galilean (see v. 37) and after the time of Gamaliel’s speech. Either Luke and Josephus refer to different persons, which seems unlikely, or one of them is incorrect. 5.37 Judas the Galilean led a revolt against the census of Quirinius around 6 C.E. 5.41–42 The rejoicing of the apostles and their continued preaching indicates already that they will not be silenced by persecution; thus Gamaliel’s warning in 5.38–39 already proves prophetic.

Seven Chosen to Serve

6 Now during those days, when the disciples were increasing in number, the Hellenists complained against the Hebrews because their widows were being neglected in the daily distribution of food. ²And the twelve called together the whole community of the disciples and said, "It is not right that we should neglect the word of God in order to wait on tables.^s ³Therefore, friends,^t select from among yourselves seven men of good standing, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we may appoint to this task, ⁴while we, for our part, will devote ourselves to prayer and to serving the word." ⁵What they said pleased the whole community, and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and the Holy Spirit, together with Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolaus, a proselyte of Antioch. ⁶They had these men stand before the apostles, who prayed and laid their hands on them.

⁷ The word of God continued to spread; the number of the disciples increased greatly in Jerusalem, and a great many of the priests became obedient to the faith.

The Arrest of Stephen

⁸ Stephen, full of grace and power, did great wonders and signs among the people. ⁹Then some of those who belonged to the synagogue of the Freedmen (as it was called), Cyrenians, Alexandrians, and others of those from Cilicia and Asia, stood up and argued with Stephen. ¹⁰But they could not withstand the wisdom and the Spirit^u with which he spoke. ¹¹Then they secretly instigated some men to say, "We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and God." ¹²They stirred up the people as well as the elders and the scribes; then they suddenly confronted him, seized him, and brought him before the council. ¹³They set up false witnesses who said, "This man never stops saying things against this holy place and the law; ¹⁴for we have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth^v will destroy this place and will change the customs that Moses handed on to us." ¹⁵And all who sat in the council looked intently at him, and they saw that his face was like the face of an angel.

6.1–7 This conflict between the Hellenists and the Hebrews raises a number of historical questions, since neither the groups nor their conflict has previously entered Luke's story. Luke appears less concerned with historical detail than with describing the way in which the church addresses a threat to its unity. 6.1 Luke uses the term disciples for the first time since Lk 22.45; in Acts it refers to believers in general rather than to the apostles (e.g., 9.10; 15.10; 16.1). Hellenists probably refers to Jewish Christians from the Diaspora whose native language was Greek and who spoke little or no Aramaic; Hebrews, by contrast, would be Christians from among those Jews who spoke only or primarily Aramaic. Conflict could arise from their social and cultural differences and spill over into the daily distribution of food (see 4.35). In a culture that allowed women little economic independence, widows, especially those of immigrants, would be among the most disadvantaged portion of the population. 6.2 Luke only here refers to the apostles as the twelve (but cf. Lk 6.13; 1 Cor 15.5). Although the seven are assigned to wait on tables, Acts nowhere depicts them doing so. 6.5 All of the seven have Greek names, consistent with their identification with the Hellenists. Only Stephen (6.8–8.1) and Philip (8.4–13, 26–40; 21.8) enter the story again. That Nicolaus is identified as a proselyte, or convert, suggests that the others were born into Jewish families. 6.6 For the laying on of hands as a ritual of empowerment, see Num 27.23; 1 Tim 4.14; 5.22; 2 Tim 1.6. 6.7 The word of God continued to spread. Luke employs this and similar statements to show the church's growth in the face of dire threats, internal and external (see 5.14; 9.31; 11.21; 12.24; 16.5; 19.20).

6.8–15 Stephen's arrest expands the persecution of Christians to include diaspora Jews living in Jerusalem and moves beyond beating and imprisonment (5.17–42) to death. 6.8 Luke's emphasis on Stephen's holiness (see also 6.5, 10, 15; 7.55–60) makes his persecution and death appear more heinous. 6.9 Probably persons from at least two synagogues are involved in the dispute with Stephen: one group of Freedmen (i.e., former slaves) from Africa (Cyrene and Alexandria) and another group from Asia Minor (Cilicia and Asia). 6.11–14 The charges against Stephen are more specific than earlier charges against the apostles; he stands accused of threatening the temple and Mosaic law (cf. 21.28; 25.8). For similar charges against Jesus, see Mt 26.59–61; Mk 14.55–58; cf. Jn 2.19–22. 6.12 For the first time in Acts, the people side with the authorities against the church (cf. 2.47; 4.1–2). 6.15 That

Stephen's Speech to the Council

7 Then the high priest asked him, "Are these things so?" ² And Stephen replied:

"Brothers" and fathers, listen to me. The God of glory appeared to our ancestor Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he lived in Haran, ³ and said to him, 'Leave your country and your relatives and go to the land that I will show you.' ⁴ Then he left the country of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. After his father died, God had him move from there to this country in which you are now living. ⁵ He did not give him any of it as a heritage, not even a foot's length, but promised to give it to him as his possession and to his descendants after him, even though he had no child. ⁶ And God spoke in these terms, that his descendants would be resident aliens in a country belonging to others, who would enslave them and mistreat them during four hundred years. ⁷ But I will judge the nation that they serve,' said God, 'and after that they shall come out and worship me in this place.' ⁸ Then he gave him the covenant of circumcision. And so Abraham^x became the father of Isaac and circumcised him on the eighth day; and Isaac became the father of Jacob, and Jacob of the twelve patriarchs.

⁹ "The patriarchs, jealous of Joseph, sold him into Egypt; but God was with him, ¹⁰ and rescued him from all his afflictions, and enabled him to win favor and to show wisdom when he stood before Pharaoh, king of Egypt, who appointed him ruler over Egypt and over all his household. ¹¹ Now there came a famine throughout Egypt and Canaan, and great suffering, and our ancestors could find no food. ¹² But when Jacob heard that there was grain in Egypt, he sent our ancestors there on their first visit. ¹³ On the second visit Joseph made himself known to his brothers, and Joseph's family became known to Pharaoh. ¹⁴ Then Joseph sent and invited his father Jacob and all his relatives to come to him, seventy-five in all; ¹⁵ so Jacob went down to Egypt. He himself died there as well as our ancestors, ¹⁶ and their bodies^y were brought back to Shechem and laid in the tomb that Abraham had bought for a sum of silver from the sons of Hamor in Shechem.

¹⁷ "But as the time drew near for the fulfillment of the promise that God had made to Abraham, our people in Egypt increased and multiplied ¹⁸ until another king who had not known Joseph ruled over Egypt. ¹⁹ He dealt craftily with our race and forced our ancestors to abandon their infants so that they would die. ²⁰ At this time Moses was born, and he was beautiful before God. For three months he was brought up in his father's house; ²¹ and when he was abandoned, Pharaoh's daughter adopted him and brought him up as her own son. ²² So Moses was instructed in all the wisdom of the

Stephen's face appears like the face of an angel confirms his innocence and anticipates the vision of 7.55-56.

7.1-53 Stephen's speech offers little direct response to the high priest's question, although the speech does deal at length with the topics of Moses and the temple. Rather than defend himself, Stephen recounts Israel's history, focusing on the figures of Abraham, Joseph, and Moses; for similar recitals, see Josh 24.2-13; Neh 9.6-37; Pss 78; 105; 106; 135. 7.2-8 The story of Abraham is here confined to God's actions of call, promise, and covenant, with little attention to the theme of Abraham's obedience. 7.2 The God of glory. See Ps 29.3; cf. the glory of God in Acts 7.55. According to Gen 11.31, Abraham already lived in Haran when God called him. 7.3 The quotation is from Gen 12.1. 7.5 See Gen 13.15; 17.8; 48.4. 7.6-7 See Gen 15.13-14; see also Ex 2.22.

7.8 Isaac and Jacob receive scant attention here as Stephen moves quickly to Joseph (see Gen 21.1-4; 25.26; 29.31-30.24). 7.9-16 With Joseph, Stephen develops the theme of God's use of unlikely instruments for the salvation of Israel and Israel's rejection of those instruments. On Joseph's betrayal by his brothers, see Gen 37.11, 18-36. 7.14 Seventy-five agrees with the Septuagint text of Gen 46.27 over against the Hebrew text, which reads "seventy." 7.16 This account of the burial of the patriarchs conflicts at several points with Genesis; see Gen 23.1-20; 25.9; 33.18-19; 50.13-14; Josh 24.32. 7.17-43 As the servant of God who is rejected by Israel, Moses receives the most detailed attention in Stephen's speech. 7.17-19 See Ex 1.7-10. 7.20-22 See Ex 2.2-10. 7.22 Luke's emphasis on Moses' wisdom, power, and role in God's plan (see 7.25) ties him to John the Baptist and Jesus (see Lk Egyptians and was powerful in his words and deeds.

23 "When he was forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his relatives, the Israelites.^z 24 When he saw one of them being wronged, he defended the oppressed man and avenged him by striking down the Egyptian. 25 He supposed that his kinsfolk would understand that God through him was rescuing them, but they did not understand. 26 The next day he came to some of them as they were quarreling and tried to reconcile them, saying, 'Men, you are brothers; why do you wrong each other?' 27 But the man who was wronging his neighbor pushed Moses^a aside, saying, 'Who made you a ruler and a judge over us? 28 Do you want to kill me as you killed the Egyptian yesterday?' 29 When he heard this, Moses fled and became a resident alien in the land of Midian. There he became the father of two sons.

30 "Now when forty years had passed, an angel appeared to him in the wilderness of Mount Sinai, in the flame of a burning bush. 31 When Moses saw it, he was amazed at the sight; and as he approached to look, there came the voice of the Lord: 32 'I am the God of your ancestors, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.' Moses began to tremble and did not dare to look. 33 Then the Lord said to him, 'Take off the sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy ground. 34 I have surely seen the mistreatment of my people who are in Egypt and have heard their groaning, and I have come down to rescue them. Come now, I will send you to Egypt.'

35 "It was this Moses whom they rejected when they said, 'Who made you a ruler and a judge?' and whom God now sent as both ruler and liberator through the angel who appeared to him in the bush. 36 He led them out, having performed wonders and signs in Egypt, at the Red Sea, and in the wilderness for forty years. 37 This is the Moses who said to the Israelites, 'God will raise up a prophet for you from your own people^b as he raised me up.' 38 He is the one who was in the congregation in the wilderness with the angel who spoke to him at Mount Sinai, and with our ancestors; and he received living oracles to give to us. 39 Our ancestors were unwilling to obey him; instead, they pushed him aside, and in their hearts they turned back to Egypt, 40 saying to Aaron, 'Make gods for us who will lead the way for us; as for this Moses who led us out from the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.' 41 At that time they made a calf, offered a sacrifice to the idol, and reveled in the works of their hands. 42 But God turned away from them and handed them over to worship the host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the prophets:

'Did you offer to me slain victims and sacrifices
forty years in the wilderness,
O house of Israel?

43 No; you took along the tent of Moloch,
and the star of your god Rephan,
the images that you made to worship;
so I will remove you beyond Babylon.'

44 "Our ancestors had the tent of testimony in the wilderness, as God^c directed when he spoke to Moses, ordering him to make it according to the pattern he had seen. 45 Our ancestors in turn brought it in with Joshua when they dispossessed the nations that God drove out before our ancestors. 51 "You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you are forever opposing the Holy Spirit, just as your ancestors used to do. 52 Which of the prophets did your ancestors not persecute? They killed those who foretold the coming of the Righteous One, and now you have become his betrayers and murderers. 53 You are the ones that received the law as ordained by angels, and yet you have not kept it."

The Stoning of Stephen

54 When they heard these things, they became enraged and ground their teeth at

Stephen.^f 55 But filled with the Holy Spirit, he gazed into heaven and saw the glory of God and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. 56 "Look," he said, "I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God!" 57 But they covered their ears, and with a loud shout all rushed together against him. 58 Then they dragged him out of the city and began to stone him; and the witnesses laid their coats at the feet of a young man named Saul. 59 While they were stoning Stephen, he prayed, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." 60 Then he knelt down and cried out in a loud voice, "Lord, do not hold this sin against them." When 8 he had said this, he died.^g 1 And Saul approved of their killing him.

Saul Persecutes the Church

That day a severe persecution began against the church in Jerusalem, and all except the apostles were scattered throughout the countryside of Judea and see 2 Sam 7. 7.47 See 1 Kings 6. 7.48 That God does not dwell in houses made with human hands may be found already in 1 Kings 8.27–30, and Stephen's audience would have agreed. 7.49–50 Having explained that God commanded the making of the tabernacle (7.44) and having recalled Solomon's building of the temple (7.47), Stephen, quoting from Isa 66.1–2, rejects not the temple as such but the assumption that human beings have authority over the temple. 7.51 Stiff-necked people. See Ex 33.3, 5. Uncircumcised in heart and ears. See Deut 10.16; Jer 6.10. Forever opposing the Holy Spirit. See 5.3; Isa 63.10; Lk 12.10. 7.52 The charge that the people of Jerusalem killed Jesus (see 2.23; 3.14–15; 4.10; 5.30) is here placed in the context of Israel's persecution of God's prophets. 7.53 Paul employs the same tradition about angels to argue the law's inferiority (Gal 3.19; cf. Heb 2.2); here the angels confirm the law's importance. The tradition may be derived from Deut 33.2; cf. Jubilees 1.27, 29; 2.1; Josephus Antiquities 15.136.

7.54–8.1a The narrative of Stephen's death dramatically contrasts Stephen with his attackers by emphasizing his innocence and their rage. The introduction of Saul, who becomes the ardent enemy of the church, completes the contrast. 7.54 Ground their teeth. See Lk 13.28; see also Job

16.9; Ps 35.16. 7.55 The presence of the Holy Spirit and the vision of God's glory and of Jesus testify to Stephen's innocence (see also Lk 9.32). 7.56 Stephen's vision of the Son of Man recalls Jesus' earlier words to the council (see Lk 22.69; cf. Ps 110.1; Dan 7.13), although here the Son of Man is not seated but standing. 7.58 On stoning outside the city, see Lev 24.14; Num 15.35–36. Here again Stephen's story conforms to that of Jesus (Lk 4.28–29). Saul (or Paul; see 13.9) appears here for the first time; later he takes the lead in the church's mission (chs. 13–28). 7.59 Lord . . . receive my spirit. Cf. Jesus' words in Lk 23.46; see also Ps 31.5. 7.60 Do not hold this sin against them. Cf. Jesus' words in Lk 23.34. 8.1a Saul's approval of Stephen's death sets the stage for the great persecution in Jerusalem (8.1b–3) and for Saul's persecution of Christians beyond Jerusalem (9.1–2).

8.1b–3 Persecution of the church provides an impetus to its growth as it forces the church into new territory. 8.1b Since Acts has referred only to the church in Jerusalem, this reference to Jerusalem is superfluous except that, together with the references to Judea and Samaria, it recalls the promise of 1.8. That all Christians except the apostles left Jerusalem seems highly improbable in view of later references to the Jerusalem church

Samaria. ²Devout men buried Stephen and made loud lamentation over him. ³But Saul was ravaging the church by entering house after house; dragging off both men and women, he committed them to prison.

Philip Preaches in Samaria

4 Now those who were scattered went from place to place, proclaiming the word. ⁵Philip went down to the city^h of Samaria and proclaimed the Messiahⁱ to them. ⁶The crowds with one accord listened eagerly to what was said by Philip, hearing and seeing the signs that he did, ⁷for unclean spirits, crying with loud shrieks, came out of many who were possessed; and many others who were paralyzed or lame were cured. ⁸So there was great joy in that city.

9 Now a certain man named Simon had previously practiced magic in the city and amazed the people of Samaria, saying that he was someone great. ¹⁰All of them, from the least to the greatest, listened to him eagerly, saying, "This man is the power of God that is called Great." ¹¹And they listened eagerly to him because for a long time he had amazed them with his magic. ¹²But when they believed Philip, who was proclaiming the good news about the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. ¹³Even Simon himself believed. After being baptized, he stayed constantly with Philip and was amazed when he saw the signs and great miracles that took place.

14 Now when the apostles at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had accepted the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them. ¹⁵The two went down and prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Spirit ¹⁶(for as yet the Spirit had not come^j upon any of them; they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus). ¹⁷Then Peter and John^k laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit. ¹⁸Now when Simon saw that the Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles' hands, he offered them money, ¹⁹saying, "Give me also this power so that anyone on whom I lay my hands may receive the Holy Spirit." ²⁰But Peter said to him, "May your silver perish with you, because you thought you could obtain God's gift with money! ²¹You have no part or share in this, for your heart is not right before God. ²²Repent therefore of this wickedness of yours, and pray to the Lord that, if possible, the intent of your heart may be forgiven you. ²³For I see that you are in the gall of bitterness and the chains of wickedness." ²⁴Simon answered, "Pray for me to the Lord, that

8.4–25 Preaching in Samaria fulfills 1.8 and constitutes a significant movement in the church's development because of the long-standing animosity between Jews and Samaritans (see Lk 9.51–56; 10.29–37; Jn 4.1–42). 8.5 Philip. See 6.5. The city of Samaria probably refers either to Sebaste or to Shechem. 8.6–8 The response in Samaria parallels the initial responses in Jerusalem (see 5.12–16). 8.9 Simon enters the story as the antithesis of Philip. He appears in later Christian literature as Simon Magus (magus is from the Greek for "magic"), the archheretic. 8.10 Luke associates the power of God with Jesus and the work of the church, but Jesus himself is never equated with that power (cf. Lk 1.35; 5.17; 22.69). To equate Simon with this power constitutes blasphemy (see also 12.22–23). 8.13 Simon's baptism signals the superiority of Philip's ministry, although 8.18–19 demonstrates that Simon's conversion is incomplete. 8.18 The gift of the Spirit does not depend on the laying on of the apostles' hands (see 9.17; 10.44), but the apostles' presence signals their cooperation with Philip's ministry and sets the stage for the confrontation between Peter and Simon. Magicians were widely viewed as people who plied their trade for money; Simon ascribes his own attitude to Peter. By contrast, Luke consistently depicts concern over money as threatening faith (e.g., Judas in 1.18; Ananias and Sapphira in 5.1–11; the owners of the girl with the gift of divination in 16.16–18; Demetrius the silversmith in 19.24–27). 8.23 Gall of bitterness. See Deut 29.18–20.

nothing of what you^l have said may happen to me."

25 Now after Peter and John^m had testified and spoken the word of the Lord, they returned to Jerusalem, proclaiming the good news to many villages of the Samaritans.

Philip and the Ethiopian Eunuch

26 Then an angel of the Lord said to Philip, "Get up and go toward the southⁿ to the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza." (This is a wilderness road.)²⁷ So he got up and went. Now there was an Ethiopian eunuch, a court official of the Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, in charge of her entire treasury. He had come to Jerusalem to worship²⁸ and was returning home; seated in his chariot, he was reading the prophet Isaiah. ²⁹Then the Spirit said to Philip, "Go over to this chariot and join it." ³⁰So Philip ran up to it and heard him reading the prophet Isaiah. He asked, "Do you understand what you are reading?" ³¹He replied, "How can I, unless someone guides me?" And he invited Philip to get in and sit beside him. ³²Now the passage of the scripture that he was reading was this:

"Like a sheep he was led to the slaughter, and like a lamb silent before its shearer,

so he does not open his mouth.

³³ In his humiliation justice was denied him.

Who can describe his generation?

For his life is taken away from the earth."

³⁴The eunuch asked Philip, "About whom, may I ask you, does the prophet say this, about himself or about someone else?" ³⁵Then Philip began to speak, and starting with this scripture, he proclaimed to him the good news about Jesus. ³⁶As they were going along the road, they came to some water; and the eunuch said, "Look, here is water! What is to prevent me from being baptized?"^o ³⁸He commanded the chariot to stop, and both of them, Philip and the eunuch, went down into the water, and Philip^p baptized him. ³⁹When they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord snatched Philip away; the eunuch saw him no more, and went on his way rejoicing. ⁴⁰But Philip found himself at Azotus, and as he was passing through the region, he proclaimed the good news to all the towns until he came to Caesarea.

8.26-40 The conversion of the Ethiopian eunuch, who is from a region vastly removed from Jerusalem, signals the fulfillment of the promise to all those who are "far away" (2.39). The eunuch's receptivity (8.31, 34, 36, 39) enacts the attitude toward the gospel that Luke regards as appropriate for all people. 8.26 Philip receives orders from an angel, underscoring that the initiative comes from God. He is to go toward the south, or at noon (see text note n); the Greek may be translated either way (see 26.13, where Paul's conversion occurs at noon). 8.27 Ethiopian, in Luke's world, referred to anyone with dark skin, particularly to persons from territories south of Egypt. Various ancient writers depict Ethiopians as handsome people who come from the ends of the known world (e.g., Homer Odyssey 1.22-23; Herodotus History 3.17-20; Strabo Geography 17.2. 1-3). As a eunuch, he could not be a Jew or a proselyte to Judaism (Deut 23.1; Josephus Antiquities 4.290-91; but cf. Isa 56.3-5), and thus his conversion foreshadows that of Cornelius (10.1-11.18), which formally opens the Christian mission to Gentiles. Candace is the title traditionally given to the queen of Meroe (a Nubian realm along the upper Nile), making the eunuch's position one of considerable power. That he has been to Jerusalem to worship indicates his interest in Israel's religion, as does his reading of Isaiah. Gentiles could worship in the temple enclosure, although they were restricted to the outer court; see note on 21.28. 8.28 Reading was a customary activity during travel; here it sets the stage for Philip's approach. 8.29 The prompting of the Spirit suggests that God stands behind this overture (see 8.26). 8.32-33 The passage quoted is Isa 53.7-8. 8.35 Cf. Lk 24.27, where Jesus explains "things about himself" from scripture. 8.39 Later church tradition holds that the eunuch became the first Christian missionary to Africa, but Luke says nothing about his activity beyond rejoicing (see also 13.48; 15.31). 8.40 Azotus, a city about twenty-two miles north of Gaza near the Mediterranean coast. On Philip at Caesarea, see 21.8.

The Conversion of Saul

9 Meanwhile Saul, still breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest² and asked him for letters to the synagogues at Damascus, so that if he found any who belonged to the Way, men or women, he might bring them bound to Jerusalem.³ Now as he was going along and approaching Damascus, suddenly a light from heaven flashed around him.⁴ He fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?"⁵ He asked, "Who are you, Lord?" The reply came, "I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting.⁶ But get up and enter the city, and you will be told what you are to do."⁷ The men who were traveling with him stood speechless because they heard the voice but saw no one.⁸ Saul got up from the ground, and though his eyes were open, he could see nothing; so they led him by the hand and brought him into Damascus.⁹ For three days he was without sight, and neither ate nor drank.

10 Now there was a disciple in Damascus named Ananias. The Lord said to him in a vision, "Ananias." He answered,

"Here I am, Lord."¹¹ The Lord said to him, "Get up and go to the street called Straight, and at the house of Judas look for a man of Tarsus named Saul. At this moment he is praying,¹² and he has seen in a vision^q a man named Ananias come in and lay his hands on him so that he might regain his sight."¹³ But Ananias answered, "Lord, I have heard from many about this man, how much evil he has done to your saints in Jerusalem;¹⁴ and here he has authority from the chief priests to bind all who invoke your name."¹⁵ But the Lord said to him, "Go, for he is an instrument whom I have chosen to bring my name before Gentiles and kings and before the people of Israel;¹⁶ I myself will show him how much he must suffer for the sake of my name."¹⁷ So Ananias went and entered the house. He laid his hands on Saul^r and said, "Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on your way here, has sent me so that you may regain your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit."¹⁸ And 9.1–31 The conversion of Saul, the church's most ardent enemy, involves both divine direction (9.10–16) and an encounter with the risen Lord (9.3–6). Luke narrates this event again in 22.1–21; 26.2–23, indicating its importance for him. 9.1–2 Breathing threats and murder fulfills Stephen's words in 7.51–52. The report of Saul's proposed trip to Damascus, about sixty miles northeast of the Sea of Galilee, assumes that Christianity has spread there; it also moves the persecution of the church well beyond Jerusalem. Historically, it is highly unlikely that the high priest in Jerusalem had authority over synagogues at Damascus, which suggests that Luke exaggerates Paul's activity. For other references to Paul's persecution, see also 22.4–5; 26.9–11; 1 Cor 15.9; Gal 1.13–14; Phil 3.6. Luke uses the Way as a reference to Christian faith; see 18.25; 19.9, 23; 22.4; 24.14, 22. 9.3–4 Saul's encounter contains several features often associated with divine appearances and commissions: light (4 Macc 4.10); falling to the ground (Ezek 1.28; Dan 10.9); the use of the double vocative, as in "Saul, Saul" (Gen 22.11; 46.2; Ex 3.4; 1 Sam 3.4). 9.5 Saul's address of Jesus as Lord does not necessarily imply faith on his part, since the Greek word kyrios can also be translated as the respectful address "sir."

That Saul is said to be persecuting Jesus may identify Jesus with the church. 9.8 Saul's blindness is consistent with Luke's use of sight and its absence elsewhere (see Lk 2.30; 4.18; 24.16, 31; Acts 13.11; 28.27). 9.10 Here Luke describes Ananias simply as a disciple (cf. 22.12); Saul will be aided by one of the disciples he set out to persecute (see 9.1). In Acts, surprising changes in mission are often set in motion by visions (e.g., 10.3; 16.9–10; 18.9–10; cf. 2.17). "Here I am, Lord." See Gen 22.1; 1 Sam 3.6, 8. 9.11 Straight street was the major east-west corridor. For the first time, Saul is identified as being from Tarsus, the capital of the Roman province of Cilicia (see 9.30; note on 21.39). 9.12 Cf. the visions of Ananias and Saul with those of Cornelius and Peter in 10.1–16. 9.13–14 Ananias's resistance reinforces the identification of Saul as persecutor and prompts the new identification in 9.15–16. 9.15 Paul's later audience does encompass Gentiles (17.22–31), kings (26.2–32), and Israel (13.16–41; 22.1–21). 9.16 He must suffer for the sake of my name (see 5.41; 15.26; 21.13) exactly reverses Ananias's statement regarding Saul in 9.13–14. 9.17 Who appeared to you is language elsewhere associated with the Easter appearances (see 1 Cor 15.5–8). 9.18 Something like scales. See immediately something like scales fell from his eyes, and his sight was restored. Then he got up and was baptized,¹⁹ and after taking some food, he regained his strength.

Saul Preaches in Damascus

For several days he was with the disciples in Damascus,²⁰ and immediately he began to proclaim Jesus in the synagogues, saying, "He is the Son of God."²¹ All who heard him were amazed and said, "Is not this the man who made havoc in Jerusalem among those who invoked this name? And has he not come here for the purpose of bringing them bound before the chief priests?"²² Saul became increasingly more powerful and confounded the Jews who lived in Damascus by proving that Jesus^s was the Messiah.^t

²³ After some time had passed, the Jews plotted to kill him,²⁴ but their plot became known to Saul. They were watching the gates day and night so that they might kill him;²⁵ but his disciples took him by night and let him down through an opening in the wall,^u lowering him in a basket.

Saul in Jerusalem

²⁶ When he had come to Jerusalem, he attempted to join the disciples; and they were all afraid of him, for they did not believe that he was a disciple.²⁷ But Barnabas took him, brought him to the apostles, and described for them how on the road he had seen the Lord, who had spoken to him, and how in Damascus he had spoken boldly in the name of Jesus.²⁸ So he went in and out among them in Jerusalem, speaking boldly in the name of the Lord.²⁹ He spoke and argued with the Hellenists; but they were attempting to kill him.³⁰ When the believers^v learned of it, they brought him down to Caesarea and sent him off to Tarsus.

Tob 3.17; 11.13. 9.19a As in other miracles, the episode concludes with a demonstration of the healing, here through taking some food (see Lk 8.55). 9.19b-25 Saul's preaching provides further demonstration of his conversion. His increasing power as a proclaimer and the hostility toward him mirror 9.1-2, where his power was directed against the church. 9.20 Only here in Acts does the phrase Son of God appear, but see 13.33; Lk 22.70. 9.25 Cf. 2 Cor 11.32-33, where Paul says he fled from the governor's attempt to seize him (see also Josh 2.15). 9.26-31 This incident is difficult to reconcile with Gal 1.18-24, where Paul insists that he saw only Cephas (Peter) and James, although his reputation as a persecutor is a factor in both texts (Gal 1.23). 9.27 How Barnabas knows about Saul's preaching remains unclear, but here he fulfills the name attributed to him in 4.36 (son of encouragement). 9.28 On speaking boldly as a characteristic of Christian proclamation, see note on 4.13. 9.29 The Hellenists are apparently Hellenistic (Greek-speaking) Jews who have

The spread of Christianity as described in Acts 1-8 was northward from Jerusalem through Judea and Samaria (see Acts 1.8). Early in the narrative Christians are found in urban centers like Damascus (9.1-22) and Joppa (10.5), and the establishing of Christianity in Caesarea Maritima (ch. 10) and Antioch (11.19-30) is described in some detail.

31 Meanwhile the church throughout Judea, Galilee, and Samaria had peace and was built up. Living in the fear of the Lord and in the comfort of the Holy Spirit, it increased in numbers.

Peter in Lydda and Joppa

32 Now as Peter went here and there among all the believers,^w he came down also to the saints living in Lydda. 33 There he found a man named Aeneas, who had been bedridden for eight years, for he was paralyzed. 34 Peter said to him, "Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you; get up and make your bed!" And immediately he got up. 35 And all the residents of Lydda and Sharon saw him and turned to the Lord.

36 Now in Joppa there was a disciple whose name was Tabitha, which in Greek is Dorcas.^x She was devoted to good works and acts of charity. 37 At that time she became ill and died. When they had washed her, they laid her in a room upstairs. 38 Since Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, who heard that Peter was there, sent two men to him with the request, "Please come to us without delay." 39 So Peter got up and went with them; and when he arrived, they took him to the room upstairs. All the widows stood beside him, weeping and showing tunics and other clothing that Dorcas had made while she was with them. 40 Peter put all of them outside, and then he knelt down and prayed. He turned to the body and said, "Tabitha, get up." Then she opened her eyes, and seeing Peter, she sat up. 41 He gave her his hand and helped her up. Then calling the saints and widows, he showed her to be alive. 42 This became known throughout Joppa, and many believed in the Lord. 43 Meanwhile he stayed in Joppa for some time with a certain Simon, a tanner.

Peter and Cornelius

10 In Caesarea there was a man named Cornelius, a centurion of the Italian Cohort, as it was called. 2 He was a devout man who feared God with all his household; he gave alms generously to the people and prayed constantly to God.

not converted, but the same term is used of Christians in 6.1. 9.31 On the growth of the church, see note on 6.7. The reference to Galilee is striking, since nothing has been said in Acts about a mission in that region.

9.32–43 Two brief stories reintroduce Peter and prepare for the conversion of the first Gentile in 10.1–11.18. The locations Lydda and Joppa, towns west of Jerusalem, signal the movement of the gospel westward just as it has already moved north as far as Damascus (9.2). Luke does not indicate how the gospel came to these towns, but they could have been on Philip's route from Azotus to Caesarea (8.40). 9.35 Sharon, the plain on which Lydda was situated. Turned to the Lord, converted, most often used of Gentiles who turn to faith in the one God (see Acts 15.19; 26.18, 20; Gal 4.9; 1 Thess 1.9). 9.36–43 Parallels to earlier stories concerning Elijah (1 Kings 17.17–24), Elisha (2 Kings 4.18–37), and Jesus (Lk 7.11–17; 8.41–42, 49–56) identify the prophetic power of the church with that of Israel's prophets and of Jesus. 9.36 Only here in Acts is a woman explicitly called a disciple; in fact, the feminine noun for disciple appears nowhere else in the NT. 9.39 On widows, see 6.1; 1 Tim 5.3–16.

10.1–11.18 The story of the conversion of Cornelius and the church's acceptance of that event is narrated with considerable detail because it signals the opening of the mission to the Gentiles. (See note on 8.27.) The visions of both Cornelius and Peter (10.11–16), the repeated references to these visions (10.17, 19, 28, 30), and direct instructions from divine agents (10.7, 22, 32) demonstrate that this event occurs solely at God's initiative and under God's direction. 10.1 Caesarea Maritima, a largely gentile city north of Jerusalem on the Mediterranean coast, was the location of the Roman government of Judea. Centurion, a Roman army officer in charge of one hundred men. The Italian Cohort, a unit of the Roman army, may be an anachronistic reference, since its presence is first attested in Syria only around 69 c.e., well after the time of this incident. 10.2 Although a Gentile, Cornelius is here described so as to emphasize his piety and make him a sympathetic character. Luke several times refers to Gentiles who fear or worship God (13.16, 26; 16.14; 18.7; see also Lk 7.1–9); it remains disputed whether this was a distinct group of Gentiles who worshiped God without becoming proselytes. With all his household. As the head of the household, Cornelius establishes the religious practices of his extended family, his slaves, and their families. The people. See note on 3.11.

3One afternoon at about three o'clock he had a vision in which he clearly saw an angel of God coming in and saying to him, "Cornelius." 4He stared at him in terror and said, "What is it, Lord?" He answered, "Your prayers and your alms have ascended as a memorial before God. 5Now send men to Joppa for a certain Simon who is called Peter; 6he is lodging with Simon, a tanner, whose house is by the seaside." 7When the angel who spoke to him had left, he called two of his slaves and a devout soldier from the ranks of those who served him, 8and after telling them everything, he sent them to Joppa.

9 About noon the next day, as they were on their journey and approaching the city, Peter went up on the roof to pray. 10He became hungry and wanted something to eat; and while it was being prepared, he fell into a trance. 11He saw the heaven opened and something like a large sheet coming down, being lowered to the ground by its four corners. 12In it were all kinds of four-footed creatures and reptiles and birds of the air. 13Then he heard a voice saying, "Get up, Peter; kill and eat." 14But Peter said, "By no means, Lord; for I have never eaten anything that is profane or unclean." 15The voice said to him again, a second time, "What God has made clean, you must not call profane." 16This happened three times, and the thing was suddenly taken up to heaven.

17 Now while Peter was greatly puzzled about what to make of the vision that he had seen, suddenly the men sent by Cornelius appeared. They were asking for Simon's house and were standing by the gate. 18They called out to ask whether Simon, who was called Peter, was staying there. 19While Peter was still thinking about the vision, the Spirit said to him, "Look, three^y men are searching for you. 20Now get up, go down, and go with them without hesitation; for I have sent them." 21So Peter went down to the men and said, "I am the one you are looking for; what is the reason for your coming?" 22They answered, "Cornelius, a centurion, an upright and God-fearing man, who is well spoken of by the whole Jewish nation, was directed by a holy angel to send for you to come to his house and to hear what you have to say." 23So Peter^z invited them in and gave them lodging.

The next day he got up and went with them, and some of the believers^a from Joppa accompanied him. 24The following day they came to Caesarea. Cornelius was expecting them and had called together his relatives and close friends. 25On Peter's arrival Cornelius met him, and falling at his feet, worshiped him. 26But Peter made him get up, saying, "Stand up; I am only a mortal." 27And as he talked with him, he went in and found that many had assembled; 28and he said to them, "You yourselves know that it is

10.3 About three o'clock, a traditional time for prayer; see 3.1. 10.4 As a memorial. God has remembered Cornelius's piety (Ex 17.14; Tob 12.12; Sir 35.20–22). 10.5 For the first time in Acts, Peter is called Simon (see Lk 5–8; 6.14), perhaps to distinguish him from Simon the tanner (Acts 9.43). 10.6 Whose house is by the seaside. References to houses and hospitality abound in this story (10.17, 22–23, 30, 32, 33, 48), probably because Luke understands the gentile mission to involve social interchange between the two groups. 10.9–16 Since Peter's vision concerns food rather than people, it is sometimes suggested that the vision is an independent story about dietary restrictions inserted into an earlier story about Cornelius. Both in the Bible and in Hellenistic writings, however, narratives employ dreams that become meaningful only in retrospect (e.g., Gen 41.1–57; Dan 2.31–45; 4.1–27; 5.5–28; Plutarch Brutus 20; Cicero 44). 10.11 The heaven

opened, suggesting God's presence or some revelation from God (Ps 78.23; Isa 24.18; 64.1; Ezek 1.1; Lk 3.21). 10.12 A conventional classification of animals; see Gen 1.24; 6.20; Rom 1.23. Since a variety of animals is present, some but not all would be prohibited under Jewish dietary laws. 10.14–15 See Ezek 4.14. The dialogue concerns not Peter's practice but his assumption that he knows what is profane or unclean. 10.22 The whole Jewish nation, an additional testimony to Cornelius's righteousness, see 10.2. 10.25 Falling at his feet, a sign of respect or obeisance (Lk 5.12; Jn 11.32), would be highly unusual behavior for a Roman centurion meeting a local resident in occupied territory. 10.26 On Peter's response, see 14.15; cf. 12.22–23. 10.28 Peter's statement that Jews were not allowed to associate with . . . a Gentile sharply exaggerates Jewish law, which, if observed, could render social interaction with Gentiles difficult unlawful for a Jew to associate with or to visit a Gentile; but God has shown me that I should not call anyone profane or unclean. ²⁹So when I was sent for, I came without objection. Now may I ask why you sent for me?"

³⁰ Cornelius replied, "Four days ago at this very hour, at three o'clock, I was praying in my house when suddenly a man in dazzling clothes stood before me. ³¹He said, 'Cornelius, your prayer has been heard and your alms have been remembered before God. ³²Send therefore to Joppa and ask for Simon, who is called Peter; he is staying in the home of Simon, a tanner, by the sea.' ³³Therefore I sent for you immediately, and you have been kind enough to come. So now all of us are here in the presence of God to listen to all that the Lord has commanded you to say."

Gentiles Hear the Good News

³⁴ Then Peter began to speak to them: "I truly understand that God shows no partiality, ³⁵but in every nation anyone who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him. ³⁶You know the message he sent to the people of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ—he is Lord of all. ³⁷That message spread throughout Judea, beginning in Galilee after the baptism that John announced: ³⁸how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power; how he went about doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil, for God was with him. ³⁹We are witnesses to all that he did both in Judea and in Jerusalem. They put him to death by hanging him on a tree; ⁴⁰but God raised him on the third day and allowed him to appear, ⁴¹not to all the people but to us who were chosen by God as witnesses, and who ate and drank with him after he rose from the dead. ⁴²He commanded us to preach to the people and to testify that he is the one ordained by God as judge of the living and the dead. ⁴³All the prophets testify about him that everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name."

Gentiles Receive the Holy Spirit

⁴⁴ While Peter was still speaking, the Holy Spirit fell upon all who heard the word. ⁴⁵The circumcised believers who had come with Peter were astounded that the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out even on the Gentiles, ⁴⁶for they heard them speaking in tongues and extolling God. Then Peter said, ⁴⁷"Can anyone withhold the water for baptizing these people who have received the Holy Spirit just as we have?" ⁴⁸So he ordered them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then they invited him to stay for several days.

but not impossible. Especially in the Diaspora, many Jews and Gentiles would have had extensive contact. Peter's conclusion that no one should be called profane or unclean solves the riddle of his dream (10.9–16) and paves the way for his sermon (10.34–43) and for the practice of full hospitality toward Gentiles. 10.34–43 Peter's speech succinctly summarizes the gospel in the context of Peter's new understanding of God's impartiality, suggesting that Peter's conversion to the gentile mission is as central here as is Cornelius's conversion to Christian faith. 10.34 That God shows no partiality is an established concept (see Deut 10.17–18; Sir 35.15–16; Rom 2.11), but here it takes on new meaning in the emergence of a gentile mission conducted without regard to social barriers. 10.35 See Ps 15.1–2. Clearly Cornelius fulfills the requirement stated here (see 10.2, 22). 10.36 The message of peace was first proclaimed at Jesus' birth (see Lk 2.14). Lord of all. Elsewhere this phrase refers to Zeus and Osiris (Plutarch Isis and Osiris 355e) as well as to the God of Israel (Wis 6.7; 8.3). 10.37–43 This summation of Jesus' ministry replays some key Lucan themes: the ministry of John, the Spirit's presence in Jesus, the apostles as witnesses, the death and resurrection of Jesus, Jesus' postresurrection appearance to the apostles, the prophetic witness, forgiveness of sins. 10.44–48 The gift of the Holy Spirit provides final and irrefutable evidence that the inclusion of the Gentiles is indeed God's will. 10.45–46 As at Pentecost, the Holy Spirit is poured out (see 2.17–18), it is accompanied by speaking in tongues (see 2.4–11), and it prompts much astonishment (see 2.12). 10.47–48 The normal order of baptism with water and then the Spirit is reversed, as the gift of the Holy Spirit justifies baptism with water (cf. 2.38). 10.48 They invited him to stay for several days. The hospitality extended to Peter and his companions completes the breaking down of social barriers and prompts the investigation of 11.3.

Peter's Report to the Church at Jerusalem

11 Now the apostles and the believers^b who were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had also accepted the word of God. ²So when Peter went up to Jerusalem, the circumcised believers^c criticized him, ³saying, "Why did you go to uncircumcised men and eat with them?" ⁴Then Peter began to explain it to them, step by step, saying, ⁵"I was in the city of Joppa praying, and in a trance I saw a vision. There was something like a large sheet coming down from heaven, being lowered by its four corners; and it came close to me. ⁶As I looked at it closely I saw four-footed animals, beasts of prey, reptiles, and birds of the air. ⁷I also heard a voice saying to me, 'Get up, Peter; kill and eat.' ⁸But I replied, 'By no means, Lord; for nothing profane or unclean has ever entered my mouth.' ⁹But a second time the voice answered from heaven, 'What God has made clean, you must not call profane.' ¹⁰This happened three times; then everything was pulled up again to heaven. ¹¹At that very moment three men, sent to me from Caesarea, arrived at the house where we were. ¹²The Spirit told me to go with them and not to make a distinction between them and us.^d These six brothers also accompanied me, and we entered the man's house. ¹³He told us how he had seen the angel standing in his house and saying, 'Send to Joppa and bring Simon, who is called Peter; ¹⁴he will give you a message by which you and your entire household will be saved.' ¹⁵And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them just as it had upon us at the beginning. ¹⁶And I remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said, 'John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit.' ¹⁷If then God gave them the same gift that he gave us when we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I that I could hinder God?" ¹⁸When they heard this, they were silenced. And they praised God, saying, "Then God has given even to the Gentiles the repentance that leads to life."

The Church in Antioch

19 Now those who were scattered because of the persecution that took place over Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, and they spoke the word to no one except Jews. ²⁰But among them were some men of Cyprus and Cyrene who, on coming to Antioch, spoke to the Hellenists^e also, proclaiming the Lord Jesus. ²¹The hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number became believers and turned to the Lord. ²²News of this came to the ears of the church in

11.19–30 Luke connects Antioch with the first intentional mission among Gentiles, the beginning of Saul's mission among Gentiles, the naming of Christians, and the first Christian benevolence to Christians in other regions. Historically, the relationship between the origin of the gentile mission as portrayed here and as portrayed in 10.1–11.18 is probably beyond recovery. 11.19 The persecution. See 8.1b. The movement here is northward on the Mediterranean coast to Phoenicia, then northwest to the island of Cyprus, and finally northeast to Antioch on the Orontes, seat of the Roman government in Syria, which contained a large and strong Jewish community. 11.20 Men of Cyprus and Cyrene, thus probably Hellenistic Christians, consistent with the suggestion that this is the group that fled Jerusalem (see 6.1–6; 8.1). Early manuscripts conflict here, with some reading Hellenists (i.e., probably Greek-speaking Jews; see 6.1), others Greeks (i.e., Gentiles); see text note e. Whatever the earliest reading, the context requires that the group at least include Gentiles even if it is not exclusively gentile. 11.21 See note on 6.7. Turned to the Lord conventionally refers to Gentiles (see note on 9.35). 11.22 As in Samaria (8.14) and in the Cornelius episode (11.1–3), the church in Jerusalem investigates developments in the mission, even if initiative arises elsewhere. For Luke, Jerusalem's continuing authority is important, and he may well exaggerate Jerusalem's actual role in the gentile mission. Barnabas, already Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas to Antioch. ²³When he came and saw the grace of God, he rejoiced, and he exhorted them all to remain faithful to the Lord with steadfast devotion; ²⁴for he was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith. And a great many people were brought to the Lord. ²⁵Then Barnabas went to Tarsus to look for Saul, ²⁶and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. So it was that for an entire year they met with^f the church and taught a great many people, and it was in

Antioch that the disciples were first called "Christians."

²⁷ At that time prophets came down from Jerusalem to Antioch. ²⁸One of them named Agabus stood up and predicted by the Spirit that there would be a severe famine over all the world; and this took place during the reign of Claudius. ²⁹The disciples determined that according to their ability, each would send relief to the believers^g living in Judea; ³⁰this introduced in connection with the sale of his property (4.36–37) and with the support of Saul (9.27), now enters as a major figure in the gentile mission. 11.25 Tarsus. See 9.30. 11.26 Reconciling this account with Paul's words in Gal 1–2 is exceedingly difficult. The giving of the name Christians indicates that outsiders see believers as a group that is somehow distinguished from other forms of Judaism. 11.27–30 Just as Christians in Jerusalem generously support those in need (see 2.45; 4.32–37), Christians in Antioch send relief to those in Judea. 11.28 Agabus. See 21.10. Josephus reports a famine in Judea about 45–48 c.e. (Antiquities 20.51–53, 101), and there are indications of food shortages in Rome during Claudius's rule, although a famine over all the world seems exaggerated, and relief sent from Antioch to Jerusalem would be curious in that case. Luke may use Antioch's gift to signal both the church's charity and its indebtedness to Jerusalem. Claudius was Roman emperor in 41–54 c.e. 11.30 Barnabas and Saul are here confirmed

According to Acts the church in Antioch on the Orontes became an important base for Paul's missionary journeys westward through Asia Minor and into Europe (13.1–3; 14.24–28; 15.22–35; 18.22–23).

they did, sending it to the elders by Barnabas and Saul.

James Killed and Peter Imprisoned

12 About that time King Herod laid violent hands upon some who belonged to the church. ²He had James, the brother of John, killed with the sword. ³After he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to arrest Peter also. (This was during the festival of Unleavened Bread.) ⁴When he had seized him, he put him in prison and handed him over to four squads of soldiers to guard him, intending to bring him out to the people after the Passover. ⁵While Peter was kept in prison, the church prayed fervently to God for him.

Peter Delivered from Prison

⁶The very night before Herod was going to bring him out, Peter, bound with two chains, was sleeping between two soldiers, while guards in front of the door were keeping watch over the prison. ⁷Suddenly an angel of the Lord appeared and a light shone in the cell. He tapped Peter on the side and woke him, saying, "Get up quickly." And the chains fell off his wrists. ⁸The angel said to him, "Fasten your belt and put on your sandals." He did so. Then he said to him, "Wrap your cloak around you and follow me." ⁹Peter^h went out and followed him; he did not realize that what was happening with the angel's help was real; he thought he was seeing a vision. ¹⁰After they had passed the first and the second guard, they came before the iron gate leading into the city. It opened for them of its own accord, and they went outside and walked along a lane, when suddenly the angel left him. ¹¹Then Peter came to himself and said, "Now I am sure that the Lord has sent his angel and rescued me from the hands of Herod and from all that the Jewish people were expecting."

¹²As soon as he realized this, he went to the house of Mary, the mother of John whose other name was Mark, where many had gathered and were praying. ¹³When he knocked at the outer gate, a maid named Rhoda came to answer. ¹⁴On recognizing Peter's voice, she was so overjoyed that, instead of opening the gate, she ran in and announced that Peter was standing at the gate. ¹⁵They said to her, "You are out of your mind!" But she insisted that it was so. They said, "It is his angel." ¹⁶Meanwhile Peter continued knocking; and when they opened the gate, they saw him and were amazed. ¹⁷He motioned to them with his hand to be silent, and described for them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he added, "Tell this to James and to the believers."ⁱ Then he left and went to another place.

as central figures in the Antiochene church. Correlating this trip with Paul's report in Gal 1.11–2.14 is extremely difficult.

12.1–25 Luke here drops the story of Antioch and returns to Jerusalem, vividly depicting a clash between the Christians (Peter) and their ostensibly powerful enemy (Herod). 12.1 King Herod, i.e., Herod Agrippa I, grandson of Herod the Great. In 37 c.e. he inherited the territory of Philip in the northern Transjordan (see Lk 3.1), but at his death (44 c.e.) he controlled a region almost as extensive as that of Herod the Great. (See "The Herods: A Simplified Family Tree," p. 1862.) 12.2 James. See Lk 5.10; 9.54. 12.3 The Jews. For the first time in Acts, resistance comes from the larger population rather than the Sadducees or temple officials (e.g., 4.1–4; 5.17; cf. 6.12). That these events occur during the festival of Unleavened Bread, just before Passover, recalls the arrest of Jesus at the same season (Lk 22.1, 7). 12.4 Four squads of soldiers, one for each watch of the night. 12.6–11 For other miraculous releases from prison, see 5.17–21; 16.23–29; see also 26.17, 22. Features of this escape (the awakening, the chains falling off, and gates opening automatically) are also found in other ancient literature. 12.7 On angels as agents of rescue, see 5.19; 1 Kings 19.5; Dan 3.19–28; Mt 18.10; cf. Acts 8.26; 10.3, 7, 22; 11.13; 27.23. The wording here is very close to that of Lk 2.9. Light accompanies the divine presence; see 9.3; 26.13. 12.11 For God's role in such rescues, see Ex 18.4; Dan 6.23; see also Acts 7.9–10, 34; 26.17. 12.12 Mary, the mother of John . . . Mark. Both persons are referred to here for the first time. Luke often introduces new characters with this sort of brief notice. The reference to Mary's home may indicate that she is unmarried. On John Mark, see 12.25; 15.37, 39. Later traditions identify this person as the author of the Second Gospel. 12.17 James, the brother of Jesus, introduced here (see notes on 1.14; 12.12) and mentioned 18 When morning came, there was no small commotion among the soldiers over what had become of Peter. 19 When Herod had searched for him and could not find him, he examined the guards and ordered them to be put to death. Then he went down from Judea to Caesarea and stayed there.

The Death of Herod

20 Now Herod^j was angry with the people of Tyre and Sidon. So they came to him in a body; and after winning over Blastus, the king's chamberlain, they asked for a reconciliation, because their country depended on the king's country for food. 21 On an appointed day Herod put on his royal robes, took his seat on the platform, and delivered a public address to them. 22 The people kept shouting, "The voice of a god, and not of a mortal!" 23 And immediately, because he had not given the glory to God, an angel of the Lord struck him down, and he was eaten by worms and died.

24 But the word of God continued to advance and gain adherents. 25 Then after completing their mission Barnabas and Saul returned to^k Jerusalem and brought with them John, whose other name was Mark.

Barnabas and Saul Commissioned

13 Now in the church at Antioch there were prophets and teachers: Barnabas, Simeon who was called Niger, Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen a member of the court of Herod the ruler,¹ and Saul. 2 While they were worshiping the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Set apart for me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them." 3 Then after fasting and praying they laid their hands on them and sent them off.

A Confrontation in Cyprus

4 So, being sent out by the Holy Spirit, they went down to Seleucia; and from there they sailed to Cyprus. 5 When they arrived at Salamis, they proclaimed the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews. And they had John also to assist them. 6 When they had gone through the whole island as far as Paphos, they met a certain magician, a Jewish false prophet, again in 15.13; 21.18. Went to another place, i.e., he left safely (see 12.18–19). 12.18–19 Cf. 5.21–24. No small commotion, i.e., a large commotion, Luke here employs a common figure of speech in which an assertion is made by negating its opposite (see also 15.2; 19.23, 24). 12.20–23 According to Josephus, Herod Agrippa I was greeted as a god, did not reject the title, and immediately saw an owl which prompted him to recall earlier predictions about his death. He then declared his imminent death to be God's will, succumbed to severe abdominal pain, and died five days later (Antiquities 19.343–52). 12.21 Agrippa is said to have worn royal robes made entirely of silver; see Josephus Antiquities 19.343–44. 12.22 See Ezek 28.2, 6, 9. 12.23 Unlike Peter, who praises God for his rescue (12.11), Herod fails to praise God and is struck down. On death for blasphemy, see Sir 48.21; 1 Macc 7.41; on death by worms, see Jdt 16.17; 2 Macc 9.9. 12.24 This typical Lucan summary (see note on 6.7) contrasts with the outcome of Herod's story to comment wryly on the fate of the church's enemies. 12.25 A transitional verse prepares for the Antiochene mission and connects Antioch with Jerusalem by means of John Mark. Although the story requires that Barnabas and Saul return to Antioch from Jerusalem

(see text note k), important early manuscripts read the opposite (to or in Jerusalem), creating logical confusion (cf. 11.29–30). Another suggestion is to translate, "Barnabas and Saul returned, after completing their mission in Jerusalem."

13.1–12 The mission of the Antiochene church, like that of the Jerusalem church, begins with a confrontation with Satan in the form of his agent, a magician (see 8.4–25). 13.1 Prophets and teachers. See Rom 12.6–7; 1 Cor 12.28. A member of the court of Herod the ruler, i.e., a close friend of Herod Antipas. Herod Antipas is the ruler (or tetrarch; see Lk 3.19; 9.7), as distinct from Herod Agrippa I, the king (see 12.1; also Lk 1.5). 13.2 Initiative for the new mission, here as elsewhere in Acts, comes from the Spirit rather than from human beings. 13.3 See 6.6, where prayer and the laying on of hands accompany the appointment of the Seven (see also 14.23). 13.4 Seleucia, seaport of Antioch. 13.5 Salamis, eastern port of the island of Cyprus (see 4.36; 11.19–20; 21.16). John Mark's role is presented as marginal; he is not identified with Barnabas and Saul when the Holy Spirit commissions them (13.2–3), and he soon returns to Jerusalem (13.13; see also 15.37–38). 13.6 Paphos, on the southwest coast of the island of Cyprus. A certain magician, a Jewish false prophet, an identification revealing his charac-

named Bar-Jesus. ⁷He was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man, who summoned Barnabas and Saul and wanted to hear the word of God. ⁸But the magician Elymas (for that is the translation of his name) opposed them and tried to turn the proconsul away from the faith. ⁹But Saul, also known as Paul, filled with the Holy Spirit, looked intently at him ¹⁰and said, "You son of the devil, you enemy of all righteousness, full of all deceit and villainy, will you not stop making crooked the straight paths of the Lord? ¹¹And now listen—the hand of the Lord is against you, and you will be blind for a while, unable to see the sun." Immediately mist and darkness came over him, and he went about groping for someone to lead him by the hand. ¹²When the proconsul saw what had happened, he believed, for he was astonished at the teaching about the Lord.

Paul and Barnabas in Antioch of Pisidia

13 Then Paul and his companions set sail from Paphos and came to Perga in Pamphylia. John, however, left them and returned to Jerusalem; ¹⁴but they went on from Perga and came to Antioch in Pisidia. And on the sabbath day they went into the synagogue and sat down. ¹⁵After the reading of the law and the prophets, the officials of the synagogue sent them a message, saying, "Brothers, if you have any word of exhortation for the people, give it." ¹⁶So Paul stood up and with a gesture began to speak:

"You Israelites,^m and others who fear God, listen. ¹⁷The God of this people Israel chose our ancestors and made the people great during their stay in the land of Egypt, and with uplifted arm he led them out of it. ¹⁸For about forty years he put up withⁿ them in the wilderness. ¹⁹After he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, he gave them their land as an inheritance ²⁰for about four hundred fifty years. After that he gave them judges until the time of the prophet Samuel. ²¹Then they asked for a king; and God gave them Saul son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, who reigned for forty years. ²²When he had

ter; not only is he a magician serving Satan, he is an apostate Jew. 13.7 Sergius Paulus, the proconsul or governor of the province, would have been a citizen of considerable standing. 13.8 Elymas does not translate Bar-Jesus. 13.9 Saul, also known as Paul. From this point on Luke employs only the Roman form of his name (except in 22.7, 13; 26.14), probably because the gentile mission predominates. Filled with the Holy Spirit, as were Peter (4.8) and Stephen (6.5). 13.10 Making crooked the straight paths of the Lord contrasts the false prophet (13.6) with the true prophet, John (see Lk 3.4). 13.11 Paul's blinding of Bar-Jesus proves the power of God over Satan, enacts the punishment for idolatry (Deut 28.28–29), and recalls Paul's own conversion (9.8). Darkness, the realm of separation from God (see 26.18; Lk 22.53). 13.12 The teaching about the Lord here concerns the power of God over Satan.

13.13–52 Pisidian Antioch provides the scene for Paul's first speech in Acts. 13.13 Following the important victory over Satan's agent, Luke usually places Paul's name first (see 13.43, 46, 50) rather than the earlier "Barnabas and Saul" (11.30; 12.25; 13.2, 7; but cf. 14.12, 14; 15.12), indicating that Paul has become the central figure. Perga in Pamphylia. The movement is north to the mainland of Asia Minor. 13.14 Pisidian Antioch, north of Perga (to be distinguished from Syrian Antioch, mentioned in 13.1; see note on 11.19). Paul's usual missionary practice is to go first to the synagogue (see, e.g., 14.1; 17.1–2; 18.4). 13.16a The posture and gesture are those of a Greco-Roman orator. 13.16b–41 Paul's speech recalls earlier speeches in Acts; the speech traces God's saving actions on Israel's behalf and places Jesus in that tradition, concluding with a call to forgiveness. 13.16b–25 The first section moves from the exodus and conquest to the establishment of the kingship, identifying Jesus with the Davidic line. 13.16b Others who fear God, i.e., Gentiles (see 10.2; 16.14; cf. 2.14; 3.12; 7.2). 13.17 On God's choosing of Israel, see Deut 4.37; 10.15. With uplifted arm. See Ex 6.1, Deut 4.34; 5.15. 13.18 Some Greek manuscripts read he put up with them and others he cared for them (see text note n), the difference consisting in one Greek letter. In the Septuagint of Deut 1.31, which is echoed here, the same text-critical problem exists. The evidence is so evenly divided that making a judgment is very difficult. 13.19 Seven nations, see Deut 7.1. On the land as an inheritance, see Josh 14.1–2. 13.20 Four hundred fifty years, apparently including the four hundred years prior to the exodus (Gen 15.13). 13.21 On the request for and granting of a king, see 1 Sam 8.5, 10; 10.21, 24. Forty years. removed him, he made David their king. In his testimony about him he said, 'I have found David, son of Jesse, to be a man after my heart, who will carry out all my wishes.' ²³Of this man's posterity God has brought to Israel a Savior, Jesus, as he promised; ²⁴before his coming John had already proclaimed a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. ²⁵And as John was finishing his work, he said, 'What do you suppose that I am? I am not he. No, but one is coming after me; I am not worthy to untie the thong of the sandals^o on his feet.'

²⁶ "My brothers, you descendants of Abraham's family, and others who fear God, to us^p the message of this salvation has been sent. ²⁷Because the residents of Jerusalem and their leaders did not recognize him or understand the words of the prophets that are read every sabbath, they fulfilled those words by condemning him. ²⁸Even though they found no cause for a sentence of death, they asked Pilate to have him killed. ²⁹When they had carried out everything that was written about him, they took him down from the tree and laid him in a tomb. ³⁰But God raised him from the dead; ³¹and for many days

he appeared to those who came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, and they are now his witnesses to the people. ³²And we bring you the good news that what God promised to our ancestors ³³he has fulfilled for us, their children, by raising Jesus; as also it is written in the second psalm,

'You are my Son;
today I have begotten you.'

³⁴As to his raising him from the dead, no more to return to corruption, he has spoken in this way,

'I will give you the holy promises made to David.'

³⁵Therefore he has also said in another psalm,

'You will not let your Holy One experience corruption.'

³⁶For David, after he had served the purpose of God in his own generation, died,^q was laid beside his ancestors, and experienced corruption; ³⁷but he whom God raised up experienced no corruption. ³⁸Let it be known to you therefore, my brothers, that through this man forgive-

Acts 13-14 describes a missionary expedition by Paul and companions by way of Cyprus into Pamphylia and Pisidia.

1.32; 2.4. 13.25 See Lk 3.16. John's ministry connects David and Jesus, but Luke carefully places John offstage when Jesus' ministry begins (see Lk 3.18-23; 16.16). 13.26-37 Direct address (my brothers) begins the second part of the speech, which interprets the death of Jesus as the fulfillment of scripture (13.27, 29) and God's promises (13.32-33). 13.26 Others who fear God. See 13.16. 13.27 Ironically, the ignorance of Jerusalem's residents in fact brings about the fulfillment of scripture; see 3.17-18. 13.28 See 3.13-14; Lk 23.13-25. 13.31 The apostles' primary task is to witness; see 1.8; Lk 24.48. 13.32 We bring you the good news. Even if Paul and Barnabas do not technically qualify as apostolic witnesses (see 1.21-22), they nevertheless function as proclaimers alongside the others. 13.33 The quotation from Ps 2.7 could imply that Jesus becomes God's son by virtue of his resurrection (see also 2.36; Rom 1.4), but cf. Lk 3.22. 13.34-37 For a similar contrast between David and Jesus, see 2.29-36. 13.34 The quotation is from Isa 55.3 (Septuagint). 13.35 Ps 16.10 is quoted; see also Acts 2.27, 31. 13.38 Let it be known to you. See note on 2.14. My brothers. Direct address marks the movement to the concluding call for repentance. Forgiveness of ness of sins is proclaimed to you; ³⁹by this Jesus^r everyone who believes is set free from all those sins^s from which you could not be freed by the law of Moses. ⁴⁰Beware, therefore, that what the prophets said does not happen to you:

⁴¹ 'Look, you scoffers!

Be amazed and perish, for in your days I am doing a work, a work that you will never believe, even if someone tells you.'

⁴² As Paul and Barnabas^t were going out, the people urged them to speak about these things again the next sabbath. ⁴³When the meeting of the synagogue broke up, many Jews and devout converts to Judaism followed Paul and Barnabas, who spoke to them and urged them to continue in the grace of God.

⁴⁴ The next sabbath almost the whole city gathered to hear the word of the Lord.^u ⁴⁵But when the Jews saw the crowds, they were filled with jealousy; and blaspheming, they contradicted what was spoken by Paul. ⁴⁶Then both Paul and Barnabas spoke out boldly, saying, "It was necessary that the word of God should be spoken first to you. Since you reject it and judge yourselves to be unworthy of eternal life, we are now turning to the Gentiles. ⁴⁷For so the Lord has commanded us, saying,

'I have set you to be a light for the Gentiles,
so that you may bring salvation
to the ends of the earth.'

⁴⁸ When the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and praised the word of the Lord; and as many as had been destined for eternal life became believers. ⁴⁹Thus the word of the Lord spread throughout the region. ⁵⁰But the Jews incited the devout women of high standing and the leading men of the city, and stirred up persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and drove them out of their region. ⁵¹So they shook the dust off their feet in protest against them, and went to Iconium. ⁵²And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

Paul and Barnabas in Iconium

14 The same thing occurred in Iconium, where Paul and Barnabas^t went into the Jewish synagogue and spoke in such a way that a great number of both Jews and Greeks became believers. ²But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles and poisoned their minds against the brothers. ³So they remained for a long time, speaking boldly for the Lord, who testified to the word of his grace by granting signs and wonders to be done through them. ⁴But the residents of the city were divided; some sided with the Jews, and some with the apostles. ⁵And when an attempt was made by both Gentiles and Jews, with their rulers, to mistreat them sins. See 2.38; 5.31; 10.43. 13.39 The implicit claim that Jesus brings freedom from the Mosaic law is new here in Acts and echoes themes from Paul's Letters (see, e.g., Gal 3.23–35; Rom 3.28; 8.3). 13.40–41 The prophetic warning, drawn from Hab 1.5, anticipates the Jews' rejection in 13.44–47 (see also 28.23–28) and recalls the final words of Stephen's speech (7.51–53). 13.42–43 Like the initial preaching in Jerusalem, Paul's speech draws a receptive response; see 2.37–42. 13.44–52 For the first time, the theme of Jewish rejection of the gospel is joined with that of the gentile mission. 13.45 Jewish response here fulfills Paul's prophetic words in 13.40–41. 13.46 Boldly. See note on 4.13. The geographical order of 1.8 also suggests that preaching moves from a Jewish audience (Jerusalem) to the Gentiles (the ends of the earth, v. 47). 13.47 Isa 49.6 is quoted; see also Lk 2.32; Acts

26.17–18. 13.48 The response of the Gentiles matches that of the Ethiopian eunuch (see 8.39). Destined for eternal life. See Lk 10.20; see also Ex 32.32–33; Ps 69.28; Isa 4.3; Dan 12.1. 13.51 They shook the dust off. See Lk 9.5; 10.11. Iconium, provincial capital of the district of Lycaonia, southeast of Pisidian Antioch.

14.1–7 Despite what 13.47 might lead one to expect, this brief transitional scene demonstrates that both Jews and Gentiles are among those who accept and who reject the Christian gospel. 14.1 Greeks, i.e., Gentiles. 14.2 Luke places responsibility for resistance on Jews. 14.3 Speaking boldly. See note on 4.13. Signs and wonders, a distinguishing characteristic of the Christian community; see 2.19, 22, 43; 4.30; 5.12; 6.8; 15.12; 2 Cor 12.12. 14.4 Only here and in 14.14 are Paul and Barnabas referred to as apostles (see note on 1.21–22). The Greek text does not have the word and to stone them, ⁶the apostles^v learned of it and fled to Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and to the surrounding country; ⁷and there they continued proclaiming the good news.

Paul and Barnabas in Lystra and Derbe

8 In Lystra there was a man sitting who could not use his feet and had never walked, for he had been crippled from birth. ⁹He listened to Paul as he was speaking. And Paul, looking at him intently and seeing that he had faith to be healed, ¹⁰said in a loud voice, “Stand upright on your feet.” And the man^w sprang up and began to walk. ¹¹When the crowds saw what Paul had done, they shouted in the Lycaonian language, “The gods have come down to us in human form!” ¹²Barnabas they called Zeus, and Paul they called Hermes, because he was the chief speaker. ¹³The priest of Zeus, whose temple was just outside the city,^x brought oxen and garlands to the gates; he and the crowds wanted to offer sacrifice. ¹⁴When the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard of it, they tore their clothes and rushed out into the crowd, shouting, ¹⁵“Friends,^y why are you doing this? We are mortals just like you, and we bring you good news, that you should turn from these worthless things to the living God, who made the heaven and the earth and the sea and all that is in them. ¹⁶In past generations he allowed all the nations to follow their own ways; ¹⁷yet he has not left himself without a witness in doing good—giving you rains from heaven and fruitful seasons, and filling you with food and your hearts with joy.” ¹⁸Even with these words, they scarcely restrained the crowds from offering sacrifice to them.

19 But Jews came there from Antioch and Iconium and won over the crowds. Then they stoned Paul and dragged him out of the city, supposing that he was dead. ²⁰But when the disciples surrounded him, he got up and went into the city. The next day he went on with Barnabas to Derbe.

The Return to Antioch in Syria

21 After they had proclaimed the good news to that city and had made many disciples, they returned to Lystra, then on to Iconium and Antioch. ²²There they strengthened the souls of the disciples and encouraged them to continue in the faith, saying, “It is through many persecutions that we must enter the kingdom of God.” ²³And after they had appointed elders for them in each church, with prayer and fasting they entrusted them to the Lord in whom they had come to believe.

14.8–20 As at the outset of the Jerusalem mission, so also among Gentiles, a miraculous event prompts misunderstanding which then requires an explanation (see 2.1–4, 12–15; 3.1–13). 14.8 The detailed description of the man’s disability enhances the miracle that follows; see also 3.2. 14.9 Looking at him intently. See 3.4; 13.9. Faith to be healed. See Lk 5.20. 14.11–12 The amazement typically generated by a miracle (see, e.g., Lk 5.26) here becomes blatant misunderstanding; cf. Ovid Metamorphoses 8.611–725, where the gods Zeus and Hermes (Jupiter and Mercury) appear in the guise of two men. 14.14 The vehement rejection of this misunderstanding is fundamental to the service of God (cf. 12.22–23). 14.15–17 A brief speech provides the essentials of early Christian preaching to Gentiles (see also 17.22–31). 14.15 We are mortals. See 10.26; Wis 7.1; Jas 5.17. Turning from idols to the living God is a consistent depiction of gentile conversion (15.19; 26.20; 1 Thess 1.9). Who made the heaven and the earth and the sea and all that is in them. See note on 4.24. 14.17 See Wis 13.1–9; Rom 1.20 for a similar view that God should have been known from observation of the natural world. 14.18–19 As in Pisidian Antioch and Iconium, some welcome Christian proclamation and others respond with persecution (see 13.48–50; 14.1–2). On stoning, see 2 Cor 11.25. 14.20 Derbe. See note on 14.6.

14.21–28 Paul and Barnabas return to Antioch, stopping along the way to encourage new believers and establish leaders in each congregation. 14.22 To continue in the faith. See 11.23. On persecution as a necessary result of Christian faith, see 20.23; Mt 7.14; Phil 1.29; 1 Thess 3.3. 14.23 Elders, originally the title of important Jewish leaders (see Lk 7.3; 9.22), also figure in the Jerusalem church (see, e.g., 11.30; 15.1–6) and in the churches of the Pauline circle (1 Tim 5.17; Titus 1.5), although they are not mentioned in the indisputably Pauline Letters. With prayer and fast-

24 Then they passed through Pisidia and came to Pamphylia. 25 When they had spoken the word in Perga, they went down to Attalia. 26 From there they sailed back to Antioch, where they had been commended to the grace of God for the work^z that they had completed. 27 When they arrived, they called the church together and related all that God had done with them, and how he had opened a door of faith for the Gentiles. 28 And they stayed there with the disciples for some time.

The Council at Jerusalem

15 Then certain individuals came down from Judea and were teaching the brothers, "Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved." 2 And after Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and debate with them, Paul and Barnabas and some of the others were appointed to go up to Jerusalem to discuss this question with the apostles and the elders. 3 So they were sent on their way by the church, and as they passed through both Phoenicia and Samaria, they reported the conversion of the Gentiles, and brought great joy to all the believers.^a 4 When they came to Jerusalem, they were welcomed by the church and the apostles and the elders, and they reported all that God had done with them. 5 But some believers who belonged to the sect of the Pharisees stood up and said, "It is necessary for them to be circumcised and ordered to keep the law of Moses."

6 The apostles and the elders met together to consider this matter. 7 After there had been much debate, Peter stood up and said to them, "My brothers,^b you know that in the early days God made a choice among you, that I should be the one through whom the Gentiles would hear the message of the good news and become believers. 8 And God, who knows the human heart, testified to them by giving them the Holy Spirit, just as he did to us; 9 and in cleansing their hearts by faith he has made no distinction between them and us. 10 Now therefore why are you putting God to the test by placing on the neck of the disciples a yoke that neither our ancestors nor we have been able to bear? 11 On the contrary, we believe that we will be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they will."

12 The whole assembly kept silence, and listened to Barnabas and Paul as they told of all the signs and wonders that God had done through them among the Gentiles. 13 After they finished speaking, James replied, "My brothers,^b listen to

ing. See 13.3. 14.24–26 The route leads southward to the harbor of Attalia and then back to Syrian Antioch. 14.27 Consistent with the narrative throughout Acts, God is credited with the success of the gentile mission (see, e.g., 11.18; 13.47; 15.7–8). A door of faith. See 1 Cor 16.9; 2 Cor 2.12.

15.1–35 The Jerusalem council presents the final defense of the gentile mission and resolves a bitter dispute over requirements for gentile Christians with respect to Mosaic law. The difficulty of reconciling Acts 15 with Paul's comments in Gal 2.1–14 suggests that Luke has shaped the story to conform to his own understanding of the emerging church. 15.1–5 For the first time, the question arises whether Gentiles who become Christians must be circumcised and keep Mosaic law. On circumcision, see Gen 17.10–14; Lev 12.3; cf. Rom 2.25–29; Gal 5.2–12. 15.2 No small dissension, i.e., a large dissension (see note on 12.18–19). 15.4 All that God had done, i.e., to effect the conversion of the Gentiles. See 14.27; 15.12; 21.19. 15.5 The demand to keep the law of

Moses considerably expands the conflict from the issue of circumcision (see 15.1). 15.6–11 Peter's speech, which is the last reference to him in Acts (except for 15.14), appeals to the church's experience with the gentile mission and to an understanding of grace. 15.7 Much debate reveals the intensity of the parties involved. In the early days. See 10.1–11.18; whether Peter historically carried out this role is quite unclear (see 8.26–40; 11.19–26; Gal 2.7–8). 15.9 No distinction. See also Rom 3.22; 10.12. 15.10 Putting God to the test. See 5.9; Ex 17.2; Ps 78.41. Jewish writers sometimes spoke of the law as a yoke to be chosen (Mishnah Avot 3.5, Berakot 2.2; cf. Mt 11.29–30). 15.11 This statement reinterprets the conversion of Cornelius as a message not simply about the salvation of Gentiles but also about the way in which salvation comes to all persons; see also Rom 3.24; 4.16; 5.21. 15.12–29 The report of Barnabas and Paul precedes James's speech, which interprets the gentile mission on the basis of scripture. 15.12 Signs and wonders. See note on 14.3. 15.13 James (the brother of Jesus) here

me. ¹⁴Simeon has related how God first looked favorably on the Gentiles, to take from among them a people for his name. ¹⁵This agrees with the words of the prophets, as it is written,

¹⁶ 'After this I will return, and I will rebuild the dwelling of David, which has fallen;
from its ruins I will rebuild it,
and I will set it up,

¹⁷ so that all other peoples may seek the Lord —

even all the Gentiles over whom my name has been called.

Thus says the Lord, who has been making these things

¹⁸known from long ago.^c

¹⁹Therefore I have reached the decision that we should not trouble those Gentiles who are turning to God, ²⁰but we should write to them to abstain only from things polluted by idols and from fornication and from whatever has been strangled^d and from blood. ²¹For in every city, for generations past, Moses has had those who proclaim him, for he has been read aloud every sabbath in the synagogues."

The Council's Letter to Gentile Believers

²² Then the apostles and the elders, with the consent of the whole church, decided to choose men from among their members^e and to send them to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas. They sent Judas called Barsabbas, and Silas, leaders among the brothers, ²³with the following letter: "The brothers, both the apostles and the elders, to the believers^f of Gentile origin in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia, greetings. ²⁴Since we have heard that certain persons who have gone out from us, though with no instructions from us, have said things to disturb you and have unsettled your minds,^g ²⁵we have decided unanimously to choose representatives^h and send them to you, along with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, ²⁶who have risked their lives for the sake of our Lord Jesus Christ. ²⁷We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who themselves will tell you the same things by word of mouth. ²⁸For it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to impose on you no further burden than these essentials: ²⁹that you abstain from what has been sacrificed to idols and from blood and from what is strangledⁱ and from fornication. If you keep yourselves from these, you will do well. Farewell."

³⁰ So they were sent off and went down to Antioch. When they gathered the congregation together, they delivered the letter. ³¹When its members^j read it, they reenters the narrative as the central figure of the Jerusalem church (see 12.17; 21.18). 15.14 Simeon, apparently Peter, although only here does Luke refer to him thus (cf. Simon in, e.g., 10.5; 11.13; Lk 22.31; but see also 2 Pet 1.1). A people for his name. The term reserved for Israel (see note on 3.11) now includes Gentiles also. 15.16–18 James quotes Am 9.11–12 to demonstrate that the inclusion of Gentiles has long been within God's plan. The quotation comes from the Greek Septuagint, the use of which is incongruous with the portrait of James as leader of Jerusalem Christianity, who would presumably speak Aramaic in this setting. 15.19 Turning to God. See note on 9.35. 15.20 See also 15.29; 21.25. In Lev 17.8–18.30 these regulations govern both Israel and outsiders who live within Israel; thus, James proposes a law for gentile Christians in keeping with Mosaic law but without imposing circumcision (cf. Philo Migration of Abraham 89–94; Josephus Antiquities 20.38–48). Things polluted by idols include sacrificial meat offered to idols; see

Ex 34.15–16; 1 Cor 10.7, 14–22. Fornication. See Lev 18.6–30; 1 Cor 6.18. Whatever has been strangled, i.e., animals not slaughtered in accordance with Lev 17.3; 19.26; Deut 12.16, 23–27. From blood. See Lev 3.17; 17.10–14. 15.21 Moses, i.e., Mosaic law. 15.22–29 Including this letter from Jerusalem allows Luke to repeat the content of the agreement and emphasize the unanimity of the Jerusalem church. 15.22 Judas called Barsabbas is nowhere else mentioned. Silas accompanies Paul in 15.40–18.5 (Silas is probably "Silvanus" in 2 Cor 1.19; 1 Thess 1.1; 2 Thess 1.1). 15.24 Though with no instructions from us carefully distances the Jerusalem council from the demands for circumcision and law observance (see 15.1). 15.27 By word of mouth. The oral report of Judas and Silas, who accompany Paul and Barnabas as they deliver the letter, again reinforces the importance of this message. 15.28 Luke often highlights the role of the Holy Spirit (see, e.g., 2.1–13; 4.8, 31; 10.44–48). 15.29 See note on 15.20. 15.31 The Gentiles rejoiced at the exhortation. ³²Judas and Silas, who were themselves prophets, said much to encourage and strengthen the believers.^k ³³After they had been there for some time, they were sent off in peace by the believers^k to those who had sent them.^l ³⁵But Paul and Barnabas remained in Antioch, and there, with many others, they taught and proclaimed the word of the Lord.

Paul and Barnabas Separate

³⁶ After some days Paul said to Barnabas, "Come, let us return and visit the believers^k in every city where we proclaimed the word of the Lord and see how they are doing." ³⁷Barnabas wanted to take with them John called Mark. ³⁸But Paul decided not to take with them one who had deserted them in Pamphylia and had not accompanied them in the work. ³⁹The disagreement became so sharp that they parted company; Barnabas took Mark with him and sailed away to Cyprus. ⁴⁰But Paul chose Silas and set out, the believers^k commending him to the grace of the Lord. ⁴¹He went through Syria and Cilicia, strengthening the churches.

Timothy Joins Paul and Silas

16 Paul^m went on also to Derbe and to Lystra, where there was a disciple named Timothy, the son of a Jewish woman who was a believer; but his father was a Greek. ²He was well spoken of by the believers^k in Lystra and Iconium. ³Paul wanted Timothy to accompany him; and he took him and had him circumcised because of the Jews who were in those places, for they all knew that his father was a Greek. ⁴As they went from town to town, they delivered to them for observance the decisions that had been reached by the apostles and elders who were in Jerusalem. ⁵So the churches were strengthened in the faith and increased in numbers daily.

Paul's Vision of the Man of Macedonia

⁶ They went through the region of Phrygia and Galatia, having been forbidden by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in Asia. ⁷When they had come opposite Mysia, they attempted to go into Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus did not allow them; ⁸so, passing by Mysia, they went down to Troas. ⁹During the night Paul had a vision: there stood a man of Macedonia pleading with him and saying, "Come over to Macedonia and help us." ¹⁰When he had seen the vision, we immediately tried to cross over to Macedonia, being receive the church's decision with rejoicing, as they earlier received the gospel itself (see 13.48). 15.33 Silas later leaves with Paul (15.40), as though this departure had not occurred (see text note l).

15.36–16.40 With new colleagues and after a false start, Paul undertakes a significant new mission in Thessalonica. 15.36–41 What develops into a major mission trip begins with the simple plan to revisit the cities of their earlier preaching. 15.37–39 For another possible reason for the conflict between Paul and Barnabas, see Gal 2.11–14. 15.38 On John Mark's desertion, see 13.13. 15.40 Silas. See notes on 15.22; 15.33. 16.1–5 The addition of Timothy completes the team. 16.1 Derbe and ... Lystra. See note on 14.6. Timothy. See 17.14–15; 18.5; 19.22; 20.4. He appears to have played a more substantial role in Paul's work than Luke indicates (see Rom 16.21; 1 Cor 4.17; 16.10; 2 Cor 1.1, 19; Phil 1.1; 2.19–22; 1 Thess 1.1; 3.2, 6; Philem 1). 16.3 By circumcising Timothy, Paul shows his awareness of Jewish sensitivities (see 21.17–26; 22.3; 24.14; 26.5; but cf. Gal 2.3). 16.5 See note on 6.7. 16.6–10 Consistent with the picture elsewhere in Acts, a new phase in the mission arises only with divine guidance (see, e.g., 8.26; 10.9–16). Here Luke reinforces that theme by showing the rejection of human initiatives. 16.6–8 Phrygia and Galatia. The route is to the northwest, toward Mysia, the region abutting the Hellespont. Not permitted to go either south to Asia Minor or north to Bithynia, the group arrives by default in the harbor city of Troas. Probably the change between the Holy Spirit and the Spirit of Jesus reflects stylistic variation rather than a theological distinction. 16.9 On visions or dreams as a means of guidance, see 9.10–12; 10.3–6, 10–16; 11.5–10; 18.9–10. Macedonia, a Roman province in the northern region of the Greek peninsula. 16.10 The shift here to the first-person plural narration (we) extends through 16.17 (see also 20.5–15; 21.1–18; 27.1–28.16). The change may result from stylistic consider-convinced that God had called us to proclaim the good news to them.

The Conversion of Lydia

11 We set sail from Troas and took a straight course to Samothrace, the following day to Neapolis,¹² and from there to Philippi, which is a leading city of the districtⁿ of Macedonia and a Roman colony. We remained in this city for some days.¹³ On the sabbath day we went outside the gate by the river, where we supposed there was a place of prayer; and we sat down and spoke to the women who had gathered there.¹⁴ A certain woman named Lydia, a worshiper of God, was listening to us; she was from the city of Thyatira and a dealer in purple cloth. The Lord opened her heart to listen eagerly to what was said by Paul.¹⁵ When she and her household were baptized, she urged us, saying, "If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come and stay at my home." And she prevailed upon us.

Paul and Silas in Prison

16 One day, as we were going to the place of prayer, we met a slave-girl who had a spirit of divination and brought her owners a great deal of money by fortune-telling.¹⁷ While she followed Paul and us, she would cry out, "These men are slaves of the Most High God, who proclaim to you^o a way of salvation."¹⁸ She kept doing this for many days. But Paul, very much annoyed, turned and said to the spirit, "I order you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her." And it came out that very hour.

19 But when her owners saw that their hope of making money was gone, they seized Paul and Silas and dragged them into the marketplace before the authorities.²⁰ When they had brought them before the magistrates, they said, "These ations, or from the use of travel diaries only loosely reworked by Luke, or from the author's presence during this part of the journey. Given the uncertainty, little can be deduced from it regarding the historical accuracy of Acts or the identity of Luke. 16.11-15 The mission in Philippi begins and ends with references to Lydia (see 16.40). 16.11-12 Samothrace, an island approximately halfway between Troas and Neapolis, port city of Philippi. 16.12 Philippi was a city in one of four districts within the province of Macedonia (see text note n). In this context, where Paul's status as a Roman citizen first enters the narrative (16.37-38), Luke identifies Philippi as a Roman colony. Pisidian Antioch (13.14), Lystra (14.6), Troas (16.8), and Corinth (18.1) were all colonies as well. 16.13 A place of prayer may be either a synagogue or an informal place of worship. 16.14 A worshiper of God, i.e., a Gentile who worshiped Israel's God (see note on 10.2). Thyatira was in the district of Lydia, which had long been a center for the production of purple dye. 16.15 References to the household of Lydia (her name is the same as that of the district) suggest that she is unmarried. A merchant and mistress of a household, she would have occupied a relatively high social and economic status. On the baptism of a household, see 10.24, 44-48; 11.14; 16.31-34. 16.16-24 As earlier in Acts (3.1-26; 14.8-18), a healing leads to a public confrontation. 16.16 Spirit of divination, lit. "a spirit of the Python," which was associated with the Delphic oracle. 16.17 A way of salvation. Not only is this a major Lucan theme (see, e.g., 2.40; Lk 3.6) but a preview of what will happen to both the slave girl and the jailer. 16.18 On healing in the name of Jesus Christ, see 3.6, 16; 4.10. 16.19 See also note on 8.18. Cf. 19.25, where Luke draws attention to the economic motives of other potential competitors. Here the theme is underscored by false charges against Paul and Silas. 16.20 Magistrates, a popular designation for the chief men are disturbing our city; they are Jews²¹ and are advocating customs that are not lawful for us as Romans to adopt or observe.”²² The crowd joined in attacking them, and the magistrates had them stripped of their clothing and ordered them to be beaten with rods.²³ After they had given them a severe flogging, they threw them into prison and ordered the jailer to keep them securely.²⁴ Following these instructions, he put them in the innermost cell and fastened their feet in the stocks.

²⁵ About midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the prisoners were listening to them.²⁶ Suddenly there was an earthquake, so violent that the foundations of the prison were shaken; and immediately all the doors were opened and everyone's chains were unfastened.²⁷ When the jailer woke up and saw the prison doors wide open, he drew his sword and was about to kill himself, since he supposed that the prisoners had escaped.²⁸ But Paul shouted in a loud voice, “Do not harm yourself, for we are all here.”²⁹ The jailer^p called for lights, and rushing in, he fell down trembling before Paul and Silas.³⁰ Then he brought them outside and said, “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?”³¹ They answered, “Believe on the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved, you and your household.”³² They spoke the word of the Lord^q to him and to all who were in his house.³³ At the same hour of the night he took them and washed their wounds; then he and his entire family were baptized without delay.³⁴ He brought them up into the house and set food before them; and he and his entire household rejoiced that he had become a believer in God.

³⁵ When morning came, the magistrates sent the police, saying, “Let those men go.”³⁶ And the jailer reported the message to Paul, saying, “The magistrates sent word to let you go; therefore come out now and go in peace.”³⁷ But Paul replied, “They have beaten us in public, uncondemned, men who are Roman citizens, and have thrown us into prison; and now are they going to discharge us in secret? Certainly not! Let them come and take us out themselves.”³⁸ The police reported these words to the magistrates, and they were afraid when they heard that they were Roman citizens;³⁹ so they came and apologized to them. And they took them out and asked them to leave the city.⁴⁰ After leaving the prison they went to Lydia's home; and when they had seen and encouraged the brothers and sisters^r there, they departed.

The Uproar in Thessalonica and Beroea

17 After Paul and Silas^s had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews.² And Paul went in, as was his custom, and on three sabbath days argued with them from the scriptures,³ explaining and proving that it was necessary for the Messiah^t to suffer and to rise from the dead, and saying, “This is the Messiah,^t Jesus whom I am proclaiming to you.”⁴ Some of them were persuaded and joined Paul and Silas, as did a great many of the devout Greeks and not a few of the leading women.⁵ But the Jews became jealous, and with the help of some ruffians in the marketplaces they formed a mob and set officials of a Roman colony. 16.22–24 See 2 Cor 11.23–25. 16.25–34 Unlike the two previous stories of prison release in Acts (5.19–21; 12.6–11), this one occasions a conversion. 16.27 See 12.19, where the guards are executed. 16.30 What must I do to be saved? See 2.37. 16.32–34 As in the case of Lydia (16.15) and of Cornelius (10.2, 24, 44; 11.14), this conversion involves the entire household. 16.37 Beaten . . . in public. Such treatment of a Roman citizen was against Roman law, but violations of this law occurred (see, e.g., Josephus Jewish War 2.308). 16.40 See 16.14–15.

17.1–15 The conflicting responses to Christian preaching in two cities prepare for Paul's important speech in Athens. 17.1 Paul and Silas travel the Via Egnatia, the main east-west road across Macedonia. Thessalonica, headquarters for the Roman governor and the leading city of Macedonia. 17.2 As was his custom. In every city Paul goes first to Jews (see note on 13.14). From the scriptures. See Lk 4.16–21; 24.27, 32, 45, where Jesus interprets scripture regarding himself. 17.3 It was necessary. Luke often draws attention to divine necessity (see, e.g., 1.16; 3.21; 9.16; Lk 2.49; 24.7, 26, 46). 17.4–5 As earlier (13.43, 50; 14.1–2), both Jews and Greeks are among those who respond to the gospel and among those who

the city in an uproar. While they were searching for Paul and Silas to bring them out to the assembly, they attacked Jason's house. ⁶When they could not find them, they dragged Jason and some believers^u before the city authorities,^v shouting, "These people who have been turning the world upside down have come here also, ⁷and Jason^w has entertained them as guests. They are all acting contrary to the decrees of the emperor, saying that there is another king named Jesus." ⁸The people and the city officials were disturbed when they heard this, ⁹and after they had taken bail from Jason and the others, they let them go.

¹⁰ That very night the believers^u sent Paul and Silas off to Beroea; and when they arrived, they went to the Jewish synagogue. ¹¹These Jews were more receptive than those in Thessalonica, for they welcomed the message very eagerly and examined the scriptures every day to see whether these things were so. ¹²Many of them therefore believed, including not a few Greek women and men of high standing. ¹³But when the Jews of Thessalonica learned that the word of God had been proclaimed by Paul in Beroea as well, they came there too, to stir up and incite the crowds. ¹⁴Then the believers^u immediately sent Paul away to the coast, but Silas and Timothy remained behind. ¹⁵Those who conducted Paul brought him as far as Athens; and after receiving instructions to have Silas and Timothy join him as soon as possible, they left him.

Paul in Athens

¹⁶ While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, he was deeply distressed to see that the city was full of idols. ¹⁷So he argued in the synagogue with the Jews and the devout persons, and also in the marketplace^w every day with those who happened to be there. ¹⁸Also some Epicurean and Stoic philosophers debated with him. Some said, "What does this babbler want to say?" Others said, "He seems to be a proclaimer of foreign divinities." (This was because he was telling the good news about Jesus and the resurrection.) ¹⁹So they took him and brought him to the Areopagus and asked him, "May we know what this new teaching is that you are presenting? ²⁰It sounds rather strange to us, so we would like to know what it means." ²¹Now all the Athenians and the foreigners living there would spend their time in nothing but telling or hearing something new.

²² Then Paul stood in front of the Areopagus and said, "Athenians, I see how extremely religious you are in every way. ²³For as I went through the city and

See also 16.21. Another king named Jesus. See Lk 23.2–3, 37–38. 17.8–9 This mild treatment may reflect Luke's concern to portray the Roman government as tolerant toward the church (see Lk 23.4, 13–16). 17.10 Beroea, a city south of the Via Egnatia (see note on 17.1). 17.15 As a highly significant cultural center, Athens offers an appropriate context for presenting Luke's understanding of a typical sermon to Gentiles.

17.16–34 Paul's speech at Athens, the only speech in Acts to a pagan audience (but see 14.15–17), echoes important Lucan themes even as it differs from earlier speeches. References to the history of Israel are omitted here as meaningless to an entirely gentile audience. 17.16 The city was full of idols. Ancient historians provide similar descriptions of Athens. 17.17 In the synagogue. See note on 13.14. 17.18 Epicureans denied divine judgment and argued against a fear of death. Stoics urged living in accord with nature, which they understood to be ruled by the divine Logos. In order to achieve this goal, they advocated the importance of reason and self-control. Babbler, lit. "one who picks up seeds," i.e., a person who gathers new ideas indiscriminately. A proclaimer of foreign divinities, a charge leveled also against Socrates (Plato Apology 24B–C). 17.19 The Areopagus may refer either to a place, the Hill of Ares, or to an administrative council whose name derived from its location. 17.21 Ancient writers describe the Athenians in similar terms.

17.22–31 Paul's speech begins with an acknowledgment of the religiosity of the Athenians (17.22–23), moves to a sympathetic critique of idolatry (17.24–29), and concludes with a call for repentance (17.30–31). 17.22 Extremely religious, either in a pejorative sense of "superstitious" or as a straightforward description. 17.23 To an unknown God. No known inscription corresponds exactly to this one, but there is evidence of altars to looked carefully at the objects of your worship, I found among them an altar with the inscription, 'To an unknown god.' What therefore you worship as unknown, this I proclaim to you. ²⁴The God who made the world and everything in it, he who is Lord of heaven and earth, does not live in shrines made by human hands, ²⁵nor is he served by human hands, as though he needed anything, since he himself gives to all mortals life and breath and all things. ²⁶From one ancestor^x he made all nations to inhabit the whole earth, and he allotted the times of their existence and the boundaries of the places where they would live, ²⁷so that they would search for God^y and perhaps grope for him and find him—though indeed he is not far from each one of us. ²⁸For 'In him we live and move and have our being'; as even some of your own poets have said, 'For we too are his offspring.'

²⁹Since we are God's offspring, we ought not to think that the deity is like gold, or silver, or stone, an image formed by the art and imagination of mortals. ³⁰While God has overlooked the times of human ignorance, now he commands all people everywhere to repent, ³¹because he has fixed a day on which he will have the world judged in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed, and of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead."

³² When they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some scoffed; but others said, "We will hear you again about this." ³³At that point Paul left them. ³⁴But some of them joined him and became believers, including Dionysius the Areopagite and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

Paul in Corinth

18 After this Paul^z left Athens and went to Corinth. ²There he found a Jew named Aquila, a native of Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla, because Claudius had ordered all Jews to leave Rome. Paul^a went to see them, ³and, because he was of the same trade, he stayed with them, and they worked together—by trade they were tentmakers. ⁴Every sabbath he would argue in the synagogue and would try to convince Jews and Greeks.

⁵ When Silas and Timothy arrived from Macedonia, Paul was occupied with proclaiming the word,^b testifying to the Jews that the Messiah^c was Jesus. ⁶When

See Lk 3.38, where Jesus' genealogy is traced back to Adam. He allotted the times. See 14.17. 17.27 On the notion that pagans search for God, see Wis 13.6. He is not far from . . . us. On God's nearness, see Ps 145.18; Jer 23.23; Josephus Antiquities 8.108. 17.28 The first quotation (In him we . . . have our being) may come from the sixth-century B.C.E. philosopher-poet Epimenides. The second quotation (For we too are his offspring) is from Aratus (Phaenomena 5), a third-century B.C.E. poet. 17.29 A conventional piece of Jewish polemic against idolatry; see 7.41–43; Isa 44.9–20; Wis 13.10; Rom 1.23. 17.30 Both Jewish and pagan ignorance is overlooked; see 3.17; 13.27. The call to repent is now universal; see 2.38; 3.19; 8.22; 11.18; 26.20. 17.31 Only here does the speech refer to Jesus. Judged. See 10.42; Rom 2.16. 17.32–34 As elsewhere in Acts, the speech is interrupted when it reaches its climactic point; see note on 2.37. Compared with earlier speeches, the response (both positive and negative) is mild (cf., e.g., 2.41; 13.43, 45).

18.1–17 Four brief scenes (18.1–4, 5–8, 9–11, 12–17) portray Paul's extended mission in Corinth. 18.1 Corinth, the Roman capital of Achaia, was well situated for commerce. 18.2 Aquila and Priscilla ("Prisca" in the Pauline Letters) are described as Jews in order to explain the impact of Claudius's edict on them; evidently both converted to Christianity before Paul reached Corinth (see also Rom 16.3–4; 1 Cor 16.19). Claudius was Roman emperor in 41–54 C.E. Ordered all Jews to leave Rome. Since other sources indicate that a disturbance over Christian preaching caused this expulsion, it likely involved Jewish Christians as well as Jews. 18.3 Tentmakers, the first reference in Acts to Paul's labor (but see 1 Cor 4.12), probably refers to leather working in general. 18.4 As elsewhere, Paul begins in the synagogue; see note on 13.14. 18.5 On the itinerary of Silas and Timothy, see 17.14. 18.6 Shook the dust recalls 13.51; Lk 9.5. "Your blood be on your own heads!" See also 5.28; 2 Sam 1.16; Ezek 33.4–5; cf. Mt 27.25. This they opposed and reviled him, in protest he shook the dust from his clothes^d and said to them, “Your blood be on your own heads! I am innocent. From now on I will go to the Gentiles.”⁷ Then he left the synagogue^e and went to the house of a man named Titius^f Justus, a worshiper of God; his house was next door to the synagogue. ⁸Crispus, the official of the synagogue, became a believer in the Lord, together with all his household; and many of the Corinthians who heard Paul became believers and were baptized. ⁹One night the Lord said to Paul in a vision, “Do not be afraid, but speak and do not be silent; ¹⁰for I am with you, and no one will lay a hand on you to harm you, for there are many in this city who are my people.” ¹¹He stayed there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

¹² But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews made a united attack on Paul and brought him before the tribunal. ¹³They said, “This man is persuading people to worship God in ways that are contrary to the law.” ¹⁴Just as Paul was about to speak, Gallio said to the Jews, “If it were a matter of crime or serious villainy, I would be justified in accepting the complaint of you Jews; ¹⁵but since it is a matter of questions about words and names and your own law, see to it yourselves; I do not wish to be a judge of these matters.” ¹⁶And he dismissed them from the tribunal. ¹⁷Then all of them^g seized Sosthenes, the official of the synagogue, and beat him in front of the tribunal. But Gallio paid no attention to any of these things.

Paul's Travels

¹⁸ After staying there for a considerable time, Paul said farewell to the believers^h and sailed for Syria, accompanied by Priscilla and Aquila. At Cenchreae he had his hair cut, for he was under a vow. ¹⁹When they reached Ephesus, he left them there, but first he himself went into the synagogue and had a discussion with the Jews. ²⁰When they asked him to stay longer, he declined; ²¹but on taking leave of them, he said, “Iⁱ will return to you, if God wills.” Then he set sail from Ephesus.

is the second of three passages (13.46; 28.28) in which Paul announces that he is going to the Gentiles. 18.7–8 Unlike earlier departures from the synagogue, Paul does not leave the area but remains very close by. Presumably Titius Justus, a Gentile who nevertheless worships God (see note on 10.2), has become a Christian. The conversion of Crispus (see 1 Cor 1.14) indicates that Paul continues to preach to Jews, despite 18.6, and that his proclamation meets with success even among synagogue leaders. On the conversion of households, see note on 10.2. 18.9 On visions as a means of divine guidance, see note on 9.10. 18.10 I am with you. See also Josh 1.9; Isa 41.10; 43.5; Jer 1.8, 19. People usually refers in Luke-Acts to Israel (see note on 3.11), but here, as in 15.14, it includes Gentiles as well. 18.12 A Delphic inscription referring to Gallio allows his proconsulate in Corinth to be dated about 51–53 C.E. and thus may indicate that Paul began the church in Corinth during that period. Luke may have consolidated several of Paul's journeys to Corinth, however, making the connection between the reference to Gallio and Paul's activities uncertain. 18.13 The charge is ambiguous, as it could refer either to Jewish law (see 6.13) or to Roman law (16.21; 17.7). 18.14–15 Gallio's response, that this is an inter-Jewish quarrel, vindicates Paul and coheres with later claims (24.14–15; 25.19; 26.2–3). 18.17 Paul refers to a Sosthenes in 1 Cor 1.1, but identifying the two with one another seems unlikely since it is not clear that this Sosthenes is a Christian, much less a co-worker of Paul.

18.18–19.41 The mission in Ephesus is prepared for by Paul's travel (18.19) and again in the story of Apollos (18.24–28). 18.18 Priscilla and Aquila. Placing the woman's name first is unusual and could suggest that Priscilla has a higher social or economic standing than Aquila (see 18.26; Rom 16.3; cf. 18.2; 1 Cor 16.19). Cenchreae, the eastern port of Corinth. On the Nazirite vow, see Num 6.1–21, although the requirement is that the hair not be cut until the end of the vow. As in 21.20–26, this action conveys continuity with Jewish practice. 18.19 Ephesus, a port in western Asia Minor, was at this time a major city of the Roman Empire. On Paul's practice of visiting synagogues first, see note on 13.14. 18.22–23 This sketchy description sets the stage for Paul's return to Ephesus (19.1) and reconnects Paul with the

the church, and then went down to Antioch. ²³After spending some time there he departed and went from place to place through the region of Galatia^k and Phrygia, strengthening all the disciples.

Ministry of Apollos

24 Now there came to Ephesus a Jew named Apollos, a native of Alexandria. He was an eloquent man, well-versed in the scriptures. ²⁵He had been instructed in the Way of the Lord; and he spoke with burning enthusiasm and taught accurately the things concerning Jesus, though he knew only the baptism of John. ²⁶He began to speak boldly in the synagogue; but when Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they took him aside and explained the Way of God to him more accurately. ²⁷And when he wished to cross over to Achaia, the believers^l encouraged him and wrote to the disciples to welcome him. On his arrival he greatly helped those who through grace had become believers, ²⁸for he powerfully refuted the Jews in public, showing by the scriptures that the Messiah^m is Jesus.

Paul in Ephesus

19 While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul passed through the interior regions and came to Ephesus, where he found some disciples. ²He said to them, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you became believers?" They replied, "No, we have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit." ³Then he said, "Into what then were you baptized?" They answered, "Into John's baptism." ⁴Paul said, "John baptized with the baptism of repentance, telling the people to believe in the one who was to come after him, that is, in Jesus." ⁵On hearing this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. ⁶When Paul had laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and they spoke in tongues and prophesied — ⁷altogether there were about twelve of them.

See notes on 18.2; 18.18; here they become the forerunners of Paul's Ephesian mission. 18.28 Like his predecessors in mission, Apollos argues from scripture (see, e.g., 8.35; 17.2–3; see also Lk 24.26–27, 45–46) about the messiahship of Jesus. 19.1–7 Paul's first encounter in Ephesus is with disciples who have been influenced by John the Baptist. 19.1 Apol-

For the first time, Luke specifies that Paul takes believers with him when he separates from the synagogue. The lecture hall of Tyrannus, possibly a guild center or a place for philosophical instruction. Nothing is known of the individual after whom it is named. 19.10 All the residents of Asia surely exaggerates in order to underscore the importance of the Ephesian mission, which reaches both Jews and Greeks outside the synagogue; cf., e.g., 14.1; 17.1–4; 18.7, where Gen-through Paul, ¹²so that when the handkerchiefs or aprons that had touched his skin were brought to the sick, their diseases left them, and the evil spirits came out of them. ¹³Then some itinerant Jewish exorcists tried to use the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits, saying, "I adjure you by the Jesus whom Paul proclaims." ¹⁴Seven sons of a Jewish high priest named Sceva were doing this. ¹⁵But the evil spirit said to them in reply, "Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are you?" ¹⁶Then the man with the evil spirit leaped on them, mastered them all, and so overpowered them that they fled out of the house naked and wounded. ¹⁷When this became known to all residents of Ephesus, both Jews and Greeks, everyone was awestruck; and the name of the Lord Jesus was praised. ¹⁸Also many of those who became believers confessed and disclosed their practices. ¹⁹A number of those who practiced magic collected their books and burned them publicly; when the value of these books^o was calculated, it was found to come to fifty thousand silver coins. ²⁰So the word of the Lord grew mightily and prevailed.

²¹ Now after these things had been accomplished, Paul resolved in the Spirit to go through Macedonia and Achaia, and then to go on to Jerusalem. He said, "After I have gone there, I must also see Rome." ²²So he sent two of his helpers, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, while he himself stayed for some time longer in Asia.

The Riot in Ephesus

²³ About that time no little disturbance broke out concerning the Way. ²⁴A man named Demetrius, a silversmith who made silver shrines of Artemis, brought no little business to the artisans. ²⁵These he gathered together, with the workers of the same trade, and said, "Men, you know that we get our wealth from this business. ²⁶You also see and hear that not only in Ephesus but in almost the whole of Asia this Paul has persuaded and drawn away a considerable number of people by saying that gods made with hands are not gods. ²⁷And there is danger not only that this trade of ours may come into disrepute but also that the temple of the great goddess Artemis will be scorned, and she will be deprived of her majesty that brought all Asia and the world to worship her."

The motif of Paul's journey to Jerusalem and Rome recurs throughout the remainder of Acts (see 20.22; 21.13; 25.9–12; 28.14) and paral-

els Lk 9.51, where Jesus determines to go to Jerusalem. 28 When they heard this, they were enraged and shouted, "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" 29 The city was filled with the confusion; and people^p rushed together to the theater, dragging with them Gaius and Aristarchus, Macedonians who were Paul's travel companions. 30 Paul wished to go into the crowd, but the disciples would not let him; 31 even some officials of the province of Asia,^q who were friendly to him, sent him a message urging him not to venture into the theater. 32 Meanwhile, some were shouting one thing, some another; for the assembly was in confusion, and most of them did not know why they had come together. 33 Some of the crowd gave instructions to Alexander, whom the Jews had pushed forward. And Alexander motioned for silence and tried to make a defense before the people. 34 But when they recognized that he was a Jew, for about two hours all of them shouted in unison, "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" 35 But when the town clerk had quieted the crowd, he said, "Citizens of Ephesus, who is there that does not know that the city of the Ephesians is the temple keeper of the great Artemis and of the statue that fell from heaven?^r 36 Since these things cannot be denied, you ought to be quiet and do nothing rash. 37 You have brought these men here who are neither temple robbers nor blasphemers of our^s goddess. 38 If therefore Demetrius and the artisans with him have a complaint against anyone, the courts are open, and there are proconsuls; let them bring charges there against one another. 39 If there is anything further^t you want to know, it must be settled in the regular assembly. 40 For we are in danger of being charged with rioting today, since there is no cause that we can give to justify this commotion." 41 When he had said this, he dismissed the assembly.

Paul Begins His Final Journey to Jerusalem

20 After the uproar had ceased, Paul sent for the disciples; and after encouraging them and saying farewell, he left for Macedonia. 2 When he had gone through those regions and had given the believers^u much encouragement, he came to Greece, 3 where he stayed for three months. He was about to set sail for Syria when a plot was made against him by the Jews, and so he decided to return through Macedonia. 4 He was accompanied by Sopater son of Pyrrhus from Beroea, by Aristarchus and Secundus from Thessalonica, by Gaius from Derbe, and by Timothy, as well as by Tychicus and Trophimus from Asia. 5 They went ahead and were waiting for us in Troas; 6 but we sailed from Philippi after the days of Unleavened Bread, and See Mark 16.2; 1 Cor 16.2. This is the first reference to breaking bread since 2.42, in five days we joined them in Troas, where we stayed for seven days.

7 On the first day of the week, when we met to break bread, Paul was holding a discussion with them; since he intended to leave the next day, he continued speaking until midnight. 8 There were many lamps in the room upstairs where we were meeting. 9 A young man named Eutychus, who was sitting in the window, began to sink off into a deep sleep while Paul talked still longer. Overcome by sleep, he fell to the ground three floors below and was picked up dead. 10 But Paul went down, and bending over him took him in his arms, and said, "Do not be alarmed, for his life is in him." 11 Then Paul went upstairs, and after he had broken bread and eaten, he continued to converse with them until dawn; then he left. 12 Meanwhile they had taken the boy away alive and were not a little comforted.

13 We went ahead to the ship and set sail for Assos, intending to take Paul on board there; for he had made this arrangement, intending to go by land himself. 14 When he met us in Assos, we took him on board and went to Mitylene. 15 We sailed from there, and on the following day we arrived opposite Chios. The next day we touched at Samos, and^v the day after that we came to Miletus. 16 For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, so that he might not have to spend time in Asia; he was eager to be in Jerusalem, if possible, on the day of Pentecost.

Paul Speaks to the Ephesian Elders

17 From Miletus he sent a message to Ephesus, asking the elders of the church to meet him. 18 When they came to him, he said to them:

"You yourselves know how I lived among you the entire time from the first day that I set foot in Asia, 19 serving the Lord with all humility and with tears, enduring the trials that came to me through the plots of the Jews. 20 I did not shrink from doing anything helpful, proclaiming the message to you and teaching you publicly and from house to house, 21 as I testified to both Jews and Greeks about repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus. 22 And now, as a captive to the Spirit,^w I am on my way to Jerusalem, not knowing what will happen to me there, 23 except that the Holy Spirit testifies to me in every city that imprisonment and persecutions are waiting for me. 24 But I do not count my life of any value to myself, if only I may finish my course and the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the good news of God's grace.

25 "And now I know that none of you, among whom I have gone about proclaiming the kingdom, will ever see my face again. 26 Therefore I declare to you this day that I am not responsible for the

46, and may recall Jesus' breaking bread just before his arrest (Lk 22.19). 20.8 The rare detail about the lamps could mean that Eutychus (20.9) had no excuse for falling asleep, that the many lamps resulted in stale air that induced sleep, or that the symbolic light of faith was burning brightly (see, e.g., 13.47; Lk 1.78–79; 2.32). 20.9 Eutychus. The name means "good fortune." On inappropriate sleepfulness and the need for watchfulness, see 20.31; Lk 9.32; 12.35–38; 22.45–46. 20.10 Like Peter (9.36–42), Paul is here identified with Jesus' power to raise the dead (Lk 7.11–17; 8.41–42, 49–56). 20.12 Not a little, i.e., a lot; see note on 12.18–19. 20.13 Assos, a seaport in Mysia on the northwest coast of Asia Minor. 20.14 Mitylene, harbor of the island of Lesbos in the Aegean. 20.15 Chios, an island in the Aegean, south of Lesbos. Samos, an island in the Aegean, southeast of Lesbos. Miletus, a large seaport in Ionia, on the southwest coast of Asia Minor. 20.16 On Paul's mission in Ephesus, see 18.18–19.41. See 19.21 for Paul's need to go to Jerusalem. The reference to Pentecost suggests Paul's continuing observance of Jewish customs.

20.17–38 Paul's farewell speech is his only speech to a Christian audience and his last speech prior to his arrest in Jerusalem. 20.17 Elders of the church. See note on 14.23. 20.18–19 Paul describes his life among the Ephesians; see 19.1–41. 20.19 On plots against Paul, see note on 20.3. 20.20–21 These verses provide a concise summary of Paul's mission. 20.22–23 Here Jerusalem appears for the first time to be a place of danger for Paul; cf. 19.21. Paul's imprisonment, like his ministry, occurs under the Spirit's guidance; see, e.g., 16.6–10; 19.21. Imprisonment and persecutions. See 9.16; 21.11, 33. 20.24 On Paul's willingness to die, see 21.13. The conversion accounts (see 9.1–31; 22.3–21; 26.2–29) explain how Paul received his ministry. 20.25 The first clear indication that this is a farewell speech. 20.26 See note on 18.6.

blood of any of you, ²⁷for I did not shrink from declaring to you the whole purpose of God. ²⁸Keep watch over yourselves and over all the flock, of which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God^x that he obtained with the blood of his own Son.^y ²⁹I know that after I have gone, savage wolves will come in among you, not sparing the flock. ³⁰Some even from your own group will come distorting the truth in order to entice the disciples to follow them. ³¹Therefore be alert, remembering that for three years I did not cease night or day to warn everyone with tears. ³²And now I commend you to God and to the message of his grace, a message that is able to build you up and to give you the inheritance among all who are sanctified. ³³I coveted no one's silver or gold or clothing. ³⁴You know for yourselves that I worked with my own hands to support myself and my companions. ³⁵In all this I have given you an example that by such work we must support the weak, remembering the words of the Lord Jesus, for he himself said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'

³⁶ When he had finished speaking, he knelt down with them all and prayed. ³⁷There was much weeping among them all; they embraced Paul and kissed him, ³⁸grieving especially because of what he had said, that they would not see him again. Then they brought him to the ship.

Paul Continues His Journey to Jerusalem

21 When we had parted from them and set sail, we came by a straight course to Cos, and the next day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara.^z ²When we found a ship bound for Phoenicia, we went on board and set sail. ³We came in sight of Cyprus; and leaving it on our left, we sailed to Syria and landed at Tyre, because the ship was to unload its cargo there. ⁴We looked up the disciples and stayed there for seven days. Through the Spirit they told Paul not to go on to Jerusalem. ⁵When our days there were ended, we left and proceeded on our journey; and all of them, with wives and children, escorted us outside the city. There we knelt down on the beach and prayed ⁶and said farewell to one another. Then we went on board the ship, and they returned home.

⁷ When we had finished^a the voyage from Tyre, we arrived at Ptolemais; and we greeted the believers^b and stayed with them for one day. ⁸The next day we left and came to Caesarea; and we went into the house of Philip the evangelist, one of the seven, and stayed with him. ⁹He had four unmarried daughters^c who had the 20.28 The word overseers can also be translated "bishops" (see Phil 1.1; 1 Tim 3.1–7; Titus 1.7), but an activity, not an office, seems intended here. That the church came about through Jesus' blood is a new theme in Acts, but see Heb 9.12. 20.29–30 The threat of false teaching, whether from outside or inside the church, is a new theme in Acts, but see, e.g., Mt 7.15; 1 Tim 1.3–7; 4.1–3; 2 Tim 2.14–18. 20.29 In Lk 12.32, the disciples are the flock; cf. Jn 21.15–17; 1 Pet 5.2. 20.33 By contrast with others (e.g., 16.19; 19.25), Paul has no profit motive (see also 1 Cor 9). 20.34 On Paul's labor, see 18.2; the Letters reflect the same practice (1 Cor 4.12; 1 Thess 2.9). 20.35 The need to support the weak recalls 2.45; 4.32–35; 6.1–6. It is more blessed to give than to receive. The saying itself does not appear in the Gospels, but see Lk 6.38; see also Sir 4.31. Close parallels appear in Thucydides History of the Peloponnesian War 2.97.4; Plutarch Moralia 173d. 20.36–38 The emotional farewell further anticipates Paul's death (see 20.23–25).

21.1–16 New anticipations of Paul's arrest mark the final stages of his journey to Jerusalem. 21.1–3 The route is around the southwestern perimeter of Asia Minor and then southeast to Tyre. We. See note on 16.10. 21.4 Nothing has been said of a mission in Tyre to account for the disciples, but see 11.19; 12.20; Lk 6.17; 10.13–14. Since Paul's decision to go to Jerusalem also came through the Spirit (19.21), this warning presumably reflects a fearful misinterpretation of the Spirit's message. 21.5–6 Cf. the farewell scene in 20.36–38. 21.7 Ptolemais, a major port city south of Tyre. Although nothing has been said of a mission there, see 11.19. 21.8 Caesarea, a port city south of Ptolemais, was the location of Cornelius's conversion (10.1, 24; 11.11; see also 9.30; 18.22). This is the first appearance of Philip since the conversion of the Ethiopian (8.26–40). 21.9 The detail about Philip's daughters is unusual, since they play no role in the story.

gift of prophecy. ¹⁰While we were staying there for several days, a prophet named Agabus came down from Judea. ¹¹He came to us and took Paul's belt, bound his own feet and hands with it, and said, "Thus says the Holy Spirit, 'This is the way the Jews in Jerusalem will bind the man who owns this belt and will hand him over to the Gentiles.'" ¹²When we heard this, we and the people there urged him not to go up to Jerusalem. ¹³Then Paul answered, "What are you doing, weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be bound but even to die in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus." ¹⁴Since he would not be persuaded, we remained silent except to say, "The Lord's will be done."

¹⁵ After these days we got ready and started to go up to Jerusalem. ¹⁶Some of the disciples from Caesarea also came along and brought us to the house of Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple, with whom we were to stay.

Paul Visits the Church in Jerusalem

¹⁷ When we arrived in Jerusalem, the brothers welcomed us warmly. ¹⁸The next day Paul went with us to visit James; and all the elders were present. ¹⁹After greeting them, he related one by one the things that God had done among the Gentiles through his ministry. ²⁰When they heard it, they praised God. Then they said to him, "You see, brother, how many thousands of believers there are among the Jews, and they are all zealous for the law. ²¹They have been told about you that you teach all the Jews living among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, and that you tell them not to circumcise their children or observe the customs. ²²What then is to be done? They will certainly hear that you have come. ²³So do what we tell you. We have four men who are under a vow. ²⁴Join these men, go through the rite of purification with them, and pay for the shaving of their heads. Thus all will know that there is nothing in what they have been told about you, but that you yourself observe and guard the law. ²⁵But as for the Gentiles who have become believers, we have sent a letter with our judgment that they should abstain from what has been sacrificed to idols and from blood and from what is strangled^d and from fornication." ²⁶Then Paul took the men, and the next day, having purified himself, he entered the temple with them, making public the completion of the days of purification when the sacrifice would be made for each of them.

21.10–11 Agabus. See 11.28; his dramatic action here recalls those of earlier prophets (see, e.g., Isa 20.2; Jer 13.1–11; Ezek 4.1–8). This prophecy contributes to the expectation that the trip to Jerusalem will have dire consequences for Paul (see note on 20.22–23). 21.13 On the trip to Jerusalem, see note on 19.21. Paul's declaration that he is prepared for death for the name recalls 9.16.

21.17–26 Paul receives a warm reception in Jerusalem, but also news of ominous charges against him that anticipate the fulfillment of 20.22–25, 38; 21.4, 11, 13. 21.18 At the Jerusalem council, James emerged as leader of the Jerusalem church (15.13–21). 21.19 Luke consistently attributes the church's mission to God; see notes on 2.47; 8.26; 8.29; 10.1–11.18. 21.20–25 This brief speech prescribes a course of conduct to avert the charges against Paul. 21.20 Paul here finds himself in conflict with Jewish Christians (cf. earlier conflicts with Jews and Gentiles; e.g., 13.45; 14.2; 16.20–21; 19.25–27). Zealous for the law. See 22.3; 1 Macc

2.27; Rom 10.2; Gal 1.14. 21.21 Unlike the dispute in Jerusalem, which concerned the demand that Gentiles obey the law, Jewish Christians claim that Paul dissuades Jews from observing the law. Although Paul's behavior in Acts does not support this claim, the question of Jewish-Christian law observance would inevitably arise as churches in the Diaspora incorporated both Jews and Gentiles (see note on 10.28). 21.23–24 Paul's own observance of the law, already established in the narrative (see 16.3; 18.18; 20.16), will serve as his defense. On the Nazirite vow, see note on 18.18. 21.25 See 15.20, 29. It is strange that the church leaders remind Paul of this decree, since he was present in Jerusalem, but repetition perhaps serves to remind Luke's audience that gentile Christians were liable to only a fraction of the law. 21.27–36 The events leading to Paul's arrest are not instigated by Jewish Christians, despite 21.20, but by the Jews from Asia. 21.27 The seven days Luke allots for the Nazirite vow conflicts with the minimum of thirty days prescribed seen him in the temple, stirred up the whole crowd. They seized him, ²⁸shouting, "Fellow Israelites, help! This is the man who is teaching everyone everywhere against our people, our law, and this place; more than that, he has actually brought Greeks into the temple and has defiled this holy place." ²⁹For they had previously seen Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the city, and they supposed that Paul had brought him into the temple. ³⁰Then all the city was aroused, and the people rushed together. They seized Paul and dragged him out of the temple, and immediately the doors were shut. ³¹While they were trying to kill him, word came to the tribune of the cohort that all Jerusalem was in an uproar. ³²Immediately he took soldiers and centurions and ran down to them. When they saw the tribune and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul. ³³Then the tribune came, arrested him, and ordered him to be bound with two chains; he inquired who he was and what he had done. ³⁴Some in the crowd shouted one thing, some another; and as he could not learn the facts because of the uproar, he ordered him to be brought into the barracks. ³⁵When Paul^e came to the steps, the violence of the mob was so great that he had to be carried by the soldiers. ³⁶The crowd that followed kept shouting, "Away with him!"

Paul Defends Himself

³⁷ Just as Paul was about to be brought into the barracks, he said to the tribune, "May I say something to you?" The tribune^f replied, "Do you know Greek? ³⁸Then you are not the Egyptian who recently stirred up a revolt and led the four thousand assassins out into the wilderness?" ³⁹Paul replied, "I am a Jew, from Tarsus in Cilicia, a citizen of an important city; I beg you, let me speak to the people." ⁴⁰When he had given him permission, Paul stood on the steps and motioned to the people for silence; and when there was a great hush, he addressed them in the Hebrew^g language, saying: 22 "Brothers and fathers, listen to the defense that I now make before you."

³ "I am a Jew, born in Tarsus in Cilicia, but brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, educated strictly according to our ancestral law, being zealous for God, just as all of you are today. ⁴I persecuted this Way up to the point of death by binding both men and women and putting them in prison, ⁵as the high priest and the whole council of elders can testify about me. 6 “While I was on my way and approaching Damascus, about noon a great light from heaven suddenly shone about me. ⁷I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?’ ⁸I answered, ‘Who are you, Lord?’ Then he said to me, ‘I am Jesus of Nazareth^h whom you are persecuting.’ ⁹Now those who were with me saw the light but did not hear the voice of the one who was speaking to me. ¹⁰I asked, ‘What am I to do, Lord?’ The Lord said to me, ‘Get up and go to Damascus; there you will be told everything that has been assigned to you to do.’ ¹¹Since I could not see because of the brightness of that light, those who were with me took my hand and led me to Damascus.

12 “A certain Ananias, who was a devout man according to the law and well spoken of by all the Jews living there, ¹³came to me; and standing beside me, he said, ‘Brother Saul, regain your sight!’ In that very hour I regained my sight and saw him. ¹⁴Then he said, ‘The God of our ancestors has chosen you to know his will, to see the Righteous One and to hear his own voice; ¹⁵for you will be his witness to all the world of what you have seen and heard. ¹⁶And now why do you delay? Get up, be baptized, and have your sins washed away, calling on his name.’

17 “After I had returned to Jerusalem and while I was praying in the temple, I fell into a trance ¹⁸and saw Jesusⁱ saying to me, ‘Hurry and get out of Jerusalem quickly, because they will not accept your testimony about me.’ ¹⁹And I said, ‘Lord, they themselves know that in every synagogue I imprisoned and beat those who believed in you. ²⁰And while the blood of your witness Stephen was shed, I myself was standing by, approving and keeping the coats of those who killed him.’ ²¹Then he said to me, ‘Go, for I will send you far away to the Gentiles.’”

Paul and the Roman Tribune

22 Up to this point they listened to him, but then they shouted, “Away with such a fellow from the earth! For he should not be allowed to live.” ²³And while they were shouting, throwing off their cloaks, and tossing dust into the air, ²⁴the tribune directed that he was to be brought into the barracks, and ordered him to be examined by flogging, to find out the reason for this outcry against him. ²⁵But when they had tied him up with thongs,^j Paul said to the centurion who was standing by, “Is it legal for you to flog a Roman citizen who is uncondemned?” ²⁶When the centurion heard that, he went to the tribune and said to him, “What are you about to do? This man is a Roman citizen.” ²⁷The tribune came and asked Paul,ⁱ “Tell me, are you a Roman

Paul’s Jewish loyalty by situating him at prayer in the temple. 22.17 See 10.9–10, where Peter’s vision comes while he is praying. 22.19 On Paul’s activity as a persecutor, see 8.3; 9.1–2; 26.9–11. 22.20 See 7.58; 8.1. 22.21 For the first time, the speech moves beyond the realm of the Jewish people and refers explicitly to Paul’s mission among Gentiles (but see 22.15).

22.22–29 Apparently the reference to Gentiles (22.21) triggers the repetition here of the cry in 21.36, this time intensified by the demand for the death of Paul. 22.23 See 7.58; 22.20. 22.25 Paul dramatically invokes his Roman citizenship to prevent being flogged, but he also lays the foundation for his eventual imprisonment in Rome (see 25.10–12). Paul’s question is rhetorical, as both Paul and the soldiers would have known the answer (see 16.37–39). 22.26–28 These exchanges reiterate Paul’s status citizen?" And he said, "Yes." ²⁸The tribune answered, "It cost me a large sum of money to get my citizenship." Paul said, "But I was born a citizen." ²⁹Immediately those who were about to examine him drew back from him; and the tribune also was afraid, for he realized that Paul was a Roman citizen and that he had bound him.

Paul Before the Council

30 Since he wanted to find out what Paul^k was being accused of by the Jews, the next day he released him and ordered the chief priests and the entire council to meet. He brought Paul down and had him stand before them.

23 While Paul was looking intently at the council he said, "Brothers,^l up to this day I have lived my life with a clear conscience before God." ²Then the high priest Ananias ordered those standing near him to strike him on the mouth. ³At this Paul said to him, "God will strike you, you whitewashed wall! Are you sitting there to judge me according to the law, and yet in violation of the law you order me to be struck?" ⁴Those standing nearby said, "Do you dare to insult God's high priest?" ⁵And Paul said, "I did not realize, brothers, that he was high priest; for it is written, 'You shall not speak evil of a leader of your people.'"

6 When Paul noticed that some were Sadducees and others were Pharisees, he called out in the council, "Brothers, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees. I am on trial concerning the hope of the resurrection^m of the dead." ⁷When he said this, a dissension began between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and the assembly was divided. ⁸(The Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, or angel, or spirit; but the Pharisees acknowledge all three.) ⁹Then a great clamor arose, and certain scribes of the Pharisees' group stood up and contended, "We find nothing wrong with this man. What if a spirit or an angel has spoken to him?" ¹⁰When the dissension became violent, the tribune, fearing that they would tear Paul to pieces, ordered the soldiers to go down, take him by force, and bring him into the barracks.

11 That night the Lord stood near him and said, "Keep up your courage! For just as you have testified for me in Jerusalem, so you must bear witness also in Rome."

The Plot to Kill Paul

12 In the morning the Jews joined in a conspiracy and bound themselves by an oath neither to eat nor drink until they had killed Paul. ¹³There were more than forty who joined in this conspiracy. ¹⁴They went to the chief priests and elders and said, "We have strictly bound as a Roman citizen. 22.29 See 16.38.

22.30–23.11 Another attempt by the tribune to determine charges against Paul sets the stage for Paul's further defense of his Jewishness. 22.30 On the need to identify charges, see note on 21.33. That the tribune takes Paul before Jewish officials in order to arrive at charges suggests that the dispute is over internal Jewish concerns and not of interest to Rome (see 18.14–15; 26.30–31). 23.1 This statement provides the conclusion to Paul's speech in 22.2–21. See 26.19; Phil 3.6. 23.2 Ananias was high priest beginning about 48 C.E.; in 66 C.E. he was assassinated at the outset of the Jewish revolt. 23.3 Whitewashed wall. See Ezek 13.10–16; Mt 23.27. Deut 19.16–19 requires that an accused person be confronted by an accuser directly and in the presence of a judge (see also Lev 19.15; Deut 1.16–17). 23.5 I did not realize . . . he was high priest. How Paul could have avoided recognizing the high priest is difficult to imagine, but the exchange gives him the opportunity to demonstrate his respect for scripture (he cites Ex 22.28). 23.6 That the council contained both Sadducees and Pharisees Paul would have known, but reference to this composition prompts a new phase in Paul's defense. Luke refers here for the first time to Paul's alignment with the Pharisees (see Phil 3.5); as in 5.33–39, they figure positively in the treatment of Christians. At one level, invoking Pharisaic belief in the resurrection of the dead (see 23.8) is a ploy that creates sympathy for Paul; at a deeper level, however, reference to the resurrection is central to Christian preaching, and Paul introduces it as common ground. 23.8 Josephus confirms the dispute regarding resurrection but says nothing of a quarrel regarding the existence of angels or spirits (Jewish War 2.163–66; Antiquities 18.12–17). 23.11 Jerusalem and Rome. See note on 19.21.

23.12–35 Although there have been other plots against Paul (9.23–25, 29–30; 20.3, 19), this one is the most detailed, both in its planning and in the steps taken to overturn it.

ourselves by an oath to taste no food until we have killed Paul. ¹⁵ Now then, you and the council must notify the tribune to bring him down to you, on the pretext that you want to make a more thorough examination of his case. And we are ready to do away with him before he arrives."

¹⁶ Now the son of Paul's sister heard about the ambush; so he went and gained entrance to the barracks and told Paul. ¹⁷ Paul called one of the centurions and said, "Take this young man to the tribune, for he has something to report to him." ¹⁸ So he took him, brought him to the tribune, and said, "The prisoner Paul called me and asked me to bring this young man to you; he has something to tell you." ¹⁹ The tribune took him by the hand, drew him aside privately, and asked, "What is it that you have to report to me?" ²⁰ He answered, "The Jews have agreed to ask you to bring Paul down to the council tomorrow, as though they were going to inquire more thoroughly into his case. ²¹ But do not be persuaded by them, for more than forty of their men are lying in ambush for him. They have bound themselves by an oath neither to eat nor drink until they kill him. They are ready now and are waiting for your consent." ²² So the tribune dismissed the young man, ordering him, "Tell no one that you have informed me of this."

²³ Then he summoned two of the centurions and said, "Get ready to leave by nine o'clock tonight for Caesarea with two hundred soldiers, seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen. ²⁴ Also provide mounts for Paul to ride, and take him safely to Felix the governor." ²⁵ He wrote a letter to this effect:

the governor Felix, greetings. ²⁷ This man was seized by the Jews and was about to be killed by them, but when I had learned that he was a Roman citizen, I came with the guard and rescued him. ²⁸ Since I wanted to know the charge for which they accused him, I had him brought to their council. ²⁹ I found that he was accused concerning questions of their law, but was charged with nothing deserving death or imprisonment. ³⁰ When I was informed that there would be a plot against the man, I sent him to you at once, ordering his accusers also to state before you what they have against him."^a

³¹ So the soldiers, according to their instructions, took Paul and brought him during the night to Antipatris. ³² The next day they let the horsemen go on with him, while they returned to the barracks. ³³ When they came to Caesarea and delivered the letter to the governor, they presented Paul also before him. ³⁴ On reading the letter, he asked what province he belonged to, and when he learned that he was from Cilicia, ³⁵ he said, "I will give you a hearing when your accusers arrive." Then he ordered that he be kept under guard in Herod's headquarters.^o

Paul Before Felix at Caesarea

24 Five days later the high priest Ananias came down with some elders and an attorney, a certain Tertullus, and they reported their case against Paul to the governor. ² When Paul^p had been summoned, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying:

23.16–22 Luke's elaboration of this scene (the report to Paul, calling the centurion, the full report to the tribune) enhances its dramatic impact. 23.16 Nothing else is known of the son of Paul's sister, nor is it clear how he might have been privy to the plot. 23.23 Caesarea. See note on 21.8. Two hundred soldiers . . . horsemen, and . . . spearmen. This delegation, probably half the men at the tribune's command, seems improbably large. 23.24 Felix the governor, i.e., Antonius Felix, a freedman who governed Judea about 52–59 C.E. Contemporary historians comment on his cruelty and immorality. 23.26 Claudius Lysias, the tribune who has been unnamed to this point, delicately omits his involvement in Paul's mistreatment (see 21.31–38; 22.24–29). 23.28 On establishing the charge against Paul, see note on 21.33. 23.34 On Cilicia as Paul's home, see 22.3. 23.35 Herod's headquarters, i.e., the praetorium, the headquarters of the principal administrator of a region.

24.1–27 In a formal trial setting, Paul continues the defense begun in 22.3–21 by affirming both his innocence and his belief in the resurrection. 24.1 Ananias. See note on 23.2. 24.2–4 Capturing the audience's attention by flattery was customary, but this introduction exceeds the norm (cf. 24.10; 26.2–3). Negative descriptions of Felix by ancient historians suggest that Tertullus's praise may be quite false (see note

"Your Excellency,^q because of you we have long enjoyed peace, and reforms have been made for this people because of your foresight. ³We welcome this in every way and everywhere with utmost gratitude. ⁴But, to detain you no further, I beg you to hear us briefly with your customary graciousness. ⁵We have, in fact, found this man a pestilent fellow, an agitator among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes.^r ⁶He even tried to profane the temple, and so we seized him.^s ⁸By examining him yourself you will be able to learn from him concerning everything of which we accuse him."

"I cheerfully make my defense, knowing that for many years you have been a judge over this nation. ¹¹As you can find out, it is not more than twelve days since I went up to worship in Jerusalem. ¹²They did not find me disputing with anyone in the temple or stirring up a crowd either in the synagogues or throughout the city. ¹³Neither can they prove to you the charge that they now bring against me. ¹⁴But this I admit to you, that according to the Way, which they call a sect, I worship the God of our ancestors, believing everything laid down according to the law or written in the prophets. ¹⁵I have a hope in God—a hope that they themselves also accept—that there will be a resurrection of both^t the righteous and the unrighteous. ¹⁶Therefore I do my best always to have a clear conscience toward God and all people. ¹⁷Now after some years I came to bring alms to my nation and to offer sacrifices. ¹⁸While I was doing this, they found me in the temple, completing the rite of purification, without any crowd or disturbance. ¹⁹But there were some Jews from Asia—they ought to be here before you to make an accusation, if they have anything against me. ²⁰Or let these men here tell what crime they had found when I stood before the council, ²¹unless it was this one sentence that I called out while standing before them, 'It is about the resurrection of the dead that I am on trial before you today.'

²² But Felix, who was rather well informed about the Way, adjourned the hearing with the comment, "When Lysias the tribune comes down, I will decide your case." ²³Then he ordered the centurion to keep him in custody, but to let him have some liberty and not to prevent any of his friends from taking care of his needs.

²⁴ Some days later when Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was Jewish, he sent for Paul and heard him speak concerning faith in Christ Jesus. ²⁵And as he discussed justice, self-control, and the coming judgment, Felix became fright-on 23.24). 24.5 Tertullus forcefully expresses charges already brought against Paul in a way calculated to play upon a Roman official's fear of rebellion (see 16.20; 17.6; 19.40; see also Lk 23.2–5). Only here in the NT are Christians referred to as Nazarenes, associating them with Jesus' home (see, e.g., 2.22; 3.6; 6.14; see also Mt 2.23). 24.6 See 21.28–29 for this erroneous charge. 24.10–21 Paul's defense responds directly to the charges before returning to the themes of 22.3–21. 24.10 Like Tertullus, Paul also begins by flattering Felix (see note on 24.2–4). 24.12 On Paul's behavior in Jerusalem, see 21.17–30. 24.14 The Greek word translated admit can refer to a judicial confession or to a confession of faith; here Paul uses that ambiguity by offering what appears to be a confession of wrongdoing and then shifting the topic dramatically. ened and said, "Go away for the present; when I have an opportunity, I will send for you." ²⁶At the same time he hoped that money would be given him by Paul, and for that reason he used to send for him very often and converse with him.

²⁷ After two years had passed, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus; and since he wanted to grant the Jews a favor, Felix left Paul in prison.

Paul Appeals to the Emperor

25 Three days after Festus had arrived in the province, he went up from Caesarea to Jerusalem ²where the chief priests and the leaders of the Jews gave him a report against Paul. They appealed to him ³and requested, as a favor to them against Paul, ⁴to have him transferred to Jerusalem. They were, in fact, planning an ambush to kill him along the way. ⁴Festus replied that Paul was being kept at Caesarea, and that he himself intended to go there shortly. ⁵"So," he said, "let those of you who have the authority come down with me, and if there is anything wrong about the man, let them accuse him."

⁶ After he had stayed among them not more than eight or ten days, he went down to Caesarea; the next day he took his seat on the tribunal and ordered Paul to be brought. ⁷When he arrived, the Jews who had gone down from Jerusalem surrounded him, bringing many serious charges against him, which they could not prove. ⁸Paul said in his defense, "I have in no way committed an offense against the law of the Jews, or against the temple, or against the emperor." ⁹But Festus, wishing to do the Jews a favor, asked Paul, "Do you wish to go up to Jerusalem and be tried there before me on these charges?" ¹⁰Paul said, "I am appealing to the emperor's tribunal; this is where I should be tried. I have done no wrong to the Jews, as you very well know. ¹¹Now if I am in the wrong and have committed something for which I deserve to die, I am not trying to escape death; but if there is nothing to their charges against me, no one can turn me over to them. I appeal to the emperor." ¹²Then Festus, after he had conferred with his council, replied, "You have appealed to the emperor; to the emperor you will go."

Paul Brought Before King Agrippa

¹³ After several days had passed, King Agrippa and Bernice arrived at Caesarea to welcome Festus. ¹⁴Since they were staying there several days, Festus laid Paul's case before the king, saying, "There is a man here who was left in prison by Felix. ¹⁵When I was in Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me about him and asked for a sentence against him. ¹⁶I told them that it was not the custom of the Romans to hand over anyone before the accused had met the accusers face to face and had been given an opportunity to make a defense against the charge. ¹⁷So when they

24.27 Porcius Festus succeeded Felix and governed about 59–61 C.E. (see 25.1–27; 26.24–32). Felix not only acts out of greed (24.26) but grants political favors (see also 25.9).

25.1–12 The arrival of Festus prompts another plot, another cycle of accusation and defense, and finally Paul's appeal to the emperor. 25.2–3 This plan replays the plot in 23.12–35. 25.6 The tribunal, the judgment seat or bench. 25.7 See the earlier charges in 21.28; 24.5–6. 25.8 See Paul's earlier defense in 22.1–21; 23.1, 6; 24.10–21. Against the emperor refers to the charge that Paul has threatened the civil order (24.5). 25.9 Like his predecessor, Festus wishes to appease the powerful Jewish leadership (see 24.27). 25.10 The details of the law governing appeals at this time are obscure. Here what is assumed is not the right to appeal a verdict but the right to be moved to another venue.

25.12 The solemn repetition of Paul's appeal underscores its importance.

25.13–27 The arrival of Agrippa and Bernice sets the stage for the climactic defense of Paul and the pronouncement of his innocence. 25.13 King Agrippa, i.e., Herod Agrippa II, son of Herod Agrippa I (see note on 12.1; "The Herods: A Simplified Family Tree," p. 1862). Because of his youth, Agrippa II did not succeed his father immediately, but by 50 C.E. he ruled the small region of Chalcis in Lebanon and later acquired considerable territory. His incestuous relationship with Bernice, his sister, was well known. 25.14–21 Festus's statement summarizes the events of 24.27–25.12, although with several changes: he states that the Jews asked for a verdict (25.15; cf. 25.2–3); he concedes the rightness of Paul's defense (25.18–19); and he omits his political reasons for proposing that Paul be tried in met here, I lost no time, but on the next day took my seat on the tribunal and ordered the man to be brought. ¹⁸When the accusers stood up, they did not charge him with any of the crimes^v that I was expecting. ¹⁹Instead they had certain points of disagreement with him about their own religion and about a certain Jesus, who had died, but whom Paul asserted to be alive. ²⁰Since I was at a loss how to investigate these questions, I asked whether he wished to go to Jerusalem and be tried there on these charges.^w ²¹But when Paul had appealed to be kept in custody for the decision of his Imperial Majesty, I ordered him to be held until I could send him to the emperor.” ²²Agrippa said to Festus, “I would like to hear the man myself.” “Tomorrow,” he said, “you will hear him.”

²³ So on the next day Agrippa and Bernice came with great pomp, and they entered the audience hall with the military tribunes and the prominent men of the city. Then Festus gave the order and Paul was brought in. ²⁴And Festus said, “King Agrippa and all here present with us, you see this man about whom the whole Jewish community petitioned me, both in Jerusalem and here, shouting that he ought not to live any longer. ²⁵But I found that he had done nothing deserving death; and when he appealed to his Imperial Majesty, I decided to send him. ²⁶But I have nothing definite to write to our sovereign about him. Therefore I have brought him before all of you, and especially before you, King Agrippa, so that, after we have examined him, I may have something to write— ²⁷for it seems to me unreasonable to send a prisoner without indicating the charges against him.”

Paul Defends Himself Before Agrippa

26 Agrippa said to Paul, “You have permission to speak for yourself.” Then Paul stretched out his hand and began to defend himself:

² “I consider myself fortunate that it is before you, King Agrippa, I am to make my defense today against all the accusations of the Jews, ³because you are especially familiar with all the customs and controversies of the Jews; therefore I beg of you to listen to me patiently.

⁴ “All the Jews know my way of life from my youth, a life spent from the beginning among my own people and in Jerusalem. ⁵They have known for a long time, if they are willing to testify, that I have belonged to the strictest sect of our religion and lived as a Pharisee. ⁶And now I stand here on trial on account of my hope in the promise made by God to our ancestors, ⁷a promise that our twelve tribes hope to attain, as they earnestly worship day and night. It is for this hope, your Excellency,^x that I am accused by Jews! ⁸Why is it thought incredible by any of you that God raises the dead?

⁹ “Indeed, I myself was convinced that I ought to do many things against the name of Jesus of Nazareth.^y ¹⁰And that is what I did in Jerusalem; with authority received from the chief priests, I not only locked up many of the saints in prison, but I also cast my vote against them when they were being condemned to death. ¹¹By punishing them often in all the synagogues I tried to force them to blaspheme; and since I was so furiously

Jerusalem (25.20; cf. 25.9). 25.23 The formality of this setting prepares for Paul's final defense speech. 25.24 The whole Jewish community, another instance of Lucan hyperbole (see, e.g., 4.4, 16). 25.25 Nothing deserving death. See 23.29; 25.18; 26.31; see also Lk 23.15, 22. 25.26–27 On the need for specific charges, see note on 21.33.

26.1–23 Paul's final defense speech, combining themes from the speeches in 22.1–21; 24.10–21, begins with a claim to Jewish loyalty, rehearses once again Paul's conversion with special emphasis on his commission, and concludes with an assertion of Paul's obedience.

26.1 Stretched out his hand, a conventional orator's gesture (see 12.17; 13.16; 21.40). 26.2–3 On the tradition of opening a speech with praise for the audience, see note on 24.2–4. 26.4–5 See 22.3; 23.6. My own people and our religion imply that Paul does not regard Agrippa as one of those people (cf. 22.3). 26.6–8 See 23.6; 24.15. Resurrection is not simply the renewal of individual life but a symbol of all of God's promises to Israel and thus a theme throughout Luke-Acts. 26.9–11 This final depiction of Paul's activity as persecutor portrays it in much harsher enraged at them, I pursued them even to foreign cities.

12 “With this in mind, I was traveling to Damascus with the authority and commission of the chief priests, 13 when at midday along the road, your Excellency,^z I saw a light from heaven, brighter than the sun, shining around me and my companions. 14 When we had all fallen to the ground, I heard a voice saying to me in the Hebrew^a language, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me? It hurts you to kick against the goads.’ 15 I asked, ‘Who are you, Lord?’ The Lord answered, ‘I am Jesus whom you are persecuting. 16 But get up and stand on your feet; for I have appeared to you for this purpose, to appoint you to serve and testify to the things in which you have seen me^b and to those in which I will appear to you. 17 I will rescue you from your people and from the Gentiles—to whom I am sending you 18 to open their eyes so that they may turn from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God, so that they may receive forgiveness of sins and a place among those who are sanctified by faith in me.’

19 “After that, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision, 20 but declared first to those in Damascus, then in Jerusalem and throughout the countryside of Judea, and also to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God and do deeds consistent with repentance. 21 For this reason the Jews seized me in the temple and tried to kill me. 22 To this day I have had help from God, and so I stand here, testifying to both small and great, saying nothing but what the prophets and Moses said would take place: 23 that the Messiah^c must suffer, and that, by being the first to rise from the dead, he would proclaim light both to our people and to the Gentiles.”

24 While he was making this defense, Festus exclaimed, “You are out of your mind, Paul! Too much learning is driving you insane!” 25 But Paul said, “I am not out of my mind, most excellent Festus, but I am speaking the sober truth. 26 Indeed the king knows about these things, and to him I speak freely; for I am certain that none of these things has escaped his notice, for this was not done in a corner. 27 King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know that you believe.” 28 Agrippa said to Paul, “Are you so quickly persuading me to become a Christian?”^d 29 Paul replied, “Whether quickly or not, I pray to God that not only you but also all who are listening to me today might become such as I am—except for these chains.”

30 Then the king got up, and with him the governor and Bernice and those who had been seated with them; 31 and as they were leaving, they said to one another, “This man is doing nothing to deserve death or imprisonment.” 32 Agrippa said to Festus, “This man could have been set free if he had not appealed to the emperor.”

terms than previously (cf. 8.1, 3; 9.1–2; 22.4–5). 26.13 See 9.3; 22.6. 26.14 In the Hebrew language, a detail not present in earlier accounts (cf. 9.4; 22.7). It hurts you to kick against the goads, also not present in earlier accounts, is from Euripides (Bacchae 794–95), although it had become a conventional proverb. 26.16–18 Here Paul receives his commission directly from Jesus (cf. 9.6, 15–16; 22.14–16). 26.17 I will rescue you. See 1 Chr 16.35; Jer 1.8, 19. 26.18 Turning from darkness to light and to God are conventional expressions for gentile conversion (see, e.g., 9.35; 11.21; 13.47; 14.15; 15.19; Lk 1.79; 2.32). 26.20 See 9.19–22, 26–30; 13.46–49. 26.21 See 21.27–36. 26.22 Paul here resumes the argument of 26.6–8. 26.23 The Messiah must suffer. The necessity of the Messiah’s death and resurrection is a key Lucan theme; see 3.18, 21–25; 8.32–35; Lk 24.26. Light plays a prominent role in this speech (26.13, 18), as it does elsewhere in Luke-Acts (e.g., 9.3; 12.7; 13.47; Lk 2.32; 8.16; 11.3). 26.24 You are out of your mind. Exactly what leads Festus to this conclusion is unclear, but his comment allows for the solemn assertion that follows. 26.26 Not done in a corner, i.e., these events have occurred in the open (see note on 12.18–19). 26.28 Agrippa’s statement could be either an ironic insult or a straightforward comment on Paul’s persuasiveness. 26.31 Agrippa, Bernice, and Festus confirm the conclusion of Lysias (23.29). 26.32 The details of the law regarding appeals are obscure (see note on 25.10), but this pronouncement determines what lies ahead for Paul.

Paul Sails for Rome

27 When it was decided that we were to sail for Italy, they transferred Paul and some other prisoners to a centurion of the Augustan Cohort, named Julius. ²Embarking on a ship of Adramyttium that was about to set sail to the ports along the coast of Asia, we put to sea, accompanied by Aristarchus, a Macedonian from Thessalonica. ³The next day we put in at Sidon; and Julius treated Paul kindly, and allowed him to go to his friends to be cared for. ⁴Putting out to sea from there, we sailed under the lee of Cyprus, because the winds were against us. ⁵After we had sailed across the sea that is off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra in Lycia. ⁶There the centurion found an Alexandrian ship bound for Italy and put us on board. ⁷We sailed slowly for a number of days and arrived with difficulty off Cnidus, and as the wind was against us, we sailed under the lee of Crete off Salmone. ⁸Sailing past it with difficulty, we came to a place called Fair Havens, near the city of Lasea.

⁹ Since much time had been lost and sailing was now dangerous, because even the Fast had already gone by, Paul advised them, ¹⁰saying, "Sirs, I can see that the voyage will be with danger and much heavy loss, not only of the cargo and the ship, but also of our lives." ¹¹But the centurion paid more attention to the pilot and to the owner of the ship than to what Paul said. ¹²Since the harbor was not suitable for spending the winter, the majority was in favor of putting to sea from there, on the chance that somehow they could reach Phoenix, where they could spend the winter. It was a harbor of Crete, facing southwest and northwest.

The Storm at Sea

¹³ When a moderate south wind began to blow, they thought they could achieve their purpose; so they weighed anchor and began to sail past Crete, close to the shore. ¹⁴But soon a violent wind, called the northeaster, rushed down from Crete.^e ¹⁵Since the ship was caught and could not be turned head-on into the wind, we gave way to it and were driven. ¹⁶By running under the lee of a small island called Cauda^f we were scarcely able to get the ship's boat under control. ¹⁷After hoisting it up they took measures^g to undergird the ship; then, fearing that they would run on the Syrtis, they lowered the sea anchor and so were driven. ¹⁸We were being pounded by the storm so violently that on the next day they began to throw the cargo overboard, ¹⁹and on the third day with their own hands they threw the ship's tackle overboard. ²⁰When neither sun nor stars appeared for many days, and no small tempest raged, all hope of our being saved was at last abandoned.

27.1–44 Paul's long-anticipated journey to Rome (see 19.21; 23.11) contains elements familiar from Greco-Roman literature: travel accounts, storms, shipwrecks, and preoccupation with safety. 27.1 The use of first-person plural narration (we) resumes and continues through 28.16; see note on 16.10. Voyages after mid-September were considered unwise because of the increased danger of bad weather. 27.10 It seems improbable that a prisoner would have been included in such deliberations. for a long time, Paul then stood up among them and said, "Men, you should have listened to me and not have set sail from Crete and thereby avoided this damage and loss. ²²I urge you now to keep up your courage, for there will be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship. ²³For last night there stood by me an angel of the God to whom I belong and whom I worship, ²⁴and he said, 'Do not be afraid, Paul; you must stand before the emperor; and indeed, God has granted safety to all those who are sailing with you.' ²⁵So keep up your courage, men, for I have faith in God that it will be exactly as I have been told. ²⁶But we will have to run aground on some island."

²⁷ When the fourteenth night had come, as we were drifting across the sea of Adria, about midnight the sailors suspected that they were nearing land. ²⁸So they took soundings and found twenty fathoms; a little farther on they took soundings again and found fifteen fathoms. ²⁹Fearing that we might run on the rocks, they let down four anchors from the stern and prayed for day to come. ³⁰But when the sailors tried to escape from the ship and had lowered the boat into the sea, on the pretext of putting out anchors from the bow, ³¹Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, "Unless these men stay in the ship, you cannot be saved." ³²Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat and set it adrift.

³³ Just before daybreak, Paul urged all of them to take some food, saying, "Today is the fourteenth day that you have been in suspense and remaining without food, having eaten nothing. ³⁴Therefore I urge you to take some food, for it will help you survive; for none of you will lose a hair from your heads." ³⁵After he had said this, he took bread; and giving thanks to God in the presence of all, he broke it and began to eat. ³⁶Then all of them were encouraged and took food for themselves. ³⁷(We were in all two hundred seventy-six^h persons in the ship.) ³⁸After they had satisfied their hunger, they lightened the ship by throwing the wheat into the sea.

The Shipwreck

³⁹ In the morning they did not recognize the land, but they noticed a bay with a beach, on which they planned to run the ship ashore, if they could. ⁴⁰So they cast off the anchors and left them in the sea. At the same time they loosened the ropes that tied the steering-oars; then hoisting the foresail to the wind, they made for the beach. ⁴¹But striking a reef,ⁱ they ran the ship aground; the bow stuck and remained immovable, but the stern was being broken up by the force of the waves. ⁴²The soldiers' plan was to kill the prisoners, so that none might swim away and escape; ⁴³but the centurion, wishing to save Paul, kept them from carrying out their plan. He ordered those who could swim to jump overboard first and make for the land, ⁴⁴and the rest to follow, some on planks and others on pieces of the ship. And so it was that all were brought safely to land.

28 After we had reached safety, we then learned that the island was called Malta. ²The natives showed us unusual kindness. Since it had begun to rain and was cold, they kindled a fire and welcomed all of us around it. ³Paul had gathered a bundle of brushwood and was putting it on the fire, when a viper, driven out by the heat, fastened itself on his warning (27.10) and interprets the ship's eventual safety as part of God's plan for Paul's mission (19.21; 23.11). ^{27.21} Without food refers to seasickness or fasting, as food was available (27.33-38). ^{27.23} The God to whom I belong and whom I worship identifies God for Paul's gentile fellow passengers. ^{27.24} You must stand before the emperor. ^{28.1-10} On Malta, Paul and his companions find exemplary hospitality and return it by healing the sick. ^{28.1} Malta, an island south of hand. ⁴When the natives saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said to one another, "This man must be a murderer; though he has escaped from the sea, justice has not allowed him to live." ⁵He, however, shook off the creature into the fire and suffered no harm. ⁶They were expecting him to swell up or drop dead, but after they had waited a long time and saw that nothing unusual had happened to him, they changed their minds and began to say that he was a god.

⁷ Now in the neighborhood of that place were lands belonging to the leading man of the island, named Publius, who received us and entertained us hospitably for three days. ⁸It so happened that the father of Publius lay sick in bed with fever and dysentery. Paul visited him and cured him by praying and putting his hands on him. ⁹After this happened, the rest of the people on the island who had diseases also came and were cured. ¹⁰They bestowed many honors on us, and when we were about to sail, they put on board all the provisions we needed.

Paul Arrives at Rome

¹¹ Three months later we set sail on a ship that had wintered at the island, an Alexandrian ship with the Twin Brothers as its figurehead. ¹²We put in at Syracuse and stayed there for three days; ¹³then we weighed anchor and came to Rhegium. After one day there a south wind sprang up, and on the second day we came to Puteoli. ¹⁴There we found believers^j and were invited to stay with them for seven days. And so we came to Rome.

¹⁵The believers^j from there, when they heard of us, came as far as the Forum of Appius and Three Taverns to meet us. On seeing them, Paul thanked God and took courage.

¹⁶ When we came into Rome, Paul was allowed to live by himself, with the soldier who was guarding him.

Paul Preaches in Rome

¹⁷ Three days later he called together the local leaders of the Jews. When they had assembled, he said to them, "Brothers, though I had done nothing against our people or the customs of our ancestors, yet I was arrested in Jerusalem and handed over to the Romans. ¹⁸When they had examined me, the Romans^k wanted to release me, because there was no reason for the death penalty in my case. ¹⁹But when the Jews objected, I was compelled to appeal to the emperor—even though I had no charge to bring against my nation. ²⁰For this reason therefore I have asked to see you and speak with you,^l since it is for the sake of the hope of Israel that I am bound with this chain." ²¹They replied, "We have received no letters from Judea about you, and none of the brothers coming here has reported or spoken anything evil about you. ²²But we would like to hear from you what you think, for with regard to this sect we know that everywhere it is spoken against."

Sicily. 28.4 Justice probably refers to the Greek goddess, Dike, who personifies justice.

28.11–16 The final part of Paul's journey to Rome recalls the much longer journey to Jerusalem in 20.1–21.17, with its travelogue and visits with believers. 28.11 Three months later, sailing resumed in February or March (see note on 27.9). An Alexandrian ship. Rom 1.13). 28.15 The Forum of Appius, a market town forty-three miles outside Rome. The Three Taverns, a way station thirty-three miles from Rome along the Appian Way.

28.17–28 The final scene in Acts depicts Paul first defending himself before Roman Jews and then proclaiming to them the gospel. 28.17–20 Paul's speech recapitulates his earlier defense in Jerusalem: he had not violated the Jewish people or their customs (22.3–21; 24.11–13); he was charged with no capital crime (25.8, 11); he was compelled to appeal to the emperor (25.10–12); he acts only for the sake of Israel's hope (23.6; 24.14–15, 21; 26.6–8, 23). 28.23 Kingdom of God. See note on 1.3. From the law of Moses and from the prophets recalls Lk 24.27;

evening he explained the matter to them, testifying to the kingdom of God and trying to convince them about Jesus both from the law of Moses and from the prophets. ²⁴Some were convinced by what he had said, while others refused to believe. ²⁵So they disagreed with each other; and as they were leaving, Paul made one further statement: "The Holy Spirit was right in saying to your ancestors through the prophet Isaiah,

²⁶ 'Go to this people and say,
You will indeed listen, but never understand,
and you will indeed look, but never perceive.

²⁷ For this people's heart has grown dull, and their ears are hard of hearing, and they have shut their eyes;

so that they might not look with their eyes, and listen with their ears,
and understand with their heart and turn —
and I would heal them.'

²⁸ Let it be known to you then that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles; they will listen."^m

³⁰ He lived there two whole years at his own expenseⁿ and welcomed all who came to him, ³¹proclaiming the kingdom of God and teaching about the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness and without hindrance.

This is the third time Paul has announced that the gospel is for the Gentiles (see 13.46–48; 18.5–6). Since this final statement comes in the concluding lines of Acts, it may indeed refer to the close of the Jewish mission; on the other hand, the two earlier pronouncements are followed by further preaching among Jews, and 28.30 indicates Paul welcomed all who came to him, leaving open the possibility of further conversation.

28.30–31 Although Luke does not narrate Paul's trial or death, he has provided ample indication that they lie ahead (see, e.g., 19.21; 20.22–25; 23.11; 26.32; 27.24). He concludes with a brief note about Paul's continued imprisonment, in which the gospel is nevertheless openly proclaimed. 28.31 Kingdom of God. See note on 1.3. POSSIBLE CHRONOLOGY OF THE PAULINE LETTERS

1 Thessalonians	50–51 C.E.
[2 Thessalonians]	[50–51, if authentic]	If pseudonymous, in the last decades of the first century.
Philippians	54–55	This dating assumes that the Letter was sent from Ephesus. If from Caesarea, three to four years later, and if from Rome, six to seven years later.
Philemon	54–55	This Letter seems to have been written under the same circumstances as Philippians, and the same uncertainties apply.
Galatians	50–56	Any closer dating depends in part on resolving the question of the location of the addressees.
1 Corinthians	54
2 Corinthians	55–56	It is likely that different portions of the Letter were written and sent at different times within this period.
Romans	56–57
[Colossians]	[57–61, if authentic]	Earlier in this period if from Caesarea, later if from Rome. If pseudonymous, sometime between 70 and 90.
[Ephesians]	[80–95]	Assuming pseudonymity.
[1–2 Timothy, Titus]	[90–110]	Assuming pseudonymity.

Brackets indicate that authorship by Paul is in question.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE

ROMANS

Author, Date, Circumstances of Writing

BY 58 C.E., PAUL SENSED that his work in the Aegean region was completed (15.23). He planned to go to Jerusalem to deliver funds collected from his churches, as agreed at the Jerusalem council a decade before (Gal 2.1–10). Before sailing from Corinth (see 16.23; cf. 1 Cor 1.14), he dictated this Letter to Tertius (16.22) and probably asked Phoebe, who was about to leave for Rome (16.1–2), to deliver it. He informed the readers that after going to Jerusalem, he would stop in Rome on his way to Spain. Because of his foreboding about Jerusalem, he asked them to support him with prayer; he also hinted that he would welcome their financial support for his work in Spain (1.8–15; 15.22–33). These requests frame the most sustained theological argument found in any of Paul's letters.

The Roman Church

The origins of Christianity in Rome are obscure, though some evidence suggests that it had arrived there by 50 C.E. The historian Suetonius reports that in 49 C.E. the emperor Claudius expelled the Jews from Rome because of disturbances over "Chrestus" (probably a mistake for "Christus," or Christ; Suetonius Life of Claudius 25.3). According to Acts 18.1–3, Paul met a Jewish Christian couple in Corinth (Aquila and Priscilla) who were among those expelled. After the murder of Claudius, the Jews returned, among them Aquila and Prisca (as Paul calls her; see Rom 16.3–4) and Paul's relatives (16.7). Acts tells us nothing more about Roman Christianity, except that Christians from Rome met Paul as he neared that city as a prisoner (28.15–16).

Purpose

The Letter provides clues about Christians in Rome that may indicate something about Paul's purpose in writing. Paul insists that the current Jewish rejection of the gospel does not imply that Israel's election is now annulled (11.13–24), hinting perhaps that there is tension between the gentile Christians and the returned Jewish Christians. The extent to which the Letter subtly deals with this situation is debatable. In chs. 14–15 Paul addresses the “weak in faith” (those scrupulous in observing special days and diets) and the “strong” (those lax in such matters), but he does not say that the former are Jewish and the latter gentile Christians. Indeed, some regard his counsel as more general than directed to a specific problem. When Paul sent this Letter, he faced opposite misunderstandings of the gospel. In Jerusalem he needed to defend the validity of a largely gentile church (whose money he was bringing) that did not observe the Jewish law; in Rome he needed to defend the continuing validity of Israel in God’s purpose. His Letter, therefore, insists that there is one gospel for all humanity, albeit “to the Jew first” (1.16).

Character of the Letter

Romans is the work of a mature mind. Indeed, it might be the last Letter we have from Paul (assuming Philippians was written earlier and the Pastorals are pseudonymous). Behind it lie over two decades of teaching, preaching, and writing Letters to the Thessalonian, Philippian, Corinthian, and Galatian churches. Of these, Galatians is closest to Romans, for it also emphasizes justification by faith, appeals to Abraham, and relies heavily on scripture. But the two Letters treat these topics somewhat differently, for in Galatians Paul contends with rival interpretations of the gospel in churches he has founded, whereas in Romans he presents the rationale of his gospel to mostly unknown readers. Romans is not, however, a summary of Paul’s thought. Important themes are either absent (e.g., the Lord’s Supper) or mentioned only in passing (e.g., “church” appears only in ch. 16).

The Letter’s structure is straightforward. Its opening (1.1–7) is followed by the customary paragraph of thanksgiving (1.8–15), which leads into a statement commonly seen as the theme (1.16–17). The theological argument (1.18–11.36) has two parts: 1.18–8.39 develops the meaning of God’s righteousness and chs. 9–11 focus on the meaning of Israel. Although chs. 9–11 are a discrete unit, they are neither an excursus nor an appendage, but an integral part of the argument in which Paul’s view of God’s righteousness is applied to the election of Israel. The ethical section (12.1–15.13) deals first with various matters (chs. 12–13), then with the “weak” and the “strong.” The rest of ch. 15 reflects on Paul’s work and travel plans. Ch. 16 consists mostly of greetings and the concluding doxology; it provides a list of Paul’s friends in Rome who could have informed him of the situation in that church. Some have argued that the final chapter was a letter originally sent to Ephesus but later attached to Romans. Indeed, shorter editions of Romans did once exist. Rom 15.33 resembles a conclusion, and one manuscript actually has 16.25–27 at this point, while a number of others have it at the end of ch. 14. Rather than being a later addition, however, ch. 16 is more likely an original part of Romans that was omitted when the Letter was abbreviated for general church use.

The study of Romans has concentrated on Paul's ideas (e.g., justification, grace, law), but recent work has turned also to his use of ancient rhetoric and to the ways in which the OT functions in his argument. Just as he uses conventions of ancient letter writing, so he uses Greco-Roman rhetorical techniques and Jewish exegetical methods to develop his argument, which is in effect a discourse. What gives Romans its depth and power, however, is the rigor of Paul's own thought, which these conventions help him to express effectively.

Salutation

1 Paul, a servant^a of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, set apart for the gospel of God, ²which he promised beforehand through his prophets in the holy scriptures, ³the gospel concerning his Son, who was descended from David according to the flesh ⁴and was declared to be Son of God with power according to the spirit^b of holiness by resurrection from the dead, Jesus Christ our Lord, ⁵through whom we have received grace and apostleship to bring about the obedience of faith among all the Gentiles for the sake of his name, ⁶including yourselves who are called to belong to Jesus Christ,

⁷ To all God's beloved in Rome, who are called to be saints:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Prayer of Thanksgiving

8 First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because your faith is proclaimed throughout the world. ⁹For God, whom I serve with my spirit by announcing the gospel^c of his Son, is my witness that without ceasing I remember you always in my prayers, ¹⁰asking that by God's will I may somehow at last succeed in coming to you. ¹¹For I am longing to see you so that I may share with you some spiritual gift to strengthen you— ¹²or rather so that we may be mutually encouraged by each other's faith, both yours and mine. ¹³I want you to know, brothers and sisters,^d that I have often intended to come to you (but thus far have been prevented), in order that I may reap some harvest among you as I have among the rest of the Gentiles. ¹⁴I am a debtor both to Greeks and to barbarians, both to the wise and to the foolish ¹⁵— hence my eagerness to proclaim the gospel to you also who are in Rome.

a Gk slave b Or Spirit c Gk my spirit in the gospel d Gk brothers

1.1–7 To introduce himself, Paul expands the conventional salutation with a summary of his gospel. 1.1 Servant (lit. “slave”). A slave is at the disposition of the owner, here Christ; see also 6.16–22; 12.11; 14.18; 16.18; Gal 1.10; Phil 1.1. Apostle, an emissary. 1.2 Prophets probably refers generally to the writers of the scriptures, which are the OT. 1.3–4 These verses probably quote a confession, perhaps known in Rome, that viewed Jesus as the Son of David who was installed into the office of Son of God by his resurrection (see Acts 13.33). Paul himself believed that God's Son became Jesus; see 2 Cor 8.9; Phil 2.6–11. 1.4 Spirit of holiness (a phrase found only here in the NT) probably refers to the Holy Spirit (see text note b). 1.5 Obedience of faith, obedience grounded in and shaped by faith. See 16.26. On Paul's mission to the Gentiles, see 1.13; 15.16; Gal 2.1–10. 1.7 In the NT all Christians, not only outstanding ones, are saints (lit. “holy ones”). 1.8–15 A paragraph expressing gratitude to God for some aspect of the readers' faith and life is a standard element in Paul's Letters following the salutation. 1.8 Faith refers here not to the readers' personal trust in God but to their Christian presence in Rome. Throughout the world should not be taken literally. 1.14 Greeks and . . . barbarians, a traditional Greek way of classifying people, means all people; wise and . . . foolish means the same. The language should not be pressed;

The Power of the Gospel

16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel; it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who has faith, to the Jew first and also to the Greek. 17 For in it the righteousness of God is revealed through faith for faith; as it is written, "The one who is righteous will live by faith."^e

The Guilt of the Gentiles

18 For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and wickedness of those who by their wickedness suppress the truth. 19 For what can be known about God is plain to them, because God has shown it to them. 20 Ever since the creation of the world his eternal power and divine nature, invisible though they are, have been understood and seen through the things he has made. So they are without excuse; 21 for though they knew God, they did not honor him as God or give thanks to him, but they became futile in their thinking, and their senseless minds were darkened. 22 Claiming to be wise, they became fools; 23 and they exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images resembling a mortal human being or birds or four-footed animals or reptiles.

24 Therefore God gave them up in the lusts of their hearts to impurity, to the degrading of their bodies among themselves, 25 because they exchanged the truth about God for a lie and worshiped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed forever! Amen.

26 For this reason God gave them up to degrading passions. Their women exchanged natural intercourse for un-

^e Or The one who is righteous through faith will live

Paul is simply establishing rapport with the readers.

1.16–17 These verses are commonly regarded as the theme of the Letter. 1.16 I am not ashamed is probably a stylistic understatement meaning "I am proud of." On the power of God, see 1.20; 9.17; 1 Cor 1.18, 24; 2.5; 6.14. On the special status of the Jew, see 2.9–10; 3.1–2; chs. 9–11; cf. 3.9. First refers either to time or to theological priority. 1.17 The righteousness (or "justice") of God is a key theme in Romans; see 3.21–26; 10.3; see also Pss 31.1; 35.24; 71.2; Isa 45.8, 21; 46.13 ("deliverance"); 51.8. Here Paul understands it to mean the divine rectitude that rectifies (makes right) the relation between the Creator and the unrighteous person who believes the gospel. Is revealed (lit. "is being revealed"). The passive voice implies that God, not Paul, is doing the revealing. Faith. The same word is translated faithfulness in 3.3, so its meaning here is not obvious. Perhaps through faith refers to God's faithfulness and for faith to the human response to it. The quotation (Hab 2.4) does not agree exactly with either the Hebrew or the Greek text; it may be Paul's own rendering (see text note e).

1.18–3.20 In this carefully designed argument, Paul shows that the gospel, which brings salvation to everyone who believes it (1.16), deals with a dilemma shared by all humans, be they Jews or Gentiles (see also 3.23). 1.18–32 An indictment of Gentiles. 1.18 The wrath of God is not God's anger (an emotion) but the rightful response to what humans have done; see also 2.5; 2.8; 3.5; 4.15; 5.9; 9.22; 12.19; 13.5. Is revealed. See note on 1.17. Ungodliness refers to the relationship between God and humans, wickedness (lit. "unrighteousness") to human relationships, as in the two tables of the Decalogue (see Ex 20.2–17). The truth about God's identity (see 1.19) is suppressed by wickedness because human behavior reflects what persons take God to be and stand for. 1.19 Because God has shown it to them nullifies an excuse of ignorance (1.20). 1.20 That one could infer the invisible Creator from the created world was a familiar idea in Paul's time; see Wis 13.1–9. 1.21 The refusal to honor (lit. "glorify") God as God is humanity's root sin, the source of the human dilemma; cf. 15.6, 9; 1 Cor 6.20; 2 Cor 9.13. They became futile, lit. "they were made futile" (by God). 1.22–32 These verses clearly refer to Gentiles, as seen from the standpoint of Jewish horror of idolatry (Deut 4.16–18), but cf. Ps 106.20; Jer 2.11. 1.22 They became fools, lit. "they were made foolish." 1.24–25 The first of three expositions of the same point (see also 1.26, 28): from idolatry follow all sorts of moral confusions; God gave them up (lit. "handed them over") to those confusions, i.e., allowed immoralities to gain control. The immoralities are thus the symptoms of God's wrath, which is now disclosed by the gospel (see 1.18). 1.26–27 Some think that Paul here condemns homosexual acts by heterosexual people (i.e., unnatural means "unnatural for them"); others that he condemns pederasty (sexual activity between adult men and boys). It is questionable whether Paul thought of homosexuality as a condition or a disposition (see also 1 Cor 6.9). The repetition of the word exchanged (see v. 25) is deliberate: moral confusion follows idolatry, as Jewish thought had long maintained (see Wis natural,²⁷ and in the same way also the men, giving up natural intercourse with women, were consumed with passion for one another. Men committed shameless acts with men and received in their own persons the due penalty for their error.

28 And since they did not see fit to acknowledge God, God gave them up to a debased mind and to things that should not be done.²⁹ They were filled with every kind of wickedness, evil, covetousness, malice. Full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, craftiness, they are gossips,³⁰ slanderers, God-haters,^f insolent, haughty, boastful, inventors of evil, rebellious toward parents,³¹ foolish, faithless, heartless, ruthless.³² They know God's decree, that those who practice such things deserve to die—yet they not only do them but even applaud others who practice them.

The Righteous Judgment of God

2 Therefore you have no excuse, whoever you are, when you judge others; for in passing judgment on another you condemn yourself, because you, the judge, are doing the very same things.² You say,^g "We know that God's judgment on those who do such things is in accordance with truth."³ Do you imagine, whoever you are, that when you judge those who do such things and yet do them yourself, you will escape the judgment of God? ⁴Or do you despise the riches of his kindness and forbearance and patience? Do you not realize that God's kindness is meant to lead you to repentance? ⁵But by your hard and impenitent heart you are storing up wrath for yourself on the day of wrath, when God's righteous judgment will be revealed. ⁶For he will repay according to each one's deeds: ⁷to those who by patiently doing good seek for glory and honor and immortality, he will give eternal life; ⁸while for those who are self-seeking and who obey not the truth but wickedness, there will be wrath and fury. ⁹There will be anguish and distress for everyone who does evil, the Jew first and also the Greek, ¹⁰but glory and honor and peace for everyone who does good, the Jew first and also the Greek. ¹¹For God shows no partiality.

12 All who have sinned apart from the law will also perish apart from the law, and all who have sinned under the law will be judged by the law. ¹³For it is not the hearers of the law who are righteous in God's sight, but the doers of the law who will be justified. ¹⁴When Gentiles, who do not possess the law, do instinctively what the law requires, these, though not having the law, are a law to themselves. ¹⁵They show that what the law re-

14.12). 1.28 They did not see fit . . . a debased mind. Paul's pun resists translation; reading debased as "unfit" conveys the idea. 1.29–31 Lists of vices (and of virtues) were common in Paul's day; see Gal 5.19–23; Col 3.5, 8; 1 Tim 1.9–10; 6.4; 2 Tim 3.2–4; Titus 3.3; 1 Pet 4.3. The order within the list is rhetorical. 1.32 The Greek word translated decree suggests "right verdict." On deserve to die, see 6.23; see also 5.12–21; Gen 3.

2.1–16 An indictment of the person who judges others (cf. 1.32). Paul might be thinking of the Jews, but it is likely that he really means whoever you are (2.1). 2.1–5 Paul changes to the diatribe style, writing as if confronting an individual with a truth that demands a response. This was a well-established way of teaching used by philosophical schools as well as by traveling teachers such as Paul himself. 2.1 The judge is doing the very same things because all sins, whether gross or minor, express the same root sin (1.21). 2.2 The quotation marks are inferred (see text note g). 2.4 This is one of Paul's rare references to repentance; see 2 Cor 7.9–10; 12.21. 2.5 The motif of the day of wrath ("the last judgment") is anchored deeply in the Bible; Paul refers to it often (5.9; 12.19; 13.4–5; 14.10; 1 Cor 4.4–5; 11.31–32; 2 Cor 5.10; 1 Thess 1.9–10). God's judgment will be revealed as the confirmation and final recompense of the wrath already being revealed (1.18). 2.6–16 Paul returns to the discursive style, which develops an idea in order to persuade. 2.6 This saying appears in various contexts; see Ps 62.12; Prov 24.12; Mt 16.27; 2 Cor 11.15; 2 Tim 4.14. 2.9–10 God will punish the Jew first (see also note on 1.16), because with priority in status goes priority in judgment. The Greek, i.e., the Gentile. 2.12 The difference between will . . . perish and will be judged is more stylistic than substantial. Those who live under the law are the Jews. 2.13 To be righteous in God's sight and to be justified (declared to be in the right) are the same. See note on 3.20. 2.14 In principle, Gentiles are doers of the law (v. 13) when they do instinctively (lit. "by nature") what the Mosaic law is all about morally. 2.15 The idea of a conscience, an inner judge of one's deeds, implies a standard, a "law" to which the Gentile is accountable; whether Paul alludes to Jer 31.33 is debated. It is quires is written on their hearts, to which their own conscience also bears witness; and their conflicting thoughts will accuse or perhaps excuse them ¹⁶on the day when, according to my gospel, God, through Jesus Christ, will judge the secret thoughts of all.

The Jews and the Law

17 But if you call yourself a Jew and rely on the law and boast of your relation to God ¹⁸and know his will and determine what is best because you are instructed in the law, ¹⁹and if you are sure that you are a guide to the blind, a light to those who are in darkness, ²⁰a corrector of the foolish, a teacher of children, having in the law the embodiment of knowledge and truth, ²¹you, then, that teach others, will you not teach yourself? While you preach against stealing, do you steal? ²²You that forbid adultery, do you commit adultery? You that abhor idols, do you rob temples? ²³You that boast in the law, do you dishonor God by breaking the law? ²⁴For, as it is written, "The name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you."

²⁵ Circumcision indeed is of value if you obey the law; but if you break the law, your circumcision has become uncircumcision. ²⁶So, if those who are uncircumcised keep the requirements of the law, will not their uncircumcision be regarded as circumcision? ²⁷Then those who are physically uncircumcised but keep the law will condemn you that have the written code and circumcision but break the law. ²⁸For a person is not a Jew who is one outwardly, nor is true circumcision something external and physical. ²⁹Rather, a person is a Jew who is one inwardly, and real circumcision is a matter of the heart

—it is spiritual and not literal. Such a person receives praise not from others but from God.

Paul Counters Jewish Objections

3 Then what advantage has the Jew? Or what is the value of circumcision? ²Much, in every way. For in the first place the Jews^h were entrusted with the oracles of God. ³What if some were unfaithful? Will their faithlessness nullify the faithfulness of God? ⁴By no means! Although everyone is a liar, let God be proved true, as it is written,

"So that you may be justified in your words, and prevail in your judging."ⁱ

⁵But if our injustice serves to confirm the justice of God, what should we say? That God is unjust to inflict wrath on us? (I speak in a human way.) ⁶By no means! For then how could God judge the world? ⁷But if through my falsehood God's truthfulness abounds to his glory, why am I still being condemned as a sinner? ⁸And why not say (as some people slander us by saying that we say), "Let us do evil so that good may come"? Their condemnation is deserved!

None Is Righteous

9 What then? Are we any better off?^j No, not at all; for we have already charged that all, both Jews and Greeks, are under the power of sin, ¹⁰as it is written:

"There is no one who is righteous, not even one;

^h Gk they ⁱ Gk when you are being judged ^j Or at any disadvantage?

unlikely that Paul thinks here of the gentile Christian. 2.17–29 An indictment of the Jews based on the contradiction between privileged status and actual performance. In vv. 17–24 Paul uses the diatribe style. 2.24 See Isa 52.5; Ezek 36.20. 2.25 Circumcision was the sign of the Jews' covenant with God (see Gen 17.1–14). According to rabbinic thought, all Jews (except apostates) will share in "the world to come" because God honors the covenant commitment and has provided atonement for sins. 2.29 On circumcision . . . of the heart, see Deut 10.16.

3.1–8 Returning to the diatribe style, Paul responds to Jewish objections. 3.2 The oracles of God, i.e., scripture. See 2.17–18. 3.4 Everyone is a liar. See Ps 116.11. The quotation is from Ps 51.4. 3.8 Some people. It is not known who is accusing Paul. 3.9–20 Paul concludes the indictment, supporting his claim by citing a chain of OT passages probably collected previously. 3.9 Are we any better off? The question paraphrases 3.1, though there is a tension between the answers provided. With the alternate translation (see text note j), Paul denies that the Jew is either better or worse off than the Gentile. Under the power of sin introduces a view of sin developed in chs. 6–7.

- 11 there is no one who has understanding,
there is no one who seeks God.
- 12 All have turned aside, together they have become worthless;
there is no one who shows kindness, there is not even one."
- 13 "Their throats are opened graves;
they use their tongues to deceive."
"The venom of vipers is under their lips."
- 14 "Their mouths are full of cursing and bitterness."
- 15 "Their feet are swift to shed blood;
ruin and misery are in their paths, and the way of peace they have not known."
- 18 "There is no fear of God before their eyes."

19 Now we know that whatever the law says, it speaks to those who are under the law, so that every mouth may be silenced, and the whole world may be held accountable to God. ²⁰For "no human being will be justified in his sight" by deeds prescribed by the law, for through the law comes the knowledge of sin.

God's Justifying Righteousness

21 But now, apart from law, the righteousness of God has been disclosed, and is attested by the law and the prophets, ²²the righteousness of God through faith in Jesus Christ^k for all who believe. For there is no distinction, ²³since all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God; ²⁴they are now justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, ²⁵whom God put forward as a sacrifice of atonement^l by his blood, effective through faith. He did this to show his righteousness, because in his divine forbearance he had passed over the sins previously committed; ²⁶it was to prove at the present time that he himself is righteous and that he justifies the one who has faith in Jesus.^m

27 Then what becomes of boasting? It is excluded. By what law? By that of works? No, but by the law of faith. ²⁸For we hold that a person is justified by faith apart from works prescribed by the law. ²⁹Or is God the God of Jews only? Is he not the God of Gentiles also? Yes, of Gen-

k Or through the faith of Jesus Christ l Or a place of atonement m Or who has the faith of Jesus

3.10 A paraphrase of Eccl 7.20. 3.11–12 See Ps 14.2–3. 3.13 See Pss 5.9; 140.3. 3.14 See Ps 10.7. 3.15–17 See Isa 59.7–8. 3.18 See Ps 36.1. 3.19 Under the law. See 2.12. So that expresses result, not intent. Every mouth may be silenced includes the Jew in the same situation as the Gentile (1.20). 3.20 "No human . . . his sight." See Ps 143.2, here paraphrased (see also Gal 2.16). Here justified means vindicated or acquitted, as in a trial. The tension between this verse and 2.13 is more apparent than real, because the fact of universal sin means that no one has the righteousness required by the law. Knowledge of sin is explained in 7.7–12; law not only specifies what sin is but makes one aware of failure to achieve what is required.

3.21–31 Having indicted all humanity (1.18–3.20), Paul now states the solution: in Christ, God's righteousness itself rectifies the relationship between God and humans. 3.21 Apart from law means not according to the reward-and-punishment logic of law. Attested (lit. "witnessed") by the law and the prophets. See, e.g., 1.2, 17. The law and the prophets is OT scripture as a whole. 3.22 Through faith in Jesus Christ. The alternate translation (text note k) is closer to the Greek and is gaining acceptance, though some prefer "faithfulness" (see note on 1.17; see also note on 3.26). No distinction summarizes the content of 1.18–3.20. 3.23 In Jewish tradition the glory of God was taken from Adam after his sin; Paul implies that future salvation will restore it (see 5.2; 8.18). 3.24 Redemption, not a common word in Paul's writings, means the freeing of someone or something from being held hostage; see also Gal 3.13; 4.5. 3.25 Paul probably cites a piece of Christian tradition that began "God put him forward"; see also 4.25; Phil 2.6; text note l at 1 Tim 3.16. Sacrifice of atonement, or place of atonement (text note l). See Lev 16.13–15 ("mercy seat"). Show renders the same Greek word as prove in v. 26. 3.26 The one who has faith in Jesus can also be rendered "the one who lives by the faithfulness of Jesus"; see note on 3.22. 3.27–31 Paul returns to the diatribe style (see 2.1–5). 3.27 Boasting, either pride in achieving what the law requires (see 4.1–2) or pride in the possession of the law as a sign of God's favor (2.17, 23). The law of faith is the principle or rationale of faith.

tiles also, ³⁰since God is one; and he will justify the circumcised on the ground of faith and the uncircumcised through that same faith. ³¹Do we then overthrow the law by this faith? By no means! On the contrary, we uphold the law.

The Example of Abraham

4 What then are we to say was gained byⁿ Abraham, our ancestor according to the flesh? ²For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God. ³For what does the scripture say? "Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness." ⁴Now to one who works, wages are not reckoned as a gift but as something due. ⁵But to one who without works trusts him who justifies the ungodly, such faith is reckoned as righteousness. ⁶So also David speaks of the blessedness of those to whom God reckons righteousness apart from works:

⁷ "Blessed are those whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered;
⁸ blessed is the one against whom the Lord will not reckon sin."

⁹ Is this blessedness, then, pronounced only on the circumcised, or also on the uncircumcised? We say, "Faith was reckoned to Abraham as righteousness." ¹⁰How then was it reckoned to him? Was it before or after he had been circumcised? It was not after, but before he was circumcised. ¹¹He received the sign of circumcision as a seal of the righteousness that he had by faith while he was still uncircumcised. The purpose was to make him the ancestor of all who believe without being circumcised and who thus have righteousness reckoned to them, ¹²and likewise the ancestor of the circumcised who are not only circumcised but who also follow the example of the faith that our ancestor Abraham had before he was circumcised.

God's Promise Realized Through Faith

¹³ For the promise that he would inherit the world did not come to Abraham or to his descendants through the law but through the righteousness of faith. ¹⁴If it is the adherents of the law who are to be the heirs, faith is null and the promise is void. ¹⁵For the law brings wrath; but where there is no law, neither is there violation.

¹⁶ For this reason it depends on faith, in order that the promise may rest on grace and be guaranteed to all his descendants, not only to the adherents of the law but also to those who share the faith of Abraham (for he is the father of all of us, ¹⁷as it is written, "I have made you the father of many nations")—in the presence of the God in whom he believed, who gives life to the dead and calls into existence the things that do not exist. ¹⁸Hoping against hope, he believed that he

3.30 God is one, an allusion to Deut 6.4. 3.31 That justification by faith actually upholds the law (i.e., scripture) is argued in ch. 4.

4.1–25 The Abraham story (Gen 12–17) provides evidence that faith justifies. In 4.1–12 Abraham exemplifies the thesis stated in 3.28; in 4.13–25 Paul applies this thesis to all who believe the gospel. 4.1 Our ancestor according to the flesh acknowledges Abraham as the biological starting point of the Jewish people. 4.2 Abraham cannot boast before God because whatever Abraham achieved was his response to God's choosing him. 4.3 Gen 15.6 (used also in Gal 3.6; Jas 2.23 draws a different conclusion from the quotation). On believed, see note on 4.5. 4.4 Reckoned, a commercial term suggesting payment, here contrasted with justification as a gift (see 3.24). 4.5 Trusts renders the same Greek word translated believed in 4.3. Him who justifies the ungodly expresses Paul's radical understanding of God;

the ungodly includes everyone (3.19–20, 23). 4.6–8 Like Jewish interpreters, Paul supports his view of Genesis by citing another part of scripture, here Ps 32.1–2, which also uses the word reckon. 4.9–12 Paul assumes that what is true of the ancestor is true of the descendants. This makes the questions posed here decisive. 4.9 See Gen 15.6. 4.10 Before, Abraham's circumcision is not mentioned until Gen 17.10–27. 4.13 The idea that Abraham would inherit the world reflects Jewish interpretation of Gen 12.6–7. Sir 44.19–21 says he inherited the earth because he kept the law. 4.15 Wrath. See note on 1.18; for a different consequence of law, see 3.20. 4.17 "I . . . nations." See Gen 17.5. Who gives life to the dead alludes to Jesus' resurrection (4.24) and to the birth of Isaac (4.19). God . . . calls into existence the things that do not exist. The belief that God created out of nothing (creatio ex nihilo) was common in Hellenistic Judaism. See 2 Macc would become “the father of many nations,” according to what was said, “So numerous shall your descendants be.”¹⁹ He did not weaken in faith when he considered his own body, which was already^o as good as dead (for he was about a hundred years old), or when he considered the barrenness of Sarah’s womb.²⁰ No distrust made him waver concerning the promise of God, but he grew strong in his faith as he gave glory to God,²¹ being fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised.²² Therefore his faith^p “was reckoned to him as righteousness.”²³ Now the words, “it was reckoned to him,” were written not for his sake alone,²⁴ but for ours also. It will be reckoned to us who believe in him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead,²⁵ who was handed over to death for our trespasses and was raised for our justification.

Results of Justification

5 Therefore, since we are justified by faith, we^q have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ,² through whom we have obtained access^r to this grace in which we stand; and we^s boast in our hope of sharing the glory of God.³ And not only that, but we^s also boast in our sufferings, knowing that suffering produces endurance,⁴ and endurance produces character, and character produces hope,⁵ and hope does not disappoint us, because God’s love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit that has been given to us.

6 For while we were still weak, at the right time Christ died for the ungodly.⁷ Indeed, rarely will anyone die for a righteous person—though perhaps for a good person someone might actually dare to die.⁸ But God proves his love for us in that while we still were sinners Christ died for us.⁹ Much more surely then, now that we have been justified by his blood, will we be saved through him from the wrath of God.^t 10 For if while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, much more surely, having been reconciled, will we be saved by his life.¹¹ But more than that, we even boast in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

Adam and Christ

12 Therefore, just as sin came into the world through one man, and death came through sin, and so death spread to all because all have sinned—¹³ sin was indeed in the world before the law, but sin is not reckoned when there is no law.¹⁴ Yet

See notes on 1.18; 2.5. 5.10 Reconciled is virtually synonymous with “justified”; see also 2 Cor 5.18–19. 5.11 Boast in God means “boast because of God”; see note on 5.2. 5.12–21 These verses discuss Adam and Christ, individuals whose acts had decisive consequences for humanity, though of quite different sorts, and who therefore stand at the heads of the old and new creations. Paul’s interpretation of Gen 3 is similar to those in Wis 2.24; 2 Esd 3.21, 26; 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 54.15. 5.12 One man. Paul ignores Eve and infers from Gen 3.3, 19 that Adam’s sin brought death, which spread, i.e., became an unavoidable condition; see also 1 Cor 15.21–26. The Greek word here translated because was translated by the Vulgate as “in whom,” implying “in Adam”; that translation became influential for the doctrine of original sin. 5.14 A type is a person or thing that provides a pattern or model (see, e.g., 1 Cor 10.6; Phil 3.17), usually for a later period. The one who was to come is Christ. Adam was death exercised dominion from Adam to Moses, even over those whose sins were not like the transgression of Adam, who is a type of the one who was to come.

15 But the free gift is not like the trespass. For if the many died through the one man's trespass, much more surely have the grace of God and the free gift in the grace of the one man, Jesus Christ, abounded for the many. 16 And the free gift is not like the effect of the one man's sin. For the judgment following one trespass brought condemnation, but the free gift following many trespasses brings justification. 17 If, because of the one man's trespass, death exercised dominion through that one, much more surely will those who receive the abundance of grace and the free gift of righteousness exercise dominion in life through the one man, Jesus Christ.

18 Therefore just as one man's trespass led to condemnation for all, so one man's act of righteousness leads to justification and life for all. 19 For just as by the one man's disobedience the many were made sinners, so by the one man's obedience the many will be made righteous. 20 But law came in, with the result that the trespass multiplied; but where sin increased, grace abounded all the more, 21 so that, just as sin exercised dominion in death, so grace might also exercise dominion through justification^u leading to eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Dying and Rising with Christ

6 What then are we to say? Should we continue in sin in order that grace may abound? 2 By no means! How can we who died to sin go on living in it? 3 Do you not know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? 4 Therefore we have been buried with him by baptism into death, so that, just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, so we too might walk in newness of life.

5 For if we have been united with him in a death like his, we will certainly be united with him in a resurrection like his. 6 We know that our old self was crucified with him so that the body of sin might be destroyed, and we might no longer be enslaved to sin. 7 For whoever has died is freed from sin. 8 But if we have died with Christ, we believe that we will also live with him. 9 We know that Christ, being raised from the dead, will never die again; death no longer has dominion over him. 10 The death he died, he died to sin, once for all; but the life he lives, he lives to God. 11 So you also must consider yourselves dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus.

12 Therefore, do not let sin exercise dominion in your mortal bodies, to make the pattern for Christ insofar as he stood at the head of the old creation, as Christ stands at the head of the new (Gal 6.14–15). 5.15 Not like. The rest of the paragraph explains the difference Paul has in view (see esp. 5.16). 5.17 Death is a hostile tyrant because, due to Adam's acts, everyone must die; cf. 6.9; 1 Cor 15.54–55. 5.18 One man's (Christ's) act of righteousness is the same as one man's obedience (5.19) and may allude to "the faithfulness of Jesus" in 3.22, 26. 5.20 Law came in. It entered the world at Sinai (5.13). Trespass multiplied because the law specifies transgressions; see 3.20; 4.15. In 7.7–25, Paul argues that law cannot control sin. 5.21 Like death (see 5.14), sin exercised dominion; death, sin, and grace are domains of power.

6.1–14 These verses explain that participation in Christ's death and resurrection overcomes the tyranny of sin and death. 6.1 Using the diatribe style (see 2.1–5), Paul rejects a misunderstanding of 5.20. Continue in sin, i.e., remain within its domain (5.21). 6.2 Died to sin is explained in 6.5–11. Living in sin means living within its sphere of power (see 6.14). 6.3 Do you not know (see also 6.16; 7.1). Paul appeals to what the Roman Christians already know, that baptism is into Christ Jesus (see also 1 Cor 12.13; Gal 3.27). Here Paul emphasizes that baptism is into his death, because this provides the rationale for 6.5–14. 6.4 Paul distinguishes present solidarity with Christ's death from future solidarity with his resurrection (6.5, 8); the former makes possible a new moral life now (see 7.6). Walk, i.e., conduct one's life; see Deut 13.4–5; Isa 33.15. 6.5 If here means "since," expressing not doubt but a fulfilled condition. 6.6 Crucified with him, the only explicit reference to Jesus' cross in Romans. Body of sin. Body probably means the actual self (as in 12.1), which is enslaved to sin. 6.7 This verse states the principle that makes Paul's argument possible. 6.10 He died to sin. In death the power of sin was terminated; see 6.7; cf. 7.1–6. Once for all means once for all time. See Heb 7.27; 9.26–28. 6.12–14 The first explicit exhortation

you obey their passions. ¹³No longer present your members to sin as instruments^v of wickedness, but present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life, and present your members to God as instruments^v of righteousness. ¹⁴For sin will have no dominion over you, since you are not under law but under grace.

Slaves of Righteousness

¹⁵ What then? Should we sin because we are not under law but under grace? By no means! ¹⁶Do you not know that if you present yourselves to anyone as obedient slaves, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, either of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to righteousness? ¹⁷But thanks be to God that you, having once been slaves of sin, have become obedient from the heart to the form of teaching to which you were entrusted, ¹⁸and that you, having been set free from sin, have become slaves of righteousness. ¹⁹I am speaking in human terms because of your natural limitations.^w For just as you once presented your members as slaves to impurity and to greater and greater iniquity, so now present your members as slaves to righteousness for sanctification.

²⁰ When you were slaves of sin, you were free in regard to righteousness. ²¹So what advantage did you then get from the things of which you now are ashamed? The end of those things is death. ²²But now that you have been freed from sin and enslaved to God, the advantage you get is sanctification. The end is eternal life. ²³For the wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

An Analogy from Marriage

7 Do you not know, brothers and sisters^x—for I am speaking to those who know the law—that the law is binding on a person only during that person's lifetime? ²Thus a married woman is bound by the law to her husband as long as he lives; but if her husband dies, she is discharged from the law concerning the husband. ³Accordingly, she will be called an adulteress if she lives with another man while her husband is alive. But if her husband dies, she is free from that law, and if she marries another man, she is not an adulteress.

⁴ In the same way, my friends,^x you have died to the law through the body of Christ, so that you may belong to another, to him who has been raised from the dead in order that we may bear fruit for God.

in the Letter shows that baptism entails a new moral life. 6.13 Instruments, or weapons (see text note ^v). Like philosophers of his day, Paul often describes the moral life as a military or athletic struggle; see 13.12; 2 Cor 6.7; 10.4; also Eph 6.11–17. 6.14 Everyone is under some dominion, either that of sin (see 6.6), death (see 6.9), and law (see 7.6), or that of grace (see also 6.16). See 12.1–2; also 1 Thess 4.3–7; 5.23. 6.20 Free in regard to righteousness, i.e., unable to “obey” righteousness. See 6.16, 18. 6.22 Enslaved to God. See 6.18. 6.23 That death is the consequence of sin has been a theme since 5.12. 7.1–6 Paul now uses marriage to illustrate how freedom from the law also comes through death (cf. 6.7–10). 7.1 The law, here perhaps Roman law, Jewish law, or both. The law . . . lifetime, the principle that governs the argument of 7.1–6. 7.2 As long as he lives. Concerned with the effect of death, Paul ignores divorce; cf. 1 Cor 7.10–15. 7.4–6 Paul expands his analogy (the husband's death frees the wife) to include the point that the one freed has also died through participation in Christ. 7.4 My friends, lit. my brothers (see text note ^x). Paul never calls Christians his “friends,” a common self-designation in certain philosophical schools. Died to the law. See also 6.14; cf. 6.10. Like sin, the law is a domain in which one lives and to which one is obedient. The body of Christ, Christ's crucified body, not the church (cf. 12.5). Another refers to the resurrected Christ. Bear fruit for God, i.e., produce moral results. See 6.4, 13, 19; see also 5 While we were living in the flesh, our sinful passions, aroused by the law, were at work in our members to bear fruit for death. 6 But now we are discharged from the law, dead to that which held us captive, so that we are slaves not under the old written code but in the new life of the Spirit.

The Law and Sin

7 What then should we say? That the law is sin? By no means! Yet, if it had not been for the law, I would not have known sin. I would not have known what it is to covet if the law had not said, "You shall not covet." 8 But sin, seizing an opportunity in the commandment, produced in me all kinds of covetousness. Apart from the law sin lies dead. 9 I was once alive apart from the law, but when the commandment came, sin revived 10 and I died, and the very commandment that promised life proved to be death to me. 11 For sin, seizing an opportunity in the commandment, deceived me and through it killed me. 12 So the law is holy, and the commandment is holy and just and good.

13 Did what is good, then, bring death to me? By no means! It was sin, working death in me through what is good, in order that sin might be shown to be sin, and through the commandment might become sinful beyond measure.

The Inner Conflict

14 For we know that the law is spiritual; but I am of the flesh, sold into slavery under sin.^y 15 I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing I hate. 16 Now if I do what I do not want, I agree that the law is good. 17 But in fact it is no longer I that do it, but sin that dwells within me. 18 For I know that nothing good dwells within me, that is, in my flesh. I can will what is right, but I cannot do it. 19 For I do not do the good I want, but the evil I do not want is what I do. 20 Now if I do what I do not want, it is no longer I that do it, but sin that dwells within me.

21 So I find it to be a law that when I want to do what is good, evil lies close at hand. 22 For I delight in the law of God in my inmost self, 23 but I see in my members another law at war with the law of my mind, making me captive to the law of sin that dwells in my members. 24 Wretched man that I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death? 25 Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord!

So then, with my mind I am a slave to ^y Gk sold under sin

Col 1.10. 7.5 Like sin, law, and death, flesh is a domain in which one lives (see 7.14; 8.4, 12); the term emphasizes weakness and corruptibility. How passions are aroused by the law is shown in 7.7–25. 7.6 This verse restates the nature of Christian existence (see 6.4, 7, 11, 12–14, 17, 19). Discharged from the law reformulates 7.2; dead to . . . captive paraphrases 6.11. New life of the Spirit, lit. "in newness of Spirit," alludes to 6.4 and anticipates ch. 8.

7.7–13 Again, Paul uses diatribe to reject the wrong inference from v. 6; the problem is not the law itself but its inability to curb sin. 7.7 I is probably stylistic rather than autobiographical (see Phil 3.4–6), a reference to the individual in the Adamic epoch (5.12–21). Known sin. See 3.20. You shall not covet. See Ex 20.17; Deut 5.21. 7.10 I died. See 6.23; see also 5.12–14. 7.11 Deceived, i.e., caused one to think law more powerful than sin. 7.14–25 These verses explain why one cannot do the good that the law intends to inspire. 7.14 Flesh, the physical self when, as the source of passions (e.g., covetousness; see 7.8), it becomes a dominant factor (see note on 7.5). The change to present tense suggests to some that Paul is now describing his Christian experience, but the words sold into slavery under sin make this unlikely (cf. 6.6, 11, 14, 17). Rather, Paul is expressing the frustration of the person belonging to the epoch of Adam (5.12–21). 7.18 Nothing good dwells within me, lit. "the good does not dwell within me." 7.21 Paul calls the experience of being unable to do the good one desires a law because it is unavoidable. 7.22 Inmost self, the mind or heart, the seat of the will. 7.23 The inevitability of sin makes it another law. The self is not an achiever but a captive (victim) of the inevitability (law) of sin. Paul uses the Jewish concept of "the evil impulse," which, implanted in the self along with "the good impulse," generates perpetual inner struggle; see Dead Sea Scrolls Rule of the Community (1QS) 3.13–4.26. For Paul, the law does not help one master the evil impulse but is itself thoroughly qualified by it. 7.24 This body of death, the self, thoroughly qualified by and destined for death (see 6.16, 21, 23; cf. 6.9). 7.25 With my mind . . . with my flesh sums up the human condition. Some think this sentence either originally came before thanks be to God or was added by a copyist.

the law of God, but with my flesh I am a slave to the law of sin.

Life in the Spirit

8 There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus. ²For the law of the Spirit^z of life in Christ Jesus has set you^a free from the law of sin and of death. ³For God has done what the law, weakened by the flesh, could not do: by sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and to deal with sin,^b he condemned sin in the flesh, ⁴so that the just requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not according to the flesh but according to the Spirit.^z ⁵For those who live according to the flesh set their minds on the things of the flesh, but those who live according to the Spirit^z set their minds on the things of the Spirit.^z ⁶To set the mind on the flesh is death, but to set the mind on the Spirit^z is life and peace. ⁷For this reason the mind that is set on the flesh is hostile to God; it does not submit to God's law—indeed it cannot, ⁸and those who are in the flesh cannot please God.

⁹ But you are not in the flesh; you are in the Spirit,^z since the Spirit of God dwells in you. Anyone who does not have the Spirit of Christ does not belong to him. ¹⁰But if Christ is in you, though the body is dead because of sin, the Spirit^z is life because of righteousness. ¹¹If the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, he who raised Christ^c from the dead will give life to your mortal bodies also through^d his Spirit that dwells in you.

¹² So then, brothers and sisters,^e we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live according to the flesh— ¹³for if you live according to the flesh, you will die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live. ¹⁴For all who are led by the Spirit of God are children of God. ¹⁵For you did not receive a spirit of slavery to fall back into fear, but you have received a spirit of adoption. When we cry, “Abba!”^f Father!” ¹⁶it is that very Spirit bearing witness^g with our spirit that we are children of God, ¹⁷and if children, then heirs, heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ—if, in fact, we suffer with him so that we may also be glorified with him.

8.1–17 Paul explains that the solution to the dilemma exposed in 7.14–25 is the Spirit, whose dwelling in the self displaces the power of sin, making a new life possible. 8.1 No condemnation, the consequence of justification (see 5.16, 18). Being in Christ Jesus is the result of being baptized into Christ (6.3). 8.2 The Spirit of life, probably not spirit (as in text note z) but the Holy Spirit, which gives life (8.11). In Christ Jesus, here also a domain in which the Spirit is power. Law of sin. See 7.23; the law of death is the inevitability of death resulting from sin (6.23). 8.3 Weakened by the flesh alludes to the law's inability to deal decisively with sin as resident power (7.7–25). Sending, the incarnation of the preexistent Son of God; see Gal 4.4. Likeness suggests the Son's full identification with the human condition, but without becoming another instance of it. 8.4 The just requirement. See 7.12. Walk. See note on 6.4. Flesh and Spirit are domains of power (see note on 8.2). 8.7 By definition, flesh is hostile to God (see note on 7.14). 8.8 In the flesh, i.e., within its domain, not simply in the body. 8.9–10 There is no difference between you are in the Spirit and the Spirit . . . dwells in you, nor between the Spirit . . . dwells in you and Christ is in you. 8.10 Because of righteousness, i.e., because of God's righteousness as saving, rectifying power. 8.11 Will give life. Paul again emphasizes the future resurrection of Christians; see also 5.10; 6.5, 8; 1 Cor 15.12–24, 50–57. 8.13 Deeds of the body, not all bodily deeds but those of 7.19, 23, 25. Christians will live through newness of life now (6.4) and through future resurrection. 8.15 Spirit of adoption, i.e., the Spirit whose work is adopting. See also Gal 4.5–7. This adoption is both a present and a future reality; see 8.23. When we cry, “Abba!” This is probably not an allusion to the Lord's Prayer (cf. Mt 6.9–13; Lk 11.2–4). 8.17 Christians are joint heirs of the resurrection. See 8.29. 8.18–30 After comparing the consequences of Christ and Adam for persons (5.12–21), Paul turns to the consequences of Adam for creation, thus providing perspective on present experiences. 8.18 Sufferings. See 5.3–4.

with the glory about to be revealed to us.¹⁹ For the creation waits with eager longing for the revealing of the children of God; ²⁰for the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will but by the will of the one who subjected it, in hope ²¹that the creation itself will be set free from its bondage to decay and will obtain the freedom of the glory of the children of God. ²²We know that the whole creation has been groaning in labor pains until now; ²³and not only the creation, but we ourselves, who have the first fruits of the Spirit, groan inwardly while we wait for adoption, the redemption of our bodies. ²⁴For in ^bhope we were saved. Now hope that is seen is not hope. For who hopes ⁱfor what is seen? ²⁵But if we hope for what we do not see, we wait for it with patience.

²⁶ Likewise the Spirit helps us in our weakness; for we do not know how to pray as we ought, but that very Spirit intercedes ^jwith sighs too deep for words. ²⁷And God, ^kwho searches the heart, knows what is the mind of the Spirit, because the Spirit ^lintercedes for the saints according to the will of God. ^m predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, in order that he might be the firstborn within a large family. ^o ³⁰And those whom he predestined he also called; and those whom he called he also justified; and those whom he justified he also glorified.

God's Love in Christ Jesus

³¹ What then are we to say about these things? If God is for us, who is against us? ³²He who did not withhold his own Son, but gave him up for all of us, will he not with him also give us everything else? ³³Who will bring any charge against God's elect? It is God who justifies. ³⁴Who is to condemn? It is Christ Jesus, who died, yes, who was raised, who is at the right hand of God, who indeed intercedes for us. ^p ³⁵Who will separate us from the love of Christ? Will hardship, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? ³⁶As it is written,

The glory refers to completed salvation, expected soon. 8.19 Creation is spoken of as if it were a person. The revealing. The truth to which the Spirit now witnesses (8.16) is not yet manifest; see 8.23. 8.20 Futility, explained as bondage to decay in 8.21, is an allusion to the curse on the earth in Gen 3.17–19 and is regarded here as not permanent. 8.21 Just as humanity's forfeited glory will be restored (3.23; 5.2), so creation's original status will be restored. 8.22 The metaphor of birth pains was often used to describe the eschatological transition from the old to the new age; see Mk 13.8; 1 Thess 5.3; 1 Enoch 62.4. 8.23 The first fruits of the harvest represent the whole, so the present experience of the Spirit is the pledge of its future work (see 8.11). Christians too groan because their salvation is not yet fully actualized (see 5.10). Wait for adoption. See 8.19. The whole self (i.e., the body; see note on 6.6) is destined for redemption. 8.24 Hope. See 5.3–5. 8.26 The Spirit not only speaks to us but also intercedes with God for us. 8.28 Called, chosen, as in 1.1, 7. 8.29 Foreknew and predestined reflect the view that what God knows and does in eternity appears to us as prior action; see also 11.2; Acts 2.23; 1 Pet

1.2, 20. Conformed to the image, another expression of the future solidarity of the Savior and the saved. See also 8.17; Phil 3.21. Firstborn within a large family. The children of God (8.14) will be what the Son now is; see also Col 1.15; Heb 2.8–13. 8.30 Glorified is in the past tense because, although the glorification will occur in the future in human terms, it has occurred already in eternity (see note on 8.29). 8.31–39 This paragraph sums up with a flourish the import of the argument from 1.18 onward and ends on a triumphal note. 8.31 For . . . against us. The questions in this section are posed as if in a courtroom. 8.32 Did not withhold his own Son, a reformulation of 3.25; 5.8; 8.3–4. With him echoes 5.9–11; 8.11, 17. 8.33 Justifies here means “pronounces one to be in the right,” i.e., rightly related to God. 8.34 Text note p shows that the sentence might be a question. If so, it expects “No!” for an answer. Intercedes. As in 8.9–10, what Paul says of the Spirit he can say also of the risen Christ (see 8.26). 8.35 The love of Christ coincides with God's love (5.8). Hardship, the same word translated sufferings in 5.3, often refers to the tribulations of the end time (see Mk 13.19; Rev 7.14).

"For your sake we are being killed all day long;
we are accounted as sheep to be slaughtered."

³⁷No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us. ³⁸For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor rulers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, ³⁹nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

God's Election of Israel

9 I am speaking the truth in Christ—I am not lying; my conscience confirms it by the Holy Spirit—²I have great sorrow and unceasing anguish in my heart. ³For I could wish that I myself were accursed and cut off from Christ for the sake of my own people,^q my kindred according to the flesh. ⁴They are Israelites, and to them belong the adoption, the glory, the covenants, the giving of the law, the worship, and the promises; ⁵to them belong the patriarchs, and from them, according to the flesh, comes the Messiah,^r who is over all, God blessed forever.^s Amen.

⁶ It is not as though the word of God had failed. For not all Israelites truly belong to Israel, ⁷and not all of Abraham's children are his true descendants; but "It is through Isaac that descendants shall be named for you." ⁸This means that it is not the children of the flesh who are the children of God, but the children of the promise are counted as descendants. ⁹For this is what the promise said, "About this time I will return and Sarah shall have a son." ¹⁰Nor is that all; something similar happened to Rebecca when she had conceived children by one husband, our ancestor Isaac. ¹¹Even before they had been born or had done anything good or bad (so that God's purpose of election might continue, ¹²not by works but by his call) she was told, "The elder shall serve the younger." ¹³As it is written,

"I have loved Jacob, but I have hated Esau."

¹⁴ What then are we to say? Is there injustice on God's part? By no means! ¹⁵For he says to Moses,

"I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion."

¹⁶So it depends not on human will or exertion, but on God who shows mercy. ¹⁷For the scripture says to Pharaoh, "I have raised you up for the very purpose of showing my power in you, so that my name may be proclaimed in all the earth." ¹⁸So then he has mercy on whomever he chooses, and he hardens the heart of whomever he chooses.

God's Wrath and Mercy

8.36 Ps 44.22. 8.38 Angels contrast with rulers, who are probably earthly powers (cf. 1 Cor 15.24; Gal 4.8–11; Col 2.15). Powers are supernatural beings; see Mt 24.29; 1 Pet 3.22. 8.39 Love of God. See 5.8.

9.1–18 On chs. 9–11, see Introduction. Here Paul applies his theology of justification by faith to the election of Israel. 9.1 I am not lying. Paul's words almost constitute an oath (see also 2 Cor 11.31; Gal 1.20; 1 Tim 2.7). 9.3 Accursed is very strong language; see 1 Cor 16.22; Gal 1.8–9. 9.4 Israelites. The ancient biblical name reinforces the point: the distinctive items are the heritage of the Jewish people. Adoption, the same word as in 8.15, 23. 9.5 According to the flesh, i.e., by human descent. See 1.3. 9.6 Not . . . failed. The rest of the paragraph demonstrates this. 9.7–8 Paul sees in Gen 21.12 the principle of the patriarchal story: being children of God depends on promise and election (9.11–12), not on physical descent. 9.9 Gen 18.10, 14. 9.10–13 The principle expressed in 9.7–8 is applied to the next generation. 9.12 "The elder shall serve the younger." Gen 25.23. 9.13 Mal 1.2–3. Loved and hated mean "chosen" and "not chosen." 9.14 This verse is written in diatribal style (see 2.1–5; 9.19–24). 9.15 See Ex 33.19. 9.16 This verse reformulates 9.12 in light of the quotation in 9.15. 9.17 See Ex 9.16. 9.18 Hardens, i.e., creates willful resistance in. See Ex 7.3, 13–14; 8.19; 9.12; 10.1, 20, 27; 11.10. 9.19–29 After defending God's freedom in election, Paul relates that freedom to the election of Gentiles as well as Jews.

his will?" ²⁰But who indeed are you, a human being, to argue with God? Will what is molded say to the one who molds it, "Why have you made me like this?" ²¹Has the potter no right over the clay, to make out of the same lump one object for special use and another for ordinary use? ²²What if God, desiring to show his wrath and to make known his power, has endured with much patience the objects of wrath that are made for destruction; ²³and what if he has done so in order to make known the riches of his glory for the objects of mercy, which he has prepared beforehand for glory— ²⁴including us whom he has called, not from the Jews only but also from the Gentiles? ²⁵As indeed he says in Hosea,

"Those who were not my people
I will call 'my people,' and her who was not beloved I will call 'beloved.'"

²⁶ "And in the very place where it was said to them, 'You are not my people,' there they shall be called children of the living God."

²⁷ And Isaiah cries out concerning Israel, "Though the number of the children of Israel were like the sand of the sea, only a remnant of them will be saved; ²⁸for the Lord will execute his sentence on the earth quickly and decisively."^t ²⁹And as Isaiah predicted,

"If the Lord of hosts had not left survivors^u to us, we would have fared like Sodom and been made like Gomorrah."

Israel's Unbelief

³⁰ What then are we to say? Gentiles, who did not strive for righteousness, have attained it, that is, righteousness through faith; ³¹but Israel, who did strive for the righteousness that is based on the law, did not succeed in fulfilling that law. ³²Why not? Because they did not strive for it on the basis of faith, but as if it were based on works. They have stumbled over the stumbling stone, ³³as it is written,

"See, I am laying in Zion a stone that will make people stumble, a rock that will make them fall, and whoever believes in him^v will not be put to shame."

10 Brothers and sisters, "my heart's desire and prayer to God for them is that they may be saved. ²I can testify that they have a zeal for God, but it is not enlightened. ³For, being ignorant of the righteousness that comes from God, and seeking to establish their own, they have not submitted to God's righteousness. ⁴For Christ is the end of the law so that there may be righteousness for everyone who believes.

Salvation Is for All

⁵ Moses writes concerning the righteousness that comes from the law, that "the person who does these things will live by them." ⁶But the righteousness that

9.21 The image of God as a potter was a popular one; see Isa 29.16; 45.9; Jer 18.1–11; Wis 15.7; Sir 33.13. Paul emphasizes God's freedom to divide the same lump. 9.23 Prepared beforehand, i.e., predestined (see 8.30). 9.25–26 See Hos 1.10; 2.23. Paul applies these texts, which refer to the restoration of Israel, to the inclusion of gentile Christians into God's people. 9.27 See Isa 10.22–23. 9.29 See Isa 1.9.

9.30–10.4 Ironically, Gentiles (Christians) have found God's righteousness through faith, but Israel has missed it by wrongly relying on works. 9.31 Righteousness . . . based on the law, lit. "law of righteousness," the law concerning righteousness. 9.32 Based on works. See 3.27–28; Gal 2.15–16. Have stumbled, i.e., were offended. Whether the stone refers to Christ or to the law is not obvious. 9.33 The quotation combines Isa 28.16; 8.14. For stone as a reference to Christ, see, e.g., Mt 21.42; Acts 4.11; 1 Pet 2.6–8. 10.1 See 9.1–2. 10.2 In Phil 3.6, Paul recalls his own zeal. 10.3 The righteousness that comes from God, lit. "the righteousness of God." The verb submitted shows that here God's righteousness is a power; see notes on 5.21; 6.14; 8.10. 10.4 It is not certain whether end means termination or goal; 8.3–4 suggests the latter. 10.5–21 Paul comments on v. 4: the universal possibility of faith makes Israel's refusal of the gospel even more tragic. 10.5 As Gal 3.10–12 indicates, Paul's emphasis in citing the text from Lev 18.5 seems to be on the concept of "doing," i.e., works (see 9.32). In light of 3.9–20, the text becomes a warning. 10.6–8 In the quotations, Paul para-

comes from faith says, “Do not say in your heart, ‘Who will ascend into heaven?’” (that is, to bring Christ down) ⁷“or ‘Who will descend into the abyss?’” (that is, to bring Christ up from the dead). ⁸But what does it say?

“The word is near you, on your lips and in your heart”

(that is, the word of faith that we proclaim); ⁹because^x if you confess with your lips that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. ¹⁰For one believes with the heart and so is justified, and one confesses with the mouth and so is saved. ¹¹The scripture says, “No one who believes in him will be put to shame.” ¹²For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek; the same Lord is Lord of all and is generous to all who call on him. ¹³For, “Everyone who calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved.”

¹⁴ But how are they to call on one in whom they have not believed? And how are they to believe in one of whom they have never heard? And how are they to hear without someone to proclaim him? ¹⁵And how are they to proclaim him unless they are sent? As it is written, “How beautiful are the feet of those who bring good news!” ¹⁶But not all have obeyed the good news;^y for Isaiah says, “Lord, who has believed our message?” ¹⁷So faith comes from what is heard, and what is heard comes through the word of Christ.^z

¹⁸ But I ask, have they not heard? Indeed they have; for “Their voice has gone out to all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.”

¹⁹ Again I ask, did Israel not understand? First Moses says,

“I will make you jealous of those who are not a nation;
with a foolish nation I will make you angry.”

²⁰ Then Isaiah is so bold as to say,

“I have been found by those who did not seek me;
I have shown myself to those who did not ask for me.”

²¹ But of Israel he says, “All day long I have held out my hands to a disobedient and contrary people.”

Israel's Rejection Is Not Final

11 I ask, then, has God rejected his people? By no means! I myself am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, a member of the tribe of Benjamin. ²God has not rejected his people whom he foreknew. Do you not know what the scripture says of Elijah, how he pleads with God against Israel? ³“Lord, they have killed your prophets, they have demolished your altars; I alone am left, and they are seeking my life.” ⁴But what is the phrases Deut 30.12–14 (see also Bar 3.29–30) as the appeal of righteousness itself. He uses a common Jewish exegetical device (that is . . .) to apply the text to Christ. 10.7 Abyss agrees with an Aramaic paraphrase of Deut 30.13 (see Targum Neofiti 1) and suggests Christ's resurrection from the subterranean realm of the dead. Hebrew and Greek (Septuagint) texts of Deuteronomy instead refer to crossing the sea. 10.9 Confess and believe are two aspects of one act; the formulation reflects Deut 30.14 (cited in 10.8). 10.10 Is saved, lit. “for salvation,” does not conflict with 5.9–10. 10.11 Isa 28.16; Rom 9.33. Not being put to shame means being vindicated (as in 5.5). 10.12 No distinction affirms the parity of Jew and Greek in salvation as in sin (3.22–23). The same Lord. See 3.29–30. Call on, i.e., look to, count on, or trust. The phrase anticipates 10.13 (see also 1 Cor 1.2). 10.13 See Joel 2.32. 10.14–15 A chain of questions leads up to a shortened quotation of Isa 52.7; these verses clarify the motive for Paul's mission. 10.16 Obedied and believed are parallel verbs here; for faith as obedience, see 1.5. Good news, or gospel. See text note y. The quotation is from Isa 53.1. 10.17 Word of Christ, not Jesus' teaching but the proclamation whose content is Christ (see text note z). 10.18 Have they not heard?, a rhetorical question answered in the affirmative by a quotation from Ps 19.4. Their voice, i.e., the voice of the Christian missionaries. 10.19 See Deut 32.21; Paul understands those who are not a nation to be the Gentiles (see 9.25). 10.20 See Isa 65.1, here applied to Gentiles. 10.21 See Isa 65.2, here applied to Israel.

11.1–10 Using diatribal style (see note on 2.1–5), Paul argues that God did not in the past, and does not now, annul Israel's election because the majority have disobeyed. 11.1 I myself. Paul's own Jewish identity shows that the whole people has not been rejected. 11.2 Has not rejected, perhaps an allusion to Ps 94.14, which uses the future tense. 11.3 See 1 Kings 19.10. 11.4 See divine reply to him? "I have kept for myself seven thousand who have not bowed the knee to Baal." ⁵So too at the present time there is a remnant, chosen by grace. ⁶But if it is by grace, it is no longer on the basis of works, otherwise grace would no longer be grace.^a

⁷ What then? Israel failed to obtain what it was seeking. The elect obtained it, but the rest were hardened, ⁸as it is written,

"God gave them a sluggish spirit, eyes that would not see and ears that would not hear, down to this very day."

⁹And David says,

"Let their table become a snare and a trap, a stumbling block and a retribution for them;

¹⁰ let their eyes be darkened so that they cannot see,
and keep their backs forever bent."

The Salvation of the Gentiles

¹¹ So I ask, have they stumbled so as to fall? By no means! But through their stumbling^b salvation has come to the Gentiles, so as to make Israel^c jealous. ¹²Now if their stumbling^b means riches for the world, and if their defeat means riches for Gentiles, how much more will their full inclusion mean!

¹³ Now I am speaking to you Gentiles. Inasmuch then as I am an apostle to the Gentiles, I glorify my ministry ¹⁴in order to make my own people^d jealous, and thus save some of them. ¹⁵For if their rejection is the reconciliation of the world, what will their acceptance be but life from the dead! ¹⁶If the part of the dough offered as first fruits is holy, then the whole batch is holy; and if the root is holy, then the branches also are holy.

¹⁷ But if some of the branches were broken off, and you, a wild olive shoot, were grafted in their place to share the rich root^e of the olive tree, ¹⁸do not boast over the branches. If you do boast, remember that it is not you that support the root, but the root that supports you. ¹⁹You will say, "Branches were broken off so that I might be grafted in." ²⁰That is true. They were broken off because of their unbelief, but you stand only through faith. So do not become proud, but stand in awe. ²¹For if God did not spare the natural branches, perhaps he will not spare you.^f ²²Note then the kindness and the severity of God: severity toward those who have fallen, but God's kindness toward you, provided you continue in his kindness; otherwise you also will be cut off. ²³And even those of Israel,^g if they do not persist in unbelief, will be grafted in, for God has the power to graft them in

1 Kings 19.18, which uses the future tense. 11.5 Remnant. See 9.27–29. 11.6 Grace and works are mutually exclusive; see also 4.2–8; 9.11–16. 11.7 Israel here is empirical Israel as a whole. What it was seeking. See 9.31. The elect are the remnant (11.5), i.e., Jewish Christians. Hardened. See 9.17–18; the passive voice implies divine action, which is confirmed in 11.8. 11.8 The quotation is based roughly on Deut 29.4; Isa 29.10. 11.9–10 Ps 69.22–23, following the Septuagint. 11.11–24 Paul now interprets the significance of Israel's response for the Gentiles. 11.11 Stumbling (being offended by the gospel and refusing it) is temporary, but falling suggests permanent rejection. Salvation has come to the Gentiles. See Acts 13.44–48; 28.25–29. Israel is jealous because gentile Christians have what Israel lacks. 11.12 Full inclusion anticipates 11.26. 11.13 I am speaking to you Gentiles. See Introduction. 11.15 Rejection, refusal in the sense of 11.7–10, not complete repudiation. See 11.1. Acceptance here has the connotation of full inclusion (11.12). God's ultimate acceptance of Israel is of the same order as a resurrection. 11.16 Dough. See Num 15.17–21. First fruits. See note on 8.23; the part (the remnant, the Jewish Christians in the present) implies the whole of Israel. 11.17–24 Paul uses metaphorical language to warn the Gentiles against arrogance. For a tree as an image of Israel, see Ps 92.12–14; Isa 61.3; Jer 11.16–17; Psalms of Solomon 14.3–4. 11.17 Some of the branches, the Jews who rejected the gospel. Wild olive shoot, gentile Christians. Olive tree, the people of God, not simply all descendants of Abraham. 11.19 In diatribe style, Paul formulates a hypothetical objection of gentile Christians (see note on 2.1–5). 11.20 That is true. See 11.11. Unbelief, lit. "unfaith," contrasting with faith. Stand is the opposite of fall in 11.11. Awe, lit. "fear." 11.22 Fallen, i.e., broken off (11.17).

again. ²⁴For if you have been cut from what is by nature a wild olive tree and grafted, contrary to nature, into a cultivated olive tree, how much more will these natural branches be grafted back into their own olive tree.

All Israel Will Be Saved

²⁵ So that you may not claim to be wiser than you are, brothers and sisters,^{h} I want you to understand this mystery: a hardening has come upon part of Israel, until the full number of the Gentiles has come in. ²⁶And so all Israel will be saved; as it is written,

“Out of Zion will come the Deliverer;
he will banish ungodliness from Jacob.”

²⁷ “And this is my covenant with them,
when I take away their sins.”

²⁸As regards the gospel they are enemies of God^{i} for your sake; but as regards election they are beloved, for the sake of their ancestors; ²⁹for the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable. ³⁰Just as you were once disobedient to God but have now received mercy because of their disobedience, ³¹so they have now been disobedient in order that, by the mercy shown to you, they too may now^{j} receive mercy. ³²For God has imprisoned all in disobedience so that he may be merciful to all.

³³ O the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments and how inscrutable his ways!

³⁴ “For who has known the mind of the Lord?

Or who has been his counselor?”

³⁵ “Or who has given a gift to him, to receive a gift in return?”

³⁶For from him and through him and to him are all things. To him be the glory forever. Amen.

The New Life in Christ

12 I appeal to you therefore, brothers and sisters,^{h} by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual^{k} worship. ²Do not be conformed to this world,^{l} but be transformed by the renewing of your minds, so that you may discern what is the will of God—what is good and acceptable and perfect.^{m}

³ For by the grace given to me I say to everyone among you not to think of yourself more highly than you ought to think, but to think with sober judgment, each according to the measure of faith that God has assigned. ⁴For as in one body we have many members, and not all the members have the same function, ⁵so we, who are

11.24 Contrary to nature. Paul knows that his allegory is inconsistent with horticultural practice, but the subject matter, consonant with resurrection (11.15), requires this image. 11.25–36 These verses resolve the problem of Israel and the Gentiles. 11.25 Mystery (see also 16.25; 1 Cor 2.1, 7; 15.51), a disclosed, divine secret plan, as in Dan 2.18–19, 27–30 and often in apocalyptic literature (see, e.g., 2 Esd 12.36–38; 1 Enoch 103.2; 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 81.4). Hardening. See 9.18; 11.7. Until the full number reflects the apocalyptic idea that God sets times and numbers in advance (see Dan 11.36; 2 Esd 4.36–37; Gal 4.4; Rev 6.11; 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 23.4). 11.26a All Israel, no longer a remnant (11.5), will be saved on the same basis as Gentiles, i.e., by faith (11.23). 11.26b–27 See Isa 59.20–21; see also Isa 27.9. Zion, a traditional name of Jerusalem. Ungodliness. The use of the word here and in 1.18 forms a subtle inclusio (a repetition signaling the beginning and end of a unit). 11.28 Of God is an inference (see text note i); “of the gospel” is also possible. Ancestors, i.e., the patriarchs, especially Abraham. See 4.1–25. 11.29 See 9.6. 11.32 See 3.19–20, 23; 5.12–21. 11.34 See Isa 40.13 (Septuagint). 11.35 This quotation is based loosely on Job 41.11. 11.36a For . . . all things, a typical Stoic formulation (see Marcus Aurelius Meditations 4.23); see also 1 Cor 8.6. 11.36b The discussion of Israel’s fate closes with a doxology; see also 1.25; 9.5; 16.27.

⁹ Let love be genuine; hate what is evil, hold fast to what is good; ¹⁰love one another with mutual affection; outdo one another in showing honor. ¹¹Do not lag in zeal, be ardent in spirit, serve the Lord.ⁿ ¹²Rejoice in hope, be patient in suffering, persevere in prayer. ¹³Contribute to the needs of the saints; extend hospitality to strangers.

¹⁴ Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse them. ¹⁵Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. ¹⁶Live in harmony with one another; do not be haughty, but associate with the lowly;^o do not claim to be wiser than you are. ¹⁷Do not repay anyone evil for evil, but take thought for what is noble in the sight of all. ¹⁸If it is possible, so far as it depends on you, live peaceably with all. ¹⁹Beloved, never avenge yourselves, but leave room for the wrath of God;^p for it is written, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, says the Lord." ²⁰No, "if your enemies are hungry, feed them; if they are thirsty, give them something to drink; for by doing this you will heap burning coals on their heads." ²¹Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

Being Subject to Authorities

13 Let every person be subject to the governing authorities; for there is no authority except from God, and those authorities that exist have been instituted by God. ²Therefore whoever resists authority resists what God has appointed, and those who resist will incur judgment. ³For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Do you wish to have no fear of the authority? Then do what is good, and you will receive its approval; ⁴for it is God's servant for your good. But if you do what is wrong, you should be afraid, for the authority^q does not bear the sword in vain! It is the servant of God to execute wrath on the wrongdoer. ⁵Therefore one must be subject, not only because of wrath but also because of conscience. ⁶For the same reason you also pay taxes, for the authorities are God's servants, busy with this very thing. ⁷Pay to all what is due them—taxes to whom taxes are due, revenue to whom revenue is due, respect to whom respect is due, honor to whom honor is due.

12.12–30. 12.9–21 A staccato series of imperatives, drawing on the wisdom tradition and focusing on social relations. 12.9 Hate, the opposite of hold fast. See 1 Thess 5.21–22. 12.12 Suffering. See 5.3. Prayer. See 8.26–27; 1 Thess 5.17. 12.13 Contribute to the needs of the saints, a general counsel, not referring to the funds Paul has collected for the Jerusalem church (see Introduction). Cf. 15.25–26. On saints, see note on 1.7. Hospitality was important, especially for traveling Christians like Phoebe (16.1–2). 12.14 See Lk 6.28; this may be one of Paul's rare allusions to Jesus' teaching. 12.16 Lowly. Text note o recognizes that the Greek term can be either masculine or neuter. Wiser. See 11.25; this counsel perhaps echoes Prov 3.7. 12.17 Repay . . . evil for evil. See 1 Thess 5.15; 1 Pet 3.9; cf. Ex 21.23–25. Noble in the sight of all. See 2 Cor 8.21. 12.18 Live peaceably. See Mk 9.50; 2 Cor 13.11; 1 Thess 5.13; Heb 12.14; see also Ps 34.14. 12.19 Never avenge yourselves. See Prov 20.22; 24.29. The wrath. See 1.18; 2.5–11; 5.9. The quotation is from

Deut 32.35; see also Heb 10.30. 12.20 See Prov 25.21–22; see also Mt 5.44; 25.35; Lk 6.27. 12.21 See 12.17.

13.1–7 Paul urges submission to civil authorities (see also 1 Pet 2.13–14; cf. 1 Tim 2.1–2). The transition from 12.21 is abrupt. 13.1 This verse states the basic injunction that the paragraph explains and justifies. It is most likely that the governing authorities are government officials and not angelic powers (cf. 8.37–39; 1 Cor 15.24–27; Gal 4.8–11). Instituted by God. This concept is also expressed in the Jewish wisdom tradition (e.g., Prov 8.15–16; Wis 6.1–3; Sir 10.4–5) as well as in apocalyptic literature (e.g., Dan 2.37–38; 4.17, 25, 32; 1 Enoch 46.5). 13.4 The sword represents capital punishment. 13.5 Wrath. See note on 1.18. Conscience (see 2.15), one's inner judge of right and wrong. 13.6 Servants renders a Greek word used for persons performing public functions, especially cultic activities; Paul uses it of himself in 15.16. 13.7 It is not clear whether Paul is alluding here to a teaching of Jesus (see

Love for One Another

8 Owe no one anything, except to love one another; for the one who loves another has fulfilled the law. ⁹The commandments, "You shall not commit adultery; You shall not murder; You shall not steal; You shall not covet"; and any other commandment, are summed up in this word, "Love your neighbor as yourself." ¹⁰Love does no wrong to a neighbor; therefore, love is the fulfilling of the law.

An Urgent Appeal

11 Besides this, you know what time it is, how it is now the moment for you to wake from sleep. For salvation is nearer to us now than when we became believers; ¹²the night is far gone, the day is near. Let us then lay aside the works of darkness and put on the armor of light; ¹³let us live honorably as in the day, not in reveling and drunkenness, not in debauchery and licentiousness, not in quarreling and jealousy. ¹⁴Instead, put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to gratify its desires.

Do Not Judge Another

14 Welcome those who are weak in faith,^r but not for the purpose of quarreling over opinions. ²Some believe in eating anything, while the weak eat only vegetables. ³Those who eat must not despise those who abstain, and those who abstain must not pass judgment on those who eat; for God has welcomed them. ⁴Who are you to pass judgment on servants of another? It is before their own lord that they stand or fall. And they will be upheld, for the Lord^s is able to make them stand.

⁵Some judge one day to be better than another, while others judge all days to be alike. Let all be fully convinced in their own minds. ⁶Those who observe the day, observe it in honor of the Lord. Also those who eat, eat in honor of the Lord, since they give thanks to God; while those who abstain, abstain in honor of the Lord and give thanks to God.

⁷We do not live to ourselves, and we do not die to ourselves. ⁸If we live, we live to the Lord, and if we die, we die to the Lord; so then, whether we live or whether

Mk 12.13–17). 13.8–10 Obeying the commandment to love fulfills the law. 13.8 Owe translates the same Greek word as due in 13.7. 13.9 The list of commandments is drawn from Ex 20.13–17; Deut 5.17–21; see also Rom 2.21–22; Mt 19.18–19; Mk 10.19. "Love . . . as yourself" is from Lev 19.18, which is cited also by Jesus in Mt 5.43; 19.19 (but not as a summary of the law); see also Gal 5.14; Jas 2.8. 13.10 Love does no wrong. See 1 Cor 13.4–6. On the fulfilling of the law, see 8.4; Gal 5.14. 13.11–14 Before turning to the issue of the weak and the strong (chs. 14–15), Paul reminds the readers of the specifically Christian perspective from which the preceding injunctions must be viewed. 13.11 Wake, a term for summoning to moral action in view of the time (not a date but a significant moment). See also Mk 13.35–36; Eph 5.14; 1 Thess 5.6–7. Salvation is nearer, an allusion to the coming of Christ, which is not otherwise mentioned in Romans. See 1 Cor 15.20–24; 2 Cor 5.1–5; 1 Thess 4.15–18; see also Mk 1.15; 13.28–29. 13.12 The metaphors of darkness and light suggest moral change from evil deeds to good; see 1 Thess 5.4–11; see also Prov 4.16–19; Wis 17.1–18.4. Changing clothes (here armor) was a common metaphor for replacing vices with virtues; see Job 29.14; Eph 4.22–24;

6.13–17; Col 3.9–14; 1 Thess 5.8. 13.14 Put on . . . Christ. See Gal 3.27. On desires of the flesh, see 7.5; 8.5–8; Gal 5.16, 24.

14.1–12 Paul outlines his position regarding the tension between those who scrupulously observe religiously grounded regulations governing dietary matters and special days (the weak) and those who insist on their freedom in Christ to ignore those regulations (the strong). For a comparable discussion, see 1 Cor 8, 10. 14.1 Weak in faith (see text note ^r) is clearly not the self-designation of a group but an epithet used by its opponents, the strong (see 15.1), to whom this exhortation is addressed. 14.2 The strong believe in eating anything, while the weak eat only vegetables. Although vegetarianism was practiced in some religious and philosophical circles, the origin of this Christian vegetarianism is unknown (but see Dan 1.1–17). 14.3 Eat, i.e., eat anything they choose. 14.4 They stand or fall, i.e., their behavior is deemed acceptable or unacceptable. 14.5 One day, i.e., a holy day, perhaps the sabbath. See Ex 20.8–11; Deut 5.12–15. 14.6 In honor of the Lord. The motivation of both groups is identical; cf. 1.21. 14.7–8 Live to / die to means "live/die for the sake of" (see 2 Cor 5.15; Gal 2.19); for a different use of "dying to," see we die, we are the Lord's. ⁹For to this end Christ died and lived again, so that he might be Lord of both the dead and the living.

¹⁰ Why do you pass judgment on your brother or sister?^t Or you, why do you despise your brother or sister?^t For we will all stand before the judgment seat of God.^u ¹¹For it is written,

"As I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall give praise to^v God."

¹²So then, each of us will be accountable to God.^w

Do Not Make Another Stumble

¹³ Let us therefore no longer pass judgment on one another, but resolve instead never to put a stumbling block or hindrance in the way of another.^x ¹⁴I know and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus that nothing is unclean in itself; but it is unclean for anyone who thinks it unclean. ¹⁵If your brother or sister^t is being injured by what you eat, you are no longer walking in love. Do not let what you eat cause the ruin of one for whom Christ died. ¹⁶So do not let your good be spoken of as evil. ¹⁷For the kingdom of God is not food and drink but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. ¹⁸The one who thus serves Christ is acceptable to God and has human approval. ¹⁹Let us then pursue what makes for peace and for mutual upbuilding. ²⁰Do not, for the sake of food, destroy the work of God. Everything is indeed clean, but it is wrong for you to make others fall by what you eat; ²¹it is good not to eat meat or drink wine or do anything that makes your brother or sister^t stumble.^y ²²The faith that you have, have as your own conviction before God. Blessed are those who have no reason to condemn themselves because of what they approve. ²³But those who have doubts are condemned if they eat, because they do not act from faith;^z for whatever does not proceed from faith^z is sin.^a

Please Others, Not Yourselves

15 We who are strong ought to put up with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves. ²Each of us must please our neighbor for the good purpose of building up the neighbor. ³For Christ did not please himself; but, as it is written, "The insults of those who insult you have fallen on me." ⁴For whatever was written in former days was written for our instruction, so that by steadfastness and by the encouragement of the scriptures we might have hope. ⁵May the God of steadfastness and encouragement grant you to live in harmony with one another, in accordance with Christ Jesus, ⁶so that together you may with one voice glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Paul can speak interchangeably of the judgment seat of God and Christ (see 2 Cor 5.10). 14.11 The quotation is a composite one drawn primarily from Isa 45.23; see also Phil 2.10–11. 14.13–23 Paul, while implicitly agreeing with the strong, emphasizes their responsibility for the weak. 14.14 The emphatic words in the Lord Jesus (see also Gal 5.10; 1 Thess 4.1) point to the authority of the risen Lord, not to the words of Jesus as reported in Mk 7.15–19. The distinction between clean and unclean (i.e., taboo) food is basic to Jewish dietary law (see Lev 11). 14.15 Injured, lit. "grieved" or "offended." See 14.20–21. 14.17 Kingdom of God. This is one of Paul's rare uses of this phrase; see 1 Cor 4.20; 6.9–10; 15.50; Gal 5.21; 1 Thess 2.12. 14.19 Pursue . . . peace. See note on 12.18. Upbuilding the church is an ongoing Pauline concern; see 15.2; 1 Cor 8.1; 14.26; 2 Cor 10.8; 12.19; 13.10 (perhaps an echo of Jer 42.10); Eph 4.29. 14.20 Everything is . . . clean (see also Mk 7.19; Acts 10.15), perhaps a slogan of the strong, here affirmed but qualified in favor of the community's well-being. Paul takes the same approach in 1 Cor 8.1, 8–9; 10.23. Make others fall, i.e., cause them to violate their faith. See 14.23; 1 Cor 8.7–13.

15.1–6 A plea for harmony based on an appeal to Christ's example. 15.1 Paul identifies himself with the strong, mentioned here for the first time. The wordplay is difficult to translate. Strong . . . failings of the weak, lit. "the strong . . . weaknesses of the unstrong." 15.3b Ps 69.9. 15.4 Written for our instruction. See 1 Cor 9.10; 10.11. 15.5 Live in harmony. See 12.16.

The Gospel for Jews and Gentiles Alike

7 Welcome one another, therefore, just as Christ has welcomed you, for the glory of God. 8 For I tell you that Christ has become a servant of the circumcised on behalf of the truth of God in order that he might confirm the promises given to the patriarchs, 9 and in order that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy. As it is written,

“Therefore I will confess^b you among the Gentiles, and sing praises to your name”;
10 and again he says, “Rejoice, O Gentiles, with his people”;

11 and again,
“Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles, and let all the peoples praise him”;

12 and again Isaiah says,
“The root of Jesse shall come,
the one who rises to rule
the Gentiles;

in him the Gentiles shall hope.”

13 May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that you may abound in hope by the power of the Holy Spirit.

Paul's Reason for Writing So Boldly

14 I myself feel confident about you, my brothers and sisters,^c that you yourselves are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, and able to instruct one another. 15 Nevertheless on some points I have written to you rather boldly by way of reminder, because of the grace given me by God 16 to be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles in the priestly service of the gospel of God, so that the offering of the Gentiles may be acceptable, sanctified by the Holy Spirit. 17 In Christ Jesus, then, I have reason to boast of my work for God. 18 For I will not venture to speak of anything except what Christ has accomplished^d through me to win obedience from the Gentiles, by word and deed, 19 by the power of signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God,^e so that from Jerusalem and as far around as Illyricum I have fully proclaimed the good news^f of Christ. 20 Thus I make it my ambition to proclaim the good news,^f not where Christ has already been named, so that I do not build on someone else's foundation, 21 but as it is written,

“Those who have never been told of him shall see,
and those who have never heard of him shall understand.”

15.7–13 The paragraph concludes the counsel by recalling major themes in the Letter. 15.7 Welcome one another. Cf. 14.1; 15.5. Christ has welcomed you. Cf. 14.3. 15.8 Only here does Paul speak of Christ as a servant; cf. Mk 10.43–45. The circumcised, i.e., the Jews. On the promises, see 4.13–25; 9.4; 11.29. 15.9–12 A string of quotations emphasizes the inclusion of Gentiles. 15.9b Ps 18.49. 15.10 Deut 32.43 (Septuagint). With, present only in the Greek version, is essential for Paul's argument. 15.11 See Ps 117.1. 15.12 Isa 11.10 (Septuagint). Root, or shoot / offshoot. Jesse was the father of David (see Ruth 4.17; 1 Sam 17.17; Mt 1.6), hence the root of Jesse is the Son of David, the Messiah; see Isa 11.1; Rev 5.5; 22.16; cf. Jer 23.5; 33.15. Rises here probably alludes to Jesus' resurrection. 15.13 A benediction marks the conclusion of the discourse begun at 1.18.

15.14–21 Paul's reflections on his past ministry provide a bridge to his future plans.

15.15 Aware that he has written to a Christian community not founded by him, Paul heads off resentment by referring to the Letter as a reminder (see also 6.3, 6, 9; 7.1; 8.22, 28; 13.11). The grace given me, i.e., Paul's apostleship; see 1.5. 15.16 Paul was not a priest; his ministry was priestly (sacral; see note on 13.6) because through it the Gentiles would be presented to God as an offering (see Isa 66.20). 15.17 Paul's boast stems from legitimate pride (see 1 Cor 15.31; 2 Cor 1.12–14; 7.4); it is not ironic as in 2 Cor 10.8–12.10. See notes on 5.2, 11. 15.18 Obedience. See 1.5. 15.19 Signs and wonders, an OT phrase (e.g., Ex 7.3; Neh 9.10; Isa 8.18; Jer 32.20) used in the NT for the miraculous events marking the Christian mission. See Acts 4.30; 14.3; 2 Cor 12.12. An arc from Jerusalem to the eastern shore of the Adriatic Sea indicates the range of Paul's work; nothing is known of his activity in Illyricum itself. Good news, i.e., the gospel. See text note f. 15.20 See 2 Cor 10.15–16. 15.21 See Isa 52.15

Paul's Plan to Visit Rome

22 This is the reason that I have so often been hindered from coming to you. ²³But now, with no further place for me in these regions, I desire, as I have for many years, to come to you ²⁴when I go to Spain. For I do hope to see you on my journey and to be sent on by you, once I have enjoyed your company for a little while. ²⁵At present, however, I am going to Jerusalem in a ministry to the saints; ²⁶for Macedonia and Achaia have been pleased to share their resources with the poor among the saints at Jerusalem. ²⁷They were pleased to do this, and indeed they owe it to them; for if the Gentiles have come to share in their spiritual blessings, they ought also to be of service to them in material things. ²⁸So, when I have completed this, and have delivered to them what has been collected,^g I will set out by way of you to Spain; ²⁹and I know that when I come to you, I will come in the fullness of the blessing^h of Christ.

³⁰ I appeal to you, brothers and sisters,ⁱ by our Lord Jesus Christ and by the love of the Spirit, to join me in earnest prayer to God on my behalf, ³¹that I may be rescued from the unbelievers in Judea, and that my ministry^j to Jerusalem may be acceptable to the saints, ³²so that by God's will I may come to you with joy and be refreshed in your company. ³³The God of peace be with all of you.^k Amen.

Personal Greetings

16 I commend to you our sister Phoebe, a deacon^l of the church at Cenchreae, ²so that you may welcome her in the Lord as is fitting for the saints, and help her in whatever she may require from you, for she has been a benefactor of many and of myself as well.

³ Greet Prisca and Aquila, who work with me in Christ Jesus, ⁴and who risked their necks for my life, to whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles. ⁵Greet also the church in their house. Greet my beloved Epaenetus, who was the first convert^m in Asia for Christ. ⁶Greet Mary, who has worked very hard among you. ⁷Greet Andronicus and Junia,ⁿ my relatives^o who were in prison with me; they are prominent among the apostles, and they were in Christ before I was. ⁸Greet Ampliatus, my beloved in the Lord. ⁹Greet Urbanus, our co-worker in Christ, and my beloved Stachys. ¹⁰Greet Apelles, who is approved in

THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS

Author, Date, and Circumstances of Writing

THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL to the Corinthians was written by the apostle Paul about 54 C.E. to a congregation that he had founded several years earlier in the capital city of the Roman province of Achaia (Acts 18.1–18; see also 1 Cor 2.1–5; 2 Cor 1.19). Corinth was a large and prospering urban center with an ethnically, culturally, and religiously diverse population. Paul writes from Ephesus, where he intends to stay for a while before traveling to Macedonia and then on to Corinth (16.5–9; see also 4.19–21). Meanwhile, Timothy has been sent ahead (4.17; 16.10–11). The bearers of the present letter may have been the Corinthians named in 16.17.

The Corinthian Congregation

Paul's congregation was predominantly gentile (12.2), and it probably mirrored the diversity of the city's population. Among its members were Prisca and Aquila (16.19; Rom 16.3–4; Acts 18.2), Achaicus, Fortunatus, and Stephanas (16.17; see also 1.16; 16.15), Crispus and Gaius (1.14; Acts 18.8; see also Rom 16.23), and Phoebe (Rom 16.1). Some, like the Erastus mentioned in Rom 16.23, must have been people of considerable prominence, but most were persons of lesser means and of lower social standing (1.26). It is likely that there were small groups of believers situated in different quarters of the city, who would then regularly "come together as a church" for a common meal and worship (11.18; 14.26).

Occasion and Purpose

Paul writes in part to answer a letter (which has not survived) from the Corinthians seeking his views about several disputed matters (7.1). In addition he is responding to reports, conveyed by word of mouth, about serious disorders within the congregation (1.11; 5.1; 11.18): the jockeying of rival groups for control (1.10–17), an indifference to cases of flagrant immorality (5.1–13), a disregard for those who are not fully enlightened about appropriate Christian conduct (8.1–11.1), and the marginalizing of the congregation's disadvantaged members (11.17–34; see also 12.20–26). In the midst of this, Paul's own apostolic authority seems to have been called into question (e.g., 1.12; 3.1–4.5; ch. 9). Overall, the letter summons this fractious congregation to manifest the unity and concord that, in Paul's view, necessarily go along with their belonging to Christ. It opens with a call to unity (1.10–17), its central counsels are informed by the view of love that is set out in 8.1–3 and ch. 13, and it closes with an appeal to let love be the governing power in the life of the community (16.14).

The Views of the Corinthians

The disputes and disorders in the Corinthian congregation seem to have been nurtured by particular religious views that, from the apostle's standpoint, departed in significant ways from the gospel that he had preached in Corinth. Specifically, Paul is critical of those who boast that they possess special religious "wisdom" or "knowledge" (1.17, 18–25; 2.6, 11; 3.18–20; 8.1–3) and who regard certain spiritual gifts, particularly ecstatic speech, as evidence of a higher spiritual status (chs. 12–14). The Corinthians also seem to believe that they are in some sense already "reigning" with Christ in glory (4.8); and, perhaps as a consequence, they hope for little beyond this present life (15.12–19).

With its two ports, Lechaeon on the Gulf of Corinth and Cenchreae on the Saronic Gulf, Corinth was a commercial center and a cosmopolitan city.

Character and Style

This letter exhibits many of the stylistic and rhetorical conventions of other ancient Hellenistic letters, yet Paul's sense of writing as an apostle to a Christian congregation of his own founding has also left its mark. Broadly speaking, 1 Corinthians is a letter of exhortation and pastoral counsel. In formulating and supporting his appeals and instructions, Paul invokes scripture (e.g., 1.31; 14.21), specifically Christian traditions (e.g., 15.3–5), sayings attributed to Jesus (7.10–11; 9.14), his own apostolic authority and example (e.g., 4.14–17), and also conventional practices and wisdom (e.g., 11.13–16; 15.33). In addition, he reinforces his argument with reprimands (e.g., 6.5; 11.22), irony (e.g., 4.8–13), threats (e.g., 3.17–18; 4.19–21; 6.9–10), and (less frequently) praise (e.g., 11.2). Primarily, however, he urges his readers to reflect on what it means to have been called by God from their pagan past into a new life “in Christ Jesus” (e.g., 1.30; 6.11, 12–20; 7.17–24; 12.12–13).

Relation to Other Letters

Despite the heading given to it by the ancient editors of Paul's letters, 1 Corinthians is at least the apostle's second letter to this congregation. An earlier one, mentioned in 5.9, seems to be lost (although some believe that a fragment survives in 2 Cor 6.14–7.1). What we know as 2 Corinthians, even if it is a composite, dates from a year or so later. Victor Paul Furnish

Salutation

1 Paul, called to be an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and our brother Sosthenes,

2 To the church of God that is in Corinth, to those who are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, together with all those who in every place call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, both their Lord^a and ours:

a Gk theirs b Other ancient authorities lack my

1.1–3 The salutations of Paul's Letters follow a similar pattern: the name(s) of the sender(s), an indication of those addressed, and an apostolic blessing; see especially 2 Cor 1.1–2. 1.1 An apostle, lit. “one who has been sent” (thus, commissioned); see 9.1–2; 15.9–10; Gal 1.13–17. The Sosthenes mentioned here as a brother (in Christ) and co-sender of the letter is perhaps the same person named in Acts 18.17 as an official of the Corinthian synagogue. Paul refers to him nowhere else. 1.2 As in 10.32 (and perhaps 11.22), the church of God means the church universal. Sanctified (see 1.30; 6.11) and saints (see 6.1, 2) are from the same Greek root word meaning “to make holy.” In biblical usage, to be holy means primarily to be set apart for the service of the holy God (see Lev 22.32).

1.4–9 The thanksgiving paragraphs in Paul's Letters (see, e.g., Rom 1.8–15; Phil 1.3–11) usually introduce some of the topics that will come up later. 1.5 Speech and knowledge of every kind includes the spiritual gifts (see 1.7) of ecstatic speech and special religious wisdom, on both of which the congregation prided itself. Paul every way you have been enriched in him, in speech and knowledge of every kind—⁶just as the testimony of^c Christ has been strengthened among you—⁷so that you are not lacking in any spiritual gift as you wait for the revealing of our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁸He will also strengthen you to the end, so that you may be blameless on the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁹God is faithful; by him you were called into the fellowship of his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

Divisions in the Church

¹⁰ Now I appeal to you, brothers and sisters,^d by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that all of you be in agreement and that there be no divisions among you, but that you be united in the same mind and the same purpose. ¹¹For it has been reported to me by Chloe's people that there are quarrels among you, my brothers and sisters.^e ¹²What I mean is that each of you says, "I belong to Paul," or "I belong to Apollos," or "I belong to Cephas," or "I belong to Christ." ¹³Has Christ been divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul? ¹⁴I thank God^f that I baptized none of you except Crispus and Gaius, ¹⁵so that no one can say that you were baptized in my name. ¹⁶(I did baptize also the household of Stephanas; beyond that, I do not know whether I baptized anyone else.) ¹⁷For Christ did not send me to baptize but to proclaim the gospel, and not with eloquent wisdom, so that the cross of Christ might not be emptied of its power.

Christ the Power and Wisdom of God

¹⁸ For the message about the cross is foolishness to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God. ¹⁹For it is written,

"I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and the discernment of the discerning I will thwart."

²⁰ Where is the one who is wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the debater of this age? Has not God made foolish the wisdom of the world? ²¹For since, in the wisdom of God, the world did not know God through wisdom, God decided, through the foolishness of our proclamation, to save those who believe. ²²For Jews demand signs and Greeks desire wisdom, ²³but we proclaim Christ crucified, a stumbling block to Jews and foolishness to Gentiles, ²⁴but to those who are the called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God. ²⁵For God's foolishness is wiser than human wisdom, and God's weakness is stronger than human strength.

²⁶ Consider your own call, brothers and sisters:^d not many of you were wise

^c Or to ^d Gk brothers ^e Gk my brothers
^f Other ancient authorities read I am thankful will later seek to correct their views on these (see 1.18–3.4; chs. 12–14). 1.7–8 Spiritual gift. See 12.4. Christ's revealing will be when he returns on the last day to render judgment (3.12–15; 4.4–5; 5.5) and to take part in God's final victory (15.24–28). 1.9 God is faithful. See 10.13; 2 Cor 1.18; 1 Thess 5.24; also Deut 7.9; Ps 145.13. Fellowship. See also 10.16, where the same Greek word is translated sharing.

1.10–17 The breakdown of community among the Corinthian Christians is one of Paul's chief concerns in this Letter; see also chs. 3–4; 8.1–11.1; 11.17–34; chs. 12–14. 1.11 Chloe's people could be either family members, slaves, or business associates. Chloe was likely a Christian woman of some prominence, either in Corinth or in Ephesus. 1.12 Apollos seems to have spent time in Corinth (Acts 18.24–19.1) and to have been popular there; see also 3.4–6, 22; 4.6; 16.12. However, there is no indication that Cephas (the Aramaic name by which Paul usually refers to Peter; see 3.22; 9.5; 15.5) had ever been in Corinth.

Whether some actually boasted "I belong to Christ" is uncertain; and if they did, what they meant by the slogan remains unclear. 1.13 The questions presume the obvious answer, "No!" 1.14–17 Paul does not mean to oppose the practice of baptism (see 12.12–13; Rom 6.3–4; Gal 3.27–28); he only opposes appealing to it to support factions. 1.14–16 For Crispus, Gaius, and Stephanas, see Introduction. 1.17 As an apostle, Paul is obligated, above all, to proclaim the gospel (9.16) and in particular the cross of Christ; see also 1.18, 23; 2.2; Gal 3.1.

1.18–31 These paragraphs, along with 2.1–16, support the appeal of 1.10, which is resumed and continued in chs. 3–4. 1.18 Perishing and being saved describe nonbelievers (2 Cor 4.3) and believers (1 Cor 1.21), respectively; see also 2 Cor 2.15. The power of God. See 1.24; 2.4–5; Rom 1.16. 1.19 Isa 29.14; see also Ps 33.10. 1.22 Greeks, Gentiles (1.23). 1.23 Stumbling block, lit. "scandal." 1.24 The called, those converted to the gospel; see also 1.2, 26; Rom by human standards,^g not many were powerful, not many were of noble birth. ²⁷But God chose what is foolish in the world to shame the wise; God chose what is weak in the world to shame the strong; ²⁸God chose what is low and despised in the world, things that are not, to reduce to nothing things that are, ²⁹so that no one^h might boast in the presence of God. ³⁰He is the source of your life in Christ Jesus, who became for us wisdom from God, and righteousness and sanctification and redemption, ³¹in order that, as it is written, "Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord."

Proclaiming Christ Crucified

2 When I came to you, brothers and sisters,^j I did not come proclaiming the mystery^k of God to you in lofty words or wisdom. ²For I decided to know nothing among you except Jesus Christ, and him crucified. ³And I came to you in weakness and in fear and in much trembling. ⁴My speech and my proclamation were not with plausible words of wisdom,^l but with a demonstration of the Spirit and of power, ⁵so that your faith might rest not on human wisdom but on the power of God.

The True Wisdom of God

6 Yet among the mature we do speak wisdom, though it is not a wisdom of this age or of the rulers of this age, who are doomed to perish. ⁷But we speak God's wisdom, secret and hidden, which God decreed before the ages for our glory. ⁸None of the rulers of this age understood this; for if they had, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. ⁹But, as it is written,

"What no eye has seen, nor ear heard,
nor the human heart conceived, what God has prepared for those who love him"—

¹⁰these things God has revealed to us through the Spirit; for the Spirit searches everything, even the depths of God. ¹¹For what human being knows what is truly human except the human spirit that is within? So also no one comprehends what is truly God's except the Spirit of God. ¹²Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit that is from God, so that we may understand the gifts bestowed on us by God. ¹³And we speak of these things in words not taught by human wisdom but taught by the Spirit, interpreting spiritual things to those who are spiritual.^m

¹⁴Those who are unspiritualⁿ do not receive the gifts of God's Spirit, for they are foolishness to them, and they are unable to understand them because they are spiritually discerned. ¹⁵Those who

8.28. Both Jews and Greeks. See 12.13; Rom 1.16. 1.30 God's own righteousness is bestowed as believers are "justified" (put right with God) through Christ; see 6.11; Rom 3.21–26; 5.17–21. Sanctification. See 1.2. Redemption, to be "bought back" into one's appropriate relationship with God, as a slave is redeemed from a master or prisoners of war are redeemed from their captors; see 6.19–20; 7.23; Rom 3.24; 8.23. 1.31 Jer 9.24; see also 1 Cor 15.31.

2.1–5 Paul reminds the Corinthians of their first hearing of the gospel; see also 15.1–2. 2.1 When I came to you, at first; see Introduction. The mystery of God, the gospel, which seems like foolishness to nonbelievers (1.18–21; see also 2.6–8). 2.4 Paul's speech was not ornamented like that of the popular orators of the day; see 1.17; 2 Cor 10.10; also Ex 4.10–11 (Moses).

2.6–16 The "foolishness" of the gospel (1.21) is now shown to be the highest wisdom. 2.6 The mature. Cf. Paul's description of the Corinthians as infants in 3.1–2. The rulers of this age, probably the cosmic powers hostile to God (see 15.24–26), although political rulers may (also) be in mind. 2.7 Secret and hidden, lit. "in a mystery, hidden," yet in some sense disclosed in the gospel; see 2.1; 4.1. Before the ages, before creation, from eternity. Our glory looks ahead to the fullness of salvation, which, according to Paul, will be granted only after this age has passed away; see, e.g., Rom 5.2; 8.18–21; 2 Cor 3.18; 1 Thess 2.12. 2.8 Paul refers to Christ as the Lord of glory only here. 2.9 The source of this quotation is not known; but see Isa 64.4; 52.15. Love him. See also 8.3. 2.12 We have received . . . the Spirit perhaps refers to the experience of baptism; see 12.13; also 3.16; 6.19; Rom 8; 2 Cor 1.22; Gal 3.3; 4.6. The gifts bestowed on us by God, all that God has given (see 4.7), not just special gifts like speaking in tongues. 2.13 And we speak . . . by the Spirit. See 2.4. 2.14 The gifts of God's Spirit. See 2.12.

But we have the mind of Christ.

On Divisions in the Corinthian Church

3 And so, brothers and sisters,^o I could not speak to you as spiritual people, but rather as people of the flesh, as infants in Christ. ²I fed you with milk, not solid food, for you were not ready for solid food. Even now you are still not ready, ³for you are still of the flesh. For as long as there is jealousy and quarreling among you, are you not of the flesh, and behaving according to human inclinations? ⁴For when one says, "I belong to Paul," and another, "I belong to Apollos," are you not merely human?

⁵ What then is Apollos? What is Paul? Servants through whom you came to believe, as the Lord assigned to each. ⁶I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the growth. ⁷So neither the one who plants nor the one who waters is anything, but only God who gives the growth. ⁸The one who plants and the one who waters have a common purpose, and each will receive wages according to the labor of each. ⁹For we are God's servants, working together; you are God's field, God's building.

10 According to the grace of God

given to me, like a skilled master builder I laid a foundation, and someone else is building on it. Each builder must choose with care how to build on it. ¹¹For no one can lay any foundation other than the one that has been laid; that foundation is Jesus Christ. ¹²Now if anyone builds on the foundation with gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw—¹³the work of each builder will become visible, for the Day will disclose it, because it will be revealed with fire, and the fire will test what sort of work each has done. ¹⁴If what has been built on the foundation survives, the builder will receive a reward. ¹⁵If the work is burned up, the builder will suffer loss; the builder will be saved, but only as through fire.

¹⁶ Do you not know that you are God's temple and that God's Spirit dwells in you?^p ¹⁷If anyone destroys God's temple, God will destroy that person. For God's temple is holy, and you are that temple.

¹⁸ Do not deceive yourselves. If you think that you are wise in this age, you should become fools so that you may become wise. ¹⁹For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written,

"He catches the wise in their craftiness," ²⁰and again,

"The Lord knows the thoughts of the wise, that they are futile."

^o Gk brothers ^p In verses 16 and 17 the Greek word for you is plural

2.16 "For who . . . instruct him?" Isa 40.13, cited also in Wis 9.13. Paul speaks of the mind of Christ only here, but see Rom 8.9; Gal 4.6; Phil 1.19.

3.1–23 Paul now returns to the specific issue of disunity and rivalries within the congregation (see 1.10–17), a major concern throughout this Letter. 3.1 Spiritual people, those who have a mature understanding of the gospel. People of the flesh, those who are attached to worldly wisdom and values. 3.2 With milk, perhaps as a nursing mother; see 1 Thess 2.7. Paul's concern is similarly expressed in 14.20 (see also 13.11). 3.3 Jealousy and quarreling. See 1.10–11. 3.4 "I belong to Paul." See 1.12. 3.5 Servants, as in 2 Cor 6.4; see also Rom 15.8, referring to Christ. Elsewhere the same Greek word (diakonos) is translated as "minister(s)" (e.g., 2 Cor 3.6) or "deacon(s)" (Rom 16.1; Phil 1.1). The Lord, here a reference to God; see 3.6, 9. 3.6 I planted, a metaphor for preaching the gospel from which the Corinthian church grew; see also 2.1–5; 4.15; 9.1–2, 11; 15.1. Apollos watered. See Acts 18.24–19.1. 3.8 The wages will be paid at the final judgment; see also 3.12–15. 3.10 The grace of God, manifested in Paul's conversion and call to apostleship; see also 15.9–10; Rom 1.5; 12.3; 15.15; Gal 1.15; 2.9. I laid a foundation, a second metaphor for preaching the gospel in Corinth; see also note on 3.6. 3.13 The Day, of final judgment, as in 1.7–8; see also 5.5; Rom 2.5, 16; 13.12; 2 Cor 1.14; Phil 1.6, 10; 2.16; 1 Thess 5.2. 4. 3.14 Reward. The same Greek word is translated wages in 3.8. 3.15 Only as through fire probably means "just barely" (see Am 4.11; Zech 3.2; Jude 23). 3.16 You are God's temple describes the Corinthian congregation as a whole; see also 2 Cor 6.16; Ezek 37.26–28; cf. 1 Cor 6.19. 3.17 Holy. See note on 1.2. 3.18 This appeal is based on the argument developed in 1.18–25. 3.19 Paul quotes Job 5.12–13. 3.20 Ps 93.11.

²¹So let no one boast about human leaders. For all things are yours, ²²whether Paul or Apollos or Cephas or the world or life or death or the present or the future—all belong to you, ²³and you belong to Christ, and Christ belongs to God.

The Ministry of the Apostles

4 Think of us in this way, as servants of Christ and stewards of God's mysteries. ²Moreover, it is required of stewards that they be found trustworthy. ³But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged by you or by any human court. I do not even judge myself. ⁴I am not aware of anything against myself, but I am not thereby acquitted. It is the Lord who judges me. ⁵Therefore do not pronounce judgment before the time, before the Lord comes, who will bring to light the things now hidden in darkness and will disclose the purposes of the heart. Then each one will receive commendation from God.

⁶ I have applied all this to Apollos and myself for your benefit, brothers and sisters,^q so that you may learn through us the meaning of the saying, "Nothing beyond what is written," so that none of you will be puffed up in favor of one against another. ⁷For who sees anything different in you?^r What do you have that you did not receive? And if you received it, why do you boast as if it were not a gift?

⁸ Already you have all you want! Already you have become rich! Quite apart from us you have become kings! Indeed, I wish that you had become kings, so that we might be kings with you! ⁹For I think that God has exhibited us apostles as last of all, as though sentenced to death, because we have become a spectacle to the world, to angels and to mortals. ¹⁰We are fools for the sake of Christ, but you are wise in Christ. We are weak, but you are strong. You are held in honor, but we in disrepute. ¹¹To the present hour we are hungry and thirsty, we are poorly clothed and beaten and homeless, ¹²and we grow weary from the work of our own hands. When reviled, we bless; when persecuted, we endure; ¹³when slandered, we speak kindly. We have become like the rubbish of the world, the dregs of all things, to this very day.

Fatherly Admonition

¹⁴ I am not writing this to make you ashamed, but to admonish you as my beloved children. ¹⁵For though you might have ten thousand guardians in Christ, you do not have many fathers. Indeed, in Christ Jesus I became your father through the gospel. ¹⁶I appeal to you, then, be imitators of me. ¹⁷For this reason

4.1–13 Here, as in 1.10–17; ch. 3, Paul attempts to counteract the rivalries and jealousies that have developed in the Corinthian congregation. 4.1 Servants, or "helpers" ("attendant" in Lk 4.20). In 3.5 servants translates a different Greek word. Stewards, or "managers"; the word was often used, as in Lk 12.42–48, of the slave who supervised household business. See also Gal 4.2 (translated as "guardians"); 1 Pet 4.10. God's mysteries, as disclosed in the gospel; see 2.1, 6–16; also 13.2. 4.4–5 The Lord, Christ. Concerning the final judgment, see especially 3.12–15; 5.5, 13; 6.2–3, 9–10. 4.6 Apollos. See 1.12. How Paul wishes to apply the slogan "Nothing beyond what is written" remains unclear. 4.7 Everything, even life itself, is to be received as God's gift; see also 2.12; 3.21–22. 4.8–10 Paul writes with irony, critical of the Corinthians' presumptuous claims about their religious status. 4.9 Spectacle evokes the image of prisoners of war being publicly vilified in an outdoor theater. 4.11–13 Similar lists of hardships appear in 2 Cor 4.8–9; 6.4–5; 11.23–29; 12.10; Rom 8.35. 4.12 When reviled, we bless perhaps echoes the saying attributed to Jesus in Lk 6.28; see also Rom 12.14.

4.14–21 The appeals begun in 1.10 are concluded, and the Corinthians are alerted to Timothy's coming and to Paul's own later visit. 4.14–15 Paul can claim paternity because he had founded the church in Corinth (3.6; see also 1 Thess 2.11–12); elsewhere he uses maternal images (see 3.2). 4.16 Be imitators of me. See also 11.1; Gal 4.12; Phil 3.17; 4.9; 1 Thess 1.6–7; 2 Thess 3.6–13. 4.17 Timothy, one of Paul's closest associates (e.g., Acts 16.1–3; 1 Thess 3.2), had helped found the Corinthian church (2 Cor 1.19). He has probably been dispatched to Corinth in advance of this letter (16.10–11); but if the verb sent is interpreted am sending (see text note s), Timothy is about to leave with the letter.

I sent^s you Timothy, who is my beloved and faithful child in the Lord, to remind you of my ways in Christ Jesus, as I teach them everywhere in every church. ¹⁸But some of you, thinking that I am not coming to you, have become arrogant. ¹⁹But I will come to you soon, if the Lord wills, and I will find out not the talk of these arrogant people but their power. ²⁰For the kingdom of God depends not on talk but on power. ²¹What would you prefer? Am I to come to you with a stick, or with love in a spirit of gentleness?

Sexual Immorality Defiles the Church

5 It is actually reported that there is sexual immorality among you, and of a kind that is not found even among pagans; for a man is living with his father's wife. ²And you are arrogant! Should you not rather have mourned, so that he who has done this would have been removed from among you?

³ For though absent in body, I am present in spirit; and as if present I have already pronounced judgment ⁴in the name of the Lord Jesus on the man who has done such a thing.^t When you are assembled, and my spirit is present with the power of our Lord Jesus, ⁵you are to hand this man over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord.^u

⁶ Your boasting is not a good thing. Do you not know that a little yeast leavens the whole batch of dough? ⁷Clean out the old yeast so that you may be a new batch, as you really are unleavened. For our paschal lamb, Christ, has been sacrificed. ⁸Therefore, let us celebrate the festival, not with the old yeast, the yeast of malice and evil, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Sexual Immorality Must Be Judged

⁹ I wrote to you in my letter not to associate with sexually immoral persons—¹⁰not at all meaning the immoral of this world, or the greedy and robbers, or idolaters, since you would then need to go out of the world. ¹¹But now I am writing to you not to associate with anyone who bears the name of brother or sister^v who is sexually immoral or greedy, or is an idolater, reviler, drunkard, or robber. Do not even eat with such a one. ¹²For what have I to do with judging those outside? Is it not those who are inside that you are to judge? ¹³God will judge those outside.

^s Or am sending ^t Or on the man who has done such a thing in the name of the Lord Jesus ^u Other ancient authorities add Jesus ^v Gk brother

4.18–19 Paul nowhere names these arrogant people. He may actually have the whole congregation in mind. I will come to you soon. See 16.5–9. 4.20 The kingdom of God. See also 6.9–10; 15.24, 50; Rom 14.17; Gal 5.21; 1 Thess 2.12. 4.21 With a stick, as a disciplinarian; see also 2 Cor 10.2–6; 12.21; 13.1–3, 10. With love in a spirit of gentleness. See Gal 6.1.

5.1–8 The apostle now deals with a specific case involving a member (never named) of the Corinthian church. 5.1 Sexual immorality translates a term sometimes rendered fornication, as in 6.13, 18; Gal 5.19; 1 Thess 4.3. Pagans, gentile nonbelievers. Living with, engaging in sex with. Father's wife, an idiom used to refer to one's stepmother. 5.2 Mourned, grieved over the immorality of a fellow Christian. 5.4 Assembled, perhaps for the weekly congregational meal and worship; see 11.17–22. 5.5 Hand . . . over to Satan, put out of the church (see 5.2, 13). Satan was a name used by both Jews and Christians for the personification of evil; see also 7.5; Rom 16.20; 2 Cor 2.11; 11.14; 12.7; 1 Thess 2.18; 2 Thess 2.9. Some scholars interpret the flesh literally, as a reference to the immoral man's physical body; others understand it figuratively, as a reference to his evil desires. It is thus difficult to know what Paul expects will result from the punishment he is recommending. The day of the Lord. See 3.13. 5.6 Yeast, a metaphor for evil (see 5.8), as in Mt 16.6, 11–12; Mk 8.15; Lk 12.1; see also Gal 5.9. 5.7 Paschal lamb, the animal slaughtered for the Jewish celebration of Passover; see Ex 12.1–27. According to the Gospels, Jesus was put to death at Passover time (Mk 14–15). 5.8 Only unleavened bread, a symbol of purity, was to be eaten during Passover; see Ex 12.8, 15–20.

5.9–13 Paul's directions in a previous letter to Corinth, perhaps misunderstood, are now clarified. 5.9 The letter referred to is either lost or, as some believe, survives only in fragmentary form in 2 Cor 6.14–7.1 (but see also Eph 5.3–7). 5.10–11 A similar list of evildoers is given in 6.9–10. 5.11 Brother or sister, a fellow Christian, as distinct from nonbelievers. The instruction to not even eat with immoral believers presumably includes barring them from participating in the Lord's Supper (see 10.16–17). 5.12 Outside and inside refer to where people are with reference to the Christian community. 5.13 God will judge, on

"Drive out the wicked person from among you."

Lawsuits Among Believers

6 When any of you has a grievance against another, do you dare to take it to court before the unrighteous, instead of taking it before the saints? ²Do you not know that the saints will judge the world? And if the world is to be judged by you, are you incompetent to try trivial cases? ³Do you not know that we are to judge angels—to say nothing of ordinary matters? ⁴If you have ordinary cases, then, do you appoint as judges those who have no standing in the church? ⁵I say this to your shame. Can it be that there is no one among you wise enough to decide between one believer^w and another, ⁶but a believer^w goes to court against a believer^w—and before unbelievers at that?

⁷In fact, to have lawsuits at all with one another is already a defeat for you. Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be defrauded? ⁸But you yourselves wrong and defraud—and believers^x at that.

robbers—none of these will inherit the kingdom of God. ¹¹And this is what some of you used to be. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

Glorify God in Body and Spirit

¹²"All things are lawful for me," but not all things are beneficial. "All things are lawful for me," but I will not be dominated by anything. ¹³"Food is meant for the stomach and the stomach for food,"^y and God will destroy both one and the other. The body is meant not for fornication but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. ¹⁴And God raised the Lord and will also raise us by his power. ¹⁵Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Should I therefore take the members of Christ and make them members of a prostitute? Never! ¹⁶Do you not know that whoever is united to a prostitute becomes one body with her? For it is said, "The two shall be one flesh." ¹⁷But anyone united to the Lord becomes one spirit with him. ¹⁸Shun fornication! Every sin that a person commits is outside the body; but the fornicator sins against the body itself. ¹⁹Or do you not know that your body is a temple^z of the Holy Spirit judgment day (see 3.13). The quotation is from Deut 17.7.

^w Gk brother ^x Gk brothers ^y The quotation

6.1–11 Paul counsels against Christians asking Roman courts to settle disputes. Perhaps he has heard about some specific instance of this in Corinth. 6.1 The terms unrighteous and saints (see 1.2) refer, respectively, to nonbelievers and believers (see also 6.6). 6.2 The world here refers to nonbelievers. For the idea that believers will assist with the final judgment, see Mt 19.28; Lk 22.30; Rev 3.21; 20.4 (also Wis 3.8; Sir 4.15). 6.3 The expectation that angels are subject to final judgment is also envisioned in Isa 24.21–22; Jude 6 (see also 2 Pet 2.4), but not that any human agents will be their judges. 6.4 Those who have no standing in the church more likely refers to nonbelievers than to persons within the church, yet the latter interpretation is sometimes argued. 6.7 Be wronged. See also Mt 5.39–40; Lk 6.28–30. 6.8 On defrauding, see Mk 10.19. 6.9–10 The list of evildoers is similar to the one in 5.10–11. 6.9 The kingdom of God. See 4.20. Fornicators are persons who engage in sexual conduct regarded as immoral; see note on 5.1. Male prostitutes, adolescent boys who sold sexual favors to older males; or, if the term is being used generally, the more passive male in a homosexual act. The Greek word translated sodomites is a term that seems to be used of the more active male in a homosexual act; see also Rom 1.27; 1 Tim 1.10. 6.11 Washed probably refers to Christian baptism. Sanctified. See 1.2. Justified. See note on 1.30.

6.12–20 The apostle continues to criticize and correct the Corinthians' understanding of what it means to be faithful to his gospel. 6.12–13 Paul is quoting slogans popular in Corinth (see also 10.23), conceivably ones that some Corinthians have attributed to him. 6.13 God will destroy, either a reference to the ultimate destruction of all material things (see 7.31) or, more specifically, to the last judgment (see 3.13). The Lord, here a reference to Christ (6.14–17). 6.14 See also 15.4, 12–22; 2 Cor 4.14. 6.15 Members of Christ. See also 12.12–14, 27; Rom 12.4–5. 6.16 Paul quotes Gen 2.24. 6.19 Temple of the Holy Spirit, here used within you, which you have from God, and that you are not your own? ²⁰For you were bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body.

Directions Concerning Marriage

7 Now concerning the matters about which you wrote: "It is well for a man not to touch a woman." ²But because of cases of sexual immorality, each man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband. ³The husband should give to his wife her conjugal rights, and likewise the wife to her husband. ⁴For the wife does not have authority over her own body, but the husband does; likewise the husband does not have authority over his own body, but the wife does. ⁵Do not deprive one another except perhaps by agreement for a set time, to devote yourselves to prayer, and then come together again, so that Satan may not tempt you because of your lack of self-control. ⁶This I say by way of concession, not of command. ⁷I wish that all were as I myself am. But each has a particular gift from God, one having one kind and another a different kind.

8 To the unmarried and the widows I say that it is well for them to remain unmarried as I am. ⁹But if they are not practicing self-control, they should marry. For it is better to marry than to be aflame with passion.

10 To the married I give this command—not I but the Lord—that the wife should not separate from her husband ¹¹(but if she does separate, let her remain unmarried or else be reconciled to her husband), and that the husband should not divorce his wife.

12 To the rest I say—I and not the Lord—that if any believer^a has a wife who is an unbeliever, and she consents to live with him, he should not divorce her. ¹³And if any woman has a husband who is an unbeliever, and he consents to live with her, she should not divorce him. ¹⁴For the unbelieving husband is made holy metaphorically of the individual believer's body (cf. 3.16). Not your own. See also Rom 14.7–8; 2 Cor 5.14–15. 6.20 Bought with a price, probably referring to Christ's atoning death for sins (15.3); see 7.23; also note on 1.30 (redemption).

7.1–16 The issue to which Paul now turns has been raised with him by the Corinthians themselves, and the whole of ch. 7 is devoted to it. Their question is not just about marriage but, more generally, whether sexual intimacy is compatible with life in Christ. 7.1 You wrote, a reference to some (lost) letter to Paul from the Corinthians. Some scholars believe that the following quotation is another slogan current among the Corinthians (see 6.12–13); others believe it represents a view that Paul himself has expressed (perhaps in an earlier letter; see 5.9). Most translations do not mark it as a quotation at all. The word touch is an idiom for "have sex with." 7.2 Cases of sexual immorality. See 5.1–5; 6.12–20. Own wife . . . own husband affirms monogamy and marital fidelity; see also 1 Thess 4.3–5. 7.3 Give . . . conjugal rights. This affirmation of sexual intimacy within a Christian marriage stands in contrast with the ascetic view quoted in 7.1. 7.4 A husband's authority over his wife was presupposed in the ancient world (see Eph 5.24; Col 3.18; 1 Pet 3.1, 6), but not a wife's authority over her husband. 7.5 Do not deprive one another, of conjugal rights. Satan. See 5.5. Tempt you, to marital infidelity. 7.6 The concession probably refers to the provision for temporary abstinence from sexual intimacy (7.5). Not of command. See also 7.35; 2 Cor 8.8; Philem 8–9. 7.7 As I myself am, unmarried (see 7.8; 9.5, 15). Paul implies that celibacy is one particular gift; others are mentioned in ch. 12; Rom 12.6–8 (also 1 Pet 4.10). 7.8 The unmarried, perhaps a reference to widowers specifically (the expression is masculine). 7.10–11 The Lord, Christ (see also 9.14). Separate and divorce are used synonymously. The sayings about divorce attributed to Jesus are found in one version in Mk 10.2–12 (see also Lk 16.18), and in other versions in Mt 5.31–32; 19.3–9. Paul's instructions presume Roman law, according to which (in contrast to Deut 24.1–4) divorce could be initiated by either the husband or the wife (see also Mk 10.11–12); and they also presume that both partners are Christians (cf. 7.12–16). See also 7.27; Rom 7.2. 7.12 The rest, persons who were already married when they were converted to Christ, but whose spouses have remained non-believers. Such marriages are not addressed by the command of Jesus invoked in 7.10–11. I and not the Lord (cf. 7.10). Paul now offers counsels on his own authority, without appealing to any teaching of Jesus. 7.14 Made holy or "sanctified" (see 1.2), i.e., by God, not by the marriage as such. The exact meaning is obscure, however, both here and when Paul proceeds to describe the children in families where but one parent is Christian. These children seem to be regarded as "holy" so long as the Christian parent remains in the marriage, but as unclean when they are in the through his wife, and the unbelieving wife is made holy through her husband. Otherwise, your children would be unclean, but as it is, they are holy. ¹⁵ But if the unbelieving partner separates, let it be so; in such a case the brother or sister is not bound. It is to peace that God has called you.^b ¹⁶ Wife, for all you know, you might save your husband. Husband, for all you know, you might save your wife.

The Life that the Lord Has Assigned

¹⁷ However that may be, let each of you lead the life that the Lord has assigned, to which God called you. This is my rule in all the churches. ¹⁸ Was anyone at the time of his call already circumcised? Let him not seek to remove the marks of circumcision. Was anyone at the time of his call uncircumcised? Let him not seek circumcision. ¹⁹ Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing; but obeying the commandments of God is everything. ²⁰ Let each of you remain in the condition in which you were called.

²¹ Were you a slave when called? Do not be concerned about it. Even if you can gain your freedom, make use of your present condition now more than ever.^c ²² For whoever was called in the Lord as a slave is a freed person belonging to the Lord, just as whoever was free when called is a slave of Christ. ²³ You were bought with a price; do not become slaves of human masters. ²⁴ In whatever condition you were called, brothers and sisters,^d there remain with God.

The Unmarried and the Widows

²⁵ Now concerning virgins, I have no command of the Lord, but I give my opinion as one who by the Lord's mercy is trustworthy. ²⁶ I think that, in view of the impending^e crisis, it is well for you to remain as you are. ²⁷ Are you bound to a wife? Do not seek to be free. Are you free from a wife? Do not seek a wife. ²⁸ But if you marry, you do not sin, and if a virgin marries, she does not sin. Yet those who marry will experience distress in this life,^f and I would spare you that. ²⁹ I care solely of a non-Christian parent. 7.15 Separates, initiates a divorce. Peace, a reference in this case to concord within a marriage; see also 14.33; Rom 14.17, 19; 2 Cor 13.11; Gal 5.22. 7.16 Save here refers to the conversion to Christianity of the non-Christian spouse (see also 1 Pet 3.1–2). Scholars differ on whether Paul means that there is a good chance or only an outside chance of this happening.

7.17–24 Here the principle is laid down and illustrated with examples other than marriage that converts to Christianity should not ordinarily seek to change their situation in society. 7.17 The Lord, God. All the churches, the congregations founded by Paul; over those founded by others he exercised no authority. 7.18 Call, conversion to the gospel. Paul himself, like every male child born to devout Jews, had been circumcised as an infant (Phil 3.5) to signify his belonging to the covenant people (see Gen 17.9–14). Some Jews, seeking acceptance in gentile society, tried to remove the marks of circumcision. Paul's view that gentile converts should not seek circumcision differed from that of the Jerusalem church; see Gal 2.1–14. 7.19 See also Rom 2.25–29; Gal 5.6; 6.15. 7.21 Many converts were slaves (see 12.13; Gal 3.28; Philem 16; also Eph 6.5–9; Col 3.11, 22–4.1; 1 Tim 6.1–2; Titus 2.9–10; 1 Pet 2.18–25). The institution of slavery was fundamental to the social, economic, and political structures of imperial Rome. Freedom could be purchased by or for a slave for a price or could be granted for a variety of other reasons. Since the translation of make use . . . ever is uncertain (see text note c), Paul's instruction remains unclear. 7.22 The Lord, Christ. A freed person, not necessarily from one's earthly master but from the law, sin, and death; see Rom 6.6–7.6; 8.15; Gal 4.7. A slave of Christ, belonging to Christ (3.23), as a committed, faithful Christian; see Rom 6.16–18, 22; 7.6 (also Rom 12.11; 14.18; 16.18; 1 Thess 1.9). 7.23 Bought with a price. See 6.20. Slaves of human masters, a metaphor for yielding to merely human claims and values; see also Rom 8.12–17; Gal 5.1.

7.25–40 The discussion now returns to the specific issue of whether marriage is ever appropriate for Christians. 7.25 Virgins, women who have never been married, but whether Paul is thinking of them as engaged to be married is unclear (see 7.36–38). No command of the Lord. Cf. 7.10; see also 7.12. By the Lord's mercy, a reference to God's calling Paul to apostleship; see 2 Cor 4.1; also 1 Cor 1.1. 7.26 The impending crisis translates the comment as a reference to the tribulations traditionally expected to occur as the present age passes away (7.29–31). The alternate translation, present crisis (see text note e), interprets Paul as referring to the troubles that Christians experience daily in society. Remain as you are. See 7.17–24. 7.29 The appointed time has grown mean, brothers and sisters,^g the appointed time has grown short; from now on, let even those who have wives be as though they had none,³⁰ and those who mourn as though they were not mourning, and those who rejoice as though they were not rejoicing, and those who buy as though they had no possessions,³¹ and those who deal with the world as though they had no dealings with it. For the present form of this world is passing away.

32 I want you to be free from anxieties. The unmarried man is anxious about the affairs of the Lord, how to please the Lord;³³ but the married man is anxious about the affairs of the world, how to please his wife,³⁴ and his interests are divided. And the unmarried woman and the virgin are anxious about the affairs of the Lord, so that they may be holy in body and spirit; but the married woman is anxious about the affairs of the world, how to please her husband.³⁵ I say this for your own benefit, not to put any restraint upon you, but to promote good order and unhindered devotion to the Lord.

36 If anyone thinks that he is not behaving properly toward his fiancée,^h if his passions are strong, and so it has to be, let him marry as he wishes; it is no sin. Let them marry.³⁷ But if someone stands firm in his resolve, being under no necessity but having his own desire under control, and has determined in his own mind to keep her as his fiancée,^h he will do well.³⁸ So then, he who marries his fiancée^h does well; and he who refrains from marriage will do better.

39 A wife is bound as long as her husband lives. But if the husband dies,ⁱ she is free to marry anyone she wishes, only in the Lord.⁴⁰ But in my judgment she is more blessed if she remains as she is. And I think that I too have the Spirit of God.

Food Offered to Idols

8 Now concerning food sacrificed to idols: we know that "all of us possess knowledge." Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up.² Anyone who claims to know something does not yet have the necessary knowledge;³ but anyone who loves God is known by him.

4 Hence, as to the eating of food of-short. I.e., the time of Christ's return, the day of judgment, and the fulfillment of salvation nears; see 1.7–8; also Rom 13.11–12. As though they had none. See also Lk 14.26. Paul's counsel is not to abstain from conjugal relations (see 7.3–5), but to realize that also marriage will pass away (see 7.31). 7.34 Unmarried woman, one previously married, as distinguished from a virgin, who has never been married. 7.35 Not to put any restraint. See 7.6. 7.36–38 Scholars differ on how these instructions relate to those about "virgins" in 7.25–26, 28. However, Paul is consistent in applying the twofold principle that it is better not to be married, but no sin to be married (see 7.7, 8, 25–28, 32–35). 7.39 See also 7.10; Rom 7.2. 7.40 My judgment (see also 7.12, 25; 2 Cor 8.10), the judgment of an apostle and one who has been informed by the Spirit of God (see also 2.16, we have the mind of Christ).

8.1–13 From here through 11.1 Paul offers directives on a matter that has troubled his congregation: whether Christians may eat meat that has been left over from pagan sacrificial rites (cf. Rom 14). No agreement like the one reported in Acts 15.29 is in view. 8.1 Now concerning introduces a new topic. Perhaps, like the matter introduced by the same phrase in 7.1, it has been raised in a letter from Corinth; but this is not specifically indicated. Food sacrificed to idols translates one Greek word (lit. "things sacrificed to idols"), used only by Jews and Christians; the neutral term is "sacred food" (see note on 10.28). Both words refer to the meat of an animal that has been ritually slaughtered. "All of us possess knowledge," a slogan of some Corinthian Christians. Knowledge puffs up, not knowledge in general, but the kind of religious knowledge arrogantly flaunted by certain Corinthians; see 4.6, 18–19; 5.2; 13.4. Here and elsewhere in 1 Corinthians the Greek word used for love is agape, which is described in ch. 13 as utterly selfless; see also 4.21; 16.14, 24. It builds up Christian community by uniting its members in the care and serving of one another; see 14.1–5, 12, 17, 26; also 10.23–24. 8.3 Loves God. See 2.9; Rom 8.28; Jas 1.12; 2.5; also Deut 6.5. Known by him. See also 13.12; Gal 4.9. To be thus "known" is to be chosen and called by God; see Rom 8.29–30; also Ex 33.12, 17; Jer 1.5. 8.4 "No idol . . . really exists," a fundamental tenet of Jewish and Christian teaching (Ex 20.4–5; Isa 46; Wis 13–14), with which the Corinthian Christians fully agree; see also 10.14; 12.2. "There is no God but one" echoes the affirmation of Deut 6.4—the Shema often ferred to idols, we know that “no idol in the world really exists,” and that “there is no God but one.” ⁵Indeed, even though there may be so-called gods in heaven or on earth—as in fact there are many gods and many lords—⁶yet for us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things and for whom we exist, and one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things and through whom we exist.

⁷It is not everyone, however, who has this knowledge. Since some have become so accustomed to idols until now, they still think of the food they eat as food offered to an idol; and their conscience, being weak, is defiled. ⁸“Food will not bring us close to God.”^j We are no worse off if we do not eat, and no better off if we do. ⁹But take care that this liberty of yours does not somehow become a stumbling block to the weak. ¹⁰For if others see you, who possess knowledge, eating in the temple of an idol, might they not, since their conscience is weak, be encouraged to the point of eating food sacrificed to idols? ¹¹So by your knowledge those weak believers for whom Christ died are destroyed.^k ¹²But when you thus sin against members of your family,^l and wound their conscience when it is weak, you sin against Christ. ¹³Therefore, if food is a cause of their falling,^m I will never eat meat, so that I may not cause one of themⁿ to fall.

The Rights of an Apostle

9 Am I not free? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen Jesus our Lord? Are you not my work in the Lord? ²If I am not an apostle to others, at least I am to you; for you are the seal of my apostleship in the Lord.

³This is my defense to those who would examine me. ⁴Do we not have the right to our food and drink? ⁵Do we not have the right to be accompanied by a believing wife,^o as do the other apostles and the brothers of the Lord and Cephas? ⁶Or is it only Barnabas and I who have no right to refrain from working for a living? ⁷Who at any time pays the expenses for doing military service? Who plants a vineyard and does not eat any of its fruit? Or recited by Jews as a summary of their faith. 8.5 Many gods and many lords, the deities who were worshiped by gentile nonbelievers; Paul does not mean they actually exist. 8.6 An early Christian creed may lie behind this statement; see also 10.26; 11.12; 12.3; Rom 11.36; Col 1.16–17; Heb 2.10. 8.7 Weak, unenlightened, still under the illusion that pagan sacrifices have some kind of potency; see also 8.10, 12; 10.27–29; Rom 14.1–2, 23; 15.1. Defiled. The act prompts feelings of guilt; see also 8.12 (wound). 8.8 Paul quotes (presumably the Corinthians) with approval. What is said here about food has been said about circumcision in 7.19. 8.9 Liberty, or right, as in 9.4–6, 12, 18. Stumbling block. See also Rom 14.13, 20–21; 2 Cor 6.3. (The Greek word in 1.23 is different.) 8.10 Knowledge. See 8.1. Eating in the temple of an idol. Many pagan temples had a dining area where meat left over from the sacrifice was eaten at a communal meal. Encouraged, lit. “built up.” 8.11 Christ's death for the weak is also invoked in Rom 14.15 (cf. Rom 5.6). 8.12 Wound their conscience. See note on 8.7. Sin against Christ. See also Mt 25.45; Heb 6.6. 8.13 Meat, left over from pagan rites.

9.1–27 Paul emphasizes that he has not exercised certain rights that are his as an apostle.

Some scholars interpret him to be supporting the counsels of ch. 8. Others believe he is addressing a new topic. 9.1 Paul is free both to claim and to give up certain rights. Apostle. See 1.1. Jesus our Lord, the resurrected Christ whom Paul beheld at his conversion and call; see 15.8–10. The Corinthian church was Paul's work because it had been founded by him. 9.2 The very existence of a church in Corinth attests (seals) Paul's apostleship; see also 2 Cor 3.2–3; 10.13–14. 9.3 Those who would examine me, perhaps specific adversaries, but they are never named. 9.4 We, apostles in general, including Paul. Right, translates a Greek word that sometimes means liberty (see 8.9) or “authority” (see 2 Cor 10.8). Food and drink, living expenses (or at least “board”) while serving as an apostle. 9.5 Brothers of the Lord, Jesus' brothers (see Mk 6.3), of whom only James is ever named by Paul himself (see 15.7; Gal 1.19). Cephas, Peter (see 1.12), who, according to Mk 1.30, was married. 9.6 Barnabas (see Acts 4.36–37; Col 4.10) was apparently one of Paul's earliest associates (Gal 2.1–10; see also, e.g., Acts 9.27; 11.19–30), but he and Paul eventually had a falling out (Gal 2.13; see also Acts 15.36–41). Working for a living, in addition to apostolic labors; see Acts 18.1–4. 9.7 For the examples used here, see also Deut who tends a flock and does not get any of its milk?

8 Do I say this on human authority? Does not the law also say the same? 9 For it is written in the law of Moses, "You shall not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain." Is it for oxen that God is concerned? 10 Or does he not speak entirely for our sake? It was indeed written for our sake, for whoever plows should plow in hope and whoever threshes should thresh in hope of a share in the crop. 11 If we have sown spiritual good among you, is it too much if we reap your material benefits? 12 If others share this rightful claim on you, do not we still more?

Nevertheless, we have not made use of this right, but we endure anything rather than put an obstacle in the way of the gospel of Christ. 13 Do you not know that those who are employed in the temple service get their food from the temple, and those who serve at the altar share in what is sacrificed on the altar? 14 In the same way, the Lord commanded that those who proclaim the gospel should get their living by the gospel.

15 But I have made no use of any of these rights, nor am I writing this so that they may be applied in my case. Indeed, I would rather die than that—no one will deprive me of my ground for boasting! 16 If I proclaim the gospel, this gives me no ground for boasting, for an obligation is laid on me, and woe to me if I do not proclaim the gospel! 17 For if I do this of my own will, I have a reward; but if not of my own will, I am entrusted with a commission. 18 What then is my reward? Just this: that in my proclamation I may make the gospel free of charge, so as not to make full use of my rights in the gospel.

19 For though I am free with respect to all, I have made myself a slave to all, so that I might win more of them. 20 To the Jews I became as a Jew, in order to win Jews. To those under the law I became as one under the law (though I myself am not under the law) so that I might win those under the law. 21 To those outside the law I became as one outside the law (though I am not free from God's law but am under Christ's law) so that I might win those outside the law. 22 To the weak I became weak, so that I might win the weak. I have become all things to all people, that I might by all means save some. 23 I do it all for the sake of the gospel, so that I may share in its blessings.

24 Do you not know that in a race the runners all compete, but only one receives the prize? Run in such a way that you may win it. 25 Athletes exercise self-control in all things; they do it to receive a perishable wreath, but we an imperishable one. 26 So I do not run aimlessly, nor do I box as though beating the air; 27 but I punish my body and enslave it, so that after proclaiming to others I myself should not be disqualified.

20.6; 2 Tim 2.4. 9.9 Deut 25.4; see also 1 Tim 5.17–18. 9.11 We have sown spiritual good, the gospel and all that follows from that; see also 3.6. 9.12 Others, conceivably Apollos and Peter (see 1.12). We have not made use of this right. Paul has accepted no financial assistance from the Corinthians; see Acts 18.1–4; 2 Cor 11.7–11; 12.13, 14. 9.13 Jewish sacrifice (see also 10.18) and thus the Jerusalem temple are in view; see Num 18.8–32; Deut 18.1–5. 9.14 As in 7.10, Paul invokes a saying attributed to Jesus (Mt 10.10; Lk 10.7); see also 1 Tim 5.17–18. A similar principle is affirmed in Gal 6.6. 9.15 These rights are the ones mentioned in 9.4–6, especially the right to a living; see also 9.12. Paul's ground for boasting is that he had not burdened the Corinthians with his personal needs; see also 2 Cor 11.7–10. 9.16 On Paul's obligation to preach, see also 4.1–2; Acts 22.14–15; 26.14–18; Rom 1.1–6, 14–15; 15.18–21 (and Jer 20.9; Lk 17.10). 9.17 Reward, or "wage." Paul's commission was from God; the term is related to the word translated as steward in 4.1–2. 9.19 Free. See 9.1. A slave to all, obligated to serve all; see 9.16; 2 Cor 4.5. Win, convert to, or perhaps also strengthen in, the gospel. 9.20 I became as a Jew. See Acts 16.3; 21.17–26. 9.21 Those outside the law, gentile nonbelievers. Christ's law. See also Gal 6.2. 9.22 The weak, either nonbelievers of lowly social status (as in 1.27) or believers weak in faith (as in 8.9–12); see 2 Cor 11.29. 9.23 That I may share in its blessings. See also 9.27. 9.24 On receiving the prize, see also Phil 3.12–16; 2 Tim 2.5. 9.25 A perishable wreath. At the Isthmian games, held near Corinth every two years, the winner's crown was made of withered celery. The imperishable wreath stands for one's ultimate salvation; see Phil 4.1; 1 Thess 2.19; 2 Tim 4.8; 1 Pet 5.4; Rev 2.10. 9.27 I punish my body and enslave it, metaphors for, respectively, enduring hardships (4.11–13) and exercising self-control (9.25).

Warnings from Israel's History

10 I do not want you to be unaware, brothers and sisters,^p that our ancestors were all under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, ²and all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea, ³and all ate the same spiritual food, ⁴and all drank the same spiritual drink. For they drank from the spiritual rock that followed them, and the rock was Christ. ⁵Nevertheless, God was not pleased with most of them, and they were struck down in the wilderness.

⁶ Now these things occurred as examples for us, so that we might not desire evil as they did. ⁷Do not become idolaters as some of them did; as it is written, "The people sat down to eat and drink, and they rose up to play." ⁸We must not indulge in sexual immorality as some of them did, and twenty-three thousand fell in a single day. ⁹We must not put Christ^q to the test, as some of them did, and were destroyed by serpents. ¹⁰And do not complain as some of them did, and were destroyed by the destroyer. ¹¹These things happened to them to serve as an example, and they were written down to instruct us, on whom the ends of the ages have come. ¹²So if you think you are standing, watch out that you do not fall. ¹³No testing has overtaken you that is not common to everyone. God is faithful, and he will not let you be tested beyond your strength, but with the testing he will also provide the way out so that you may be able to endure it.

¹⁴ Therefore, my dear friends,^r flee from the worship of idols. ¹⁵I speak as to sensible people; judge for yourselves what I say. ¹⁶The cup of blessing that we bless, is it not a sharing in the blood of Christ? The bread that we break, is it not a sharing in the body of Christ? ¹⁷Because there is one bread, we who are many are one body, for we all partake of the one bread. ¹⁸Consider the people of Israel;^s are not those who eat the sacrifices partners in the altar? ¹⁹What do I imply then? That food sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? ²⁰No, I imply that what pagans sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God. I do not want you to be partners with demons. ²¹You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You cannot partake of the table of the Lord and the table of demons. ²²Or are we provoking the Lord to jealousy? Are we stronger than he?

Do All to the Glory of God

²³ "All things are lawful," but not all things are beneficial. "All things are lawful," but not all things build up. ²⁴Do not seek your own advantage, but that of the other. ²⁵Eat whatever is sold in the meat

10.1–22 Paul offers examples of the dangers of idolatry. The issue of meat sacrificed to idols remains in view (10.19–20). 10.1 Our ancestors, the Israelites. On the cloud and the sea, see Ex 13.21–22; 14.22; Ps 105.39; Wis 19.7–8. 10.3 Spiritual food, i.e., manna; see Ex 16.4, 35; Deut 8.3; Ps 78.24–25. 10.4 On spiritual drink, see Ex 17.6; Num 20.7–11; Ps 78.15–16. Although the OT says nothing about a rock that followed the Israelites in the wilderness, a later rabbinic tradition did say this about a well (see Num 21.16–18). Since Paul identifies the rock with Christ, he probably views the Israelites' eating and drinking as a kind of Lord's Supper. 10.5 On the punishment in the wilderness, see Num 14.16, 29–30; Ps 78.30–31; Heb 3.17; Jude 5. 10.6 On desiring evil, see Num 11.4–6, 34; Ps 106.14–15. 10.7 "The people . . . play," Ex 32.6. 10.8 Cf. Num 25.1–9. 10.9 To the test. See Ps 78.18; also Deut 6.16; Isa 7.12; Mt 4.7; Lk 4.12; Acts 15.10. Destroyed by serpents. Cf. Num 21.5–6. 10.10 The destroyer, some avenging angel; see also Ex 12.23; 2 Sam 24.16; 1 Chr 21.15; Wis 18.20–25; Heb 11.28. 10.11 The ends of the ages, the last days before the Lord's return; see 1.7–8; 7.26, 29–31; also Dan 12.13. 10.12 For a similar warning, see Rom 11.20. 10.13 God is faithful. See 1.9. 10.14 Worship of idols. See 8.4; 12.2; also 1 Jn 5.21. 10.16–17 The Lord's Supper (see also 11.17–34) is described as a sharing both with Christ (see 1.9) and with other believers (see also Phil 1.5; Philem 6). Paul develops the image of the church as one body in 12.12–27 (see also Rom 12.4–8). 10.18 Partners in the altar. See 9.13; also Lev 7.6, 15. 10.20 Demons refers to the gods of which pagan idols are representations; see also Deut 32.17; Bar 4.7; Rev 9.20. 10.21 The Lord, Christ (as in 10.16); see also 2 Cor 6.15. 10.22 The Lord, God (as in Deut 32.21).

10.23–11.1 The discussion opened in 8.1 is brought to a conclusion. 10.23 As in 6.12–13 (see also 7.1), Paul cites and corrects a Corinthian slogan. Beneficial. See also 6.12; 7.35; 10.33. Build up. See 8.1. 10.25 A meat market often sold cuts market without raising any question on the ground of conscience, ²⁶for “the earth and its fullness are the Lord’s.” ²⁷If an unbeliever invites you to a meal and you are disposed to go, eat whatever is set before you without raising any question on the ground of conscience. ²⁸But if someone says to you, “This has been offered in sacrifice,” then do not eat it, out of consideration for the one who informed you, and for the sake of conscience— ²⁹I mean the other’s conscience, not your own. For why should my liberty be subject to the judgment of someone else’s conscience? ³⁰If I partake with thankfulness, why should I be denounced because of that for which I give thanks?

³¹ So, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do everything for the glory of God. ³²Give no offense to Jews or to Greeks or to the church of God, ³³just as I try to please everyone in everything I do, not seeking my own advantage, but that of many, so that they may be saved.

11 ¹Be imitators of me, as I am of Christ.

Head Coverings

2 I commend you because you remember me in everything and maintain the traditions just as I handed them on to you. ³But I want you to understand that Christ is the head of every man, and the husband^t is the head of his wife,^u and God is the head of Christ. ⁴Any man who prays or prophesies with something on his head disgraces his head, ⁵but any woman who prays or prophesies with her head unveiled disgraces her head—it is one and the same thing as having her head shaved. ⁶For if a woman will not veil herself, then she should cut off her hair; but if it is disgraceful for a woman to have her hair cut off or to be shaved, she should wear a veil. ⁷For a man ought not to have his head veiled, since he is the image and reflection^v of God; but woman is the reflection^v of man. ⁸Indeed, man was not made from woman, but woman from man. ⁹Neither was man created for the sake of woman, but woman for the sake of man. ¹⁰For this reason a woman ought to have a symbol of^w authority on her head,^x because of the angels. ¹¹Nevertheless, in the Lord woman is not independent of man or man independent of that had come from pagan temples. Conscience. See 8.7; 10.27–29. 10.26 Ps 24.1; see also Ps 50.12; 89.11. 10.27 A meal, presumably either in a private home or in a public eating place (not in a pagan temple, as in 8.10). 10.28 Someone. Whether Paul thinks of another Christian or of a nonbeliever remains unclear. This has been offered in sacrifice, lit. “This is sacred food” (cf. note on 8.1). 10.29–30 Paul’s questions (as translated here) seem to qualify the counsel of 10.28, but vv. 29–30 may represent objections by an imagined dialogue partner. Yet because the logic of the apostle’s remarks is difficult to follow, they are subject to various interpretations. 10.30 With thankfulness, for what God has provided (10.26); see Rom 14.6; 1 Tim 4.3–4; but also 1 Cor 14.17. 10.32 Give no offense, do not hinder anyone from coming to or growing in faith; see also 8.9, 13; 1 Jn 2.10. 10.33 Please everyone, not in place of pleasing God (see 7.32–34; Gal 1.10; 1 Thess 2.4), but in place of seeking only one’s own advantage; see 10.24; Rom 15.1–3. That they may be saved. See 9.19–23. 11.1 Be imitators of me. See 4.16.

11.2–16 As in the sections that follow (11.17–34; chs. 12–14), Paul counsels the Corinthians about how they should conduct themselves when assembled for worship. 11.3 Christ is the head. See also 3.23 (and Eph 1.22; 4.15; 5.23; Col 1.18; 2.10, 19). Some scholars believe that head here connotes “source” (see 11.12) as well as (or rather than) superiority. The husband is the head. See also Gen 3.16; Eph 5.23. Paul may not be thinking specifically of marital relationships; see text notes ^t and ^u. God is the head of Christ. See also 3.23; 15.28. 11.4 Prays or prophesies, when the congregation is gathered for worship. On prophecy, see 12.10; 14.1–5. In Paul’s day Jewish males did not wear any special head covering, even in the synagogue. 11.5 Unveiled, or more generally “uncovered,” perhaps with loose, flowing hair (typically associated with promiscuous women or priestesses of pagan cults). 11.7 On image . . . of God, see Gen 1.27; 5.1; Wis 2.23; Sir 17.3; also 2 Cor 4.4, 6; Col 1.15; Heb 1.3. 11.8 Woman from man. See Gen 2.21–23; see also 1 Tim 2.13. 11.9 Woman for the sake of man. See Gen 2.18. 11.10 There is no scholarly consensus about the translation of this verse (see text notes ^w and ^x) or about its interpretation. The angels (see also 4.9; 6.3; 13.1) should probably not be identified with the “sons of God” mentioned in Gen 6.2. 11.11 In the Lord, in Christ, thus among Christians. Not independent of man . . . of woman suggests woman. ¹²For just as woman came from man, so man comes through woman; but all things come from God. ¹³Judge for yourselves: is it proper for a woman to pray to God with her head unveiled? ¹⁴Does not nature itself teach you that if a man wears long hair, it is degrading to him, ¹⁵but if a woman has long hair, it is her glory? For her hair is given to her for a covering. ¹⁶But if anyone is disposed to be contentious—we have no such custom, nor do the churches of God.

¹⁷ Now in the following instructions I do not commend you, because when you come together it is not for the better but for the worse. ¹⁸For, to begin with, when you come together as a church, I hear that there are divisions among you; and to some extent I believe it. ¹⁹Indeed, there have to be factions among you, for only so will it become clear who among you are genuine. ²⁰When you come together, it is not really to eat the Lord's supper. ²¹For when the time comes to eat, each of you goes ahead with your own supper, and one goes hungry and another becomes drunk. ²²What! Do you not have homes to eat and drink in? Or do you show contempt for the church of God and humiliate those who have nothing? What should I say to you? Should I commend you? In this matter I do not commend you!

The Institution of the Lord's Supper

²³ For I received from the Lord what I also handed on to you, that the Lord Jesus on the night when he was betrayed took a loaf of bread, ²⁴and when he had given thanks, he broke it and said, "This is my body that is for^y you. Do this in remembrance of me." ²⁵In the same way he took the cup also, after supper, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood. Do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me." ²⁶For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes.

Partaking of the Supper Unworthily

²⁷ Whoever, therefore, eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner will be answerable for the body and blood of the Lord. ²⁸Examine yourselves, and only then eat of the bread mutuality (see also 7.3–4), and some interpreters believe equality as well. 11.12 Man comes through woman, because women bear the children. All things come from God. See 8.6; 10.26. 11.14 Nature itself, not actually "nature," but social convention. 11.16 The churches of God, Paul's other congregations.

11.17–22 The discussion that begins here extends through 11.34. 11.17 I do not commend you. Cf. 11.2. 11.18 Together as a church. The Corinthians assembled at least weekly (see 16.2), probably in the house of a relatively prosperous member. Divisions. See 1.10–13; 12.25; also Titus 3.10. 11.19 Paul's comment on factions may reflect the Jewish and early Christian expectation that the close of history would be preceded by various kinds of strife and suffering; see, e.g., 7.26; Mt 10.34–36; Mk 13; 2 Pet 2.1. 11.20–21 The Pauline congregations combined their ritual observance of Jesus' last supper (see Mk 14.17–26) with their own community meal. 11.22 The church of God. See 1.2. Those who have nothing, the poorer members of the congregation (see 12.24–26; also Jas 2.6).

11.23–26 Paul repeats and comments on the words with which, according to tradition, Jesus at his last supper distributed bread and wine; see also 10.16–17; Mt 26.26–29; Mk 14.22–25; Lk 22.15–20. 11.23 From the Lord, not from Jesus directly, but by way of the church's liturgical tradition (see 15.3). Betrayed, by Judas Iscariot (see Mk 14.43–46). 11.24 Thanks. Jewish meals customarily began with the blessing and distribution of the bread. 11.25 The cup, of wine (see 10.16). After supper. See also Lk 22.20. This phrase suggests that the ritual acts with bread and cup were customarily separated by an ordinary community meal. New covenant. See also Jer 31.31; 32.40; Lk 22.20; 2 Cor 3.6; Heb 8.6–13; 9.15–20. Blood seals and thus symbolizes the covenant; see Ex 24.8; Zech 9.11; Heb 9.12; 13.20; also Rom 3.25; 5.9. 11.26 Paul interprets the tradition he has just cited by accentuating Christ's saving death (see 15.3–5) and expected return (see 1.7–8).

11.27–34 The discussion is concluded with some sober warnings and earnest appeals. 11.27 An unworthy manner. See 11.29. 11.28 Examine yourselves. See also 2 Cor 13.5; Gal 6.4.

and drink of the cup. ²⁹For all who eat and drink^z without discerning the body,^a eat and drink judgment against themselves. ³⁰For this reason many of you are weak and ill, and some have died.^b ³¹But if we judged ourselves, we would not be judged. ³²But when we are judged by the Lord, we are disciplined^c so that we may not be condemned along with the world.

³³ So then, my brothers and sisters,^d when you come together to eat, wait for one another. ³⁴If you are hungry, eat at home, so that when you come together, it will not be for your condemnation. About the other things I will give instructions when I come.

Spiritual Gifts

12 Now concerning spiritual gifts,^e brothers and sisters,^d I do not want you to be uninformed. ²You know that when you were pagans, you were enticed and led astray to idols that could not speak. ³Therefore I want you to understand that no one speaking by the Spirit of God ever says "Let Jesus be cursed!" and no one can say "Jesus is Lord" except by the Holy Spirit.

⁴ Now there are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; ⁵and there are varieties of services, but the same Lord; ⁶and there are varieties of activities, but it is the same God who activates all of them in everyone. ⁷To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. ⁸To one is given through the Spirit the utterance of wisdom, and to another the utterance of knowledge according to the same Spirit, ⁹to another faith by the same Spirit, to another gifts of healing by the one Spirit, ¹⁰to another the working of miracles, to 11.29 The body, probably the congregation itself. When believers neither discern nor are concerned for one another's needs, "the body of Christ" is being disregarded and violated (see 10.16–17; 12.12–13). 11.30 How many and who were ill or had died is unknown. These illnesses and deaths are interpreted as God's punishment for the disorders within the congregation. 11.31 If we judged ourselves involves a wordplay, since the Greek term translated judged can also be rendered discerned, as in 11.29. 11.32 By the Lord probably refers to Christ. The world, non-Christians. 11.33–34 See 11.21–22. 11.33 Wait for one another may suggest that the poorer members always had to arrive late for congregational meals. 11.34 What the other things were is unknown. When I come. See 4.19–21; 16.5–9.

12.1–11 Paul's comments about spiritual gifts, introduced here, continue through ch. 14. In particular, he is concerned to correct the view that speaking in tongues somehow demonstrates the higher spiritual status of those who are thus graced. 12.1 Now concerning. See note on 8.1. Spiritual gifts. The form of the Greek word used here can mean either "spiritual things" or spiritual persons (see text note e). Which of these is adopted makes little difference; in either case, Paul's focus in chs. 12–14 is on how gifts like "tongues" should be evaluated. 12.2 Pagans, gentile nonbelievers. Idols that could not speak. See 8.4–6; 10.6–14; also Ps 115.4–5; 135.15–18; Hab 2.18–19; 3 Macc 4.16. 12.3 The Spirit of God. See 2.12. It is unclear whether Paul actually knew of persons who said, "Let Jesus be cursed!" "Jesus is Lord" was one of the church's earliest creedal affirmations; see also 8.6; Rom 10.9; 2 Cor 4.5; Phil 2.11. 12.4 Gifts. The Greek term here (and in 1.7; 7.7; 12.9, 28, 30, 31; Rom 1.11; 12.6) is charisma, not the one rendered spiritual gifts in 12.1. A charisma is a benefit with which one has been "graced." 12.5 Services, or "ministries," listed in 12.28; see also Rom 12.7. The same Lord, Christ; see also 8.6. 12.6 On God who activates, or works, in everyone, see also Gal 2.8; Phil 2.13; 1 Thess 2.13; Eph 1.11. 12.7 The common good, or "the benefit of all," a major concern in this Letter; see 6.12; 7.35; 10.23, 33. 12.8–10 Similar (but not identical) lists of spiritual gifts appear in 12.28, 29–30; Rom 12.6–8; see also Eph 4.11; 1 Pet 4.10–11. 12.8 Utterance, or "word" (an intelligible utterance). Wisdom. See 2.6–16. Knowledge. See 1.5; 8.1; 13.2, 8. 12.9 Faith, here the special ability, granted only to some believers, to do extraordinary things (see 13.2); not to be confused with the kind of faithfulness that is fundamental to the Christian life (see, e.g., 2.5; 16.13). Healings are attributed to Paul himself in Acts (e.g., 14.8–10). 12.10 The working of miracles, apparently regarded as a more comprehensive gift than those of "faith" and "healing"; see also 12.28; 2 Cor 12.12; Gal 3.5. Prophecy. See 11.4–5; 13.2, 8; ch. 14; 1 Thess 5.20. Discernment of spirits, perhaps the ability to distinguish between true and false prophecy, as in 14.29; 1 Thess 5.19–21; but see Acts 16.16–18; 1 Jn 4.1. Tongues, unintelligible utterance (in contrast to prophecy and the kinds of speech mentioned in 12.8); see 13.1, 8; ch. 14; Acts 10.46; 19.6. In Acts 2.4, 11 the another prophecy, to another the discernment of spirits, to another various kinds of tongues, to another the interpretation of tongues. ¹¹All these are activated by one and the same Spirit, who allots to each one individually just as the Spirit chooses.

One Body with Many Members

¹² For just as the body is one and has many members, and all the members of the body, though many, are one body, so it is with Christ. ¹³ For in the one Spirit we were all baptized into one body—Jews or Greeks, slaves or free—and we were all made to drink of one Spirit.

¹⁴ Indeed, the body does not consist of one member but of many. ¹⁵ If the foot would say, “Because I am not a hand, I do not belong to the body,” that would not make it any less a part of the body. ¹⁶ And if the ear would say, “Because I am not an eye, I do not belong to the body,” that would not make it any less a part of the body. ¹⁷ If the whole body were an eye, where would the hearing be? If the whole body were hearing, where would the sense of smell be? ¹⁸ But as it is, God ar-

anged the members in the body, each one of them, as he chose. ¹⁹ If all were a single member, where would the body be? ²⁰ As it is, there are many members, yet one body. ²¹ The eye cannot say to the hand, “I have no need of you,” nor again the head to the feet, “I have no need of you.” ²² On the contrary, the members of the body that seem to be weaker are indispensable, ²³ and those members of the body that we think less honorable we clothe with greater honor, and our less respectable members are treated with greater respect; ²⁴ whereas our more respectable members do not need this. But God has so arranged the body, giving the greater honor to the inferior member, ²⁵ that there may be no dissension within the body, but the members may have the same care for one another. ²⁶ If one member suffers, all suffer together with it; if one member is honored, all rejoice together with it.

²⁷ Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it. ²⁸ And God has appointed in the church first apostles, second prophets, third teachers; then deeds of power, then gifts of heal-same word is properly translated as “languages.” Interpretation of tongues. See 14.5, 13, 26–28. 12.11 Activated. See 12.6.

12.12–31 Paul now introduces (12.12–13) and elaborates (12.14–31) his metaphor of the church as Christ’s body. Along with ch. 13, this provides a foundation for the more specific counsels that follow in ch. 14. 12.12–13 Like certain other ancient writers, Paul regards the human body as illustrating the point that unity and diversity are not incompatible (see also 12.14–16). Applying this to the church, conceived as Christ’s “body” (see 12.27), he alludes to an early Christian affirmation about the meaning of baptism into Christ; see also Gal 3.27–28; Col 3.11. Jews or Greeks. See 7.18–19; also 1.22, 24. Slaves or free. See 7.21–23. Made to drink of one Spirit suggests that new believers become suffused with the Spirit at their baptism. 12.14–16 Paul stresses the diversity, thus interdependence of the body’s members; see also 12.12, 20, 27; Rom 12.4–5; Eph 4.25; 5.30. 12.17–21 The body’s diversity in unity is God’s own doing (see also 12.24, 28; 15.38). 12.22 The members . . . that seem to be weaker, probably an allusion to the vulnerable but vital internal organs of a human body, thus by analogy the most vulnerable yet vital members of a Christian congregation. See also 8.7, 9–12; 9.22;

1 Thess 5.14. 12.23 Less honorable . . . less respectable members, the sexual organs, which in many cultures are covered to avoid shame (see Gen 3.7–10); by analogy the members of lower standing in society who are nonetheless important to the congregation. 12.24 More respectable members, the parts of the body left uncovered, by analogy the congregational members of higher standing in society. The inferior member, perhaps better translated as “the needy member,” which would include the “weaker,” the “less honorable,” and the “less respectable.” 12.26 Paul’s conception of Christian community as sharing in the sufferings (e.g., 2 Cor 1.7; 11.28–29) and joys (e.g., 2 Cor 2.3; 7.13) of others departs from the ancient Greek and Roman ideal of dispassionate self-sufficiency; see also Rom 12.15; 15.1; Gal 6.2. 12.27 This description of the Corinthian church as the body of Christ makes explicit what is already implicit in 1.13; 6.15; 10.17; see 12.12–13; also Rom 12.4–5. The metaphor is developed further in Colossians (e.g., 1.18, 24; 2.19; 3.15) and Ephesians (e.g., 4.4, 12; 5.23, 29–30). 12.28 See also the list of gifts in 12.8–10. Apostles. See 1.1. Teachers. See 4.17; also Acts 13.1; Rom 12.7. Deeds of power, miracles, as in 12.10, 29. Assistance perhaps refers to helpful deeds in general (see Rom 12.8; also 1 Tim 5.10). Leadership. The same Greek term

ing, forms of assistance, forms of leadership, various kinds of tongues. ²⁹Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Do all work miracles? ³⁰Do all possess gifts of healing? Do all speak in tongues? Do all interpret? ³¹But strive for the greater gifts. And I will show you a still more excellent way.

The Gift of Love

13 If I speak in the tongues of mortals and of angels, but do not have love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal. ²And if I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but do not have love, I am nothing. ³If I give away all my possessions, and if I hand over my body so that I may boast,^f but do not have love, I gain nothing.

⁴ Love is patient; love is kind; love is not envious or boastful or arrogant ⁵or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; ⁶it does not rejoice in wrongdoing, but rejoices in the truth. ⁷It bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

⁸ Love never ends. But as for prophecies, they will come to an end; as for tongues, they will cease; as for knowledge, it will come to an end. ⁹For we know only in part, and we prophesy only in part; ¹⁰but when the complete comes, the partial will come to an end. ¹¹When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child; when I became an adult, I put an end to childish ways. ¹²For now we see in a mirror, dimly,^g but then we will see face to face. Now I know only in part; then I will know fully, even as I have been fully known. ¹³And now faith, hope, and love abide, these three; and the greatest of these is love.

Gifts of Prophecy and Tongues

14 Pursue love and strive for the spiritual gifts, and especially that you may prophesy. ²For those who speak in a tongue do not speak to other people but to God; for nobody understands

is used in the Septuagint to refer to offering wise counsel (Prov 1.5; 11.14; 24.6). 12.30 Do all interpret? alludes to those who are able to interpret tongues; see 14.5, 13, 26–28. 12.31 The greater gifts are, in Paul's view, those that build up the congregation; see 14.4–5. A still more excellent way than any spiritual gift is the kind of love described in ch. 13.

13.1–13 This chapter has been introduced by the last sentence of ch. 12. Although there is nothing explicitly theological here, Paul seems to be presupposing what he has already said about love in 8.1–3. Thus, along with ch. 12 this chapter lays the theological foundation for the counsels in ch. 14. 13.1 I in this chapter can be interpreted either as “anyone” or as Paul himself. If the latter, the apostle is holding up his own situation as exemplary. The tongues of mortals and of angels. The whole phrase may refer to the ecstatic utterance of those who speak in tongues, or else a distinction is intended between ordinary speech and tongues (“angelic” speech). 13.2 Mysteries. See 4.1; 14.2. Faith . . . to remove mountains. See 12.9; also Mt 17.20; Mk 11.22–23; also Isa 54.10. 13.3 On giving away . . . possessions, see Mt 6.2. Elsewhere Paul boasts in his weaknesses and sufferings; see 2 Cor 11.30; 12.5, 9–10. 13.4–7 Paul's description of love's way (12.31) matches both his understanding of God's love as disclosed in Christ (Rom 5.6, 8; 15.3, 7–8; 2 Cor 8.9; Phil 2.6–11) and his understanding of what constitutes appropriate conduct for those who are in Christ (10.24, 32–33; Rom 15.1–2; 2 Cor 5.14–15; Phil 2.3–4). See also Rom 12.9–21; 13.8–10; Gal 5.13–14. 13.8–10 In emphasizing the limitations of prophecies, tongues, and knowledge, Paul seeks to correct the Corinthians' inflated claims about these; see also 8.1; 13.2, 12–13. 13.10 When the complete comes, an allusion to the promised eschatological fulfillment of salvation (see 1.7–8). 13.11 I. See note on 13.1. Childish ways. See also 3.1–4; 14.20. 13.12 Now . . . then distinguishes the present age from the age to come. Ancient mirrors were made of bronze, and those of Corinthian manufacture were noted for their excellence. The word translated dimly perhaps refers to the indirect, thus partial view that one has of a mirrored object; see also 2 Cor 5.7. As I have been fully known, by God; see 8.3; Gal 4.9. 13.13 Faith, hope, and love. This triad is echoed in Gal 5.5–6; Col 1.4–5; 1 Thess 1.3; 5.8; see also Wis 3.4, 9.

14.1–25 The instructions about spiritual gifts offered in this chapter are based on what has been said in ch. 12 about Christ's body and in 8.1–3; ch. 13 about love. 14.1 Because love is what matters most (ch. 13), those spiritual gifts (see 12.1) that build up the congregation are to be par-them, since they are speaking mysteries in the Spirit. ³On the other hand, those who prophesy speak to other people for their upbuilding and encouragement and consolation. ⁴Those who speak in a tongue build up themselves, but those who prophesy build up the church. ⁵Now I would like all of you to speak in tongues, but even more to prophesy. One who prophesies is greater than one who speaks in tongues, unless someone interprets, so that the church may be built up.

⁶ Now, brothers and sisters,^h if I come to you speaking in tongues, how will I benefit you unless I speak to you in some revelation or knowledge or prophecy or teaching? ⁷It is the same way with lifeless instruments that produce sound, such as the flute or the harp. If they do not give distinct notes, how will anyone know what is being played? ⁸And if the bugle gives an indistinct sound, who will get ready for battle? ⁹So with yourselves; if in a tongue you utter speech that is not intelligible, how will anyone know what is being said? For you will be speaking into the air. ¹⁰There are doubtless many different kinds of sounds in the world, and nothing is without sound. ¹¹If then I do not know the meaning of a sound, I will be a foreigner to the speaker and the speaker a foreigner to me. ¹²So with yourselves; since you are eager for spiritual gifts, strive to excel in them for building up the church.

¹³ Therefore, one who speaks in a tongue should pray for the power to interpret. ¹⁴For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays but my mind is unproductive. ¹⁵What should I do then? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray with the mind also; I will sing praise with the spirit, but I will sing praise with the mind also. ¹⁶Otherwise, if you say a blessing with the spirit, how can anyone in the position of an outsider say the "Amen" to your thanksgiving, since the outsider does not know what you are saying? ¹⁷For you may give thanks well enough, but the other person is not built up. ¹⁸I thank God that I speak in tongues more than all of you; ¹⁹nevertheless, in church I would rather speak five words with my mind, in order to instruct others also, than ten thousand words in a tongue.

²⁰ Brothers and sisters,^h do not be children in your thinking; rather, be infants in evil, but in thinking be adults. ²¹In the law it is written,

"By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners
I will speak to this people;
yet even then they will not listen to me,"

says the Lord. ²²Tongues, then, are a sign not for believers but for unbelievers, while prophecy is not for unbelievers but for believers. ²³If, therefore, the whole church comes together and all speak in tongues, and outsiders or unbelievers enter, will they not say that you are out of your mind? ²⁴But if all prophesy, an unbeliever or outsider who enters is reproved by all and called to account by all. ²⁵After the secrets of the unbeliever's heart are disclosed, that person will bow down before God and worship him, declaring, "God is really among you."

Orderly Worship

²⁶ What should be done then, my friends?^h When you come together, each one has a hymn, a lesson, a revelation, a tongue, or an interpretation. Let all things be done for building up. ²⁷If anyone speaks in a tongue, let there be only two or at most three, and each in turn; and let one interpret. ²⁸But if there is no one to interpret, let them be silent in church and speak to themselves and to God. ²⁹Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said. ³⁰If a revelation is made to someone else sitting nearby, let the first person be silent. ³¹For you can all prophesy one by one, so that all may learn and all be encouraged. ³²And the spirits of prophets are subject to the prophets, ³³for God is a God not of disorder but of peace.

(As in all the churches of the saints, ³⁴women should be silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be subordinate, as the law also says. ³⁵If there is anything they desire to know, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.ⁱ ³⁶Or did the word of God originate with you? Or are you the only ones it has reached?)

³⁷ Anyone who claims to be a prophet, or to have spiritual powers, must acknowledge that what I am writing to you is a command of the Lord. ³⁸Anyone who does not recognize this is not to be recognized. ³⁹So, my friends,^j be eager to prophesy, and do not forbid speaking in tongues; ⁴⁰but all things should be done decently and in order.

The Resurrection of Christ

15 Now I would remind you, brothers and sisters,^k of the good news^l that I proclaimed to you, which you in turn received, in which also you stand, ²through which also you are being saved, if you hold firmly to the message that I proclaimed to you—unless you have come to believe in vain.

³ For I handed on to you as of first importance what I in turn had received: that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the scriptures, ⁴and that he was buried, and that he was raised on the third day in accordance with the scriptures, ⁵and that he appeared to Cephas, then to the twelve. ⁶Then he appeared to more than five hundred brothers and sisters^k at one time, most of whom are still alive, though some have died.^m ⁷Then he appeared to James, then to all the apostles. ⁸Last of all, as to one untimely born, he appeared also to me. ⁹For I am the least

See also Eph 5.22–24; Col 3.18; 1 Pet 3.1–6. 14.36 Some scholars include this verse in the non-Pauline addition. 14.37 A command of the Lord, not a reference to some specific saying of Jesus (as in 7.10; 9.14), but to all that Paul has said, as an apostle of Christ, about spiritual gifts. 14.38 Not to be recognized. of the apostles, unfit to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.¹⁰ But by the grace of God I am what I am, and his grace toward me has not been in vain. On the contrary, I worked harder than any of them—though it was not I, but the grace of God that is with me.¹¹ Whether then it was I or they, so we proclaim and so you have come to believe.

12 Now if Christ is proclaimed as raised from the dead, how can some of you say there is no resurrection of the dead?¹³ If there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised;¹⁴ and if Christ has not been raised, then our proclamation has been in vain and your faith has been in vain.¹⁵ We are even found to be misrepresenting God, because we testified of God that he raised Christ—whom he did not raise if it is true that the dead are not raised.¹⁶ For if the dead are not raised, then Christ has not been raised.¹⁷ If Christ has not been raised, your faith is futile and you are still in your sins.¹⁸ Then those also who have diedⁿ in Christ have perished.¹⁹ If for this life only we have hoped in Christ, we are of all people most to be pitied.

20 But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who have died.ⁿ ²¹ For since death came through a human being, the resurrection of the dead has also come through a human being;²² for as all die in Adam, so all will be made alive in Christ.²³ But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, then at his coming those who belong to Christ.²⁴ Then comes the end,^o when he hands over the kingdom to God the Father, after he has destroyed every ruler and every authority and power.²⁵ For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet.²⁶ The last enemy to be destroyed is death.²⁷ For “God^p has put all things in subjection under his feet.” But when it says, “All things are put in subjection,” it is plain that this does not include the one who put all things in subjection under him.²⁸ When all things are subjected to him, then the Son himself will also be subjected to the one who put all things in subjection under him, so that God may be all in all.

29 Otherwise, what will those people do who receive baptism on behalf of the dead? If the dead are not raised at all, why are people baptized on their behalf?

30 And why are we putting ourselves in danger every hour?³¹ I die every day! That is as certain, brothers and sisters,^q as my boasting of you—a boast that I make in Christ Jesus our Lord.³² If with merely human hopes I fought with wild animals at Ephesus, what would I have gained by it? If the dead are not raised,

“Let us eat and drink,
for tomorrow we die.”

³⁴Come to a sober and right mind, and sin no more; for some people have no knowledge of God. I say this to your shame.

The Resurrection Body

³⁵ But someone will ask, "How are the dead raised? With what kind of body do they come?" ³⁶ Fool! What you sow does not come to life unless it dies. ³⁷ And as for what you sow, you do not sow the body that is to be, but a bare seed, perhaps of wheat or of some other grain. ³⁸ But God gives it a body as he has chosen, and to each kind of seed its own body. ³⁹ Not all flesh is alike, but there is one flesh for human beings, another for animals, another for birds, and another for fish. ⁴⁰ There are both heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but the glory of the heavenly is one thing, and that of the earthly is another. ⁴¹ There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; indeed, star differs from star in glory.

⁴² So it is with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown is perishable, what is raised is imperishable. ⁴³ It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power. ⁴⁴ It is sown a physical body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a physical body, there is also a spiritual body. ⁴⁵ Thus it is written, "The first man, Adam, became a living being"; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. ⁴⁶ But it is not the spiritual that is first, but the physical, and then the spiritual. ⁴⁷ The first man was from the earth, a man of dust; the second man is^r from heaven. ⁴⁸ As was the man of dust, so are those who are of the dust; and as is the man of heaven, so are those who are of heaven. ⁴⁹ Just as we have borne the image of the man of dust, we will^s also bear the image of the man of heaven.

⁵⁰ What I am saying, brothers and sisters,^t is this: flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, nor does the perishable inherit the imperishable. ⁵¹ Listen, I will tell you a mystery! We will not all die,^u but we will all be changed, ⁵² in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we will be changed. ⁵³ For this perishable body must put on imperishability, and this mortal body must put on immortality. ⁵⁴ When this perishable body puts on imperishability, and this mortal body puts on immortality, then the saying that is written will be fulfilled:

"Death has been swallowed up in victory."

⁵⁵ "Where, O death, is your victory?

Where, O death, is your sting?"

⁵⁶ The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. ⁵⁷ But thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

⁵⁸ Therefore, my beloved,^v be steadfast, immovable, always excelling in the work of the Lord, because you know that in the Lord your labor is not in vain.

The Collection for the Saints

16 Now concerning the collection for the saints: you should follow the directions I gave to the churches of Galatia. ²On the first day of every week, each of you is to put aside and save whatever extra you earn, so that collections need not be taken when I come. ³And when I arrive, I will send any whom you approve with letters to take your gift to Jerusalem. ⁴If it seems advisable that I should go also, they will accompany me.

Plans for Travel

⁵ I will visit you after passing through Macedonia—for I intend to pass through Macedonia—⁶and perhaps I will stay with you or even spend the winter, so that you may send me on my way, wherever I go. ⁷I do not want to see you now just in passing, for I hope to spend some time with you, if the Lord permits. ⁸But I will stay in Ephesus until Pentecost, ⁹for a wide door for effective work has opened to me, and there are many adversaries.

¹⁰ If Timothy comes, see that he has nothing to fear among you, for he is doing the work of the Lord just as I am; ¹¹therefore let no one despise him. Send him on his way in peace, so that he may come to me; for I am expecting him with the brothers.

¹² Now concerning our brother Apollos, I strongly urged him to visit you with the other brothers, but he was not at all willing^w to come now. He will come when he has the opportunity.

Final Messages and Greetings

¹³ Keep alert, stand firm in your faith, be courageous, be strong. ¹⁴Let all that you do be done in love.

²¹ I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. ²²Let anyone be accursed who has no love for the Lord. Our Lord, come!^y ²³The grace of the Lord Jesus be with you. ²⁴My love be with all of you in Christ Jesus.^z

THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS

Stylistic Features

OF ALL PAUL'S LETTERS, 2 Corinthians is perhaps the most difficult to interpret. One contributing factor is the seemingly disjointed nature of its argument. 2 Cor 6.14–7.1, e.g., seems to be a digression from an appeal that begins in 6.11–13 and resumes in 7.2–4. Again, the narration of Paul's journey from Asia Minor to Macedonia (2.12–13) is interrupted, only to resume five chapters later (7.5). In addition, the tone of the Letter varies widely. Ch. 7, e.g., is joyful and conciliatory, whereas chs. 10–13 are ironic and argumentative. Because of the digressions, abrupt transitions, and differences in tone, many scholars have argued that 2 Corinthians is composed of several fragments. Certainly it is a mixed Letter, containing different styles and various elements such as appeals, exhortations, rebukes, threats, attacks, counterattacks, self-defense, self-praise, and irony.

Nature and Sequence of the Corinthian Correspondence

After Paul established the church at Corinth, he carried on an extensive correspondence with the Christians in that city. They wrote him at least once (1 Cor 7.1), and he wrote them no less than four times. His first letter (Letter A) is mentioned in 1 Cor 5.9; the second (Letter B) is our 1 Corinthians, written from Ephesus (1 Cor 16.8). About the same time as Letter B, Paul sent his co-worker Timothy to Corinth (1 Cor 4.17; 16.10–11), and shortly after this letter a group of Jewish-Christian missionaries (2 Cor 11.22–23) arrived in Corinth and began to criticize the apostle. Timothy apparently returned to Ephesus with a troubling report about the church, which prompted Paul to change his plans and to travel directly to Corinth. He later described this second visit as “painful,” because some individual there wronged him (2 Cor 2.1–11; 7.12). Subsequent to this second visit and in lieu of a third visit, Paul wrote a grieving letter, a “letter of tears” (2 Cor 1.23–2.4; 7.5–11). It was written either in Macedonia immediately after Paul's departure from Corinth (2 Cor 1.16) or upon his return to Ephesus. Instead of sending Timothy back to Corinth with this letter, Paul apparently sent Titus, another co-worker.

There are four major theories about the nature and sequence of the correspondence following Timothy's return to Ephesus. According to the first and simplest theory, the "letter of tears" is Paul's third letter to Corinth (Letter C) and has been lost. 2 Corinthians as a whole is Paul's fourth letter (Letter D). Written from Macedonia after Titus's return, it contains no fragments of earlier letters. Chs. 10–13, however, may have been written considerably later than chs. 1–9 and after Paul received new and troubling information about the situation in Corinth.

The second theory is only slightly more complicated than the first. It too assumes that Letter C is the lost "letter of tears." It differs from the first by dividing 2 Corinthians into two originally independent letters. Paul's fourth letter (Letter D) is contained in chs. 1–9, and a fifth, later letter (Letter E) is partially preserved in chs. 10–13. Letters D and E both were written in Macedonia, with Letter D occasioned by Titus's optimistic report (7.5–16) and Letter E by a later, more pessimistic assessment of the state of affairs in the Corinthian church.

The third theory, like the first two, maintains that the "letter of tears" is Paul's third letter (Letter C). It differs by identifying Letter C with chs. 10–13 and by usually assigning its place of composition to Ephesus (though Macedonia is favored in some reconstructions). Paul's fourth letter (Letter D) is equivalent to chs. 1–9, with Titus's report its occasion and Macedonia its place of composition. By making chs. 10–13 earlier than chs. 1–9, the third theory thus reverses the second theory's chronological sequence.

The fourth theory is the most complex. Paul's third letter to Corinth (Letter C) is not the "letter of tears," but a letter (partially preserved in 2.14–6.13; 7.2–4) in which Paul defends himself against the verbal attacks of his opponents in Corinth. This letter, which preceded Paul's second visit to Corinth, was followed by another defensive letter (Letter D), partially preserved in chs. 10–13, which is probably, though not necessarily, the "letter of tears." Letters C and D were both composed in Ephesus. Paul's fifth letter (Letter E), occasioned by Titus's glowing report, is his "letter of reconciliation" with the Corinthian church. Written in Macedonia and completely preserved in 1.1–2.13; 7.5–16; 13.11–13, it provides the editorial frame for the entire canonical Letter. Chs. 8 and 9 (Letters F and G, respectively), which deal with the collection for the Jerusalem church, are chronologically the last of Paul's correspondence with the Christians of Achaia, though one of the chapters (probably 8) may originally have been attached to the "letter of reconciliation" (Letter E).

Date and Occasion of the Letter(s)

The arrival of Paul's opponents in Corinth, his disastrous second visit to the city, his estrangement from part of the Corinthian church, the continuing problem of sin and impenitence in Corinth (12.20–21), the "letter of tears," the need for full reconciliation with both the church as a whole and Paul's offender (2.5–11; 7.12), Titus's glowing report, and possibly other, more negative reports provide the occasion for 2 Corinthians, either in part or as a whole. According to all four reconstructions, Paul's later correspondence with Corinth belongs to the mid-50s of the first century (ca. 54–56 c.e.). This places it in the most theologically productive period of Paul's life, between 1 Thessalonians and Romans. Unquestionably Paul's interactions with the Corinthian church helped give both form and substance to his whole theology. John T. Fitzgerald

Salutation

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother,

To the church of God that is in Corinth, including all the saints throughout Achaia:

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Paul's Blessing After Affliction

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all consolation, 4 who consoles us in all our affliction, so that we may be able to console those who are in any affliction with the consolation with which we ourselves are consoled by God. 5 For just as the sufferings of Christ are abundant for us, so also our consolation is abundant through Christ. 6 If we are being afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation; if we are being consoled, it is for your consolation, which you experience when you patiently endure the same sufferings that we are also suffering. 7 Our hope for you is unshaken; for we know that as you share in our sufferings, so also you share in our consolation.

8 We do not want you to be unaware, brothers and sisters,^a of the affliction we experienced in Asia; for we were so utterly, unbearably crushed that we despaired of life itself. 9 Indeed, we felt that we had received the sentence of death so that we would rely not on ourselves but on God who raises the dead. 10 He who rescued us from so deadly a peril will continue to rescue us; on him we have set our hope that he will rescue us again, 11 as you

1.1–2 The form of the salutation follows ancient letter-writing practice. 1.1 The co-sender of the letter is Paul's protégé Timothy, who was with him when the church was established at Corinth (Acts 18.5; 2 Cor 1.19) and later returned there as his intermediary (Acts 19.22; 1 Cor 4.17; 16.10–11). Church of God collectively designates several groups of believers who met in the homes of various members (see 1 Cor 16.19). Saints, lit. "holy ones," a popular early designation of Christians as consecrated to God (see 1 Cor 1.2; 6.1–2). Since 27 B.C.E., Corinth had served as the capital of the Roman senatorial province of Achaia.

1.3–11 Instead of his customary thanksgiving (see Rom 1.8–15; 1 Cor 1.4–9), Paul uses here a benediction derived from ancient Jewish liturgical formulas such as "blessed be the Lord" (see Gen 24.26–27; see also Eph 1.3–14; 1 Pet 1.3–9). 1.3 Father of mercies. See Ps 103.13; Lk 6.36; Rom 12.1. God of all consolation. See Rom 15.5. 1.4 Affliction and consolation are central themes both of the blessing and of the Letter as whole; see 1.3–8; 2.4; 4.8, 17; 6.4; 7.4–7; 8.2, 13. 1.5 The suffer- ings of Christ indicates not only the afflictions Christ himself experienced but also those his followers suffer in his name and on his behalf (4.10–11; Phil 3.10; 1 Pet 1.11; 4.13). 1.6 For Paul, divine consolation may occasionally take the form of deliverance from suffering (as in vv. 8–10), but it consists more fundamentally in the gift of divine power (4.7–9) that enables one to endure (see 6.4; Rom 5.3–5; 2 Thess 1.4; Rev 1.9) an abiding adverse circumstance (12.7–10). 1.7 Our hope for you is unshaken, one of several expressions of Paul's confidence in the Corinthians; see also 1.24; 7.4, 14, 16; 8.7. 1.8 We do not want you to be unaware, a disclosure formula frequently used by Paul to impart new or important information (see Rom 1.13; 11.25; 1 Cor 10.1; 12.1; 1 Thess 4.13). Asia, a Roman senatorial province located in Asia Minor. Nothing certain is known about the event Paul mentions; some conjecture that it was an otherwise unknown imprisonment in Ephesus during which he faced the possibility of execution (v. 9; see also Phil 1.12–26).

also join in helping us by your prayers, so that many will give thanks on our^b behalf for the blessing granted us through the prayers of many.

The Integrity of Paul's Conduct

12 Indeed, this is our boast, the testimony of our conscience: we have behaved in the world with frankness^c and godly sincerity, not by earthly wisdom but by the grace of God—and all the more toward you. 13 For we write you nothing other than what you can read and also understand; I hope you will understand until the end— 14 as you have already understood us in part—that on the day of the Lord Jesus we are your boast even as you are our boast.

The Postponement of Paul's Visit

15 Since I was sure of this, I wanted to come to you first, so that you might have a double favor;^d 16 I wanted to visit you on my way to Macedonia, and to come back to you from Macedonia and have you send me on to Judea. 17 Was I vacillating when I wanted to do this? Do I make my plans according to ordinary human standards,^e ready to say “Yes, yes” and “No, no” at the same time? 18 As surely as God is faithful, our word to you has not been “Yes and No.” 19 For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, whom we proclaimed among you, Silvanus and Timothy and I, was not “Yes and No”; but in him it is always “Yes.” 20 For in him every one of God's promises is a “Yes.” For this reason it is through him that we say the “Amen.” to the glory of God. 21 But it is God who establishes us with you in Christ and has anointed us, 22 by putting his seal on us

1.12–14 Paul's personal integrity is a primary theme in 2 Corinthians. 1.12 The topic of Paul's boast or self-commendation is prominent in the Letters to Corinth; see 1 Cor 9.15; 2 Cor 3.1; 4.2; 5.12; 6.4; 10.8, 12–18; 11.10, 16–18, 30; 12.1, 5–6, 9, 11. The conscience, which plays an important role in the discussion of communal ethics in 1 Cor 8.7–13; 10.25–29, is invoked here in support of Paul's assertions about his own ethical conduct (see also Acts 23.1; 24.16; Rom 9.1; 2 Cor 4.2; 5.11). Frankness. The alternate reading “holiness” (see text note c) is preferred by many commentators. Sincerity is a term that Paul associates with “truthfulness” (see 1 Cor 5.8) and the divine (godly; see also 2 Cor 2.17). It thus stands in contrast to earthly wisdom, which uses duplicity and derives its power from rhetorical eloquence rather than the cross of Christ (see 1 Cor 1.17–25; 2.1–5). 1.13 Until the end may also be translated “fully,” yielding a contrast between partial (v. 14) and complete (v. 13) understanding (see 1 Cor 13.12). 1.14 The day of the Lord Jesus, i.e., the Second Coming (Greek parousia); see Phil 2.16. Paul's goal in 2 Corinthians is reconciliation and restoration of mutual pride between himself and the church. For Paul's pride in the Corinthians (you are our boast), see also 1 Cor 15.31; 2 Cor 7.4, 14; 8.24; 9.2–3; for the Corinthians' pride in Paul (we are your boast), see also 5.12.

1.15–2.4 An explanation for Paul's decision to send the Corinthians a grieving letter rather than revisit them. 1.15–16 For Paul's various travel plans in regard to Corinth, see also 1 Cor 4.18–21; 11.34; 16.3–9; 2 Cor 9.4; 12.14; 13.1. 1.16 Macedonia was the Roman senatorial province where both Philippi and Thessalonica were located. Send me on, i.e., provide financial assistance for the journey (see Rom 15.24; 1 Cor 16.6, 11; Titus 3.13; 3 Jn 6–8). Judea, the southern part of Palestine, where Jerusalem was located. For this destination, see also Rom 15.25; 1 Cor 16.3. 1.17 To some, Paul's departure from his announced itinerary (see 2.1) suggested he was vacillating. As a result, they accused him of base motives by alleging that he made and changed his travel plans according to ordinary human standards (see text note e; 10.2). “Yes . . . no.” Similar language occurs in Mt 5.37; Jas 5.12. 1.18 God is faithful. The OT theme of divine fidelity (see Deut 7.9), which appears frequently in the NT (1 Cor 1.9; 10.13; 1 Thess 5.24), functions here as an oath to confirm Paul's testimony (see also 1.23). 1.19 Silvanus (1 Thess 1.1; 2 Thess 1.1; 1 Pet 5.12), also known as Silas, was a prophet and leader in the Jerusalem church (Acts 15.22, 32) who accompanied Paul on his so-called second missionary journey (Acts 15.40–18.22). Consequently, he was with Paul and Timothy (see 1.1) when the church was established at Corinth (Acts 18.5). In Greek, the three men are mentioned in the order of importance: Paul, Silvanus, Timothy. 1.20 Amen, a Jewish and Christian liturgical acclamation meaning “So let it be” uttered by the congregation in response to benedictions and thanksgivings (see 1 Cor 14.16; Gal 1.5; Phil 4.20). 1.22 First installment. The same commercial word in Greek is translated guarantee in 5.5 and “pledge” in Eph 1.14. The Spirit, whom believers receive at the time of conversion (see Gal 3.2–3), is the “down payment” that provides as-and giving us his Spirit in our hearts as a first installment.

23 But I call on God as witness against me: it was to spare you that I did not come again to Corinth. 24 I do not mean to imply that we lord it over your faith; rather, we are workers with you for your joy, because you stand firm in the faith.

2 1 So I made up my mind not to make you another painful visit. 2 For if I cause you pain, who is there to make me glad but the one whom I have pained? 3 And I wrote as I did, so that when I came, I might not suffer pain from those who should have made me rejoice; for I am confident about all of you, that my joy would be the joy of all of you. 4 For I wrote you out of much distress and anguish of heart and with many tears, not to cause you pain, but to let you know the abundant love that I have for you.

Forgiveness for the Offender

5 But if anyone has caused pain, he has caused it not to me, but to some extent—not to exaggerate it—to all of you. 6 This punishment by the majority is enough for such a person; 7 so now instead you should forgive and console him, so that he may not be overwhelmed by excessive sorrow. 8 So I urge you to reaffirm your love for him. 9 I wrote for this reason: to test you and to know whether you are obedient in everything. 10 Anyone whom you forgive, I also forgive. What I have forgiven, if I have forgiven anything, has been for your sake in the presence of Christ. 11 And we do this so that we may not be outwitted by Satan; for we are not ignorant of his designs.

Paul's Anxiety in Troas

12 When I came to Troas to proclaim the good news of Christ, a door was opened for me in the Lord; 13 but my mind could not rest because I did not find my brother Titus there. So I said farewell to them and went on to Macedonia.

Paul in God's Triumphal Procession

14 But thanks be to God, who in Christ always leads us in triumphal procession, and through us spreads in every surance that all God's saving promises (v. 20) will be fulfilled (see Rom 8.11; Eph 4.30). 1.23 For God as witness to Paul's oaths, see Rom 1.9; Phil 1.8; 1 Thess 2.5, 10. 1.24 Thematically, joy and pain (2.2) in 1.23–2.11 resume Paul's earlier discussion of affliction and consolation (1.3–11). You stand firm in the faith. See 1.7. 2.1 The painful visit was Paul's second trip to Corinth; the next visit will be his third (see 12.14, 21; 13.1). 2.3 I wrote. See also 2.4, 9; 7.8, 12. For hypotheses concerning this "letter of tears," see Introduction.

2.5–11 A major goal of Paul is the reconciliation of the person who mistreated him during his second visit. 2.5 If anyone has caused pain (see also 7.12). Both the identity of this individual and the details of his actions are unknown. Earlier critics normally identified him with the "incestuous" man of 1 Cor 5, whereas most modern interpreters see him as either another member of the Corinthian church or someone from outside of Corinth. 2.6 Punishment, or "strong moral rebuke." 2.7 Forgive (see also Eph 4.32; Col 3.13), so that the church's action may be redemptive rather than destructive (7.10). 2.9 To be obedient (see also 10.6) entails recognition of Paul's apostolic authority (10.8; 13.10). His later praise of the Corinthians' obedience (7.15) indicates that they passed this test. 2.11 Satan is frequently mentioned not only in Paul's Letters to Corinth (1 Cor 5.5; 7.5; 2 Cor 6.15; 11.14; 12.7) but also in those written from that city (Rom 16.20; 1 Thess 2.18; 2 Thess 2.9).

2.12–13 Paul's anxiety over the effect of the letter carried by Titus (2.4; see Introduction). 2.12 The seaport city of Alexandria Troas was a Roman colony located in the northwest corner of Asia Minor (see Acts 16.8, 11; 20.5–6; 2 Tim 4.13). A door was opened, a figurative expression indicating an opportunity for evangelization (see 1 Cor 16.9; Col 4.3; Rev 3.8). 2.13 Titus, like Silvanus and Timothy (1.19), was one of Paul's co-workers (7.6–7, 13–15; 8.6, 16–23; 12.18). A gentile Christian (Gal 2.3), he apparently was the bearer of the letter mentioned in 2.3–4, 9. To Macedonia. See 7.5 for the resumption of Paul's discussion of this journey.

2.14–17 In this opening section of a lengthy discussion of his ministry (2.14–6.10), Paul emphasizes his God-given competence as a minister of the new covenant (see also 4.1–6). For the view that v. 14 marks the beginning of an earlier Pauline apologetic letter, partially preserved in 2.14–6.13; 7.2–4, see Introduction. 2.14 Thanks be to God. See Rom 6.17; 7.25; 1 Cor 15.57; 2 Cor 8.16; 9.15. Leads us in triumphal procession, an allusion to the famous Roman victory parades in which prisoners of war were compelled to march (see also Col 2.15). Fragrance may allude to the use of incense in triumphal processions, to or sacrificial practice (see Lev 1.9, 13; also Eph 5.2; Phil place the fragrance that comes from knowing him. ¹⁵For we are the aroma of Christ to God among those who are being saved and among those who are perishing; ¹⁶to the one a fragrance from death to death, to the other a fragrance from life to life. Who is sufficient for these things? ¹⁷For we are not peddlers of God's word like so many;^f but in Christ we speak as persons of sincerity, as persons sent from God and standing in his presence.

Ministers of the New Covenant

3 Are we beginning to commend ourselves again? Surely we do not need, as some do, letters of recommendation to you or from you, do we? ²You yourselves are our letter, written on our^g hearts, to be known and read by all; ³and you show that you are a letter of Christ, prepared by us, written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on tablets of human hearts.

⁴Such is the confidence that we have through Christ toward God. ⁵Not that we are competent of ourselves to claim anything as coming from us; our competence is from God, ⁶who has made us competent to be ministers of a new covenant, not of letter but of spirit; for the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life.

⁷Now if the ministry of death, chiseled in letters on stone tablets,^h came in glory so that the people of Israel could not gaze at Moses' face because of the glory of his face, a glory now set aside, ⁸how much more will the ministry of the Spirit come in glory? ⁹For if there was glory in the ministry of condemnation, much more does the ministry of justification abound in glory! ¹⁰Indeed, what once had glory has lost its glory because of the greater glory; ¹¹for if what was set aside came through glory, much more has the permanent come in glory!

¹²Since, then, we have such a hope, we act with great boldness, ¹³not like Moses, who put a veil over his face to keep the people of Israel from gazing at the end of the glory thatⁱ was being set aside. ¹⁴But their minds were hardened. Indeed, to this very day, when they hear the reading of the old covenant, that same veil is still there, since only in Christ is it

4.18), or to the ancient idea of fragrance as a sign of the presence of God or of divine wisdom (see Sir 24.15). 2.15 On the contrast between the saved and the perishing, see also 1 Cor 1.18; 2 Cor 4.3. 2.16 Paul's question introduces the theme of his sufficiency or competence (see also 3.5–6) as an apostle, which was a key issue in the dispute with his Corinthian opponents. 2.17 Here and in 4.2 Paul is probably denying his critics' accusations against him as well as making the counteraccusation that they, like so many, are hucksters and charlatans. Sincerity. See 1.12. For speech in the divine presence, see also 12.19.

3.1–18 Using a series of antitheses, Paul compares ministry under the old and new covenants. 3.1 Commend ourselves. See note on 1.12. Letters of recommendation were widely used in the Greco-Roman world to praise friends and acquaintances and to introduce them to others. Early Christians made frequent use of this ancient convention, especially for traveling missionaries (see Acts 18.27). 3.2–3 Our letter. Paul uses letter-writing imagery to describe the Corinthians' conversion, which he attributes to Christ by means of the Spirit. 3.3 The Ten Commandments (Ex 20.1–17; Deut 5.6–21) were inscribed on two tablets of stone (Ex 24.12; 31.18; Deut 9.10). For tablets of human hearts, see Jer 31.33; also Prov 3.3; 7.3; Ezek 11.19; 36.26. 3.6 Both Paul and his rivals used terms such as minister and apostle (1.1) to depict themselves as the personal representatives of Christ (11.13–15, 23). New covenant. See Jer 31.31; also Lk 22.20; 1 Cor 11.25. Letter. Paul uses a different Greek word from that in 3.1–3 and refers now to the law (see Rom 2.27; 7.6), which he often associates with death (v. 7) and condemnation (v. 9). By contrast, the Spirit gives life (see Rom 7.6–11; 8.2, 11; Gal 3.21). 3.7–18 Paul expounds the meaning of v. 6 by means of a two-part interpretation of Ex 34.29–35. 3.7 Ministry of death points to the lethal effects of the law (see Rom 7.10). 3.8 Paul employs here and in the following verses that rabbinic exegetical principle of arguing "from the lesser to the greater" (how much more) to assert that the new covenant and its ministry surpass the old in splendor. 3.12 Boldness refers to the manner of Paul's speaking, not his state of mind. In both Hellenistic philosophy and Pauline theology, frank speech was based on freedom (v. 17), confidence (v. 4), and competence (vv. 5–6), and it was appropriately used to foster moral improvement. 3.14 In contrast to the literal veil mentioned in v. 13 (see Ex 34.33–35), veil here and in vv. 15–16 is a meta-set aside. ¹⁵Indeed, to this very day whenever Moses is read, a veil lies over their minds; ¹⁶but when one turns to the Lord, the veil is removed. ¹⁷Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. ¹⁸And all of us, with unveiled faces, seeing the glory of the Lord as though reflected in a mirror, are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another; for this comes from the Lord, the Spirit.

The Glory of God and the Gospel

4 Therefore, since it is by God's mercy that we are engaged in this ministry, we do not lose heart. ²We have renounced the shameful things that one hides; we refuse to practice cunning or to falsify God's word; but by the open statement of the truth we commend ourselves to the conscience of everyone in the sight of God. ³And even if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing. ⁴In their case the god of this world has blinded the minds of the unbelievers, to keep them from seeing the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God. ⁵For we do not proclaim ourselves; we proclaim Jesus Christ as Lord and ourselves as your slaves for Jesus' sake. ⁶For it is the God who said, "Let light shine out of darkness," who has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

Treasure in Clay Jars

⁷ But we have this treasure in clay jars, so that it may be made clear that this extraordinary power belongs to God and does not come from us. ⁸We are afflicted in every way, but not crushed; perplexed, but not driven to despair; ⁹persecuted, but not forsaken; struck down, but not destroyed; ¹⁰always carrying in the body the death of Jesus, so that the life of Jesus may also be made visible in our bodies. ¹¹For while we live, we are always being given up to death for Jesus' sake, so that the life of Jesus may be made visible in our mortal flesh. ¹²So death is at work in us, but life in you.

phor for misunderstanding. 3.15 Moses is equivalent here to "the book of Moses" (the Torah or Pentateuch); see 2 Chr 25.4; Neh 13.1; Mk 12.26; Acts 15.21. 3.17 Paul apparently identifies "the LORD" mentioned in Ex 34.34 as the Spirit (see also v. 18). 3.18 Paul's statement reflects the widespread Hellenistic belief that humans are changed as a result of beholding the divine. On the metamorphosis to the divine image, see Rom 8.29; 1 Cor 15.49; Col 3.10; for Christ as the image of God, see 4.4.

4.1–6 The revelation of the glory of God in the apostolic proclamation of the gospel. 4.1 Lose heart. See 4.16. 4.2 Paul was accused both of being cunning (see 12.16; also 11.3; 1 Cor 3.19) and of falsifying God's word (see note on 2.17). Conscience. See 1.12. 4.3 Veiled, an enigmatic allusion to a criticism by Paul's opponents, who may have believed that he craftily distorted and hid his gospel by using rhetorical devices such as irony and covert allusion (see 1 Cor 4.6–8), or that Paul's sufferings veiled his message about God and led to its rejection. Perishing. See 2.15. 4.4 The god of this world. This sharply dualistic expression contains the only NT reference to Satan as "god"; but see Jn 12.31; 14.30; 16.11; Eph 2.2; also 1 Cor 2.6, 8. Minds. See 3.14. Unbelievers, either non-Christians (as in 1 Cor 6.6; 7.12–15; 10.27; 14.22–24) or Paul's adversaries, who are linked with Satan (11.13–15) and belong to the perishing (4.3; see also Phil 1.28; 3.18–19). Image. See 3.18; Col 1.15; also Heb 1.3. 4.5 Jesus Christ as Lord was a basic Christian confession; see Rom 10.9; 1 Cor 12.3; Phil 2.11; Col 2.6. 4.6 "Let light shine out of darkness." These precise words do not appear in the OT; see, however, Gen 1.3; Ps 112.4; Isa 9.2.

4.7–5.10 The trials and triumph of Paul's ministry. 4.7–15 Apostolic weakness and divine power. 4.7 Earthenware was fragile and cheap; hence the paradox of precious treasure in clay jars. 4.8–9 Lists of hardships were commonly used to depict the ideal sage's own victory over adversity. Paul claims a similar superiority but consistently attributes it to God rather than himself (v. 7). Similar lists appear in 6.4–10; 11.23–28; 12.10; Rom 8.35–39; 1 Cor 4.9–13; Phil 4.11–12; 2 Tim 3.11. 4.10 Death, lit. "necrosis," a graphic word used by Greek medical writers of dead or dying tissue. Because God's power (v. 7) is displayed in Paul's sufferings, he carries in the body evidence of both Christ's death and his resurrection (life of Jesus). 4.11 Instead of being given up, the Greek word should perhaps be translated "giving ourselves up," which would fit the emphasis found in both Hellenistic philosophy and Christian tradition on voluntary suffering (see Gal 2.20; Eph 5.2, 25). 4.13 The scripture—"I believed, and so I spoke"—we also believe, and so we speak, ¹⁴because we know that the one who raised the Lord Jesus will raise us also with Jesus, and will bring us with you into his presence. ¹⁵Yes, everything is for your sake, so that grace, as it extends to more and more people, may increase thanksgiving, to the glory of God.

Living by Faith

¹⁶ So we do not lose heart. Even though our outer nature is wasting away, our inner nature is being renewed day by day. ¹⁷For this slight momentary affliction is preparing us for an eternal weight of glory beyond all measure, ¹⁸because we look not at what can be seen but at what cannot be seen; for what can be seen is temporary, but what cannot be seen is eternal.

5 For we know that if the earthly tent we live in is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. ²For in this tent we groan, longing to be clothed with our heavenly dwelling— ³if indeed, when we have taken it off^j we will not be found naked. ⁴For while we are still in this tent, we groan under our burden, because we wish not to be unclothed but to be further clothed, so that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life. ⁵He who has prepared us for this very thing is God, who has given us the Spirit as a guarantee.

⁶ So we are always confident; even though we know that while we are at home in the body we are away from the Lord— ⁷for we walk by faith, not by sight. ⁸Yes, we do have confidence, and we would rather be away from the body and at home with the Lord. ⁹So whether we are at home or away, we make it our aim to please him. ¹⁰For all of us must appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each may receive recompense for what has been done in the body, whether good or evil.

The Ministry of Reconciliation

¹¹ Therefore, knowing the fear of the Lord, we try to persuade others; but we ourselves are well known to God, and I hope that we are also well known to your

4.16–5.10 A discussion of present affliction and future glory using terms and concepts drawn from both Hellenistic popular philosophy and Jewish apocalyptic. 4.16 Lose heart. See 4.1; Eph 3.13. The contrast between inner nature (lit. "person") and outer nature was common in philosophical discourse; see also Rom 7.22; Eph 3.16; 1 Pet 3.4. Renewed. See Rom 12.2; Col 3.10. 4.17 On affliction leading to glory, an apocalyptic concept, see Rom 8.18; 2 Thess 1.5. 4.18 The contrasts between visible and invisible, temporary and eternal, were common philosophical ones; see also Col 1.16; Heb 11.1, 3. 5.1–4 The difficulty of this passage is compounded by the striking manner in which Paul mixes residential imagery with terms involving clothing. 5.1 Earthly tent, a common Hellenistic term for the body; see 5.6–10; see also Wis 9.15; 2 Pet 1.13. The tent/building contrast continues the temporary/permanent antithesis of 4.17–18. Destroyed, a reference to death. We have, either immediately after death or, more likely, at the Second Coming (as in 1 Cor 15.20–57; Phil 3.20–21; 1 Thess 4.16–17). Building from God refers either to the resurrection body given each individual believer (see 1 Cor 15.44) or to the apocalyptic concept of the new age with its heavenly temple in the new Jerusalem (see 2 Esd 10.40–57). Not made with hands. See Mk 14.58; Col 2.11 (see text note n); Heb 9.11, 24. 5.2 Groan. See 5.4; Rom 8.23, 26. 5.3–4 According to many interpreters, Paul wishes to avoid death, which renders the soul naked and unclothed; he hopes instead to live until the Second Coming, so that he can be transformed and receive the resurrection body as further clothing (see 1 Cor 15.53–54). Others suggest that Paul is here contrasting himself and his destiny with that of his opponents. Whereas he will receive additional spiritual clothing, his rivals will be condemned at the judgment (see 5.10), stripped of their baptismal clothing (see Gal 3.27), and thus have nakedness as their final state. 5.5 Guarantee. See note on 1.22. 5.7 Not by sight. See 4.18; Rom 8.24–25; 1 Cor 13.12; 1 Pet 1.8. 5.8 On Paul's preference for death (being away from the body), see Phil 1.23. 5.10 On the (final) judgment seat, see Rom 2.16; 14.9–10. Even Christians face judgment over their good or evil deeds; see 11.15; Rom 2.6–10; 1 Cor 4.5, see also Eccl 12.14.

5.11–6.10 Apostolic existence as a ministry of reconciliation. 5.11 The fear of the Lord (see 7.1; Sir 1.30) does not suggest that Paul personally consciences. ¹²We are not commending ourselves to you again, but giving you an opportunity to boast about us, so that you may be able to answer those who boast in outward appearance and not in the heart. ¹³For if we are beside ourselves, it is for God; if we are in our right mind, it is for you. ¹⁴For the love of Christ urges us on, because we are convinced that one has died for all; therefore all have died. ¹⁵And he died for all, so that those who live might live no longer for themselves, but for him who died and was raised for them.

¹⁶ From now on, therefore, we regard no one from a human point of view;^k even though we once knew Christ from a human point of view,^k we know him no longer in that way. ¹⁷So if anyone is in Christ, there is a new creation: everything old has passed away; see, everything has become new! ¹⁸All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ, and has given us the ministry of reconciliation; ¹⁹that is, in Christ God was reconciling the world to himself,^l not counting their trespasses against them, and entrusting the message of reconciliation to us. ²⁰So we are ambassadors for Christ, since God is making his appeal through us; we entreat you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God. ²¹For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God.

6 As we work together with him,^m we urge you also not to accept the grace of God in vain. ²For he says,

“At an acceptable time I have listened to you, and on a day of salvation I have helped you.”

See, now is the acceptable time; see, now is the day of salvation! ³We are putting no obstacle in anyone's way, so that no fault may be found with our ministry, ⁴but as servants of God we have commended ourselves in every way: through great endurance, in afflictions, hardships, calamities, ⁵beatings, imprisonments, riots, labors, sleepless nights, hunger; ⁶by purity, knowledge, patience, kindness, holiness of spirit, genuine love, ⁷truthful speech, and the power of God; with the weapons of righteousness for the right hand and for the left; ⁸in honor and dishonor, in ill repute and good repute. We are treated feared the judgment (see 5.6–8), but that he took his ministry very seriously. 5.12 Commending ourselves. See note on 1.12. Those who boast in outward appearance, Paul's opponents, whom he describes with terms reminiscent of 1 Sam 16.7. 5.13 Are beside ourselves. Most interpreters see here a reference to mystical experiences (see 12.1–6), which, though praised by Paul's adversaries, were evaluated by him according to the same standard he applied to speaking in tongues (1 Cor 14.2, 19, 28). Others, however, believe that Paul is referring to the “letter of tears” (2.4) in which he depicted himself as mad with grief. 5.14 Love of Christ, i.e., Christ's love for us, expressed by his vicarious death (see 5.15; Gal 2.20; also Rom 5.8). 5.15 See Rom 7.4; 14.7–9; Gal 2.19–20. 5.16 To regard anyone—even Christ—from a human point of view (see also 1.17; 11.18) involves a judgment according to outward appearance (5.12). 5.17 New creation. See Isa 43.18–19; 65.17; 66.22; Gal 6.15; Eph 2.15; 2 Pet 3.13; Rev 21.1–5. 5.18 Paul presents God as the reconciler (Rom 5.10–11; also Col 1.20–22), not as the object of reconciliation (as in 2 Macc 1.5; 5.20; 7.33; 8.29). 5.19 Not counting their trespasses against them. See Rom 4.8. 5.21 Made him to be sin, either in the sense that Christ assumed sinful human nature (see Rom 8.3), or that on the cross God treated the sinless Jesus as a sinner (see Gal 3.13), or that Jesus became a sacrifice for sin, either a guilt offering or a sin offering (see Isa 53.10; Rom 8.3, note b). Who knew no sin, a traditional concept; see Jn 7.18; 8.46; Heb 4.15; 7.26; 1 Pet 1.19; 2.22; 3.18; 1 Jn 3.5. As Christ became God's righteousness for humans (1 Cor 1.30), so humans become in Christ the righteousness of God; the latter is an important Pauline phrase that denotes, depending on the context, either God's own righteousness or the righteousness that proceeds from God and justifies the believer (see Rom 1.17; 3.5, 21–22, 25–26; 10.3; Phil 3.9). 6.2 “At . . . helped you,” Isa 49.8. 6.3 No obstacle. See 1 Cor 9.12. 6.4 Servants, lit. “ministers”; see 3.6. Commended ourselves. See note on 1.12. 6.4–7 Adversity and virtue were closely linked in antiquity, so that the nine hardships given in 6.4–5 (see also 4.8–9) function not only to magnify Paul's great endurance (6.4) but also to prove that he is virtuous; the list of virtues (6.6–7) underscores the point. For other virtue lists, see Gal 5.22–23; Phil 4.8; Col 3.12; 1 Pet 3.8; 2 Pet 1.5–7. 6.8–10 The seven antithetic clauses that conclude this section contrast the outward appearance, which is false or deficient, with the true as impostors, and yet are true; ⁹as unknown, and yet are well known; as dying, and see—we are alive; as punished, and yet not killed; ¹⁰as sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing everything.

An Appeal to the Heart

11 We have spoken frankly to you Corinthians; our heart is wide open to you. ¹²There is no restriction in our affections, but only in yours. ¹³In return—I speak as to children—open wide your hearts also.

The Temple of the Living God

14 Do not be mismatched with unbelievers. For what partnership is there between righteousness and lawlessness? Or what fellowship is there between light and darkness? ¹⁵What agreement does Christ have with Beliar? Or what does a believer share with an unbeliever? ¹⁶What agreement has the temple of God with idols? For weⁿ are the temple of the living God; as God said,

“I will live in them and walk among them,

and I will be their God,
and they shall be my people.

- 17 Therefore come out from them,
and be separate from them,
says the Lord,
and touch nothing unclean;
then I will welcome you, 18 and I will be your father, and you shall be my sons and daughters, says the Lord Almighty.”

7 Since we have these promises, beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from every defilement of body and of spirit, making holiness perfect in the fear of God.

The Appeal Resumed

2 Make room in your hearts^o for us; we have wronged no one, we have corrupted no one, we have taken advantage of no one. ³I do not say this to condemn you, for I said before that you are in our hearts, to die together and to live together. ⁴I often boast about you; I have and greater reality that belongs to Paul's heart (5.12; 6.11). In formulating these verses, Paul draws on Ps 118.17–18 as well as Greco-Roman paradoxes about the ideal sage. 6.10 Poor, yet making many rich. See 8.9.

6.11–7.16 After concluding the lengthy discussion of his reconciling ministry (2.14–6.10), Paul now makes an appeal for the church to be fully reconciled with him (6.11–7.4) and with the one who wronged him (7.5–16). 6.11 We have spoken frankly to you. For Paul's bold speech to the Corinthians, see notes on 3.12; 7.4. Our heart is wide open to you, a sign of Paul's affection for the Corinthians; see 6.12; 7.3. 6.13 Children. See 1 Cor 4.14; Gal 4.19; 1 Thess 2.11. 6.14–7.1 The origin and literary placement of this passage are highly problematic, because it contains a number of words not found elsewhere in Paul's Letter and appears to interrupt the appeal in 6.11–13; 7.2–4. Of the various solutions, five merit mention. The passage could be (1) a fragment from the letter mentioned in 1 Cor 5.9; (2) a digression in which Paul deliberately uses unusual and highly emotional language for rhetorical effect; (3) a passage, non-Pauline in origin, that Paul himself inserts here to provide moral exhortation and/or warn the Corinthians against associating with his opponents; (4) a non-

Pauline passage, perhaps of Essene origin, inserted by a later editor; or (5) an originally anti-Pauline passage that reflects the theology of Paul's opponents. 6.14 Unbelievers. See 4.4. If the reference is to Paul's opponents, the passage functions to insist that full reconciliation with Paul entails a renunciation of the church's relationship with his rivals. 6.15 Beliar, a variant of Belial (Hebrew, “worthlessness”), one of the various Jewish names for Satan (see 2.11). 6.16 The temple of the living God. See 1 Cor 3.16. As God said. See 4.6. Three quotation formulas are used to introduce, connect, and conclude the chain of OT citations and paraphrases in 6.16–18 (see Rom 3.10–18; 15.9–12 for similar chains). Lev 26.11–12; Ezek 37.27 are the sources used in v. 16. 6.17 See Isa 52.11 and the Septuagint of Ezek 20.34. 6.18 See 2 Sam 7.14; Isa 43.6. 7.2–4 Resumption of the appeal of 6.11–13. 7.2 On the charge of taking advantage of the Corinthians, see 12.17–18. 7.3 To die together and to live together, a Christianized version of a traditional friendship formula (see 2 Sam 15.21). 7.4 I often boast about you, lit. “great is my bold speech toward you,” Paul's candor is a sign of his friendship (7.3) with the Corinthians; see 3.12; 6.11. Pride . . . consolation . . . affliction, a transitional verse that recalls the major themes of great pride in you; I am filled with consolation; I am overjoyed in all our affliction.

Paul's Joy at the Church's Repentance

5 For even when we came into Macedonia, our bodies had no rest, but we were afflicted in every way—disputes without and fears within. 6 But God, who consoles the downcast, consoled us by the arrival of Titus, 7 and not only by his coming, but also by the consolation with which he was consoled about you, as he told us of your longing, your mourning, your zeal for me, so that I rejoiced still more. 8 For even if I made you sorry with my letter, I do not regret it (though I did regret it, for I see that I grieved you with that letter, though only briefly). 9 Now I rejoice, not because you were grieved, but because your grief led to repentance; for you felt a godly grief, so that you were not harmed in any way by us. 10 For godly grief produces a repentance that leads to salvation and brings no regret, but worldly grief produces death. 11 For see what earnestness this godly grief has produced in you, what eagerness to clear yourselves, what indignation, what alarm, what longing, what zeal, what punishment! At every point you have proved yourselves guiltless in the matter. 12 So although I wrote to you, it was not on account of the one who did the wrong, nor on account of the one who was wronged, but in order that your zeal for us might be made known to you before God. 13 In this we find comfort.

In addition to our own consolation, we rejoiced still more at the joy of Titus, because his mind has been set at rest by all of you. 14 For if I have been somewhat boastful about you to him, I was not disgraced; but just as everything we said to you was true, so our boasting to Titus has proved true as well. 15 And his heart goes out all the more to you, as he remembers the obedience of all of you, and how you welcomed him with fear and trembling. 16 I rejoice, because I have complete confidence in you.

Encouragement to Be Generous

8 We want you to know, brothers and sisters,^p about the grace of God that has been granted to the churches of Macedonia; 2 for during a severe ordeal of affliction, their abundant joy and their extreme poverty have overflowed in a wealth of generosity on their part. 3 For, as I can testify, they voluntarily gave according to their means, and even beyond their means, 4 begging us earnestly for the privilege^q of sharing in this ministry to the saints— 5 and this, not merely as we expected; they gave themselves first to the Lord and, by the will of God, to us, 6 so

1.3–14. 7.5–16 Resumption and conclusion of 1.15–2.13 (esp. 2.12–13); see Introduction. 7.6 God, who consoles the downcast. See 1.3–4; Isa 49.13. Titus. See 2.13; 7.13–15. 7.8 Letter. See 2.3. 7.9 Godly grief, i.e., grief that accords with God's will and results in repentance and salvation (v. 10). 7.12 The one who did the wrong, the offender discussed in 2.5–11, with whom the church is to be reconciled lest he be destroyed by worldly grief (2.7; 7.10). The one who was wronged, almost certainly Paul himself. 7.14 Boastful. See 1.14. 7.15 Obedience. See 2.9. 7.16 Expressions of confidence (see 1.7) serve to create a sense of responsibility on the part of the persons praised, making them more responsive to requests. V. 16 is thus transitional, not only concluding the discussion in 7.5–16 but also laying the foundation for the requests made in chs. 8–9.

8.1–9.15 The collection for the Jerusalem church was intended not only to address its economic need but also to ratify the unity between Jewish and gentile Christians (Rom 15.25–32; 1 Cor 16.1–4; Gal 2.10; also Acts 24.17). (For the literary problems associated with 2 Cor 8–9, see Introduction.) 8.1 In chs. 8–9 Paul uses the Greek word charis to describe the beneficence of God and Christ as well as the human response to the divine action in both gratitude and giving. It is variously translated as grace (8.1; 9.14), blessing (9.8), generous act (8.9), thanks (8.16; 9.15), and, with reference to the collection, as privilege (8.4) and generous undertaking (8.6–7, 19). 8.2 This affliction is mentioned in Phil 1.29–30; 1 Thess 1.6; 2.14; 3.3–4. Generosity. See 9.11, 13; Rom 12.8. 8.3 Voluntarily. See 8.17; 9.7. 8.4 The term sharing, applied here to the collection (see also 9.13; Rom 15.26), is also used by Paul to express the church's participation in Christ (1 Cor 1.9), especially in his body and blood (1 Cor 10.16) and in his sufferings (2 Cor 1.7; Phil 3.10), its communion with the Spirit (2 Cor 13.13), and its partnership in the gospel (Phil 1.5). Ministry. See 9.1, 12–13; also 8.19–20; Rom 15.31. Saints. Here and in 9.1, 12 the reference is to poor Jewish Christians in Jerusalem (Rom 15.25–26). 8.6 For the role of Titus in the collection, see also that we might urge Titus that, as he had already made a beginning, so he should also complete this generous undertaking^r among you. ⁷Now as you excel in everything—in faith, in speech, in knowledge, in utmost eagerness, and in our love for you^s—so we want you to excel also in this generous undertaking.^r

⁸ I do not say this as a command, but I am testing the genuineness of your love against the earnestness of others. ⁹For you know the generous act^t of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, so that by his poverty you might become rich. ¹⁰And in this matter I am giving my advice: it is appropriate for you who began last year not only to do something but even to desire to do something— ¹¹now finish doing it, so that your eagerness may be matched by completing it according to your means. ¹²For if the eagerness is there, the gift is acceptable according to what one has—not according to what one does not have. ¹³I do not mean that there should be relief for others and pressure on you, but it is a question of a fair balance between ¹⁴your present abundance and their need, so that their abundance may be for your need, in order that there may be a fair balance. ¹⁵As it is written,

“The one who had much did not have too much,
and the one who had little did not have too little.”

Commendation of Titus

¹⁶ But thanks be to God who put in the heart of Titus the same eagerness for you that I myself have. ¹⁷For he not only accepted our appeal, but since he is more eager than ever, he is going to you of his own accord. ¹⁸With him we are sending the brother who is famous among all the churches for his proclaiming the good news;^u ¹⁹and not only that, but he has also been appointed by the churches to travel with us while we are administering this generous undertaking^r for the glory of the Lord himself^v and to show our goodwill. ²⁰We intend that no one should blame us about this generous gift that we are administering, ²¹for we intend to do what is right not only in the Lord's sight but also in the sight of others. ²²And with them we are sending our brother whom we have often tested and found eager in many matters, but who is now more eager than ever because of his great confidence in you. ²³As for Titus, he is my partner and co-worker in your service; as for our brothers, they are messengers^w of the churches, the glory of Christ. ²⁴Therefore openly before the churches, show them the proof of your love and of our reason for boasting about you.

The Collection for Christians at Jerusalem

9 Now it is not necessary for me to write you about the ministry to the saints, ²for I know your eagerness, which is the subject of my boasting about you to the people of Macedonia, saying that Achaia has been ready since last year; and your zeal has stirred up most of them. ³But I am sending the brothers in order that our boasting about you may not prove to have been empty in this case, so that you may be ready, as I said you would be; ⁴otherwise, if some Macedonians come with me and find that you are not ready, we would be humiliated—to say nothing of you—in this undertaking.^x ⁵So I thought it necessary to urge the brothers to go on ahead to you, and arrange in advance for this bountiful gift that you have promised, so that it may be ready as a voluntary gift and not as an extortion.

6 The point is this: the one who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and the one who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully. 7 Each of you must give as you have made up your mind, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver. 8 And God is able to provide you with every blessing in abundance, so that by always having enough of everything, you may share abundantly in every good work. 9 As it is written,

“He scatters abroad, he gives to the poor;
his righteousness^y endures forever.”

10 He who supplies seed to the sower and bread for food will supply and multiply your seed for sowing and increase the harvest of your righteousness.^y 11 You will be enriched in every way for your great generosity, which will produce thanksgiving to God through us; 12 for the rendering of this ministry not only supplies the needs of the saints but also overflows with many thanksgivings to God. 13 Through the testing of this ministry you glorify God by your obedience to the confession of the gospel of Christ and by the generosity of your sharing with them and with all others, 14 while they long for you and pray for you because of the surpassing grace of God that he has given you. 15 Thanks be to God for his indescribable gift!

Paul Defends His Ministry

10 I myself, Paul, appeal to you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ—I who am humble when face to face with you, but bold toward you when I am away!— 2 I ask that when I am present I need not show boldness by daring to oppose those who think we are acting according to human standards.^z 3 Indeed, we live as human beings,^a but we do not wage war according to human standards;^z 4 for the weapons of our warfare are not merely human,^b but they have divine power to destroy strongholds. We destroy arguments⁵ and every proud obstacle raised up against the knowledge of God, and we take every thought captive to obey Christ. 6 We are ready to punish every disobedience when your obedience is complete.

7 Look at what is before your eyes. If you are confident that you belong to Christ, remind yourself of this, that just as and voluntary gift are both translations of the same Greek word (eulogia); the plural is used twice in v. 6 (bountifully). 9.6 Sows . . . reap bountifully. The idea is widespread in antiquity (see, e.g., Prov 11.24). 9.7 Not under compulsion. See 8.3; also Deut 15.10; Phil 14. God loves a cheerful giver, virtually quotes the Septuagint version of Prov 22.8. 9.8 Paul's attitude here toward possessions is positive: wealth is a gift, a financial blessing from God, provided that it leads to generosity (9.11); cf. 1 Tim 6.10. Good work. See Eph 2.10; Col 1.10; 2 Thess 2.17; 2 Tim 3.17; Titus 2.14. 9.9 Ps 112.9. 9.10 Seed . . . food. See Isa 55.10. Harvest of your righteousness, a phrase drawn from the Septuagint version of Hos 10.12. 9.12 The Greek word translated rendering is the same one (diakonia) translated ministry in 8.4; 9.1, 13; the word translated ministry here is the standard Greek term (leitourgia) for an act of public service that private citizens performed at their own expense (see Rom 15.27).

10.1–13.13 Paul's struggle with Satan's ministers and his appeal to the Corinthians. (For the literary issues involving these chapters, see Introduction.) 10.1–18 Paul's defense against criticism and attack on his critics. 10.1 The word appeal (see also 2.8; 5.20; 6.1; also ask in 10.2) indicates that the ultimate goal of chs. 10–13 is exhortation. Gentleness of Christ. See Mt 11.29. Humble when face to face. See 10.10. 10.2 On the charge of acting according to human standards, see 1.12, 17. 10.3 Wage war. The campaign is described in three successive stages: the demolishing of fortifications (vv. 4–5), the taking of captives (v. 5), and the punishing of resistance (v. 6). 10.4–5 Weapons, Paul's humble manner of life (10.1), in which God's "divine power" is manifested (see also 4.7). Paul depicts the strongholds (defenses) of his opponents in terms typically used to describe the Stoic sage, who used reason (arguments, thought) as a defense. 10.6 Paul probably means that he will deal with the disobedience of his opponents once the Corinthians recognize his authority and give full obedience to his instructions (see 2.9). 10.7 His critics probably you belong to Christ, so also do we.⁸ Now, even if I boast a little too much of our authority, which the Lord gave for building you up and not for tearing you down, I will not be ashamed of it.⁹ I do not want to seem as though I am trying to frighten you with my letters.¹⁰ For they say, "His letters are weighty and strong, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible."¹¹ Let such people understand that what we say by letter when absent, we will also do when present.

¹² We do not dare to classify or compare ourselves with some of those who commend themselves. But when they measure themselves by one another, and compare themselves with one another, they do not show good sense.¹³ We, however, will not boast beyond limits, but will keep within the field that God has assigned to us, to reach out even as far as you.¹⁴ For we were not overstepping our limits when we reached you; we were the first to come all the way to you with the good news^c of Christ.¹⁵ We do not boast beyond limits, that is, in the labors of others; but our hope is that, as your faith increases, our sphere of action among you may be greatly enlarged,¹⁶ so that we may proclaim the good news^c in lands beyond you, without boasting of work already done in someone else's sphere of action.¹⁷ "Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord."¹⁸ For it is not those who commend themselves that are approved, but those whom the Lord commends.

Paul and the False Apostles

11 I wish you would bear with me in a little foolishness. Do bear with me! ²I feel a divine jealousy for you, for I promised you in marriage to one husband, to present you as a chaste virgin to Christ.³ But I am afraid that as the serpent deceived Eve by its cunning, your thoughts will be led astray from a sincere and pure^d devotion to Christ.⁴ For if someone comes and proclaims another Jesus than the one we proclaimed, or if you receive a different spirit from the one you received, or a different gospel from the one you accepted, you submit to it readily enough.⁵ I think that I am not in the least inferior to these super-apostles.⁶ I may be untrained in speech, but not in knowledge; certainly in every way and in all things we have made this evident to you.

⁷ Did I commit a sin by humbling myself so that you might be exalted, because I proclaimed God's good news^e to you free of charge? ⁸I robbed other churches by accepting support from them in order to serve you.⁹ And when I was with you and was in need, I did not burden anyone, for my needs were supplied by the friends^f who came from Macedonia. So I refrained and will continue to refrain from burdening you in any way.¹⁰ As

For Paul's ironic use of the device, see 11.22–23. 10.13–16 Paul had strong views on the limits of his mission field; see Rom 15.17–21. 10.17 Jer 9.23–24, quoted also in 1 Cor 1.31. 10.18 Commend themselves. See 10.12.

Paul is probably thinking of the Jewish legend that Eve was sexually seduced by Satan (the serpent), who appeared to her disguised as an angel (see 11.14). 11.4 Unfortunately, Paul never discusses the different gospel of his opponents, and their identity is much debated. Some consider them Judaizers; others, Gnostics; still others, Hellenistic-Jewish propagandists. 11.5 Super-apostles (see 12.11), probably a sarcastic reference to his opponents, but perhaps the Jerusalem apostles. 11.6 Untrained in speech. See 10.10. 11.7–11 Paul was criticized for refusing to accept support from the Corinthians; for his practice of supporting himself, see 1 Cor 9; 1 Thess 2.9; 2 Thess 3.7–9. 11.7 Humbling myself, by his voluntary manual the truth of Christ is in me, this boast of mine will not be silenced in the regions of Achaia. ¹¹And why? Because I do not love you? God knows I do!

¹² And what I do I will also continue to do, in order to deny an opportunity to those who want an opportunity to be recognized as our equals in what they boast about. ¹³For such boasters are false apostles, deceitful workers, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ. ¹⁴And no wonder! Even Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. ¹⁵So it is not strange if his ministers also disguise themselves as ministers of righteousness. Their end will match their deeds.

Paul's Sufferings as an Apostle

¹⁶ I repeat, let no one think that I am a fool; but if you do, then accept me as a fool, so that I too may boast a little. ¹⁷What I am saying in regard to this boastful confidence, I am saying not with the Lord's authority, but as a fool; ¹⁸since many boast according to human standards,^g I will also boast. ¹⁹For you gladly put up with fools, being wise yourselves! ²⁰For you put up with it when someone makes slaves of you, or preys upon you, or takes advantage of you, or puts on airs, or gives you a slap in the face. ²¹To my shame, I must say, we were too weak for that!

But whatever anyone dares to boast of—I am speaking as a fool—I also dare to boast of that. ²²Are they Hebrews? So am I. Are they Israelites? So am I. Are they descendants of Abraham? So am I. ²³Are they ministers of Christ? I am talking like a madman—I am a better one: with far greater labors, far more imprisonments, with countless floggings, and often near death. ²⁴Five times I have received from the Jews the forty lashes minus one. ²⁵Three times I was beaten with rods. Once I received a stoning. Three times I was shipwrecked; for a night and a day I was adrift at sea; ²⁶on frequent journeys, in danger from rivers, danger from bandits, danger from my own people, danger from Gentiles, danger in the city, danger in the wilderness, danger at sea, danger from false brothers and sisters;^h ²⁷in toil and hardship, through many a sleepless night, hungry and thirsty, often without food, cold and naked. ²⁸And, besides other things, I am under daily pressure because of my anxiety for all the churches. ²⁹Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is made to stumble, and I am not indignant?

³⁰ If I must boast, I will boast of the things that show my weakness. ³¹The God and Father of the Lord Jesus (blessed be he forever!) knows that I do not lie. ³²In Damascus, the governorⁱ under King Aretas guarded the city of Damascus in order to^j seize me, ³³but I was let down in a basket through a window in the wall,^k and escaped from his hands.

labor, which he regarded as a demonstration of his love for his converts (11.11; 12.15). 11.14 Angel. See note on 11.3.

11.16–12.10 Paul boastfully compares himself to his opponents in regard to both his credentials and hardships (see 4.8–9; 6.4–10). 11.17–18 In what follows, Paul does not speak in Christ (2.17; 12.19) or with the Lord's authority (lit. "according to the Lord"), for his boasting is according to human standards. 11.20 The list of afflictions has the dual purpose of castigating Paul's opponents by describing their abusive acts and of shaming the Corinthians by means of mock praise (see 6.4; cf. 1 Cor 4.8). 11.22 Like Paul, his opponents are Jewish Christians, proud both that they are Hebrews (ethnic heritage) and that they are Israelites (religious heritage); see Rom 9.4;

11.1; Phil 3.5. 11.23–27 Few details are known about the hardships Paul mentions in this list. 11.23 Imprisonments. See Acts 16.22–40 for one of Paul's prior incarcerations; for later instances, see Acts 24.27; 28.16. 11.23–25 Paul specifies two types of floggings or beatings (see 6.5), a Roman one with rods (see Acts 16.22–23) and a Jewish one with lashes (see Deut 25.3). 11.25 Stoning. See Acts 14.19. Shipwrecked. For a later instance, see Acts 27.9–44. 11.26 Paul's reference to false brothers and sisters would include the false apostles (11.13). 11.32 Damascus, the Syrian city connected with Paul's conversion (Acts 9; Gal 1.17). King Aretas (IV), the ruler of the Arab kingdom of Nabatea from 9 B.C.E. until his death (ca. 40 C.E.). The identity of the governor is unknown. 11.33 Let down in a basket. See Acts 9.23–25.

Paul's Visions and Revelations

12 It is necessary to boast; nothing is to be gained by it, but I will go on to visions and revelations of the Lord. ²I know a person in Christ who fourteen years ago was caught up to the third heaven—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know; God knows. ³And I know that such a person—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know; God knows—⁴was caught up into Paradise and heard things that are not to be told, that no mortal is permitted to repeat. ⁵On behalf of such a one I will boast, but on my own behalf I will not boast, except of my weaknesses. ⁶But if I wish to boast, I will not be a fool, for I will be speaking the truth. But I refrain from it, so that no one may think better of me than what is seen in me or heard from me, ⁷even considering the exceptional character of the revelations. Therefore, to keep^l me from being too elated, a thorn was given me in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to torment me, to keep me from being too elated.^m ⁸Three times I appealed to the Lord about this, that it would leave me, ⁹but he said to me, “My grace is sufficient for you, for powerⁿ is made perfect in weakness.” So, I will boast all the more gladly of my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ may dwell in me. ¹⁰Therefore I am content with weaknesses, insults, hardships, persecutions, and calamities for the sake of Christ; for whenever I am weak, then I am strong.

The Signs of a True Apostle

11 I have been a fool! You forced me to it. Indeed you should have been the ones commending me, for I am not at all inferior to these super-apostles, even though I am nothing. ¹²The signs of a true apostle were performed among you with utmost patience, signs and wonders and mighty works. ¹³How have you been worse off than the other churches, except that I myself did not burden you? Forgive me this wrong!

Paul's Concern for the Corinthian Church

14 Here I am, ready to come to you this third time. And I will not be a burden, because I do not want what is yours but you; for children ought not to lay up for their parents, but parents for their children. ¹⁵I will most gladly spend and be spent for you. If I love you more, am I to be loved less? ¹⁶Let it be assumed that I did not burden you. Nevertheless (you say) since I was crafty, I took you in by deceit. ¹⁷Did I take advantage of you through any of those whom I sent to you? ¹⁸I urged Titus to go, and sent the brother with him. Titus did not take advantage of you, did he? Did we not conduct ourselves with the same spirit? Did we not take the same steps?

19 Have you been thinking all along that we have been defending ourselves before you? We are speaking in Christ before God. Everything we do, beloved, is for the sake of building you up. ²⁰For I fear that when I come, I may find you not as I wish, and that you may find me not as

Further Warning

13 This is the third time I am coming to you. “Any charge must be sustained by the evidence of two or three witnesses.” ²I warned those who sinned previously and all the others, and I warn them now while absent, as I did when present on my second visit, that if I come again, I will not be lenient— ³since you desire proof that Christ is speaking in me. He is not weak in dealing with you, but is powerful in you. ⁴For he was crucified in weakness, but lives by the power of God. For we are weak in him,^o but in dealing with you we will live with him by the power of God.

⁵ Examine yourselves to see whether you are living in the faith. Test yourselves. Do you not realize that Jesus Christ is in you?—unless, indeed, you fail to meet the test! ⁶I hope you will find out that we have not failed. ⁷But we pray to God that you may not do anything wrong—not that we may appear to have met the test, but that you may do what is right, though we may seem to have failed. ⁸For we cannot do anything against the truth, but only for the truth. ⁹For we rejoice when we are weak and you are strong. This is what we pray for, that you may become perfect. ¹⁰So I write these things while I am away from you, so that when I come, I may not have to be severe in using the authority that the Lord has given me for building up and not for tearing down.

Final Greetings and Benediction

¹¹ Finally, brothers and sisters,^p farewell.^q Put things in order, listen to my appeal,^r agree with one another, live in peace; and the God of love and peace will be with you. ¹²Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the saints greet you.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE GALATIANS

THE BITTERLY POLEMICAL Letter of Paul to the Galatians reflects a critical moment in the early Christian movement's struggle to define its mission and identity. The apostle Paul founded the churches of Galatia (1.2; 4.13–14), but he now finds his work challenged by unidentified Jewish-Christian teachers who are urging Paul's converts, formerly pagans (4.8–9), to be circumcised (5.2–12; 6.12–13). Apparently these teachers are also urging the Galatians to observe some other elements of Jewish law and ritual, such as the sabbath and festivals (4.10) and perhaps food laws (4.17, taken with 2.12). Paul discerns in this situation a threat to "the truth of the gospel" (2.5, 14) and composes an impassioned letter to dissuade the Galatians from adopting these religious practices.

Addressees and Date

How many "churches of Galatia" there were is unknown, and their exact location is a matter of long-standing debate. The term "Galatians" (3.1) originally designated a people of Celtic origin who migrated into central Asia Minor and settled in the region around Ancyra (modern Ankara); however, the Roman province of Galatia extended south toward the Mediterranean to include the cities of Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe, where Paul and Barnabas, according to Acts 14.1–23, founded churches (see map on p. 2278).

Some interpreters hold that the Letter was addressed to these "South Galatian" churches during the period prior to the "apostolic council" described in Acts 15; the council, then, addressed the controversy that Galatians exemplifies (see Acts 15.1). This reconstruction requires the assumption that the Jerusalem meeting mentioned in Gal 2.1–10 occurred during the "famine relief" visit of Acts 11.27–30. Majority scholarly opinion, however, identifies the council of Acts 15 with the meeting described in Gal 2.1–10, though the two accounts differ somewhat. Under this reading, the Galatian churches were probably in "North Galatia," and Paul's missionary activity there is identified with the brief references in Acts 16.6 and 18.23.

Both reconstructions presuppose an optimistic view of Acts as a historical framework within which the Pauline Letters can be placed. The internal evidence of Galatians, however, offers no basis for determining either the geographical location of the churches or the Letter's date of composition. Some scholars regard Galatians as the earliest of Paul's letters (perhaps 48–49 C.E.); others place it during the mid–50s C.E. The Letter's many thematic links with 2 Corinthians and Romans favor the latter view.

Rival Missionaries and Contested Issues

The Galatians have encountered “a different gospel” (1.6), proclaimed by missionaries whom Paul decries as agitators (5.12) and troublemakers who “want to pervert the gospel of Christ” (1.7). These rival missionaries are not Pharisaic Jews seeking to persuade Paul's converts to abandon their faith in Jesus; rather, they are Christian Jews who argue that the appropriate next step for Gentiles who have come to trust in Jesus as the Messiah is to undergo circumcision as a sign of their inclusion in God's covenant. Consequently, the Letter reflects an intra-Christian dispute over whether the marks of Jewish identity should be imposed upon gentile converts.

Even the categories “Christian” and “Jewish” are anachronistic here; the Letter was written before the irrevocable split of church and synagogue, and Paul, no less than the rival missionaries, understands himself as the true interpreter of the Jewish law (4.21; 5.14). Thus he contends that all who live under the cross of Christ in the “new creation” are members of “the Israel of God” (6.14–16).

It is not clear whether the missionaries wanted gentile converts to adopt comprehensive observance of Jewish law or merely to accept circumcision as a symbolic entrance requirement, as 5.3 suggests. The Antioch incident (2.11–16) indicates that some Jewish Christians adopted a “separate but equal” policy toward gentile Christians, which Paul regards as a manipulative tactic (2.14).

The rival missionaries must have spotlighted the figure of Abraham (regarded in rabbinic tradition as “the father of proselytes”) and emphasized that God had commanded circumcision to him as a sign of the covenant (Gen 17.9–14). Paul's extended interpretation of the Abraham story (3.6–18; 4.21–5.1) is a rebuttal to their exegesis.

Paul's Response: Key Emphases

Paul insists that “righteousness” (right covenant relation with God) depends not on observance of Jewish law but on God's promise and its fulfillment through the death of Jesus Christ (2.21; 3.18, 29). It is debated whether the slogan pistis Iēsou Christou (Greek, “faith off/in Jesus Christ”; see note on 2.16) refers to Jesus' faithful death or to the community's subsequent trust in him; despite venerable interpretative tradition, the former sense is more probable. Either way, Paul's emphasis falls consistently on God's initiative in setting human beings free from bondage to sin and to the norms and powers (Greek, stoicheia) of the present age

(1.4; 2.20–21; 3.13–14; 3.21–22; 4.3–9; 5.1). The crucifixion is an apocalyptic event that marks the end of the old age and the beginning of God's new creation (6.14–15). To require gentile believers to be circumcised would be to revert to the era "before faith came" and would render the death of Christ pointless (2.21; 3.23–25). Insisting on "works of the law" (2.16) as signs of covenant membership perpetuates a division that Christ's death was meant to destroy (3.28). That is why the message of the rival missionaries is, in Paul's eyes, no gospel (1.7).

Significance

Galatians offers a window into formative Christianity and shows that the question of continuity with Jewish law and tradition was an urgent concern at this early date. Paul's statements about the law in Galatians created acute theological tensions that demanded further reflection (see Romans). His insistence on the radical character and universal scope of God's grace became a crucial factor in the early church's self-definition, and it has played a generative role in subsequent Christian theology. Richard B. Hays

Salutation

1 Paul an apostle—sent neither by human commission nor from human authorities, but through Jesus Christ and God the Father, who raised him from the dead—²and all the members of God's family^a who are with me,

To the churches of Galatia:

3 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ,⁴who gave himself for our sins to set us free from the present evil age, according to the will of our God and Father,⁵to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

There Is No Other Gospel

6 I am astonished that you are so quickly deserting the one who called you in the grace of Christ and are turning to a different gospel—⁷not that there is another gospel, but there are some who are confusing you and want to pervert the gospel of Christ.⁸But even if we or an angel^b from heaven should proclaim to you a gospel contrary to what we proclaimed to you, let that one be accursed!⁹As we have said before, so now I repeat, if anyone proclaims to you a gospel contrary to what you received, let that one be accursed!

1.1–5 Key themes of the Letter are introduced: Paul's apostolic authority and Christ's death as an act liberating his people from bondage. 1.2 No coauthor is named (cf., e.g., 1 Cor 1.1; 2 Cor 1.1), but Paul does present the letter as coming from a group of believers (all . . . with me). 1.4 Gave himself for our sins. See 2.20; Mt 26.28; Rom 4.25; 5.8, 15–19; 8.3; 2 Cor 5.21; Titus 2.14; 1 Pet 2.24. According to Jewish apocalyptic thought, the present evil age would be supplanted by "the age to come," a messianic era in which God's justice would prevail (see Isa 60; 65.17–25; 2 Esd 7.50, 113; 1 Enoch 91.15–17). Paul sees the death and resurrection of Jesus as a sign that this transformation has already begun (see 6.14–15; Rom 12.2; 1 Cor 7.31; 10.11). 1.6–9 Only Galatians among Paul's Letters lacks an opening thanksgiving; instead Paul rebukes his readers. 1.6 The one who called you, God, not Paul. See 1.15; Rom 8.30; 1 Cor 1.9; 7.17; 1 Thess 2.12; 5.24. 1.9 On the gospel they have

The Divine Origin of Paul's Gospel

11 For I want you to know, brothers and sisters,^d that the gospel that was proclaimed by me is not of human origin; ¹²for I did not receive it from a human source, nor was I taught it, but I received it through a revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 You have heard, no doubt, of my earlier life in Judaism. I was violently persecuting the church of God and was trying to destroy it. ¹⁴I advanced in Judaism beyond many among my people of the same age, for I was far more zealous for the traditions of my ancestors. ¹⁵But when God, who had set me apart before I was born and called me through his grace, was pleased ¹⁶to reveal his Son to me,^e so that I might proclaim him among the Gentiles, I did not confer with any human being, ¹⁷nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were already apostles before me, but I went away at once into Arabia, and afterwards I returned to Damascus.

18 Then after three years I did go up to Jerusalem to visit Cephas and stayed with him fifteen days; ¹⁹but I did not see any other apostle except James the Lord's brother. ²⁰In what I am writing to you, before God, I do not lie! ²¹Then I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia, ²²and I was still unknown by sight to the churches of Judea that are in Christ; ²³they only heard it said, "The one who formerly was persecuting us is now proclaiming the faith he once tried to destroy." ²⁴And they glorified God because of me.

Paul's Meeting with the Jerusalem Leaders

2 Then after fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking Titus along with me. ²¹I went up in response to a revelation. Then I laid before them (though only in a private meeting with the acknowledged leaders) the gospel that I proclaim among the Gentiles, in order to make sure that I was not running, or had not run, in vain. ³But even Titus, who was with me, was not compelled to be circumcised, though he was a Greek. ⁴But because of false believers^f secretly brought in, who slipped in to spy on the freedom we have in Christ Jesus, so that they might enslave us— ⁵we did not submit to them even for a moment, so that the truth of the gospel might always remain with you. ⁶And from those who were supposed to be acknowledged leaders (what they actually were received, see note on 3.1; 1 Cor 15.1–5. 1.10 A retort to the charge that Paul is "soft" on observance of the Jewish law for reasons of expediency.

1.11–24 Responding to challenges, Paul tells the story of his own calling in a way that highlights God's initiative. 1.12 Not . . . from a human source. Elsewhere (1 Cor 11.23–25; 15.3–7) Paul shows his dependence on early Christian traditions. 1.13 Persecuting the church. See also Acts 8.3; 1 Cor 15.9; Phil 3.6; 1 Tim 1.12–14. 1.14 Advanced, a word commonly used by Stoic philosophers to describe progress in cultivating virtue. Traditions of my ancestors, the Jewish law and the oral traditions concerning its interpretation, as handed down in Pharisaic Judaism. See Acts 22.3; Phil 3.4–6. 1.15 God . . . his grace. The language echoes or prophetic call narratives; see Isa 49.1–6; Jer 1.5. 1.16 Reveal his Son to me, lit. "reveal his Son in me" (see text note e). Paul is to be the instrument of God's revelation to the Gentiles. 1.17 Arabia, probably the Nabatean kingdom, south of Damascus and east of the Jordan River. 1.18 It is debated whether the three years are to be counted from Paul's call experience (1.15–16) or from his return to Damascus (1.17). Cephas, Aramaic, "rock." Paul uses Peter's Greek name (Petros) only in 2.7–8; cf. Jn 1.42; 1 Cor 1.12; 15.5. 1.19 James, the brother of Jesus (Mk 6.3), became one of the key leaders in the Jerusalem church; see 2.9, 12; Acts 15.13; 21.18. 1.21 Syria and Cilicia, the areas around Antioch and Tarsus; see Acts 15.23, 41.

2.1–10 These verses emphasize that even the Jerusalem church previously endorsed Paul's law-free gospel for Gentiles (see also Acts 15.1–29). 2.1 The fourteen years could be counted from Paul's first Jerusalem visit (1.18) or from his call (1.15–16). On Barnabas, see Acts 4.36; 9.27; 11.22–30; 13.1–15.41. Taking Titus, an uncircumcised Gentile (2.3), was a symbolic test of Jerusalem's acceptance of Paul's mission. 2.2 In response to a revelation. Cf. Acts 15.1–3. 2.4 The false believers are clearly distinguished from the Jerusalem leaders; Paul implicitly connects the former with his opponents in Galatia. 2.6 God shows no partiality, an OT maxim; see Deut 10.17; 2 Chr makes no difference to me; God shows no partiality)—those leaders contributed nothing to me. ⁷On the contrary, when they saw that I had been entrusted with the gospel for the uncircumcised, just as Peter had been entrusted with the gospel for the circumcised ⁸(for he who worked through Peter making him an apostle to the circumcised also worked through me in sending me to the Gentiles), ⁹and when James and Cephas and John, who were acknowledged pillars, recognized the grace that had been given to me, they gave to Barnabas and me the right hand of fellowship, agreeing that we should go to the Gentiles and they to the circumcised. ¹⁰They asked only one thing, that we remember the poor, which was actually what I was ^geager to do.

Paul Rebukes Peter at Antioch

¹¹ But when Cephas came to Antioch, I opposed him to his face, because he stood self-condemned; ¹²for until certain people came from James, he used to eat with the Gentiles. But after they came, he drew back and kept himself separate for fear of the circumcision faction. ¹³And the other Jews joined him in this hypocrisy, so that even Barnabas was led astray by their hypocrisy. ¹⁴But when I saw that they were not acting consistently with the truth of the gospel, I said to Cephas before them all, "If you, though a Jew, live like a Gentile and not like a Jew, how can you compel the Gentiles to live like Jews?"^h

Jews and Gentiles Are Justified Through Christ's Death

¹⁵ We ourselves are Jews by birth and not Gentile sinners; ¹⁶yet we know that a person is justified ⁱnot by the works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ.^j And we have come to believe in Christ Jesus, so that we might be justified by faith in Christ,^k and not by doing the works of the law, because no one will be justified by the works of the law. ¹⁷But if, in our effort to be justified in Christ, we ourselves have been found to be sinners, is Christ then a servant of sin? Certainly not! ¹⁸But if I build up again the very things that I once tore down, then I dem-

19.7. 2.7 This verse refers not to two different gospels (see 1.7) but to two culturally distinct audiences. 2.9 John, son of Zebedee (Mk 1.19) and paired with Peter in Acts 3.1–4.22; 8.14–25. Pillars, metaphorically the supports of the church as a spiritual temple (see Mt 16.18; Eph 2.19–22; 1 Pet 2.4–5; Rev 3.12). In Second Temple Judaism, pillar was sometimes used of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 2.10 Paul carried out his agreement to remember the poor by organizing a collection in his gentile mission churches (see Rom 15.25–27; 1 Cor 16.1–4; 2 Cor 8.1–9.15); however, the poor may also have been a religious self-designation of some early Jewish Christians.

2.11–21 Paul narrates his confrontation with Cephas as a case that involves issues analogous to those now faced in Galatia. 2.11 Antioch, a major center of early Christian activity and, according to Acts 11.19–26; 13.1–3, the launching site for the preaching mission of Paul and Barnabas. 2.12 Observant Jews were forbidden to eat gentile meat and usually avoided gentile wine, but Jewish law did not prohibit eating with the Gentiles; presumably it was the food at the Antioch community's common meals that was objectionable. The vacillation of Cephas and Barnabas shows that the Jerusalem agreement (2.7–10) had failed to address the problem of table fellowship. 2.14–16 Paul interprets Cephas's withdrawal as a tactic to pressure gentile converts into keeping the Jewish law. The direct quotation of Paul's address to Cephas probably extends to the end of 2.16. 2.15 Gentile sinners, used with some irony here, expresses a traditional Jewish attitude. 2.16 Works of the law refers primarily to practices commanded by the law (circumcision, dietary laws, sabbath observance) that distinctively mark Jewish ethnic identity; these symbolize comprehensive obedience to the law's covenant obligations. The translation faith in Jesus Christ ascribes saving efficacy to the believer's act of trusting in Christ. The alternative translation faith of Jesus Christ (see text note ^j; see also 2.20; 3.22; Rom 3.22, 26; Phil 3.9) emphasizes Christ's faithful obedience to the point of death on a cross; see Rom 5.18–19; Phil 2.8. Have come to believe in, or "placed our trust in." No one will be justified echoes Ps 143.2; see also Rom 3.20. 2.17 Found to be sinners, i.e., living like Gentiles (2.15). 2.18 The very things that I once tore down, the Jewish commandments as a barrier between Jews and Gentiles (see also Eph 2.11–22). For Paul to rebuild the barrier would be to admit that he had been a transgressor by tearing it down in his missionary onstrate that I am a transgressor. ¹⁹For through the law I died to the law, so that I might live to God. I have been crucified with Christ; ²⁰and it is no longer I who live, but it is Christ who lives in me. And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God,¹ who loved me and gave himself for me. ²¹I do not nullify the grace of God; for if justification^m comes through the law, then Christ died for nothing.

The Experience of the Spirit

3 You foolish Galatians! Who has bewitched you? It was before your eyes that Jesus Christ was publicly exhibited as crucified! ²The only thing I want to learn from you is this: Did you receive the Spirit by doing the works of the law or by believing what you heard? ³Are you so foolish? Having started with the Spirit, are you now ending with the flesh? ⁴Did you experience so much for nothing?—if it really was for nothing. ⁵Well then, does Godⁿ supply you with the Spirit and work miracles among you by your doing the works of the law, or by your believing what you heard?

The Promise to Abraham

6 Just as Abraham “believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness,” ⁷so, you see, those who believe are the descendants of Abraham. ⁸And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, declared the gospel beforehand to Abraham, saying, “All the Gentiles shall be blessed in you.” ⁹For this reason, those who believe are blessed with Abraham who believed.

10 For all who rely on the works of the law are under a curse; for it is written, “Cursed is everyone who does not observe and obey all the things written in the book of the law.” ¹¹Now it is evident that no one is justified before God by the law; for “The one who is righteous will live by faith.”^o ¹²But the law does not rest on faith; on the contrary, “Whoever does the works of the law^p will live by them.” ¹³Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us—for it is written, “Cursed is everyone who hangs on a tree”— ¹⁴in order that in Christ work. 2.19 Crucified with Christ. See 5.24; 6.14; Rom 6.5–11; 2 Cor 4.7–12. 2.20 Christ . . . lives in me. See Rom 8.9–11; 2 Cor 13.5; Col 1.27; also Jn 17.23. On loved me and gave himself for me, see note on 1.4. 2.21 Paul implies that his critics unwittingly nullify the grace of God (see 5.4) by adding observance of Jewish law to the justification or righteousness (right covenant relation to God; see text note m and also 3.6) that comes only through the death of Christ (see also 3.21).

3.1–5 Paul now addresses issues in Galatia directly; because of their experience of receiving the Spirit, the Galatians should know that they are already members of God's people. 3.1 Publicly exhibited as crucified refers to Paul's proclamation of the gospel in vivid images (see 1 Cor 2.1–5); the Galatians did not literally witness the crucifixion of Jesus. 3.2 On works of the law, see 2.16; the word doing does not appear in the Greek. By believing what you heard translates an ambiguous phrase that could also be rendered “by the message of faith.” 3.3 Ending with the flesh, an ironic double entendre, refers to circumcision (see 6.12–13) and also to mortal existence apart from God; see also 4.29; 5.16–26; 6.8; 1 Cor 3.3. 3.5 Paul thinks of the Galatians' experience of the Spirit and miracles as an ongoing aspect of their communal life; see also 1 Cor

12.4–11; 14.26–33a; 2 Cor 12.12.

3.6–14 Paul begins a complex argument from scripture to show that God always intended the salvation of Gentiles; see also Rom 3.27–4.25. 3.6 Gen 15.6. On righteousness, see note on 2.21. 3.8 The gospel spoken to Abraham (see Gen 12.3; 18.18; 22.18) focuses on the blessing of the Gentiles. 3.9 This verse is an exegetical remark on the preceding quotation: the blessing pronounced on “the faithful Abraham” (a better translation than Abraham who believed) includes those who later believe. 3.10 The quotation blends Deut 27.26 and 28.58. 3.11 The quotation is from Hab 2.4b. The Septuagint treats this text as a messianic prophecy; see Rom 1.17; cf. Heb 10.37–38. 3.12 The or text quoted is Lev 18.5 (see also Rom 10.5). Paul argues not that no one can keep the law but that the law is unable to give the life it promises (see 3.21). 3.13 Christ's death effects redemption from the curse pronounced by the law (see Gen 12.3; Deut 27.15–26; 28.15–68), not from the law itself. “Cursed is . . . a tree.” The proof-text (Deut 21.23) calls for the body of a hanged criminal to be buried immediately rather than left hanging to “defile the land.” 3.14 Blessing of Abraham. See 3.8–9; Paul sees the presence of the Spirit in gentile communities (see 3.2–5) as a sign that the promised bless-

Jesus the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles, so that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brothers and sisters,^q I give an example from daily life: once a person's will^r has been ratified, no one adds to it or annuls it. 16 Now the promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring;^s it does not say, "And to offsprings,"^t as of many; but it says, "And to your offspring,"^s that is, to one person, who is Christ. 17 My point is this: the law, which came four hundred thirty years later, does not annul a covenant previously ratified by God, so as to nullify the promise. 18 For if the inheritance comes from the law, it no longer comes from the promise; but God granted it to Abraham through the promise.

The Purpose of the Law

19 Why then the law? It was added because of transgressions, until the offsprings^s would come to whom the promise had been made; and it was ordained through angels by a mediator. 20 Now a mediator involves more than one party; but God is one.

21 Is the law then opposed to the promises of God? Certainly not! For if a law had been given that could make alive, then righteousness would indeed come through the law. 22 But the scripture has imprisoned all things under the power of sin, so that what was promised through faith in Jesus Christ^u might be given to those who believe.

23 Now before faith came, we were imprisoned and guarded under the law until faith would be revealed. 24 Therefore the law was our disciplinarian until Christ came, so that we might be justified by faith. 25 But now that faith has come, we are no longer subject to a disciplinarian, 26 for in Christ Jesus you are all children of God through faith. 27 As many of you as were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ. 28 There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female; for all of you are one in Christ Jesus. 29 And if you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham's offspring,^s heirs according to the promise.

ing has come to eschatological fulfillment. 3.15–18 A play on words: Greek diathēkē can mean either "covenant" or "last will and testament." Paul transfers the legal connotations of the latter to the story of God's covenant with Abraham. 3.15 I give an example from daily life, lit. "I speak in a human way." 3.16 Promises. See Gen 12.2–3; 15.5; 17.8; 22.17–18. Offspring, lit. "seed" (see text note s). Paul employs a rabbinic exegetical convention, emphasizing the singular form of the collective noun. The identification of the "seed" as Christ (the Messiah) probably presupposes a link between Gen 17.8 and 2 Sam 7.12–14, a promise of an eternal kingdom for David's "seed." 3.17 Four hundred thirty years. See Ex 12.40; cf. Gen 15.13. 3.18 Granted, the verbal cognate of "grace" (see 1.6, 15; 2.21; 5.4).

3.19–25 The foregoing discussion raises the issue of why God gave the law at all; Paul argues that it was necessary but temporary. 3.19 It is disputed whether because of transgressions means "to increase transgressions" (see Rom 5.20) or "to restrain transgressions" (see 3.23–25). Ordained through angels (see also Acts 7.53), a tradition developed from Deut 33.2; Ps 68.17. Philo's Life of Moses explicitly gives Moses the title of mediator

(see Lev 26.46; Num 36.13). 3.20 This verse is notoriously obscure; apparently the point is that those who are in Christ have direct access to God's promise without mediation (see 3.26–29; cf. 1 Tim 2.5). God is one. See Deut 6.4. 3.21 See 2.19–21. 3.22 See also Rom 11.32. Through faith in Jesus Christ. If through the faith of Jesus Christ (see text note u) is preferred, the phrase should modify given rather than promised. 3.23 See 4.4–5. 3.24 The disciplinarian (Greek paidagōgos) was not a teacher but a slave who guarded and supervised children. 3.26–29 Conclusion to the line of argument begun in 3.6–14. 3.26 Children of God. See also Rom 8.14–17; Jn 1.12. 3.27 In early Christian baptismal liturgies, the newly baptized person was clothed in a new white garment; see also Rom 13.14; Eph 4.24. On baptism as union with Christ, see also Rom 6.3–5. 3.28 Probably a baptismal formula; see 1 Cor 12.13; Col 3.11. No ... male and female echoes Gen 1.27; those in Christ have entered a new creation (see 6.15) where former social distinctions are replaced by unity. 3.29 Offspring, lit. "seed," is now interpreted corporately; cf. 3.16.

Heirs and Children of God

4 My point is this: heirs, as long as they are minors, are no better than slaves, though they are the owners of all the property; ²but they remain under guardians and trustees until the date set by the father. ³So with us; while we were minors, we were enslaved to the elemental spirits^v of the world. ⁴But when the fullness of time had come, God sent his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, ⁵in order to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as children. ⁶And because you are children, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our^w hearts, crying, "Abba!^x Father!" ⁷So you are no longer a slave but a child, and if a child then also an heir, through God.^y

No Turning Back

8 Formerly, when you did not know God, you were enslaved to beings that by nature are not gods. ⁹Now, however, that you have come to know God, or rather to be known by God, how can you turn back again to the weak and beggarly elemental spirits?^z How can you want to be enslaved to them again? ¹⁰You are observing special days, and months, and seasons, and years. ¹¹I am afraid that my work for you may have been wasted.

An Appeal to Friendship

12 Friends,^a I beg you, become as I am, for I also have become as you are. You have done me no wrong. ¹³You know that it was because of a physical infirmity that I first announced the gospel to you; ¹⁴though my condition put you to the test, you did not scorn or despise me, but welcomed me as an angel of God, as Christ Jesus. ¹⁵What has become of the goodwill you felt? For I testify that, had it been possible, you would have torn out your eyes and given them to me. ¹⁶Have I now become your enemy by telling you the truth? ¹⁷They make much of you, but for no good purpose; they want to exclude you, so that you may make much of them. ¹⁸It is good to be made much of for a good purpose at all times, and not only when I am present with you. ¹⁹My little children, for whom I am again in the pain of childbirth until Christ is formed in you, ²⁰I wish I were present with you now and could change my tone, for I am perplexed about you.

4.1-7 Paul links the inheritance metaphor to an apocalyptic story of redemption. 4.3 The term elemental spirits (Greek stoicheia) is difficult: it can mean either "basic principles" (as in Heb 5.12), such as the code of behavior set forth in Jewish law, or—as apparently here—it can refer to quasi-demonic powers that oppress humankind (see 4.8; Col 2.8, 20). Either way, Paul's we includes Jews and Gentiles in a common state of slavery before Christ. 4.4 Fullness of time. See also Mk 1.15; Eph 1.10. God sent his Son. See 1.4; Jn 3.16-17; Rom 8.3-4; 1 Jn 4.9; see also Wis 9.9-18. Born of a woman emphasizes the Son's humanity (see Job 14.1; Mt 11.11); born under the law, his Jewishness. 4.5 On adoption and on 4.5-7 as a whole, see also Rom 8.14-17. 4.6 Abba. See also Mk 14.36; Rom 8.15. 4.8-11 Paul characterizes the Galatians' interest in Jewish law as a return to bondage equivalent to their state as pagans. 4.10 Days, and months, and seasons, and years, the Jewish liturgical calendar. See also Col 2.16. 4.11 Wasted. See Phil 2.16; 1 Thess 3.5; see also Isa 49.4; 65.23.

4.12-20 Paul reminds the Galatians of his past relationship with them and appeals for its restoration. 4.12 Become as I am. See 1 Cor 11.1; 1 Thess 1.6; Heb 6.12; 13.7. I also have become as you are. See 1 Cor 9.21; Paul has become like a Gentile, free from observing the commandments of Jewish law. 4.13 The character of Paul's physical infirmity is unknown; for possible background, see 6.17; 2 Cor 11.23-27; 12.7-10. 4.14 Angel, or "messenger." 4.15 Torn out your eyes, probably a proverbial expression for solidarity in friendship. 4.17 Exclude you. See also 2.12. 4.19 On Paul's churches as his children, see also 1 Cor 4.14; 2 Cor 6.13; 1 Thess 2.11-12. Pain of childbirth. Apostolic suffering is one of the birth pangs of the new creation (see Rom 8.22-23; 1 Thess 5.3; also Mk 13.8). Christ . . . formed in you. See Rom 8.29; note on 2.20.

4.21-5.1 An allegorical reading of Genesis that reverses Jewish tradition, according to which Isaac (circumcised on the eighth day, Gen 21.4) symbolizes Israel and Ishmael symbolizes Gentiles; cf. Jubilees 16.17-18. 4.21 Paul can use law law? ²²For it is written that Abraham had two sons, one by a slave woman and the other by a free woman. ²³One, the child of the slave, was born according to the flesh; the other, the child of the free woman, was born through the promise. ²⁴Now this is an allegory: these women are two covenants. One woman, in fact, is Hagar, from Mount Sinai, bearing children for slavery. ²⁵Now Hagar is Mount Sinai in Arabia^b and corresponds to the present Jerusalem, for she is in slavery with her children. ²⁶But the other woman corresponds to the Jerusalem above; she is free, and she is our mother. ²⁷For it is written,

“Rejoice, you childless one, you who bear no children, burst into song and shout, you who endure no birth pangs;
for the children of the desolate woman are more numerous than the children of the one who is married.”

²⁸Now you,^c my friends,^d are children of the promise, like Isaac. ²⁹But just as at that time the child who was born according to the flesh persecuted the child who was born according to the Spirit, so it is now also. ³⁰But what does the scripture say? “Drive out the slave and her child; for the child of the slave will not share the inheritance with the child of the free woman.” ³¹So then, friends,^d we are children, not of the slave but of the free woman. ¹For freedom Christ has set us free. Stand firm, therefore, and do not submit again to a yoke of slavery.

Warning Against Circumcision

² Listen! I, Paul, am telling you that if you let yourselves be circumcised, Christ will be of no benefit to you. ³Once again I testify to every man who lets himself be circumcised that he is obliged to obey the entire law. ⁴You who want to be justified by the law have cut yourselves off from Christ; you have fallen away from grace. ⁵For through the Spirit, by faith, we eagerly wait for the hope of righteousness. ⁶For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor uncircumcision counts for anything; the only thing that counts is faith working^e through love.

⁷ You were running well; who prevented you from obeying the truth? ⁸Such persuasion does not come from the one who calls you. ⁹A little yeast leavens the whole batch of dough. ¹⁰I am confident about you in the Lord that you will not think otherwise. But whoever it is that is confusing you will pay the penalty. ¹¹But my friends,^d why am I still being persecuted if I am still preaching circumcision? In that case the offense of the cross has been removed. ¹²I wish those who unsettle you would castrate themselves!

Freedom for Love

¹³ For you were called to freedom, brothers and sisters;^d only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for self-indulgence,^f but through love become to mean, more broadly, scripture. 4.22–23 See Gen 16, 21. 4.24–25 The equation of Hagar with Mount Sinai has no basis in the Genesis story; apparently the link is posited by Paul to connect slavery with law. 4.24 The two covenants do not correspond to the Old and New Testaments, but more generally to the covenant of promise and the covenant of law; according to Paul, the former is older than the latter (see 3.17). 4.26 Ps 86.5 in the Septuagint (Ps 87.5) acclaims “Mother Zion.” 4.27 Isa 54.1; see also Isa 51.1–3. 4.29 The idea that Ishmael persecuted Isaac is found in rabbinic midrash, based on Gen 21.9. 4.30 Gen 21.10. 5.1 For Jewish law as a yoke, see also Acts 15.10; the rabbis used the same image with positive connotations, as does Mt 11.29–30.

5.2–12 Paul drives home the Letter’s aim: to dissuade the Galatians from accepting circumcision. 5.4 See 2.16, 21; 3.10–12. 5.5 See Rom 8.23–25. 5.6 See 6.15; 1 Cor 7.19. 5.7 Prevented you, lit. “cut in on you,” as in a race. 5.8 See 1.6. 5.9 See also 1 Cor 5.6–8. 5.10 See 1.7–9. 5.11 Paul is being persecuted neither by Rome nor by civil authorities but by the synagogue or perhaps by Jewish Christians (see 1.13; 4.29; 6.12). Offense of the cross. See 1 Cor 1.18–25.

5.13–26 Paul sketches a vision for a community led by the Spirit; he links the pressure for circumcision with rivalry and divisions.

slaves to one another. ¹⁴For the whole law is summed up in a single commandment, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." ¹⁵If, however, you bite and devour one another, take care that you are not consumed by one another.

The Works of the Flesh

¹⁶ Live by the Spirit, I say, and do not gratify the desires of the flesh. ¹⁷For what the flesh desires is opposed to the Spirit, and what the Spirit desires is opposed to the flesh; for these are opposed to each other, to prevent you from doing what you want. ¹⁸But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not subject to the law. ¹⁹Now the works of the flesh are obvious: fornication, impurity, licentiousness, ²⁰idolatry, sorcery, enmities, strife, jealousy, anger, quarrels, dissensions, factions, ²¹envy,^g drunkenness, carousing, and things like these. I am warning you, as I warned you before: those who do such things will not inherit the kingdom of God.

The Fruit of the Spirit

²² By contrast, the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, generosity, faithfulness, ²³gentleness, and self-control. There is no law against such things. ²⁴And those who belong to Christ Jesus have crucified the flesh with its passions and desires. ²⁵If we live by the Spirit, let us also be guided by the Spirit. ²⁶Let us not become conceited, competing against one another, envying one another.

Bear One Another's Burdens

6 My friends,^h if anyone is detected in a transgression, you who have received the Spirit should restore such a one in a spirit of gentleness. Take care that you yourselves are not tempted. ²Bear one another's burdens, and in this way you will fulfillⁱ the law of Christ. ³For if those who are nothing think they are something, they deceive themselves. ⁴All must test their own work; then that work, rather than their neighbor's work, will become a cause for pride. ⁵For all must carry their own loads.

⁶ Those who are taught the word must share in all good things with their teacher.

⁷ Do not be deceived; God is not mocked, for you reap whatever you sow. ⁸If you sow to your own flesh, you will reap corruption from the flesh; but if you sow to the Spirit, you will reap eternal life from the Spirit. ⁹So let us not grow weary in doing what is right, for we will reap at harvest time, if we do not give up. ¹⁰So then, whenever we have an opportunity, let us work for the good of all, and especially for those of the family of faith.

6.11–18 A final summation underscoring the Letter's main points. 6.11 Paul writes the postcircumcised—only that they may not be persecuted for the cross of Christ. ¹³Even the circumcised do not themselves obey the law, but they want you to be circumcised so that they may boast about your flesh. ¹⁴May I never boast of anything except the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which^j the world has been crucified to me, and I to the world. ¹⁵For^k neither circumcision nor uncircumcision is anything; but a new creation is everything! ¹⁶As for those who will follow this rule—peace be upon them, and mercy, and upon the Israel of God.

¹⁷ From now on, let no one make trouble for me; for I carry the marks of Jesus branded on my body.

¹⁸ May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, brothers and sisters.^l Amen.

6.16 This blessing stands in juxtaposition to the Letter’s opening curse (1.8–9). A similar blessing is found in the peace benediction of the Shemoneh Esreh, a standard synagogue prayer. This rule, 6.15, or perhaps 6.14–15. Israel of God, the church as the true Israel (see 3.7, 29; 4.28–31; Rom 9.6–8) or, alternatively, the whole people of Israel (see Rom 11.25–32); the argument of Galatians appears to support the former interpretation. 6.17 The marks of Jesus, Paul’s scars (2 Cor 6.4–5; 11.23–25), incurred in his mission. The phrase may also suggest that Paul is branded by these scars as Christ’s slave. 6.18 See also Phil 4.23; Philem 25.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE EPHESIANS

Occasion and Purpose

BECAUSE NO SINGLE EVENT or crisis can be discerned as its specific occasion and because of the general nature of its content, Ephesians is sometimes thought to have originated as a general letter intended for many churches, a notion reinforced by the lack of a place name in 1.1 in the best manuscripts. Clues within the Letter suggest its purpose. The readers are twice addressed as Gentiles (2.11; 3.1), but subsequently they are told to “no longer live as the Gentiles live” (4.17). Furthermore, they are reminded that “now in Christ Jesus” they are no longer “aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise” (2.12–13). Thus, because of their response to the gospel, the readers are experiencing a radical transformation of their personal and social identity. They are being resocialized into God’s purposes and family. Their new identity is in formation, and the Letter is designed to guide them from their baptism (4.5, 22, 24, 31; 6.11) toward their presentation as the unblemished bride of Christ.

Authorship

Marked differences in style, phrasing, and viewpoint between this Letter and the seven unquestionably authentic Pauline Letters (Romans, 1 and 2 Corinthians, Galatians, Philippians, 1 Thessalonians, Philemon) have cast significant doubt on Pauline authorship of Ephesians. It is more likely that a disciple of Paul wrote the Letter in Paul’s name, probably after the apostle’s death. Complex sentences, relative clauses, distinctive terminology (e.g., “heavenly places,” “to the praise of his glory”), and redundant expressions (e.g., “law with its commandments and ordinances,” “strength of his power”) appear frequently in Ephesians. Even more striking, however, are the claims that believers already share in Christ’s resurrection (2.6) and are saved (2.5, 8), assertions that lack parallels in the seven undisputed Letters. Also in this Letter, the church has become cosmic in function (3.10; cf. Philem 2) and now has Christ as its head (1.22–23; cf. Rom 12.4–5; 1 Cor 12.12–26). Predominantly temporal categories in Paul’s thought (see Rom 13.11–12) have been transposed into spatial conceptions (see 1.20; 2.6).

perhaps as a way of dealing with the delay of Christ's return. Paul's understanding of sin as a hostile power and justification as deliverance from it (see Rom 5.6–11; 7.8, 11) is here replaced by an understanding of sins as individual trespasses and forgiveness as their removal (1.7; 2.1; 4.32).

Perspective

The perspective of Ephesians moves from a vastly cosmic picture of God's plan (1.3–23) and the believers' inclusion in it (2.1–22), to the role and mission of the church and life within it (3.1–5.20), to a depiction of relationships within the household (5.21–6.9), to a final description of how, with prayer, each believer stands battle-ready in God's power (6.10–20). This broad perspective binds the Letter together. God's power to enact the cosmic plan (1.3–23) is the same power available to the believer as armament (6.10–17). Relations of married persons mirror those between Christ and the church (5.21–33). Life within the church (4.1–13) reflects God's larger purpose in Christ, "to gather up all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth" (1.10).

Date and Place of Writing

Several features of Ephesians suggest a date in the last third of the first century c.e. The author writes to a gentile church which seems to have little perception of being part of Israel and needs instructions regarding this connection (2.11–18). These features suggest that some time has passed since the original Pauline mission (cf. 1 Cor 16.3; Gal 6.16). Moreover, a late first-century date would also fit other features distinguishing this Letter from the seven undisputed Pauline Letters: the aforementioned transposition of Pauline eschatological fervor into spatial categories; the diminution of women's status (see 5.22–24); and the reaccommodation to long-standing cultural patterns of hierarchy and submission in the household. There are no clues within the Letter regarding its place of composition. J. Paul Sampley

Salutation

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God,

To the saints who are in Ephesus and are faithful^a in Christ Jesus:

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Spiritual Blessings in Christ

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places, ⁴just as he chose us in Christ^b before the foundation of the world to be holy and blameless before him in love. ⁵He destined us for adoption as his children through Jesus Christ, according to the good pleasure of his will, ⁶to the praise of his glorious grace that he freely bestowed on us in the Beloved. ⁷In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of his grace ⁸that he lavished on us. With all wisdom and insight ⁹he has made known to us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure that he set forth in Christ, ¹⁰as a plan for the fullness of time, to gather up all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth. ¹¹In Christ we have also obtained an inheritance,^c having been destined according to the purpose of him who accomplishes all things according to his counsel and will, ¹²so that we, who were the first to set our hope on Christ, might live for the praise of his glory. ¹³In him you also, when you had heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, and had believed in him, were marked with the seal of the promised Holy Spirit; ¹⁴this^d is the pledge of our inheritance toward redemption as God's own people, to the praise of his glory.

1.1–2 The salutation takes the same form as most Pauline Letter openings. 1.1 Like Romans, but unlike most other Pauline Letters, Ephesians is sent solely by Paul. On Paul's self-designation as apostle, see 2 Cor 1.1; Gal 1.1; Col 1.1. The frequent references to the will of God (see 1.5, 9, 11; 5.17; 6.6) emphasize God's plan and power. The saints, i.e., those set apart for God, are the believers (see 1.18; 2.19; 3.8, 18; 4.12; 5.3; 6.18). The location of the addressees in Ephesus is lacking in the best Greek manuscripts (see text note a). 1.2 Grace, the foundation of life in Christ, has made peace possible (see Rom 5.1). Father is a favorite designation of God in Ephesians; see 1.3, 17; 2.18; 3.14; 4.6; 5.20; 6.23. Family and household are primary social realities in Ephesians; in Roman times, the father had responsibility for all members of the household.

1.3–23 Where a formal thanksgiving might be expected (cf. Rom 1.8), there is an ancient Jewish prayer form (beginning Blessed be the God; see also 2 Cor 1.3; 1 Pet 1.3), which identifies the author with Jewish tradition. Vv. 15–23, however, incorporate many elements of a typical Pauline thanksgiving. 1.3 The heavenly places, an expression peculiar to Ephesians (see 1.20; 2.6; 3.10; 6.12). 1.4 Chose (see also destined, 1.5, 11) stresses God's initiative. The blameless (lit. "without blemish") life expected of those set apart for God

(see 5.27; Col 1.22) has its roots in the purity expected of sacrificial animals and of priests (see Lev 21–22). 1.5 Adoption, the means by which Gentiles are included in God's household. See 2.19; Gal 4.5. 1.6 The Beloved is applied to Christ as a title nowhere else in the NT, though it is found in second-century Christian writings. 1.7 Redemption, a term for the buying back of a slave or the freeing of a prisoner by ransom. See also 1.14; 4.30; Col 1.14. 1.9 The content of the mystery, a reference to God's previously hidden purposes, is given in 3.3–9; see also 5.32; 6.19. 1.10 Fullness denotes completeness; see 1.23; 3.19; 4.13; see also 4.10; 5.18; Col 1.19. God's plan for the fullness of time is linked with the previously hidden mystery in 3.2–9. To gather up (Greek, "to head up"). This image is developed later in the Letter in terms of Christ as the head of his body, the church (1.22–23; 4.15). 1.12 The phrase for the praise of his glory (see also 1.6, 14) is distinctive in the NT and reflects the church's liturgical tradition. 1.13 The seal, a sign of authentication or confirmation, designates ownership, and therefore protection, by the Holy Spirit; see 4.30. 1.14 Pledge, a down payment securing the entirety of what is promised. See 2 Cor 1.22; 5.5. On salvation as an inheritance, see Rom 8.17; Gal 4.7; Col 1.12. Adopted children (1.5) share fully in the inheritance. 1.15 A nearly identical in my prayers. ¹⁷I pray that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation as you come to know him, ¹⁸so that, with the eyes of your heart enlightened, you may know what is the hope to which he has called you, what are the riches of his glorious inheritance among the saints, ¹⁹and what is the immeasurable greatness of his power for us who believe, according to the working of his great power. ²⁰God^f put this power to work in Christ when he raised him from the dead and seated him at his right hand in the heavenly places, ²¹far above all rule and authority and power and dominion, and above every name that is named, not only in this age but also in the age to come. ²²And he has put all things under his feet and has made him the head over all things for the church, ²³which is his body, the fullness of him who fills all in all.

From Death to Life

2 You were dead through the trespasses and sins ²in which you once lived, following the course of this world, following the ruler of the power of the air, the spirit that is now at work among those who are disobedient. ³All of us once lived among them in the passions of our flesh, following the desires of flesh and senses, and we were by nature children of wrath, like everyone else. ⁴But God, who is rich in mercy, out of the great love with which he loved us ⁵even when we were dead through our trespasses, made us alive together with Christ—by grace you have been saved—⁶and raised us up with him and seated us with him in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus, ⁷so that in the ages to come he might show the immeasurable riches of his grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus. ⁸For by grace you have been saved through faith, and this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God—⁹not the result of works, so that no one may boast. ¹⁰For we are what he has made us, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand to be our way of life.

One in Christ

11 So then, remember that at one time you Gentiles by birth,^h called “the uncircumcision” by those who are called “the circumcision”—a physical circumcision made in the flesh by human hands—¹²remember that you were at that time without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world. ¹³But now in Christ Jesus you who once were far off

statement is found in Col 1.4. 1.18 All the saints have been called and are expected to live in accord with that calling; see 4.1, 4. 1.20 At his right hand, an echo of Ps 110.1. 1.21 All rule and authority and power and dominion includes all supposed rival powers, whether cosmic or mundane; see 3.10; 6.12; Rom 8.38; 1 Cor 15.24; Col 1.16; 2.10, 15; 1 Pet 3.22. 1.22 Under his feet, an echo of Ps 8.6. See also Ps 110.1; 1 Cor 15.25–28. Nowhere in the unquestionably authentic Pauline Letters is Christ called, as here, the head of the church (see also 1.10; 4.15; 5.23; cf. Rom 12.5; 1 Cor 12.12–27).

2.1–10 The believers' resurrection is linked with that of Christ (see esp. 2.6). 2.2 In which you once lived. Different ways of living (lit. “walking”) are described in 4.1–5.20; see 2.10; 4.1, 17; 5.2, 8, 15. The ruler of the power of the air is probably the devil (4.27; 6.11). The disobedient spirit associated with this figure stands in contrast with the promised Holy Spirit (1.13; 2.18, 22). 2.3 Children of wrath, powerless creatures subject to God's judgment. See 5.6; Col 3.6. 2.5 By grace you have been saved (see also 2.8). In the authentic Letters, Paul views salvation as a future event (see Rom 5.9, 10; 13.11; 1 Thess 5.8). 2.6 And raised us up with him (see also Col 2.12; 3.1). In the authentic Letters, Paul is careful to speak of believers' resurrection as occurring in the future (see Rom 6.5; 1 Cor 15.21–23; Phil 3.10–11). 2.8–9 By grace ... not ... works, a concise summary of Paul's thought. See also Rom 3.21–31; 4.2–4, 16; 9.16; 11.6; Gal 2.16. 2.9 On the prohibition of improper boasting, see Rom 3.27; 4.2; 1 Cor 1.29–31. 2.10 Good works follow faith, never lead to it; see Col 1.10.

2.11–22 These verses discuss the unity of Gentiles and Jews in Christ. 2.12 On aliens, see 4.18; Col 1.21. Strangers, the opposite of citizens. See 2.19. Covenants of promise (see also 1.13; 3.6; Rom 9.4). The author could be thinking of the covenants of Gen 15.12–21; 17.1–8; 26.1–5; 35.11–12, which also highlight God's promises. 2.13 On far off and near, see also 2.17; Isa 57.19.

have been brought near by the blood of Christ. ¹⁴For he is our peace; in his flesh he has made both groups into one and has broken down the dividing wall, that is, the hostility between us. ¹⁵He has abolished the law with its commandments and ordinances, that he might create in himself one new humanity in place of the two, thus making peace, ¹⁶and might reconcile both groups to God in one bodyⁱ through the cross, thus putting to death that hostility through it.^j ¹⁷So he came and proclaimed peace to you who were far off and peace to those who were near; ¹⁸for through him both of us have access in one Spirit to the Father. ¹⁹So then you are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are citizens with the saints and also members of the household of God, ²⁰built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the cornerstone.^k ²¹In him the whole structure is joined together and grows into a holy temple in the Lord; ²²in whom you also are built together spiritually^l into a dwelling place for God.

Paul's Ministry to the Gentiles

3 This is the reason that I Paul am a prisoner for^m Christ Jesus for the sake of you Gentiles— ²for surely you have already heard of the commission of God's grace that was given me for you, ³and how the mystery was made known to me by revelation, as I wrote above in a few words, ^{4a} a reading of which will enable you to perceive my understanding of the mystery of Christ. ⁵In former generations this mysteryⁿ was not made known to humankind, as it has now been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit: ⁶that is, the Gentiles have become fellow heirs, members of the same body, and sharers in the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel.

⁷ Of this gospel I have become a servant according to the gift of God's grace that was given me by the working of his power. ⁸Although I am the very least of all the saints, this grace was given to me to bring to the Gentiles the news of the boundless riches of Christ, ⁹and to make everyone see^o what is the plan of the mystery hidden for ages in^p God who created all things; ¹⁰so that through the church the wisdom of God in its rich variety might now be made known to the rulers and authorities in the heavenly places. ¹¹This was in accordance with the eternal purpose that he has carried out in Christ Jesus our Lord, ¹²in whom we have access to God in boldness and confidence through faith in him.^q ¹³I pray therefore Blood of Christ, a reference to Christ's atoning death. See Lev 16; Rom 3.25; 5.9. 2.14 On peace, see also 1.2; 2.15, 17; 4.3; 6.15. In his flesh identifies Christ's physical body on the cross as the means of reconciliation between Gentiles and Jews and between both groups and God (see 2.16; Col 1.22). 2.19 On strangers and aliens, see 2.12. Household of God, is a shift of image, but see note on 1.2; see 3.15; 5.21–6.4; see also 1 Tim 3.15; 1 Pet 4.17. 2.20 Foundation of the apostles and prophets. Cf. 1 Cor 3.11. The prophets could be those of ancient Israel (see Rom 3.21) or those of the early Christian church (3.5; 4.11; 1 Cor 11.4–5; 14.3–6, 24). The scriptural image of the cornerstone (see Ps 118.22; Isa 28.16) was widely applied to Christ; see Mt 21.42; 1 Pet 2.6. 2.22 On believers as a dwelling place for God, see 1 Cor 3.16–17; 6.19; 1 Pet 2.4–6.

3.1–13 Paul's status and the church's mission are aligned with God's eternal plan. 3.1 Paul was a prisoner on several occasions (see 2 Cor 6.5; 11.23; Phil 1.13–14; Col 4.3, 18; Philem 1, 9); it is not clear which imprisonment is intended here

(see 6.20). 3.2 Paul had received a divinely appointed commission and was therefore a part of God's plan (see 1.10; 3.9; 1 Cor 9.17; Gal 1.15–16; 2.7–9; Col 1.25). 3.3 Conforming to the picture in the undisputed Letters (2 Cor 12.1, 7; Gal 2.2), the author of Ephesians legitimates Paul's authority through the concept of revelation, for Paul was not one of the original disciples. 3.5 On the mystery not made known before but now revealed, see Rom 16.25. 3.6 Claims about the inclusion of Gentiles echo 2.19–22. 3.7 On Paul as a servant (Greek diakonos), see 1 Cor 3.5. 3.8 For least of all the saints, see 1 Cor 15.9; 1 Tim 1.15; cf. 2 Cor 11.5. 3.9 Plan, mystery, and God's relationship to all things are treated once again (see 1.9–10; 3.3–5). 3.10 The church has the cosmic task of making the wisdom of God (either wisdom from God or wisdom about God) known in the heavenly places; cf. the references to localized house churches in the undisputed Letters (Rom 16.5, 15; Philem 2). On rulers and authorities, see 1.21. 3.12 Access to God, a reprise of 2.18. 3.13 Sufferings, lit. "tribulations," was an apocathat you^r may not lose heart over my sufferings for you; they are your glory.

Prayer for the Readers

14 For this reason I bow my knees before the Father,^s 15 from whom every family^t in heaven and on earth takes its name. 16 I pray that, according to the riches of his glory, he may grant that you may be strengthened in your inner being with power through his Spirit, 17 and that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith, as you are being rooted and grounded in love. 18 I pray that you may have the power to comprehend, with all the saints, what is the breadth and length and height and depth, 19 and to know the love of Christ that surpasses knowledge, so that you may be filled with all the fullness of God.

20 Now to him who by the power at work within us is able to accomplish abundantly far more than all we can ask or imagine, 21 to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus to all generations, forever and ever. Amen.

Unity in the Body of Christ

4 I therefore, the prisoner in the Lord, beg you to lead a life worthy of the calling to which you have been called, 2 with all humility and gentleness, with patience, bearing with one another in love, 3 making every effort to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. 4 There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called to the one hope of your calling, 5 one Lord, one faith, one baptism, 6 one God and Father of all, who is above all and through all and in all.

7 But each of us was given grace according to the measure of Christ's gift. 8 Therefore it is said,

"When he ascended on high he made captivity itself a captive;

he gave gifts to his people."

9 (When it says, "He ascended," what does it mean but that he had also descended^u into the lower parts of the earth? 10 He who descended is the same one who ascended far above all the heavens, so that he might fill all things.) 11 The gifts he gave were that some would be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors and teachers, 12 to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ, 13 until all of us come to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to maturity, to the measure of the full stature of Christ. 14 We must no longer be children, tossed to and fro and blown about by every wind of doctrine, by people's trickery, by their craftiness in deceitful scheming. 15 But speaking the truth in love, we must grow

4.1–5.20 Counsels on behavior worthy of God's calling. 4.1–6 Believers' calling and comportment are grounded in their fundamental unity. 4.1 On the concern that believers live worthy lives, see Col 1.10; 1 Thess 2.12. 4.2–3 On the virtues of the worthy life, see Col 3.12–13; see also 1 Cor 13.4. 4.4–6 This strong emphasis on unity was anticipated in 1.22–23; 2.14–16, 18. 4.6 On God above all and through all and in all, see 1 Cor 15.28; cf. 1 Cor 8.6. 4.7–16 Grace equips the body of Christ with a variety of gifts (see 1 Cor 12.4–11). 4.7 On individualized measures, see Rom 12.3. 4.8 The quotation is derived from Ps 68.18, which speaks, however, of God, not the people, receiving gifts. 4.9–11 An example of early Christian exegesis, focusing on key words in the quotation; see also Rom 10.6–10; Heb 2.6–9. 4.9 Descended into the lower parts of the earth. See Mt 12.40; 1 Pet 3.19. 4.11 The list of gifts stresses leadership functions in the church (cf. Rom 12.6–8; 1 Cor 12.28–30). 4.12 Ministry (Greek diakonia). As the cognate of this term, servant, was applied to Paul in 3.7, recipients of the Letter are invited to join with Paul in service to the gospel. 4.13 On maturity, as distinguished from childishness (v. 14), see Phil 3.12; Col 1.28. 4.15–16 On Christ as head of the body, see 1.22–23; note on 1.22.

up in every way into him who is the head, into Christ,¹⁶ from whom the whole body, joined and knit together by every ligament with which it is equipped, as each part is working properly, promotes the body's growth in building itself up in love.

The Old Life and the New

17 Now this I affirm and insist on in the Lord: you must no longer live as the Gentiles live, in the futility of their minds.¹⁸ They are darkened in their understanding, alienated from the life of God because of their ignorance and hardness of heart.¹⁹ They have lost all sensitivity and have abandoned themselves to licentiousness, greedy to practice every kind of impurity.²⁰ That is not the way you learned Christ! ²¹For surely you have heard about him and were taught in him, as truth is in Jesus.²² You were taught to put away your former way of life, your old self, corrupt and deluded by its lusts,²³ and to be renewed in the spirit of your minds,²⁴ and to clothe yourselves with the new self, created according to the likeness of God in true righteousness and holiness.

Rules for the New Life

25 So then, putting away falsehood, let all of us speak the truth to our neighbors, for we are members of one another.²⁶ Be angry but do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger,²⁷ and do not make room for the devil.²⁸ Thieves must give up stealing; rather let them labor and work honestly with their own hands, so as to have something to share with the needy.²⁹ Let no evil talk come out of your mouths, but only what is useful for building up,^v as there is need, so that your words may give grace to those who hear.³⁰ And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, with which you were marked with a seal for the day of redemption.³¹ Put away from you all bitterness and wrath and anger and wrangling and slander, together with all malice,³² and be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ has forgiven you.^w ¹Therefore be imitators of God, as beloved children,² and live in love, as Christ loved us^x and gave himself up for us, a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God.

Renounce Pagan Ways

3 But fornication and impurity of any kind, or greed, must not even be mentioned among you, as is proper among saints.⁴ Entirely out of place is obscene, silly, and vulgar talk; but instead, let there be thanksgiving.⁵ Be sure of this, that no fornicator or impure person, or one who is greedy (that is, an idolater), has any in-

4.17–24 These verses address contrasting ways of life. 4.17 Affirm and insist. Doubling provides emphasis. Ironically in a letter written to Gentiles, the Gentiles denotes a rejected way of living. 4.20–24 Metaphors of teaching and learning are interlaced with references to putting garments off and on for baptism. To learn Christ (v. 20) means not only to learn about him (v. 21) but also to put away the old way of life (v. 22; see also Rom 6.6) and to be clothed with the new self (v. 24; see also Gal 3.27; Col 3.10). 4.25–32 Practical suggestions for the new life. 4.25 Putting away develops the theme of 4.22. Speak the truth. See Zech 8.16. 4.26 Be angry but do not sin. See Ps 4.4 (Septuagint). The maxim do not let the sun go down on your anger, can also be found in non-Christian writings of this period. 4.30 Wrongful conduct risks alienation from the Holy Spirit by which readers were set apart for God (see 1.13–14). 4.32 The exhortations in this verse echo 4.2. 5.1 The readers are to be imitators of God in forgiveness (4.32) and in love (5.2); this is a pivotal exhortation. Whereas calls to imitate Christ are widespread in the NT (see 5.25; see also Rom 15.7; 1 Cor 11.1), imitation of God is more rarely invoked (see Mt 5.44–45, 48). As beloved children. In Roman times, parents were role models (see also 1 Cor 4.14–17). 5.2 Live in love (lit. “walk in love”). See also 5.8, 15. Christ loved us and gave himself up for us (see 5.25; see also Gal 2.20). The image of Christ's self-sacrifice moves the author to describe believers as a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God (see, e.g., Ex 29.18; Ezek 20.14; see also Rom 12.1; Phil 4.18).

5.3–20 Counsels on how to live carefully and wisely. 5.3 On things that must not even be mentioned, much less done, see 5.12. 5.4–5 Lists of vices that imperil inheritance in the kingdom are also found in 1 Cor 6.9–10; Gal 5.19–21; Rev 22.14–15. On the connection between the greedy and the idolater, see Mt 6.24. 5.5 Kingdom of Christ and of God is an infrequent expression in the heritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God.

6 Let no one deceive you with empty words, for because of these things the wrath of God comes on those who are disobedient. 7 Therefore do not be associated with them. 8 For once you were darkness, but now in the Lord you are light. Live as children of light— 9 for the fruit of the light is found in all that is good and right and true. 10 Try to find out what is pleasing to the Lord. 11 Take no part in the unfruitful works of darkness, but instead expose them. 12 For it is shameful even to mention what such people do secretly; 13 but everything exposed by the light becomes visible, 14 for everything that becomes visible is light. Therefore it says, “Sleeper, awake!

Rise from the dead,
and Christ will shine on you.”

15 Be careful then how you live, not as unwise people but as wise, 16 making the most of the time, because the days are evil. 17 So do not be foolish, but understand what the will of the Lord is. 18 Do not get drunk with wine, for that is debauchery; but be filled with the Spirit, 19 as you sing psalms and hymns and spiritual songs among yourselves, singing and making melody to the Lord in your hearts, 20 giving thanks to God the Father at all times and for everything in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The Christian Household

21 Be subject to one another out of reverence for Christ.

22 Wives, be subject to your husbands as you are to the Lord. 23 For the husband is the head of the wife just as Christ is the head of the church, the body of which he is the Savior. 24 Just as the church is subject to Christ, so also wives ought to be, in everything, to their husbands.

25 Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her, 26 in order to make her holy by cleansing her with the washing of water by the word, 27 so as to present the church to himself in splendor, without a spot or wrinkle or anything of the kind—yes, so that she may be holy and without blemish. 28 In the same way, husbands should love their wives as they do their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. 29 For no one ever hates his own body, but he nourishes and tenderly cares for it, just as Christ does for the church, 30 because we NT (but see 1 Cor 15.24). 5.6 Wrath of God, a reference to God's final judgment. See Rom 1.18; Col 3.6; Rev 19.15. 5.7 Being associated with unbelievers is also prohibited in 2 Cor 6.14; cf. 1 Cor 5.9–13; 7.12–16. 5.8 Children of light, a metaphor not found in Israel's scriptures but common in the Dead Sea Scrolls and the NT. See Mt 5.16; Lk 16.8; Jn 12.36; 1 Thess 5.5. 5.9 Fruit, i.e., moral results. See Mt 7.16–20; Gal 5.22; cf. unfruitful works in 5.11. 5.10 Try to find out, lit. “find out,” “discern.” See Rom 12.2; Phil 1.10; see also 5.17. 5.13–14 On exposure by the light, see Jn 3.20–21. 5.14 The source of this quote is uncertain. It may be a fragment of a Christian hymn; see also Isa 26.19. 5.16 Making the most of the time, lit. “buying up the time,” but the meaning is uncertain. Cf. Col 4.5, where the same phrase bears on how believers relate to outsiders. The days are evil, a common apocalyptic perspective. See Mt 24.22; Acts 2.40; Gal 1.4. 5.17 Understand what the will of the Lord is. See also 5.10. The contrast is with following sinful human wills (see 2.3, where the plural form of the Greek term here translated will is translated desires). 5.18 Filled with the Spirit, i.e., not with wine. See Acts 2.15–17.

5.20 Giving thanks to God. See 5.4; Col 3.17; 1 Thess 5.18.

5.21–6.9 The author introduces a discussion of relations within the household with an exhortation to mutual submission. 5.21 Be subject to one another (see 1 Pet 5.5) was probably not originally part of the traditional material that follows, but derives from the author. It is debated whether the exhortation is applicable only to the section on wives and husbands or stands as the heading under which all the counsels in 5.22–6.9 are to be understood. 5.22–33 Wives and husbands (see Col 3.18–19). 5.23 For the husband as head of the wife, see 1 Cor 11.3; for Christ as head of the church, see 1.22; 4.15. 5.24 Subjection of wives to husbands is reaffirmed (see 5.22) and extended: so also wives ought to be subject in everything. Nowhere do the undisputed Pauline Letters call for the subjection of wives. 5.25 As Christ loved the church. See 5.2. 5.26 Cleansing . . . washing, a reference to baptism. See 4.22–24. 5.27 Usually Christians are exhorted to present themselves to God or Christ (see Rom 6.13, 19; 12.1; 2 Cor 11.2); here the focus is entirely on Christ's action. For without blemish, see 1.4; Phil 1.10. 5.28 He who loves his are members of his body.^y 31“For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two will become one flesh.” 32This is a great mystery, and I am applying it to Christ and the church. 33Each of you, however, should love his wife as himself, and a wife should respect her husband.

Children and Parents

6 Children, obey your parents in the Lord,^z for this is right. 2“Honor your father and mother”—this is the first commandment with a promise: 3“so that it may be well with you and you may live long on the earth.”

4 And, fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord.

Slaves and Masters

5 Slaves, obey your earthly masters with fear and trembling, in singleness of heart, as you obey Christ; 6not only while being watched, and in order to please them, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart. 7Render service with enthusiasm, as to the Lord and not to men and women, 8knowing that whatever good we do, we will receive the same again from the Lord, whether we are slaves or free.

9 And, masters, do the same to them. Stop threatening them, for you know that both of you have the same Master in heaven, and with him there is no partiality.

The Whole Armor of God

10 Finally, be strong in the Lord and in the strength of his power. 11Put on the whole armor of God, so that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. 12For our^a struggle is not against enemies of blood and flesh, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the cosmic powers of this present darkness, against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly places. 13Therefore take up the whole armor of God, so that you may be able to withstand on that evil day, and having done everything, to stand firm. 14Stand therefore, and fasten the belt of truth around your waist, and put on the breastplate of righteousness. 15As shoes for your feet put on whatever will make you ready to proclaim the gospel of peace. 16With all of these,^b take the shield of faith, with which you will be able to quench all the flaming arrows of the evil one. 17Take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

18 Pray in the Spirit at all times in every prayer and supplication. To that end keep alert and always persevere in supplication for all the saints. 19Pray also for me, so that when I speak, a message may be given to me to make known with boldness the mystery of the gospel,^c 20for which I am an ambassador in chains. Pray that I may declare it boldly, as I must speak.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE PHILIPPIANS

Author and Recipients

PAUL WROTE PHILIPPIANS to Christians in the city of Philippi, a Roman colony in the province of Macedonia. According to Acts 16.11–40, Paul, along with Timothy, Silas, and others, had visited this city some years before (about 50 C.E.) during his second missionary journey and founded there a church whose members Paul regards with a special affection and deep longing (1.8; 2.19, 24).

Place and Date

Paul writes that he is in prison (1.7, 13–14, 17), but he does not say where. Imprisonment was not infrequent for Paul. He boasts vaguely of numerous imprisonments (2 Cor 11.23), but Acts identifies three: one at Philippi at the founding of the church (Acts 16.23–40), another at Caesarea (23.23–26.32), and a third at Rome (28.16–31). Traditionally, it has been assumed that Paul wrote this Letter during the Roman imprisonment of the early 60s, an assumption based on his references to the “imperial guard” (1.13) and the “emperor’s household” (4.22).

These references, however, do not necessarily point to Rome (see notes on 1.13; 4.22). Scholars have thus proposed alternate sites, such as Corinth, Caesarea, and Ephesus. Ephesus in particular is an attractive option, but none of these sites is without problems. Consequently, it is prudent to keep the question of place open. Accordingly, the date for Philippians is either the mid to late 50s or the early 60s.

Integrity of the Letter

Some scholars have challenged the integrity of Philippians. They point in particular to the sharp change in tone in 3.2–4.3, with its sarcastic remarks and anxious warnings about some Christian missionaries, and they note how long it takes Paul to thank the Philippians for a gift they have sent (4.10–20). Consequently, they propose that parts of three separate letters (3.2–4.3; 4.10–20; and 1.1–3.1 with 4.4–9, 21–23) were combined to form the canonical Philippians. Other scholars, however, defend the integrity of this Letter, arguing that the harsher tone of 3.2–4.3 is already anticipated at 1.28–29 and that Paul likewise anticipates his thanks in 1.5; 2.25. Various stylistic, rhetorical, and thematic features also favor integrity, so it is best to read Philippians as a single, unified Letter.

Occasion and Contents

From the Letter we learn that the Christians at Philippi heard of Paul's imprisonment (1.30) and responded with prayers to gain his release (1.19) and with gifts to supply his needs (4.17–18). Epaphroditus, who delivered the gifts (2.25; 4.18), then became seriously ill (2.26–27). Upon his recovery, Paul deems it necessary to send Epaphroditus back to Philippi (2.25, 28), along with this Letter. Soon, Paul hopes, Timothy will visit them with further news of his imprisonment and upcoming trial (2.19, 23), and at a later time he himself hopes to visit (1.24–27; 2.24).

In the meantime Paul remains surprisingly joyful. He rejoices in the continued advance of the gospel in spite of, or even because of, his imprisonment (1.12–18); he rejoices in his special partnership with the Philippians, which has resulted in their gifts and prayers (1.4, 7; 4.10, 14–15); he rejoices in the recovery of Epaphroditus from a near-fatal sickness (2.28–29); and he rejoices in anticipation of the day of Christ when the Philippians, should they remain “pure and blameless” (1.10), will be saved (1.28; 2.12; 3.20), and he will receive a crown for his work (4.1).

A subsidiary theme of disappointment and worry is also evident, however. Paul is disappointed that some missionaries where he is imprisoned are preaching from uncharitable motives (1.15, 17). He is more concerned, however, about a danger that faces the Philippians. He warns them about other missionaries whom he calls “dogs,” “evil workers,” and “enemies of the cross of Christ” (3.2, 18). They espouse a righteousness based on law, especially on circumcision (3.2–3, 7–11, 19), which differs from his own view of righteousness based on Christ's crucifixion and resurrection (1.11; 2.6–11; 3.3, 9–11). Consequently, to general exhortations to live in a manner worthy of the gospel (1.27; see also 1.10; 2.3–5, 12, 15; 4.4–8), Paul adds other admonitions with this specific danger in view: beware of these people (3.2); obey and imitate him instead (2.12; 3.17; 4.9); maintain unity (1.27; 2.2; 3.15; 4.2); and stand firm in the Lord (4.1).

Salutation

1 Paul and Timothy, servants^a of Christ Jesus,

To all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, with the bishops^b and deacons;^c

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Paul's Prayer for the Philippians

3 I thank my God every time I remember you, ⁴constantly praying with joy in every one of my prayers for all of you, ⁵because of your sharing in the gospel from the first day until now. ⁶I am confident of this, that the one who began a good work among you will bring it to completion by the day of Jesus Christ. ⁷It is right for me to think this way about all of you, because you hold me in your heart,^d for all of you share in God's grace^e with me, both in my imprisonment and in the defense and confirmation of the gospel. ⁸For God is my witness, how I long for all of you with the compassion of Christ Jesus. ⁹And this is my prayer, that your love may overflow more and more with knowledge and full insight ¹⁰to help you to determine what is best, so that in the day of Christ you may be pure and blameless, ¹¹having produced the harvest of righteousness that comes through Jesus Christ for the glory and praise of God.

Paul's Present Circumstances

12 I want you to know, beloved,^f that what has happened to me has actually helped to spread the gospel, ¹³so that it has become known throughout the whole imperial guard^g and to everyone else that my imprisonment is for Christ; ¹⁴and most of the brothers and sisters,^f having been made confident in the Lord by my imprisonment, dare to speak the word^h with greater boldness and without fear.

15 Some proclaim Christ from envy and rivalry, but others from goodwill. ¹⁶These proclaim Christ out of love, knowing that I have been put here for the defense of the gospel; ¹⁷the others proclaim Christ out of selfish ambition, not sincerely but intending to increase my suffering in my imprisonment. ¹⁸What does it matter? Just this, that Christ is proclaimed in every way, whether out of false motives or true; and in that I rejoice.

Yes, and I will continue to rejoice, ¹⁹for I know that through your prayers and the help of the Spirit of Jesus Christ this will turn out for my deliverance. ²⁰It is my

1.1–2 Naming the sender(s) and recipient(s) at the beginning is typical of Paul's Letters and of ancient letters generally. 1.1 Timothy is co-sender of this Letter, as also of 2 Corinthians, 1 Thessalonians, and Philemon. Paul's characterization of himself and Timothy as servants (lit. "slaves") of Christ (see also 2.22) reflects his emphasis on Christ's lordship (see note on 2.10–11). The precise meaning of bishops and deacons cannot be determined, except that they were leaders of the Philippian church. 1.3–11 After the salutation Paul typically expresses his gratitude for the conduct of the recipients; here he is grateful for the support of all the Philippians—note the emphatic repetition of the word all in vv. 4, 7 (twice), 8. 1.4 With joy, the first of many expressions of joy and rejoicing (1.18, 25; 2.2, 17, 18, 19, 28, 29; 3.1; 4.1, 4, 10). 1.5 Sharing in the gospel refers to the partnership between Paul and the Philippians that involved several gifts from them in support of his missionary work (see 4.15–18). 1.6 The day of Jesus Christ (see also 1.10; 2.16) refers to Paul's expectation of Christ's return to save believers from God's wrathful judgment (see also Rom 2.5, 15–16; 1 Cor 1.8; 2 Cor 1.14; 1 Thess 1.10). 1.11 On righteousness that comes through Jesus Christ, see note on 3.9.

1.12–18 Despite his imprisonment and the questionable motives of some missionaries, Paul is joyful because the cause of Christ is advancing. 1.13 Imperial guard renders the Greek word praitōrion (from Latin praetorium, see text note g) as if Paul were in Rome. The word, however, can also refer to any provincial governor's residence (as in Acts 23.35) and thus does not necessarily identify the place of Paul's imprisonment (see Introduction). 1.19–26 Paul turns from his general circumstances to his upcoming trial. 1.19 This will turn out for my deliverance is a quotation from Job 13.16. Deliverance (lit. "salvation") probably refers only to Paul's acquittal and release from prison, not to his eternal salvation. 1.20 Put to shame, e.g., be forced to deny Christ. Whether by life or by death leads to vv. 21–26 in which Paul ponders his own death using concepts associated with ancient discussions of suicide.

eager expectation and hope that I will not be put to shame in any way, but that by my speaking with all boldness, Christ will be exalted now as always in my body, whether by life or by death. ²¹For to me, living is Christ and dying is gain. ²²If I am to live in the flesh, that means fruitful labor for me; and I do not know which I prefer. ²³I am hard pressed between the two: my desire is to depart and be with Christ, for that is far better; ²⁴but to remain in the flesh is more necessary for you. ²⁵Since I am convinced of this, I know that I will remain and continue with all of you for your progress and joy in faith, ²⁶so that I may share abundantly in your boasting in Christ Jesus when I come to you again.

²⁷ Only, live your life in a manner worthy of the gospel of Christ, so that, whether I come and see you or am absent and hear about you, I will know that you are standing firm in one spirit, striving side by side with one mind for the faith of the gospel, ²⁸and are in no way intimidated by your opponents. For them this is evidence of their destruction, but of your salvation. And this is God's doing. ²⁹For he has graciously granted you the privilege not only of believing in Christ, but of suffering for him as well— ³⁰since you are having the same struggle that you saw I had and now hear that I still have.

Imitating Christ's Humility

2 If then there is any encouragement in Christ, any consolation from love, any sharing in the Spirit, any compassion and sympathy, ²make my joy complete: be of the same mind, having the same love, being in full accord and of one mind. ³Do nothing from selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility regard others as better than yourselves. ⁴Let each of you look not to your own interests, but to the interests of others. ⁵Let the same mind be in you that wasⁱ in Christ Jesus, ⁶ who, though he was in the form of God, did not regard equality with God as something to be exploited, ⁷ but emptied himself, taking the form of a slave, being born in human likeness. And being found in human form,

i Or that you have

1.21 Living is Christ. A difficult expression, it probably means that Paul has no life apart from his obligations to Christ (see also 2 Cor 4.11; Gal 2.20). Dying is gain, by contrast, is quite clear, being a virtual refrain in ancient discussions of suicide. Death is a gain over a life of trouble and affliction, as Paul's was at this time due to imprisonment (1.17), struggles (1.30), sorrows (2.27), hunger, and privation (4.12). 1.22 Prefer (lit. "choose") is the clearest indication that Paul's possible death may be in his own hands as well as those of his jailers. 1.23 On Paul's desire . . . to . . . be with Christ, see 2 Cor 5.1–9. 1.24 The appeal to what is necessary is often found in Stoic discussions of suicide. 1.27–30 Paul turns from his situation to that of the Philippians with an exhortation to live worthily of the gospel. 1.27 Live your life is a bland rendering of a word that comes from the political arena and means "live as citizens" (see also 3.20), a connotation not lost on the Philippians, who, by residing in a Roman colony, possessed Roman citizenship. 1.30 The word struggle comes from the athletic arena. Athletic imagery is frequent in this Letter (2.16; 3.13–14; 4.3) and in others (e.g., 1 Cor 9.24–27; Gal 2.2; 5.7). The struggle that the Philippians saw is vividly narrated in Acts 16.19–24. 2.1–11 Exhortations to unity and humility, as illustrated by Christ. 2.2 On the importance of joy in this Letter, see note on 1.4. 2.4 There is good manuscript evidence for adding "also" after but. Others is, strictly speaking, the reciprocal pronoun "one another"; the Philippian Christians are to show humility toward one another, not necessarily toward people in general. 2.6–11 These verses, as their format shows, are widely regarded as a pre-Pauline Christ hymn; Paul's Letters frequently contain material from earlier Christian tradition (e.g., Rom 1.3–4; 3.24–25; 1 Cor 15.3–5; 1 Thess 1.9–10). After an introductory statement about the preexistent Christ (v. 6), the hymn falls into two stanzas: the first (vv. 7–8) speaks of Christ's life and, especially, his death in terms of the obedience and humiliation characteristic of slaves, and the second (vv. 9–11) speaks of his resurrection in terms of the status and deference accorded a master. 2.6 The expression in the form of God has puzzled interpreters: it may refer to Christ's divine nature or to his divine glory or status. In any event the expression contrasts with the form of a slave in v. 7. Exploited (lit. "seized," as in robbery) is likewise a problematic word, but it too has a contrast later in the hymn: what Christ could have seized is, by virtue of his humiliation, given him by God (v. 9). 2.7 The

- 9 Therefore God also highly exalted him and gave him the name
that is above every name, 10 so that at the name of Jesus
every knee should bend, to the glory of God the Father.

Shining as Lights in the World

12 Therefore, my beloved, just as you have always obeyed me, not only in my presence, but much more now in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; ¹³for it is God who is at work in you, enabling you both to will and to work for his good pleasure.

14 Do all things without murmuring and arguing, ¹⁵so that you may be blameless and innocent, children of God without blemish in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, in which you shine like stars in the world. ¹⁶It is by your holding fast to the word of life that I can boast on the day of Christ that I did not run in vain or labor in vain. ¹⁷But even if I am being poured out as a libation over the sacrifice and the offering of your faith, I am glad and rejoice with all of you — ¹⁸and in the same way you also must be glad and rejoice with me.

Timothy and Epaphroditus

19 I hope in the Lord Jesus to send Timothy to you soon, so that I may be cheered by news of you. ²⁰I have no one like him who will be genuinely concerned for your welfare. ²¹All of them are seeking their own interests, not those of Jesus Christ. ²²But Timothy's ⁱworth you know, how like a son with a father he has served with me in the work of the gospel. ²³I hope therefore to send him as soon as I see how things go with me; ²⁴and I trust in the Lord that I will also come soon.

²⁵Still, I think it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus—my brother and co-worker and fellow soldier, your messenger^k and minister to my need; ²⁶for he has been longing for^l all of you, and has been distressed because you heard that he was ill. ²⁷He was indeed so ill that he nearly died. But God had mercy on him, and not only on him but on me also, so that I would not have one sorrow after another. ²⁸I am the more eager to send form of a slave. See note on 2.6. 2.8 The phrase even death on a cross may be Paul's own addition; it reflects his emphasis on Christ crucified (1.29; 3.10, 18; see also 1 Cor 1.23; 2.2). Crucifixion was a cruel form of punishment reserved for slaves, brigands, and others of little or no status. 2.9 The name that is above every name is either Jesus (see v. 10) or, more likely, Lord, which denotes his status and power (see v. 11). 2.10 Every knee should bend was probably a liturgical signal for the whole congregation to bow down in recognition of Christ's status as Lord (v. 11). 2.11 The title Lord (lit. "master") for Christ is central to this Letter (see 1.2, 14; 2.19, 29; 3.8, 20; 4.1, 2, 4, 10, 23) and explains Paul's characterization of himself as a slave of Christ (see note on 1.1).

2.12–18 The previous hymn becomes a basis for Paul's further exhortations. 2.12 The obedience shown by Christ (v. 8) is now expected of the Philippians. 2.15 Crooked and perverse generation is from Deut 32.5. You shine like stars in the world has the same meaning as the more familiar "You are the light of the world" (Mt 5.14). 2.16 Run in vain, another athletic image (see note on 1.30), is also found in Gal 2.2. 2.17 Poured out as a libation is a vivid image from sacrificial ritual. The fire on an altar flared up suddenly when wine was poured on it after the god's portion of the victim had been offered (see also 4.18).

2.19–30 Paul announces, by way of digression, the visits of Timothy and Epaphroditus. 2.19 Timothy, named as co-sender (1.1), was well known to the Philippians (Acts 16.3, 12; 19.22). He was one of Paul's closest associates, which explains his being called Paul's son (v. 22; see also 1 Cor 4.17; 1 Thess 3.1–6). 2.23 How things go with me refers to the outcome of Paul's trial. 2.25 Epaphroditus is introduced lavishly with five terms—three in relation to Paul, two in relation to the Philippians (see also 4.18); he is unlikely to be the Epaphras (a shortened form of Epaphroditus) of Col 1.7; Philem 23. My brother is figurative. Fellow soldier, used also of Archippus (Philem 2), is also figurative and suggests the struggle and danger inherent in missionary work. 2.28 The tense of the verb translated send indicates that him, therefore, in order that you may rejoice at seeing him again, and that I may be less anxious. ²⁹ Welcome him then in the Lord with all joy, and honor such people, ³⁰ because he came close to death for the work of Christ,^m risking his life to make up for those services that you could not give me.

3 Finally, my brothers and sisters,ⁿ rejoice^o in the Lord.

Breaking with the Past

To write the same things to you is not troublesome to me, and for you it is a safeguard.

2 Beware of the dogs, beware of the evil workers, beware of those who mutilate the flesh!^p 3 For it is we who are the circumcision, who worship in the Spirit of God^q and boast in Christ Jesus and have no confidence in the flesh— 4 even though I, too, have reason for confidence in the flesh.

If anyone else has reason to be confident in the flesh, I have more: 5 circumcised on the eighth day, a member of the people of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew born of Hebrews; as to the law, a Pharisee; 6 as to zeal, a persecutor of the church; as to righteousness under the law, blameless.

7 Yet whatever gains I had, these I have come to regard as loss because of Christ. 8 More than that, I regard everything as loss because of the surpassing value of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord. For his sake I have suffered the loss of all things, and I regard them as rubbish, in order that I may gain Christ ⁹ and be found in him, not having a righteousness of my own that comes from the law, but one that comes through faith in Christ,^r the righteousness from God based on faith. ¹⁰ I want to know Christ^s and the power of his resurrection and the sharing of his sufferings by becoming like him in his death, ¹¹ if somehow I may attain the resurrection from the dead.

Pressing Toward the Goal

12 Not that I have already obtained this or have already reached the goal;^t but I press on to make it my own, because Christ Jesus has made me his own. 13 Beloved,^u I do not consider that I have made it my own;^v but this one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, 14 I press on toward the goal for the prize of the heavenly^w call of God in Christ Jesus. 15 Let those of us then who are mature be of the same mind; and if you think differently about anything, this too God will reveal to Epaphroditus, unlike Timothy, is leaving right away and in fact will carry the Letter. 3.1a The repetition of rejoice from 2.18 functions as a transition back to the argument of the Letter after the digression of 2.19–30.

3.1b–11 The tone of the Letter changes here as Paul warns the Philippians of persons and ideas that could endanger them. For a similarly strong contrast between Paul and rival missionaries, see 2 Cor 11.21–27. 3.2 Dogs is a term of reproach, commonly used by Jews of non-Jews (see Mk 7.27–28; Rev 22.15). Those who mutilate the flesh is a harsh rejection of literal circumcision of Christians; see also Gal 5.12. 3.3 The circumcision, now used only metaphorically, applies to Christians (see Rom 2.25–29; Eph 2.11). 3.5 For the custom of being circumcised on the eighth day, see Gen 17.12; 21.4; Lev 12.3. On Paul's descent from the tribe of Benjamin, see Rom 11.1. To judge from the distinction between Hebrews and Hellenists in Acts 6.1, Hebrew born of Hebrews is probably a claim to Paul's knowledge of Hebrew (see Acts 21.40; 22.2–3; Gal 1.14). On Paul as a Pharisee, see Acts 23.6; 26.5. 3.6 On Paul as a persecutor, see Acts 8.3; 9.1, 21; 22.4; 26.10–11; 1 Cor 15.9; Gal 1.13, 23. 3.8 Rubbish (lit. "garbage" or "human excrement") is a strong rejection of what Paul had earlier counted as dear. 3.9 Paul rejects a righteousness of my own that comes from the law—whether the individual righteousness of fulfilling the law or the corporate righteousness of being a member of the Jewish people—in favor of a righteousness that comes through faith in Christ (see 1.11; see also Rom 1–8; Gal 1–3). This verse concisely states Paul's differences with the missionaries endangering the Philippians. 3.12–4.1 Paul continues to differentiate himself from these rival missionaries and calls on the Philippians to remain united and to imitate him. 3.12 The word this is not in the Greek, but some object must be supplied from the context—resurrection (v. 11) or righteousness (v. 9). 3.13–14 On the athletic imagery of

you. ¹⁶Only let us hold fast to what we have attained.

¹⁷ Brothers and sisters,^x join in imitating me, and observe those who live according to the example you have in us. ¹⁸For many live as enemies of the cross of Christ; I have often told you of them, and now I tell you even with tears. ¹⁹Their end is destruction; their god is the belly; and their glory is in their shame; their minds are set on earthly things. ²⁰But our citizenship^y is in heaven, and it is from there that we are expecting a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ. ²¹He will transform the body of our humiliation^z that it may be conformed to the body of his glory,^a by the power that also enables him to make all things subject to himself.

4 ¹Therefore, my brothers and sisters,^b whom I love and long for, my joy and crown, stand firm in the Lord in this way, my beloved.

Exhortations

² I urge Euodia and I urge Syntyche to be of the same mind in the Lord. ³Yes, and I ask you also, my loyal companion,^c help these women, for they have struggled beside me in the work of the gospel, together with Clement and the rest of my co-workers, whose names are in the book of life.

⁴ Rejoice^d in the Lord always; again I will say, Rejoice.^d ⁵Let your gentleness be known to everyone. The Lord is near. ⁶Do not worry about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. ⁷And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

⁸ Finally, beloved,^e whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is pleasing, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence and if there is anything worthy of praise, think about^f these things. ⁹Keep on doing the things that you have learned and received and heard and seen in me, and the God of peace will be with you.

Acknowledgment of the Philippians' Gift

¹⁰ I rejoice^g in the Lord greatly that now at last you have revived your concern for me; indeed, you were concerned for me, but had no opportunity to show it.^h ¹¹Not that I am referring to being in need; for I have learned to be content with whatever I have. ¹²I know what it is to have little, and I know what it is to have plenty. In any and all circumstances I have learned the secret of being well-fed and of going hungry, of having plenty and of being in need. ¹³I can do all things through him who strengthens me. ¹⁴In any case, it was kind of you to share my distress.

¹⁵ You Philippians indeed know that in the early days of the gospel, when I left Macedonia, no church shared with me in the matter of giving and receiving, except you alone. ¹⁶For even when I was in Thessalonica, you sent me help for my these verses, see note on 1.30. 3.17 On Paul's churches imitating him, see 1 Cor 4.16; 11.1; 1 Thess 1.6. 3.20 Citizenship . . . in heaven is a political term; see also note on 1.27. 4.2-9 Specific and general exhortations. 4.2 Paul's earlier exhortation to the Philippians to be in agreement (2.2) is now directed specifically to two women, Euodia and Syntyche. Many women, usually in leadership positions, are mentioned by name in Paul's Letters (see Rom 16.1-15; 1 Cor 1.11; 16.19; Philem 2). 4.3 Companion (Greek syzygos). The Greek word may be a proper name (see text note c); if not, the referent is unknown. Various persons have been suggested: Timothy, Epaphroditus, Silas, and Luke. On the OT expression book of life, see Ex 32.32; Ps 69.28; Dan 12.1. 4.4 The repetition of rejoice recalls the thematic importance of joy throughout the Letter (see note on 1.4).

4.10-20 Paul has already referred briefly to the gift he has received from the Philippians (1.5; 2.25). Now he offers his full and formal thanks, but expressions of gratitude alternate with those emphasizing his independence. 4.11 Learning to be content, i.e., satisfied with whatever one's circumstances are, is one of the most Stoic-sounding expressions in Paul's Letters. 4.12 The phrase learned the secret (lit. "have been initiated") reflects the language of religious initiation into mystery cults with their secret rites and revelations. 4.16 On Paul in Thessalonica, needs more than once. ¹⁷Not that I seek the gift, but I seek the profit that accumulates to your account. ¹⁸I have been paid in full and have more than enough; I am fully satisfied, now that I have received from Epaphroditus the gifts you sent, a fragrant offering, a sacrifice acceptable and pleasing to God. ¹⁹And my God will fully satisfy every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus. ²⁰To our God and Father be glory forever and ever. Amen.

ⁱ Gk brothers ^j Other ancient authorities add Amen

see Acts 17.1–9; 1 Thess 2.1–12. 4.17 Not that I seek the gift captures Paul's desire to be as independent as possible, e.g., through his trade of tent-making (Acts 18.3; 1 Cor 4.12; 2 Cor 11.7–11; 12.14–15). 4.18 I have been paid in full is a commercial expression used in receipts. On Epaphroditus, see note on 2.25. A fragrant offering, a sacrifice acceptable and pleasing to God is language from sacrificial ritual; Paul speaks as though he were the priest reporting on the efficacy of the Philippians' sacrifice-gift (see also Rom 12.1; 2 Cor 2.15–16). 4.21–23 Brief greetings conclude the Letter. 4.22 The phrase the emperor's household has been seen as evidence that Paul's imprisonment was in Rome. But that household included more than simply the emperor and his family; in fact, it embraced any number of slaves, freedmen, and soldiers who served the emperor in Rome or in the provinces. Accordingly, this phrase says less about the place of Paul's imprisonment than about the ties some of the Philippians had to Rome and its administrative apparatus, due to Philippi's status as a Roman colony (see Introduction).

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE COLOSSIANS

Authorship, Style, Language

COLOSSIANS, which purports to be a letter from Paul, was written to deal with controversy that had developed in a gentile congregation (2.13) established not by Paul but probably by Epaphras (1.7–8; 2.1). Challenges to Pauline authorship of Colossians abound, for substantial reasons. Colossians makes claims that are not supported by the unquestionably authentic Letters (Romans, 1 and 2 Corinthians, Galatians, Philippians, 1 Thessalonians, and Philemon). Colossians asserts, e.g., that believers already share Christ's resurrection (2.12–13; 3.1), while Paul scrupulously affirms that believers have died with Christ but have not yet been raised with him. Colossians states that Christ is the head of the church, his body, while Paul never extends the metaphor in that fashion (cf. Rom 12.4–5; 1 Cor 12.12–27). Colossians also says that through Christ there is "forgiveness of sins" (1.14; 2.13; 3.13), whereas Paul writes of freedom from sin, defined in the singular and as a power. And Colossians, like Ephesians, but unlike the undisputed Pauline Letters, is composed of long, complex sentences that the NRSV breaks into shorter segments for clarity.

The Letter's strongest literary ties are with Ephesians, with which it shares various expressions (e.g., "fullness of God," Col 1.19; 2.9; Eph 1.23; 3.19), concepts (e.g., Christ's authority over rival powers, Col 2.10; Eph 1.21–22), and tables of household admonitions (Col 3.18–4.1; Eph 5.21–6.9). Colossians has affinities with other documents of the late first century C.E. as well, sharing with them such concepts as the idea of Christ as the beginning or origin of creation (1.16, 18; see Heb 1.10; Rev 3.14), seated alongside God (3.1; see Acts 2.33–34; Heb 1.3, 13; 8.1; 10.12; 12.2; Rev 3.21), and the contrast between shadow and reality (2.17; see Heb 8.5; 10.1).

The Controversy

At the heart of Colossians is a Christological dispute over whether what has already been accomplished in Christ has actually liberated the believers from the powers of the universe and given them proper access to God. The opponents, whose position the author scornfully portrays as deceitful “philosophy” (2.8), seem to be urging asceticism, observance of special holy times, and worship of celestial powers as means of gaining wisdom and access to God.

By appealing to tradition (chiefly the Christ hymn of 1.15–20) and to the readers’ clear experience of a new, full life in Christ, the author disputes the need for requirements beyond the “Christ in you” (1.27) that they already know. The author calls on the readers to show endurance and steadfastness while they live in a fashion appropriate to what they have already received. The Letter details the comportment appropriate to their status in Christ.

The Christ hymn is the bulwark of the Letter. Whether the opponents also used it to their ends is not clear. It is used to buttress several of the author’s claims: Christ’s close relationship to God (1.15, 19; 2.9); Christ’s role in creating all things, including the celestial powers (1.16; 3.10); Christ’s authority over the body (1.18; 2.19); and Christ’s role in God’s reconciling work (1.20; 3.11).

The Letter’s recurrent wisdom terminology (1.9–10, 28; 2.2–3, 23; 3.10, 16; 4.5) reflects the dispute at its center. The author clings closely to tradition as an authority and to Christ as the means of access to wisdom, while the opponents, borrowing from various religious currents of the time, feature visions and special relationship to angels as the avenue to wisdom. While Paul was alive, he combined both tradition and visions (see 1 Cor 15.3–11; 2 Cor 12.1–5); the Pauline school, as represented in Colossians, has featured the former, not the latter.

Date and Place of Writing

The date and place of writing cannot be determined with certainty. Paul is portrayed as imprisoned (4.3, 10, 18; cf. Phil 1.12–14; Philem 1, 13, 23), but, as this document is probably by a follower writing after Paul’s death, some date after the mid-60s C.E. must be supposed. In any case, Colossians was written at a post-Pauline time when women’s roles were diminished (3.18; see also note on 3.11) and when relationships within the household were once again accommodated to the wider culture (3.18–4.1). *J. Salutation

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother,

2 To the saints and faithful brothers and sisters^a in Christ in Colossae:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father.

Paul Thanks God for the Colossians

3 In our prayers for you we always thank God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, 4for we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love that you have for all the saints, 5because of the hope laid up for you in heaven. You have heard of this hope before in the word of the truth, the gospel 6that has come to you. Just as it is bearing fruit and growing in the whole world, so it has been bearing fruit among yourselves from the day you heard it and truly comprehended the grace of God. 7This you learned from Epaphras, our beloved fellow servant.^b He is a faithful minister of Christ on your^c behalf, 8and he has made known to us your love in the Spirit.

9 For this reason, since the day we heard it, we have not ceased praying for you and asking that you may be filled with the knowledge of God's^d will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding, 10so that you may lead lives worthy of the Lord, fully pleasing to him, as you bear fruit in every good work and as you grow in the knowledge of God. 11May you be made strong with all the strength that comes from his glorious power, and may you be prepared to endure everything with patience, while joyfully 12giving thanks to the Father, who has enabled^e you^f to share in the inheritance of the saints in the light. 13He has rescued us from the power of darkness and transferred us into the kingdom of his beloved Son, 14in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins.^g

1.1–2 These verses formally resemble most Pauline Letter openings. 1.1 For Paul's self-designation as an apostle, see 2 Cor 1.1; Gal 1.1; Eph 1.1. 1.2 Saints (lit. "holy ones;" see also 1.22; 3.12) are all the believers, who have been set apart for God and destined for an inheritance (1.12). The designation of God as Father (see 1.12; 3.17) is consistent with the importance of the household in this Letter (see 3.18–4.1). 1.3–14 The thanksgiving, a feature of most Pauline Letters. 1.4–5 For the triad of faith, love, and hope, see 1 Cor 13.13; 1 Thess 1.3; 5.8. 1.4 See Eph 1.15. 1.5 Colossians emphasizes spatial concepts like heaven (see also 1.16, 20; 3.2, 5) instead of temporal ones like the day of Jesus Christ (Phil 1.6). 1.6 On bearing fruit (see also Mt 7.16–20; Rom 7.4–5) and growing, see 1.10; 2.19. 1.7 Epaphras was probably the founder of this church; see 4.12; Philem 23. 1.9 On being filled and coming to fullness (see also 1.19, 25; 2.9–10), there is ambivalence: the believers have come to fullness in Christ (2.10), yet here the author prays that they may be filled with proper wisdom. 1.10 Lead lives worthy. See also 2.6; 3.7–17; 4.5. 1.11 His glorious power, lit. "the power of his glory." Cf. the rival power in 1.13. 1.12 Light and darkness are ancient scriptural categories (Gen 1.4; Isa 42.16; Lam 3.2) that in the NT and the Dead Sea Scrolls designate opposing apocalyptic forces (1.13; 2 Cor 6.14; Eph 5.8; 1 Thess 5.5). 1.13 The power of darkness, the evil forces that bid to control the universe and worldly affairs, but whose ultimate defeat lies in the crucifixion (2.15, 20). On the kingdom of his . . . Son, cf. 4.11; 1 Cor 15.24. 1.14 Redemption, the buying back of a slave or the freeing of a prisoner by ransom. See Rom 3.24; Eph 1.7, 14; 4.30. On forgiveness of sins, see 2.13; 3.13; Eph 1.7. In the undisputed Letters, Paul views sin as an enslaving power, not a misdeed (see Rom 5.12; Gal 3.22).

1.15–23 A hymn about Christ, followed by the author's application. The hymn (vv. 15–20), notes of which resound in later parts of the Letter, is the cornerstone of the author's argument. 1.15 On Christ as the image of God, see 2 Cor 3.18; 4.4; see also Phil 2.6; Heb 1.3. Describing God as invisible (see Jn 1.18; 1 Tim 1.17; Heb 11.27) was common in Hellenistic writings. Firstborn of all creation. See also Rom 8.29; Rev 3.14. Similar claims are made about Wisdom; see Prov 8.22–26; Sir 24.9. 1.16 The claim regarding Christ's active role in creation (see also Rom 11.36; 1 Cor 8.6; Heb. 1.2) corresponds to claims made about Wisdom (Prov 8.27–30) and about the Word (Jn 1.1–3). Thrones . . . powers may refer to earthly or cosmic powers or both; see also 2.10;

in^h him all things in heaven and on earth were created, things visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or powers—all things have been created through him and for him. ¹⁷He himself is before all things, and in^h him all things hold together. ¹⁸He is the head of the body, the church; he is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, so that he might come to have first place in everything. ¹⁹For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, ²⁰and through him God was pleased to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, by making peace through the blood of his cross.

²¹ And you who were once estranged and hostile in mind, doing evil deeds, ²²he has now reconciledⁱ in his fleshly body^j through death, so as to present you holy and blameless and irreproachable before him— ²³provided that you continue securely established and steadfast in the faith, without shifting from the hope promised by the gospel that you heard, which has been proclaimed to every creature under heaven. I, Paul, became a servant of this gospel.

Paul's Interest in the Colossians

²⁴ I am now rejoicing in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh I am completing what is lacking in Christ's afflictions for the sake of his body, that is, the church. ²⁵I became its servant according to God's commission that was given to me for you, to make the word of God fully known, ²⁶the mystery that has been hidden throughout the ages and generations but has now been revealed to his saints. ²⁷To them God chose to make known how great among the Gentiles are the riches of the glory of this mystery, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory. ²⁸It is he whom we proclaim, warning everyone and teaching everyone in all wisdom, so that we may present everyone mature in

Rom 8.38; 1 Cor 15.24; Eph 1.21; cf. Rev 2.13. 1.18 On Christ as head of the body, the church, see 2.19; Eph 1.22–23. This precise image appears nowhere in the unquestionably authentic Pauline Letters (cf. Rom 12.5; 1 Cor 12.12). Firstborn from the dead, a reference to the resurrection. See Rev 1.5; cf. Rom 8.29; 1 Cor 15.20, 23. 1.19 The fullness of God that dwells in Christ (reaffirmed in 2.9; see also Eph 1.23; 4.10; cf. Jn 1.16) is available in him for all believers (see 2.10). 1.20 On Christ as the means of reconciliation, see 2 Cor 5.19; Eph 2.13–22. 1.22 Present, a technical term for bringing a sacrifice to an altar (see Rom 12.1) or an accused person before a judge (see 1.28).

1.24–2.5 These verses establish Paul's trustworthiness and commitment to Christ and to the Colossians. 1.24 On rejoicing in . . . sufferings, see Rom 5.2–5; 2 Cor 6.9–10; Phil 1.12–18. Completing . . . Christ's afflictions. Believers' hardships and sufferings are seen as extensions of Christ's crucifixion; cf. 2 Cor 1.5. 1.27 Mystery, which is Christ in you (see note on 2.2) refers to Christ's presence in the church (see Rom 8.10; 2 Cor 13.5; Gal 4.19; in each case "you" is plural). 2 For I want you to know how much I am struggling for you, and for those in Laodicea, and for all who have not seen me face to face. ²I want their hearts to be encouraged and united in love, so that they may have all the riches of assured understanding and have the knowledge of God's mystery, that is, Christ himself,^k ³in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. ⁴I am saying this so that no one may deceive you with plausible arguments. ⁵For though I am absent in body, yet I am with you in spirit, and I rejoice to see your morale and the firmness of your faith in Christ.

Fullness of Life in Christ

6 As you therefore have received Christ Jesus the Lord, continue to live your lives^l in him, ⁷rooted and built up in him and established in the faith, just as you were taught, abounding in thanksgiving.

8 See to it that no one takes you captive through philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition, according to the elemental spirits of the universe,^m and not according to Christ.

the basis for the hope of glory in the future (see also Rom 5.2; 8.18). 1.28 Warning anticipates the author's treatment of the opponents in 2.4–23. Mature, i.e., complete, unshakable. See 4.12; Eph 4.13–14. 2.1 The church at Colossae seems to have had strong ties with Laodicea, ten miles west; see 4.13–16. 2.2 United. The same Greek term is translated held together in 2.19. Here Christ himself is the content of the mystery; in 1.27 it is Christ in you. 2.4 The emphasis on wisdom and knowledge in vv. 2–3 suggests that the false but plausible arguments of the opponents have these as their goal as well. See 2.8; see also 1 Cor 1.18–2.5. 2.5 Morale, lit. "(good) order." See 1 Cor 14.40. 2.6–19 The proper grounding in Christ and the opponents' empty demands. 2.8 Philosophy and empty deceit (see 2.4) is used to describe false teaching based on human tradition and on the erroneous assumption that power resides in the elemental spirits of the universe. This last phrase refers to the widespread Greco-Roman notion that the universe is composed of celestial powers that rule life; see 1.13, 16; 2.20; Gal 4.3. 2.9 On fullness of deity, see note on 1.19. 2.10 You have come to fullness in him, an emphatic identification of believers with Christ and therefore with his do-

⁹For in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily, ¹⁰and you have come to fullness in him, who is the head of every ruler and authority. ¹¹In him also you were circumcised with a spiritual circumcision,ⁿ by putting off the body of the flesh in the circumcision of Christ; ¹²when you were buried with him in baptism, you were also raised with him through faith in the power of God, who raised him from the dead. ¹³And when you were dead in trespasses and the uncircumcision of your flesh, God^o made you^p alive together with him, when he forgave us all our trespasses, ¹⁴erasing the record that stood against us with its legal demands. He set this aside, nailing it to the cross. ¹⁵He disarmed^q the rulers and authorities and made a public example of them, triumphing over them in it.

16 Therefore do not let anyone condemn you in matters of food and drink or of observing festivals, new moons, or sabbaths. ¹⁷These are only a shadow of what is to come, but the substance belongs to Christ. ¹⁸Do not let anyone disqualify you, insisting on self-abasement and wor-

Rom 2.28–29; Phil 3.3). At baptism (see v. 12), new believers put off their old garments and afterwards were clothed in new ones; see also 3.9–10; Eph 4.22–24. 2.12 On baptism as burial, see Rom 6.3–5. Nowhere in the undisputed Pauline Letters are believers described as already raised. See 3.1; Eph 2.6; cf. Warnings Against False Teachers

20 If with Christ you died to the elemental spirits of the universe,^u why do you live as if you still belonged to the world? Why do you submit to regulations, 21 “Do not handle, Do not taste, Do not touch”? 22 All these regulations refer to things that perish with use; they are simply human commands and teachings. 23 These have indeed an appearance of wisdom in promoting self-imposed piety, humility, and severe treatment of the body, but they are of no value in checking self-indulgence.^v

3 So if you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. 2 Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth, 3 for you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. 4 When Christ who is your^w life is revealed, then you also will be revealed with him in glory.

5 Put to death, therefore, whatever in you is earthly: fornication, impurity, passion, evil desire, and greed (which is idolatry). 6 On account of these the wrath of God is coming on those who are disobedient.^x 7 These are the ways you also once followed, when you were living that life.^y 8 But now you must get rid of all such things—anger, wrath, malice, slander, and abusive^z language from your mouth. 9 Do not lie to one another, seeing that you have stripped off the old self with its practices 10 and have clothed yourselves with the new self, which is being renewed in knowledge according to the image of its creator. 11 In that renewal^a there is no longer Greek and Jew, circumcised and uncircumcised, barbarian, Scythian, slave and free; but Christ is all and in all!

12 As God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, clothe yourselves with compassion, kindness, humility, meekness, and patience. 13 Bear with one another and, if anyone has a complaint against another, forgive each other; just as the Lord^b has forgiven you, so you also must forgive. 14 Above all, clothe yourselves with love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony. 15 And let the peace of you of your prize (cf. condemn you in 2.16). Beyond a relationship to Christ, the opponents require self-abasement, i.e., through ascetic practices (see 2.21, 23), and the worship of angels, which suggests either that angels could perform an intermediary function beyond what Christ offered, or that self-mortification could grant access to worship with the angels. Dwelling on visions is a difficult phrase; it could also be translated “the things seen when one entered [heaven? a place of oracles?]”. Human way of thinking, an ironic put-down of the opponents' claims. 2.19 Head, a reference, through 2.10, to the Christ hymn (see 1.18). And be thankful. ¹⁶Let the word of Christ^c dwell in you richly; teach and admonish one another in all wisdom; and with gratitude in your hearts sing psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs to God.^d ¹⁷And whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him.

Rules for Christian Households

18 Wives, be subject to your husbands, as is fitting in the Lord. ¹⁹Husbands, love your wives and never treat them harshly.

20 Children, obey your parents in everything, for this is your acceptable duty in the Lord. ²¹Fathers, do not provoke your children, or they may lose heart. ²²Slaves, obey your earthly masters^e in everything, not only while being watched and in order to please them, but wholeheartedly, fearing the Lord.^e ²³Whatever your task, put yourselves into it, as done for the Lord and not for your masters,^f ²⁴since you know that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward; you serve the Lord Christ. ²⁵For the wrongdoer will be paid back for whatever wrong has been done, and there is no 4 partiality. ¹Masters, treat your slaves justly and fairly, for you know that you also have a Master in heaven.

Further Instructions

2 Devote yourselves to prayer, keeping alert in it with thanksgiving. ³At the same time pray for us as well that God will open to us a door for the word, that we may declare the mystery of Christ, for which I am in prison, ⁴so that I may reveal it clearly, as I should.

5 Conduct yourselves wisely toward outsiders, making the most of the time.^h ⁶Let your speech always be gracious, seasoned with salt, so that you may know how you ought to answer everyone.

Final Greetings and Benediction

7 Tychicus will tell you all the news about me; he is a beloved brother, a faithful minister, and a fellow servantⁱ in the Lord. ⁸I have sent him to you for this very purpose, so that you may know how we are,^j and that he may encourage your hearts; ⁹he is coming with Onesimus, the faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They will tell you about everything here.

10 Aristarchus my fellow prisoner greets you, as does Mark the cousin of Barnabas, concerning whom you have received instructions—if he comes to you, welcome him. ¹¹And Jesus who is called Justus greets you. THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS

Addressees

PAUL WROTE 1 THESSALONIANS, the oldest book in the NT, to the church in Thessalonica, a port located on the northern shore of the Aegean Sea. This city was the capital of the Roman province of Macedonia and was devoted to the imperial cult of Rome, but culturally it remained a Greek city governed by Greek law. Its location on the Via Egnatia, which ran from Byzantium to the Adriatic Sea, ensured commercial prosperity.

Circumstances of the Letter

After a bad experience in Philippi (2.2; Acts 16.11–40), Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy came to Thessalonica. Soon after they founded a church there, intense opposition from the Jewish community forced them to leave (Acts 17.1–10). They went on to Beroea, where Silvanus (called “Silas” in Acts) and Timothy stayed while Paul journeyed on to Athens (Acts 17.10–15). When Timothy joined Paul in Athens, Paul immediately sent him back to Thessalonica for information about the church (3.1–2) and then went on to Corinth, where Timothy and Silvanus met him later (Acts 18.1–5). Timothy reported favorably about the life of the community (3.6–7) but also, it seems, brought news of anxiety over Paul’s failure to return.

Timothy’s report stimulated Paul to write 1 Thessalonians from Corinth about 51 C.E. In the Letter Paul responds to the Thessalonians’ anxiety by reviewing his initial reception there (1.2–10) and his ongoing concern for the church (2.1–3.13). He reinforces his original teaching by describing how Christians should live in the face of the imminent return of Jesus the Lord (4.1–5.11) and how they should strengthen one another in their life together (5.12–22).

Authenticity and Integrity

Although no scholar doubts that Paul wrote 1 Thessalonians, a few argue that it contains fragments from two or three letters. Many regard 2.14–16 as a later insertion because of its severe language about Jewish persecution of Christians in Judea. Scholars defending Paul's authorship of these verses argue that they reflect the tense situation described in Acts 17.5–13. If Paul wrote these verses, however, he later modified his position (see Rom 9.3–5; 11.17–31).

Stylistic Features and Significance

The letter is pastoral, warm in tone, and affectionate throughout. The praise in 1.6–8 is unequaled in Paul's other Letters. Aware of the Thessalonians' Greek culture, Paul draws on language from Greek philosophy to discuss issues treated by many Greek writers: marriage, community life, engagement in civil life.

Because the Thessalonian converts were not Jewish, Paul does not refer explicitly (except in 2.14–16) to Judaism, to problems affecting Jewish Christians (e.g., the Mosaic law), or to any OT person, institution, or event (e.g., Abraham, Moses, the temple, or sacrifice). He also does not quote the OT, though it often lies behind his language or thought, for Paul's Jewish heritage shaped him decisively.

1 Thessalonians gives us our earliest insight into Paul's missionary activity and continuing concern for his congregations. It reveals problems early Christians faced living in Greek society and lets us see the inner life of the early church.

Edgar M. Krentz

The first Christian groups established by Paul in Europe were at Philippi and Thessalonica. From there he traveled south through Beroea (Acts 17.10–15) to Athens (1 Thess 2.2–3.1) and finally to Corinth.

Salutation

1 Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy,
To the church of the Thessalonians in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:

Grace to you and peace.

The Thessalonians' Reception of Paul's Gospel

2 We always give thanks to God for all of you and mention you in our prayers, constantly ³remembering before our God and Father your work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁴For we know, brothers and sisters^a beloved by God, that he has chosen you, ⁵because our message of the gospel came to you not in word only, but also in power and in the Holy Spirit and with full conviction; just as you know what kind of persons we proved to be among you for your sake. ⁶And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, for in spite of persecution you received the word with joy inspired by the Holy Spirit, ⁷so that you became an example to all the believers in Macedonia and in Achaia. ⁸For the word of the Lord has sounded forth from you not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith in God has become known, so that we have no need to speak about it. ⁹For the people of those regions^b report about us what kind of welcome we had among you, and how you turned to God from idols, to serve a living and true God, ¹⁰and to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead—Jesus, who rescues us from the wrath that is coming.

Paul's Way of Life in Thessalonica

2 You yourselves know, brothers and sisters,^a that our coming to you was not in vain, ²but though we had already suffered and been shamefully mistreated at Philippi, as you know, we had courage in our God to declare to you the gospel of God in spite of great opposition. ³For our appeal does not spring from deceit or impure motives or trickery, ⁴but just as we have been approved by God to be entrusted with the message of the gospel,

1.1 Typical ancient letter opening with Christian modifications (see Rom 1.1–7). Formally there are three senders; Paul, however, is the writer, as 3.1 makes clear. Silvanus ("Silas" in Acts) and Timothy were trusted co-workers (see Acts 16.1–18.5; 2 Cor 1.19).

1.2–3.13 The first major section describes Paul's ongoing concern for the Thessalonians. 1.2–10 The Thessalonians' reception of Paul's preaching was ratified by what it produced: their experience of the Spirit and their own joyful proclamation. 1.2–3 Ancient letters often begin with a prayer for the readers' well-being; Paul begins with thanks for the Thessalonians' present activity (see, e.g., Rom 1.8). 1.3 Faith, hope, and love occur together here for the first time in Paul's Letters; see also 5.8; Rom 5.1–5; 1 Cor 13.13; Gal 5.5–6. 1.4 Chosen implies a special relationship with God, like Israel's (see, e.g., Isa 41.8–10). 1.5 Our message of the gospel is not Paul's own creation but God's effective word that produces faith. Word is a philosophical term implying rational account and explanation; see also 1.6, 8; 2.5; 4.18. To contrast speech and action was an ancient Greek philosophical convention. Power, the Holy Spirit (see also 1.6; 4.8; 5.19), and full conviction stress the effect on the Thessalonians of Paul's preaching. 1.6 Paul often uses himself (1 Cor 4.16; 11.1), other Christians (1 Thess 2.14), and the Lord (1 Cor 11.1) as models for imitation. Persecution marked the founding of this church; see 2.2, 14–16; 3.3–4. 1.7 Macedonia (where Thessalonica lies) is northern mainland Greece; Achaia (where Corinth, from which Paul is writing, lies) is southern Greece. 1.8 Sounded forth stresses the Thessalonians' witnessing activity. 1.9–10 A terse summary of Paul's initial preaching to non-Jews; see also 1 Cor 8.6; 10.14. 1.9 Idols. See also 1 Cor 8.4–13; 10.14–22. 1.10 Wrath that is coming from God (see also 2.16; 5.9), a feature of OT expectation (Isa 13.9; cf. Isa 2.10–22), here refers to the final day of judgment; see also Rom 2.5, 8; 3.5; 5.9; 9.22.

2.1–16 Paul's fidelity to the gospel and concern for the Thessalonians determined his actions while in Thessalonica. 2.1 You yourselves know, a tactful invitation to recall Paul's ministry. See also 1.5; 2.2, 5, 11; 3.4; 4.2. 2.2 On events in Philippi, see Acts 16.11–40. The gospel of God means a revelation about God (see 1.9). 2.3–8 Using the language of philosophers of his day (v. 3: deceit, impure motives, trickery; v. 5: words of flattery, pretext for greed; v. 6: praise from mortals), Paul presents himself as an ideal philosopher whose way of life refutes the idea that he acted out of greed. 2.3 Appeal, a philosophical term for moral exhortation such as that found in 4.1–5.22. 2.4 To please God is Paul's fundamental moral criterion even so we speak, not to please mortals, but to please God who tests our hearts. ⁵As you know and as God is our witness, we never came with words of flattery or with a pretext for greed; ⁶nor did we seek praise from mortals, whether from you or from others, ⁷though we might have made demands as apostles of Christ. But we were gentle^c among you, like a nurse tenderly caring for her own children. ⁸So deeply do we care for you that we are determined to share with you not only the gospel of God but also our own selves, because you have become very dear to us.

⁹ You remember our labor and toil, brothers and sisters;^d we worked night and day, so that we might not burden any of you while we proclaimed to you the gospel of God. ¹⁰You are witnesses, and God also, how pure, upright, and blameless our conduct was toward you believers. ¹¹As you know, we dealt with each one of you like a father with his children, ¹²urging and encouraging you and pleading that you lead a life worthy of God, who calls you into his own kingdom and glory.

¹³ We also constantly give thanks to God for this, that when you received the word of God that you heard from us, you accepted it not as a human word but as what it really is, God's word, which is also at work in you believers. ¹⁴For you, brothers and sisters,^d became imitators of the churches of God in Christ Jesus that are in Judea, for you suffered the same things from your own compatriots as they did from the Jews, ¹⁵who killed both the Lord Jesus and the prophets,^e and drove us out; they displease God and oppose everyone ¹⁶by hindering us from speaking to the Gentiles so that they may be saved. Thus they have constantly been filling up the measure of their sins; but God's wrath has overtaken them at last.^f

Paul's Concern for the Thessalonians while Absent

¹⁷ As for us, brothers and sisters,^d when, for a short time, we were made orphans by being separated from you—in person, not in heart—we longed with great eagerness to see you face to face. ¹⁸For we wanted to come to you—certainly I, Paul, wanted to again and again—but Satan blocked our way. ¹⁹For what is our hope or joy or crown of boasting before our Lord Jesus at his coming? Is it not you? ²⁰Yes, you are our glory and joy!

3 Therefore when we could bear it no longer, we decided to be left alone in Athens; ²and we sent Timothy, our brother and co-worker for God in proclaiming^g the gospel of Christ, to strengthen and encourage you for the sake of your faith, ³so that no one would be shaken by these persecutions. Indeed, you yourselves know that this is what we are destined for. ⁴In fact, when we were with you, we told you beforehand that we were to suffer persecution; so it turned out, as you know. ⁵For this reason, when I could bear it no longer, I sent to find out about your faith; I was afraid that somehow the tempter had tempted you and that our labor had been in vain.

(see 4.1). 2.7 The only explicit reference to Paul's apostleship in the Letter. Gentle . . . like a nurse. 2.17–3.5 Paul expresses his concern for the Thessalonians while absent from them. 2.18 Paul interprets his frustrated attempts to visit Thessalonica as part of the apocalyptic struggle between God and Satan; see also Rom 16.20; 2 Cor 2.11; 11.14; 12.7. 2.19 Crown of boasting. news of your faith and love. He has told us also that you always remember us kindly and long to see us—just as we long to see you. ⁷For this reason, brothers and sisters,^h during all our distress and persecution we have been encouraged about you through your faith. ⁸For we now live, if you continue to stand firm in the Lord. ⁹How can we thank God enough for you in return for all the joy that we feel before our God because of you? ¹⁰Night and day we pray most earnestly that we may see you face to face and restore whatever is lacking in your faith.

¹¹ Now may our God and Father himself and our Lord Jesus direct our way to you. ¹²And may the Lord make you increase and abound in love for one another and for all, just as we abound in love for you. ¹³And may he so strengthen your hearts in holiness that you may be blameless before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his saints.

A Life Pleasing to God: Practice Good Public Morality

4 Finally, brothers and sisters,^h we ask and urge you in the Lord Jesus that, as you learned from us how you ought to live and to please God (as, in fact, you are doing), you should do so more and more. ²For you know what instructions we gave you through the Lord Jesus. ³For this is the will of God, your sanctification: that you abstain from fornication; ⁴that each one of you know how to control your own bodyⁱ in holiness and honor, ⁵not with lustful passion, like the Gentiles who do not know God; ⁶that no one wrong or exploit a brother or sister^j in this matter, because the Lord is an avenger in all these things, just as we have already told you beforehand and solemnly warned you. ⁷For God did not call us to impurity but in holiness. ⁸Therefore whoever rejects this rejects not human authority but God, who also gives his Holy Spirit to you.

⁹ Now concerning love of the brothers and sisters,^h you do not need to have anyone write to you, for you yourselves have been taught by God to love one another; ¹⁰and indeed you do love all the brothers and sisters^h throughout Macedonia. But we urge you, beloved,^h to do so more and more, ¹¹to aspire to live quietly, to mind your own affairs, and to work with your hands, as we directed you, ¹²so that you may behave properly toward outsiders and be dependent on no one.

faith and love, see 1.3; Paul reinforces hope in 4.13–18. 3.10 Whatever is lacking in your faith does not imply a rebuke (see 1.8) but refers to the teaching given in 4.1–5.22. 3.11–13 Paul's prayer, answered by later visits (1 Cor 16.5; 2 Cor 2.13; 7.5), repeats motifs found in 1.3–4. 3.13 Saints (lit. "holy ones"), an OT title for God's people (see Ex 19.6; Dan 7.18; Psalms of Solomon 17.26), here refers to Christians.

4.1–5.24 In the second major section of the Letter, Paul gives practical instructions about Christian life. 4.1–12 Marriage, human relationships, and civic life—topics often discussed by philosophers—were significant for Christian life in a Greek city. 4.1–2 General introduction to 4.1–5.24. 4.1 Finally, better translated "therefore," marks the transition to 4.1–5.24. Urge, or encourage (Greek parakalō), a technical term of ancient ethics, is also found in 2.12; 3.2; 4.10; 5.11, 14. 4.3 Reference to the will of God anticipates the strong theological emphasis in 4.6–8. Greco-Roman sexual laxity scandalized Jews (see 4.5), so Paul often warns against fornication (see 1 Cor 5.1;

6.13, 18; Gal 5.19). 4.4 How to control your own body (see 1 Cor 7.2). How to take a wife for himself (text note i; lit. "how to possess a vessel or implement") is preferable. Both translations are possible, but Paul is discussing relationships here. Holiness and honor. Paul evaluates marital sex positively (see also 1 Cor 7.3–6). 4.6 On wrongdoing . . . a brother or sister, see Rom 14.13–23; 1 Cor 8.9–13. Paul describes God as an avenger, an OT motif (Ps 94.1), to stress the eschatological significance of what he teaches; see also 1.10; Rom 2.16; 12.19. 4.9 Love of the brothers and sisters (Greek philadelphia) was a virtue in Epicurean philosophy; Paul uses the term only once more (Rom 12.10). Taught by God, a common Stoic idea. The term is not found elsewhere in the NT. 4.11 Aspire to live quietly corresponds to the Epicurean maxim "Escape notice as you live." Mind your own affairs expresses an Epicurean attitude that excluded participation in civic affairs. Work with your hands emphasizes self-sufficiency, a major Stoic goal (see 2.9).

4.13–18 Paul describes Jesus' return in lan-

those who have died,^k so that you may not grieve as others do who have no hope. ¹⁴For since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, through Jesus, God will bring with him those who have died.^k ¹⁵For this we declare to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, who are left until the coming of the Lord, will by no means precede those who have died.^k ¹⁶For the Lord himself, with a cry of command, with the archangel's call and with the sound of God's trumpet, will descend from heaven, and the dead in Christ will rise first. ¹⁷Then we who are alive, who are left, will be caught up in the clouds together with them to meet the Lord in the air; and so we will be with the Lord forever. ¹⁸Therefore encourage one another with these words.

5 Now concerning the times and the seasons, brothers and sisters,^l you do not need to have anything written to you. ²For you yourselves know very well that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night. ³When they say, "There is peace and security," then sudden destruction will come upon them, as labor pains come upon a pregnant woman, and there will be no escape! ⁴But you, beloved,^l are not in darkness, for that day to surprise you like a thief; ⁵for you are all children of light and children of the day; we are not of the night or of darkness. ⁶So then let us not fall asleep as others do, but let us keep awake and be sober; ⁷for those who sleep sleep at night, and those who are drunk get drunk at night. ⁸But since we belong to the day, let us be sober, and put on the breastplate of faith and love, and for a helmet the hope of salvation. ⁹For God has destined us not for wrath but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, ¹⁰who died for us, so that whether we are awake or asleep we may live with him. ¹¹Therefore encourage one another and build up each other, as indeed you are doing.

Life in Christian Community, Greetings, and Benediction

¹² But we appeal to you, brothers and sisters,^l to respect those who labor among you, and have charge of you in the Lord and admonish you; ¹³esteem them very highly in love because of their work. Be at peace among yourselves. ¹⁴And we urge you, beloved,^l to admonish the idlers, encourage the fainthearted, help the weak, be patient with all of them. ¹⁵See that none of you repays evil for evil, but always seek to do good to one another and to all. ¹⁶Rejoice always, ¹⁷pray without ceasing, ¹⁸give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you. ¹⁹Do not quench the Spirit. ²⁰Do not despise the words of prophets,^m ²¹but test everything; hold fast to what is guage that has points of contact with the Roman imperial cult and Jewish apocalyptic expectations. 4.13 No hope reflects a common Greco-Roman view that there is no resurrection. A Latin tomb inscription reads: "I was not; I was; I am not; I care not." 4.15 By the word of the Lord probably refers to a special revelation from the risen Christ; no such saying of Jesus survives in the Gospels. We who are alive. Paul does not expect to die before Jesus' coming (see also 1 Cor 15.51–52). Later, however, he seems to reflect on the possibility of death; see 2 Cor 5.1–5; Phil 1.20–23. The Greek word translated coming (parousia; see also 2.19; 3.13; 5.23) was a technical term for a ruler's state visit. 4.16 A cry of command, a herald's call, and a trumpet (see Isa 27.13; Joel 2.1; Zech 9.14) announce the ruler's arrival. 4.17 Paul identifies Jesus as the Lord (an imperial title) of the universe, whom believers will welcome as city officials would meet and welcome a visiting ruler. 5.1–11 Paul draws out the implications of the hope of Jesus' coming with repeated calls for vigilance. 5.2 The day of the Lord, the day of judgment. See Isa 2.9–19; Am 5.18–20. 5.3 Roman imperial coins used peace and security as a propaganda legend; see also Jer 6.14; Ezek 13.10. Labor pains. See Isa 13.6–8; Hos 13.13. 5.6 Let us not fall asleep. See Mt 25.13; Mk 13.34–37; this exhortation to moral alertness is clarified by keep awake and be sober. 5.8 Imagery of armor (breastplate, helmet) underscores the need to struggle; see also Rom 13.12; 2 Cor 6.7; 10.4; Eph 6.13–17; Phil 1.27–30. On hope, see 1.3; note on 3.6. Paul understands salvation to lie in the future; see Rom 5.9; Phil 2.12; 3.20. 5.10 Who died for us, a terse allusion to Jesus' death as a sacrifice for sin. See Rom 4.25; 1 Cor 15.3. Paul returns to his earlier use of sleep as a metaphor for death (see 4.13–15, text note k).

5.12–24 Exhortations to good relationships within the Christian community. 5.12 Those who labor among you, i.e., in ad hoc leadership roles. Formal clergy did not yet exist. 5.21 Test everything, i.e., using what is good as a criterion (see also good; ²²abstain from every form of evil.

²³ May the God of peace himself sanctify you entirely; and may your spirit and soul and body be kept soundⁿ and blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. ²⁴The one who calls you is faithful, and he will do this.

THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS

Authorship

THOUGH 2 THESSALONIANS resembles other Letters of the Pauline corpus, especially 1 Thessalonians, its authorship is often questioned. The strange hints of forgery (2.2; 3.17), which have no parallel in other Pauline Letters, raise the issue directly, and the unusually close relationship between 1 and 2 Thessalonians keeps the question alive. In the opening greetings, the renewed thanksgivings, and the issues addressed, the two Letters show such striking similarities that either the second was written so soon after the first that Paul still recalled his earlier wording, or a later writer used 1 Thessalonians as a model and borrowed Paul's name and reputation to deal with a crisis confronting a post-Pauline church. Because the eschatological perspectives of the two Letters are so different, the second hypothesis seems better: 2 Thessalonians is probably pseudonymous.

Occasion

1 Thessalonians views the Second Coming (Greek parousia) of Jesus as imminent, and one of Paul's concerns in that Letter is to prepare the church for this approaching day (1 Thess 4.13–5.11). In contrast, in 2 Thessalonians, the author seeks to refute the view that this return is near (the probable meaning of "the day of the Lord is already here," 2.2) and to remind the church of the numerous events that must precede it (2.1–12). The situation was thus one of keen apocalyptic expectations fueled by persecution (1.4). Indeed, the author of 2 Thessalonians may have felt that 1 Thessalonians, with its eager anticipation of the Second Coming, had contributed to the new problem, and the rejection of a "letter as though from us" (2.2) may be intended to discredit the earlier Letter.

The author draws on a rich reservoir of apocalyptic traditions to buttress the arguments that the church's present affliction will be reversed on the day of the Lord (1.5–10), that that climactic day has not yet arrived (2.1–12), and therefore that actions in the present continue to be important (2.15–3.16).

Date and Place

If 2 Thessalonians is by Paul, it was written shortly after 1 Thessalonians and to the same church. If not, it is impossible to date or place it with any precision.

Jouette M. Bassler

Salutation

1 Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy,
To the church of the Thessalonians
in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:

2 Grace to you and peace from God
our^a Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving

3 We must always give thanks to God for you, brothers and sisters,^b as is right, because your faith is growing abundantly, and the love of everyone of you for one another is increasing. 4 Therefore we ourselves boast of you among the churches of God for your steadfastness and faith during all your persecutions and the afflictions that you are enduring.

The Judgment at Christ's Coming

5 This is evidence of the righteous judgment of God, and is intended to make you worthy of the kingdom of God, for which you are also suffering. 6 For it is indeed just of God to repay with affliction those who afflict you, 7 and to give relief to the afflicted as well as to us, when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with his mighty angels 8 in flaming fire, inflicting vengeance on those who do not know God and on those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. 9 These will suffer the punishment of eternal destruction, separated from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his might, 10 when he comes to be glorified by his saints and to be marveled at on that day among all who have believed, because our testimony to you was believed. 11 To this end we always pray for you, asking that our God will make you worthy of his call and will fulfill by his power every good resolve and work of faith, 12 so that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

1.1–2 The brief opening of the Letter is nearly identical to that of 1 Thessalonians. 1.3–12 The apocalyptic content of the rather formal thanksgiving (see also 2.13; cf. Rom 1.8–15; 1 Cor 1.4–9; 1 Thess 1.2–10) anticipates the argument of ch. 2. 1.4 Because persecutions and . . . afflictions were widely regarded as signs of the end of the age (see 2.2; Mk 13.19–27), they required careful interpretation; see 1.5–10; 2.1–12; cf. Rom 5.3; 2 Cor 1.6–7; 1 Thess 1.6; 3.3, 7.

1.5–10 An apparent digression introduces a central theme of the Letter: the Second Coming of the Lord Jesus (see also 2.1–12). 1.5 The evidence (lit. “sign”) of the righteous judgment of God is either the steadfastness and faith of the church (see Phil 1.28) or its afflictions (see 1 Pet 4.17–18). 1.7b–10 This dramatic description of the revelation (i.e., Second Coming) of Jesus appropriates or language about God; see also 1 Enoch 1.3–9. 1.7b On the retinue of angels, see Zech 14.5; Mt 25.31; Mk 8.38; Jude 14–15. 1.8 Fire is associated with God (Ex 3.2; Ezek 1.4, 13, 27) and with the final judgment (Isa 66.15–16; Mt 3.12; 1 Cor 3.13–15). 1.9 From the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his might, a refrain used in Isa 2.10, 19, 21 (Septuagint), where the day of God’s terrible judgment is described. 1.10 Saints (lit. “holy ones”), the usual NT epithet for believers (1 Col 1.2); here it may refer to the mighty angels (1.7; see Zech 14.5). That day, i.e., the day of the Lord (see 2.2; Isa 2.11). 1.11–12 An intercessory prayer (see also 2.16–17; 3.5, 16) closes the thanksgiving. 1.11 Work of faith. See 1 Thess 1.3.

The Day of the Lord

2 As to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our being gathered together to him, we beg you, brothers and sisters,^c ²not to be quickly shaken in mind or alarmed, either by spirit or by word or by letter, as though from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord is already here. ³Let no one deceive you in any way; for that day will not come unless the rebellion comes first and the lawless one^d is revealed, the one destined for destruction.^e ⁴He opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, declaring himself to be God. ⁵Do you not remember that I told you these things when I was still with you? ⁶And you know what is now restraining him, so that he may be revealed when his time comes. ⁷For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work, but only until the one who now restrains it is removed. ⁸And then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus^f will destroy^g with the breath of his mouth, annihilating him by the manifestation of his coming. ⁹The coming of the lawless

one is apparent in the working of Satan, who uses all power, signs, lying wonders, ¹⁰and every kind of wicked deception for those who are perishing, because they refused to love the truth and so be saved. ¹¹For this reason God sends them a powerful delusion, leading them to believe what is false, ¹²so that all who have not believed the truth but took pleasure in unrighteousness will be condemned.

¹³ But we must always give thanks to God for you, brothers and sisters^c beloved by the Lord, because God chose you as the first fruits^h for salvation through sanctification by the Spirit and through belief in the truth. ¹⁴For this purpose he called you through our proclamation of the good news,ⁱ so that you may obtain the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. ¹⁵So then, brothers and sisters,^c stand firm and hold fast to the traditions that you were taught by us, either by word of mouth or by our letter.

2.1–12 A major concern of 2 Thessalonians is to refute the view that the day of the Lord is already here (v. 2). 2.1 The coming (Greek parousia) of Jesus in judgment (see 1.7–8) marks the day of the Lord (v. 2; see also 1.10; 1 Thess 5.1–11). It was widely held that on that day the elect, whether dead or alive, would be gathered together; see Mt 24.31, 38–42; 1 Thess 4.15–17. 2.2 By spirit, i.e., by a prophetic saying; see 1 Cor 12.10; 1 Thess 5.19–20; 1 Jn 4.1. By word, i.e., by logical argument; see 1 Thess 1.5. Letter as though from us suggests a forged letter (see 3.17); however, the author may intend to discredit 1 Thessalonians with this phrase. 2.3 It was widely believed that a rebellion (Greek apostasia) against God would precede the day of the Lord; see Mt 24.6–14; 1 Tim 4.1; 2 Tim 3.1–5; Jude 17–19. The lawless one (see 2.8), a blasphemous antichrist figure whose revelation (cf. 1.7) would be the last sign preceding the day of the Lord. See also Mt 24.23–24; 1 Jn 2.18; Rev 13. 2.4 The description of the lawless one echoes various OT passages; see Isa 14.13–14; Ezek 28.1–10; Dan 11.21–45. 2.6 The author does not say what (or who; see v. 7) is now restraining him; the answer may lie in traditions now lost to us or the ambiguity may be intentional. The discussion of a restraining force interprets the delay in revelation as deliberate.

2.7 The mystery of lawlessness, i.e., the already present power of the coming lawless one (see 1 Jn 4.3). 2.8 The OT image of the powerful breath of [God's] mouth is transferred to Jesus; see Job 4.9; Ps 33.6; Isa 11.4; cf. Rev 19.15. 2.9 The same Greek word (parousia) describes the coming of the lawless one and the Lord Jesus (2.1, 8). Signs and wonders mark the coming of both true (1.7; Mk 13.24–25) and false Christs (Mk 13.22; Rev 13.13–14). 2.10 Deception. See 2.3. 2.11 God sends them a powerful delusion. See also 1 Kings 22.23; Isa 6.10; Ezek 14.9; Mk 4.11–12; Rom 9.18–23. 2.13–14 The abrupt resumption of the thanksgiving (see 1.3; see also 1 Thess 1.2; 2.13) creates a stark contrast between the condemned and the saved. 2.13 On God's having chosen the readers, see Deut 10.15; Rom 8.29–30; 1 Thess 1.4–5; 4.7; 5.9. On first fruits, see Deut 26.1–2; here it means first converts (see Rom 16.5), but see text note h. 2.14 On God's having called the readers, see note on 2.13.

2.15–3.16 Exhortations alternate with intercessory prayers. 2.15 Stand firm. See 1 Thess 3.8. The traditions include ethical (see 3.6; 1 Cor 11.2) and doctrinal (see 2.5–6) teachings able to refute the erroneous views shaking the church. By our letter (cf. 2.2) probably refers to the present

Prayers and Exhortations

16 Now may our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our Father, who loved us and through grace gave us eternal comfort and good hope, ¹⁷comfort your hearts and strengthen them in every good work and word.

3 Finally, brothers and sisters,^j pray for us, so that the word of the Lord may spread rapidly and be glorified everywhere, just as it is among you, ²and that we may be rescued from wicked and evil people; for not all have faith. ³But the Lord is faithful; he will strengthen you and guard you from the evil one.^k ⁴And we have confidence in the Lord concerning you, that you are doing and will go on doing the things that we command. ⁵May the Lord direct your hearts to the love of God and to the steadfastness of Christ.

Blunt Warning Against Idleness

6 Now we command you, beloved,^j in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to keep away from believers who are^l living in idleness and not according to the tradition that they^m received from us. ⁷For you yourselves know how you ought to imitate us; we were not idle when we were with you, ⁸and we did not eat anyone's bread without paying for it; but with toil and labor we worked night and day, so that we might not burden any of you. ⁹This was not because we do not have that right, but in order to give you an example to imitate. ¹⁰For even when we were with you, we gave you this command: Anyone unwilling to work should not eat. ¹¹For we hear that some of you are living in idleness, mere busybodies, not doing any work. ¹²Now such persons we command and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ to do their work quietly and to earn their own living. ¹³Brothers and sisters,ⁿ do not be weary in doing what is right.

¹⁴Take note of those who do not obey what we say in this letter; have nothing to do with them, so that they may be ashamed. ¹⁵Do not regard them as enemies, but warn them as believers.^o

Final Greetings and Benediction

16 Now may the Lord of peace himself give you peace at all times in all ways. The Lord be with all of you.

17 ¹I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. This is the mark in every letter of mine; it is the way I write. ¹⁸The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with all of you.^p

Letter (see 3.14). 3.2 Wicked and evil people (see also Rom 15.30–31; 1 Thess 2.2) recalls the affliction of 1.6–8. 3.3 He will strengthen you. See 1.4, 11; 2.17. The evil one, either Satan (2.9; see also Eph 6.16) or the evil conditions (see text note k) of the time (1.4; 2.10; 3.2). 3.6 The final command is particularly emphatic (see also 3.12). On idleness, see 1 Thess 5.14; the Greek word can also mean “disorderliness” or “insubordination,” i.e., to the tradition. 3.7 On imitating Paul, see 1 Cor 4.16; 11.1; Phil 3.17; 4.9; 1 Thess 1.6. 3.8 Paul was proud of not imposing a financial burden on his churches; see 1 Thess 2.9; 2 Cor 11.7–11; 12.14–15. 3.9 On Paul's right to receive payment, see 1 Cor 9.4–15. 3.10 This command is part of the authoritative tradition (see 3.6); it does not appear elsewhere in Paul's Letters. 3.12 Work quietly. See 1 Thess 4.11–12. 3.14 This letter. See 2.15. 3.17–18 Paul often wrote letter closings with his own hand (see 1 Cor 16.21; Gal 6.11; Col 4.18; Philem 19); the emphasis here, however, is striking.

THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO

TIMOTHY

THE LETTERS TO TIMOTHY and Titus form a discrete corpus within the collection of Pauline Letters. Since the eighteenth century, they have been referred to collectively as the Pastoral Letters because of their concern with leadership offices and pastoral oversight of the churches.

Authorship

The Letters purport to be from Paul, but several of their features seem incompatible with that claim. Their vocabulary and style differ in many ways from those of the rest of the Pauline Letters. Key Pauline concepts such as faith, law, and righteousness are treated quite differently, while a new emphasis on godliness, sound teaching, church order, and good works appears. The historical situations that the Pastorals describe cannot be accommodated to what we know of Paul's career from Acts and the other Letters unless we assume that these situations arose after Paul's (presumed) release from Roman imprisonment (see Acts 28.16–31), but that assumption is sheer speculation. Though some try to reconcile these problematical features with a vestige of Pauline authorship by assuming that a secretary wrote the Letters from sketchy notes or that a later author crafted them around fragments of authentic letters, it seems best to acknowledge their pseudonymity. An unknown author used Paul's name to give authority to his attempt to address problems in some post-Pauline churches.

Language and Sources

Though there are clear echoes of Paul's thought, the Letters often use the language of Hellenistic philosophy to define the Christian life and that of the imperial cult to describe God's actions. The author knew at least some of the authentic Pauline letters and employed a variety of other sources as well: rules about church order, rules of conduct appropriate to members of various social stations, liturgical fragments, and vice and virtue lists.

Place, Date, and Order

Like the author, the addressees are pseudonymous. The Letters could thus have been written anywhere in the Pauline mission field, though the frequent references to people associated with Ephesus make that city a strong possibility. The author seems to know the book of Acts (see 2 Tim 3.11), which was probably written around 80–90 C.E., and Polycarp may allude to the Pastorals in his Letter to the Philippians (125–135 C.E.). The Letters thus were probably written early in the second century. It is likely that the three Pastoral Letters were conceived as a corpus and intended to be read together. The canonical order was probably based simply on their lengths.

Opponents

Though the Letters assume a problem with false teachers, these people are denounced in stock terms and not carefully described or debated. It is clear, however, that their teaching contained Jewish (1 Tim 1.6–11; Titus 1.10, 14), Gnostic (1 Tim 1.4; 6.20; 2 Tim 3.7), and ascetic elements (1 Tim 4.3), as well as a spiritualized view of the resurrection as having already occurred (2 Tim 2.18).

Though the actual recipients are unknown, churches in Ephesus and Crete provide the setting for the pseudonymous Letters to Timothy and Titus.

Their influence threatened the theological and social fabric of the church, especially regarding the role of women (2 Tim 3.6–7; Titus 1.11), and the Letters attempt to address this problem with reminders of the apostolic teaching and instructions on the structure, behavior, and leadership of the community.

Addressee

The ostensible addressee of 1 Timothy is one of Paul's closest co-workers (see Acts 16–19; 1 Cor 4.17; Phil 2.19–24). He was very active in the work with the Thessalonian and Corinthian churches (2 Cor 1.19; 1 Thess 3.1–6) and appears as co-sender of six Letters (2 Corinthians, Philippians, Colossians, 1 and 2 Thessalonians, Philemon). 1 Timothy implies that Paul has departed from Ephesus (cf. Acts 20.1–6), leaving Timothy behind to deal with false teachers (1.3) and to provide ethical instructions to the church (3.14–15; 4.13). Though in 2 Timothy he is summoned to Paul's side, in this Letter Timothy's ongoing, if not permanent, presence in Ephesus is assumed. Indeed, he is presented as the ideal church leader, whose sound doctrine and morals stand in sharp contrast to the corrupt lives and words of the false teachers. Jouette M. Bassler

Salutation

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the command of God our Savior and of Christ Jesus our hope,

2 To Timothy, my loyal child in the faith:

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Warning Against False Teachers

3 I urge you, as I did when I was on my way to Macedonia, to remain in Ephesus so that you may instruct certain people not to teach any different doctrine, ⁴and not to occupy themselves with myths and endless genealogies that promote speculations rather than the divine training^a that is known by faith. ⁵But the aim of such instruction is love that comes from a pure heart, a good conscience, and sincere faith. ⁶Some people have deviated from these and turned to meaningless talk, ⁷desiring to be teachers of the law, without understanding either what they are saying or the things about which they make assertions.

8 Now we know that the law is good, if a Or plan

1.1–2 The opening of the Letter follows Paul's conventions. 1.1 Both God and Christ are called Savior in these Letters; see 2.3; 4.10; 2 Tim 1.10; Titus 1.3–4. The title has roots in the OT (Isa 45.15) but was also used in the imperial cult. 1.2 Timothy is Paul's loyal (lit. "legitimate") child, in contrast to the heretics (1.6); see Titus 1.4; see also 1 Cor 4.17; Phil 2.19–22; 4.3. 1.3–7 The opening charge to Timothy addresses the problem of false teachers. Opponents are also mentioned in 4.1–3; 6.3–5, 20–21; 2 Tim 2.16–18, 23–26; 3.1–9, 13; 4.3–4; Titus 1.10–16; 3.9–11.

1.3 Two of these certain people are named in 1.20, but the opponents are often left anonymous; see 1.6; 4.1; 5.24; 6.10, 21. 1.4 Myths and genealogies may refer to portions of the OT (see, e.g., Gen 4–5) or to Gnostic speculations; see also 4.7; 2 Tim 4.4; Titus 1.14; 3.9. The Greek word oikonomia, translated here as divine training, was regularly applied in Greek philosophy to God's ordering and administration of the world (see text note a). 1.7 The law is probably the Jewish law, but that is not emphasized; cf. Titus 1.14. 1.8–11 This digression on the legitimate one uses it legitimately. ⁹This means understanding that the law is laid down not for the innocent but for the lawless and disobedient, for the godless and sinful, for the unholy and profane, for those who kill their father or mother, for murderers, ¹⁰fornicators, sodomites, slave traders, liars, perjurers, and whatever else is contrary to the sound teaching ¹¹that conforms to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which he entrusted to me.

Gratitude for Mercy

¹² I am grateful to Christ Jesus our Lord, who has strengthened me, because he judged me faithful and appointed me to his service, ¹³even though I was formerly a blasphemer, a persecutor, and a man of violence. But I received mercy because I had acted ignorantly in unbelief, ¹⁴and the grace of our Lord overflowed for me with the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. ¹⁵The saying is sure and worthy of full acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners — of whom I am the foremost. ¹⁶But for that very reason I received mercy, so that in me, as the foremost, Jesus Christ might display the utmost patience, making me an example to those who would come to believe in him for eternal life. ¹⁷To the King of the ages, immortal, invisible, the only God, be honor and glory forever and ever.^b Amen.

¹⁸ I am giving you these instructions, Timothy, my child, in accordance with the prophecies made earlier about you, so that by following them you may fight the good fight, ¹⁹having faith and a good conscience. By rejecting conscience, certain persons have suffered shipwreck in the faith; ²⁰among them are Hymenaeus and Alexander, whom I have turned over to Satan, so that they may learn not to blaspheme.

Instructions Concerning Prayer and Worship

2 First of all, then, I urge that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for everyone, ²for kings and all who are in high positions, so that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and dignity. ³This is right and is acceptable in the sight of God our Savior, ⁴who desires everyone to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth. ⁵For there is one God;

use of the law reflects aspects of Paul's thought but lacks his subtlety (cf. Rom 7–8; Gal 3–4). 1.8 On the law as good, see Rom 7.12, 16. 1.9 The law is . . . not for the innocent. Paul speaks of freedom from the law as a means of justification (Rom 3.21, 28; 10.4; Gal 3), but for him the law remains a norm for Christian behavior (Rom 8.4; 13.8–10). On the notion that the law is intended to curb sinful actions, see Gal 3.19, 23–26. 1.9–10 These verses contain vice and virtue lists, which were common devices for moral teaching; see, e.g., 6.4–5; 2 Tim 3.2–5; Titus 3.3; see also Rom 1.29–31; Gal 5.19–23. 1.10 The strong emphasis on sound (lit. “healthy”) teaching is rooted in the situation of controversy within the church; see, e.g., 1.3; 4.6; 6.3; 2 Tim 1.13; 4.3; Titus 1.9, 13; 2.1–2.

1.12–17 A statement of gratitude (see, e.g., Rom 1.8–15; 1 Cor 1.4–9) contains a lengthy biographical passage. 1.13 On Paul's having been a persecutor of the church, see Acts 8.1–3; 9.1–2; 1 Cor 15.9; Gal 1.13. 1.15 The formula The saying is sure appears four more times in these Letters: 3.1; 4.9; 2 Tim 2.11; Titus 3.8. 1.17 A similar doxology is found in 6.15–16. 1.18–20 The author resumes the charge to Timothy. 1.18 The instructions include those in 1.3–5 and in chs. 2–6. The prophecies were probably part of an ordination ceremony; see 4.14; Acts 13.1–3. The good fight, a traditional phrase in Hellenistic moral philosophy, gains special significance here in the struggle against false teachers; see 6.12; 2 Tim 4.7; see also 2 Cor 10.3–5; Phil 1.27–30. 1.20 Hymenaeus. See 2 Tim 2.17. Alexander. See 2 Tim 4.14. Turning over to Satan probably involved expulsion from the church; see also Titus 3.10; 1 Cor 5.3–5.

2.1–3.16 A series of instructions addresses aspects of the church's life and leadership. 2.1–7 The theme of universality dominates the opening instructions on prayer; see also 4.10; Titus 2.11. 2.2 Godliness is the most prominent of the many Hellenistic terms used in these Letters to identify characteristics of the ideal Christian life; see, e.g., 4.7–8; 6.3; 2 Tim 3.5; Titus 1.1. 2.3 Savior. See note on 1.1. 2.4 Knowledge of the truth is crucial to this author in the context of false teaching; see 6.20; 2 Tim 2.25; 3.7; Titus 1.1. 2.5–6a For there is . . . ransom for all, a liturgical fragment that reinforces the universal goal of salvation. 2.5 Christ is called mediator in Heb 8.6; 9.15; 12.24, but the emphasis there is differ-

there is also one mediator between God and humankind, Christ Jesus, himself human,
6 who gave himself a ransom for all

—this was attested at the right time. ⁷For this I was appointed a herald and an apostle (I am telling the truth,^c I am not lying), a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth.

⁸ I desire, then, that in every place the men should pray, lifting up holy hands without anger or argument; ⁹also that the women should dress themselves modestly and decently in suitable clothing, not with their hair braided, or with gold, pearls, or expensive clothes, ¹⁰but with good works, as is proper for women who profess reverence for God. ¹¹Let a woman^d learn in silence with full submission. ¹²I permit no woman^d to teach or to have authority over a man;^e she is to keep silent. ¹³For Adam was formed first, then Eve; ¹⁴and Adam was not deceived, but the woman was deceived and became a transgressor. ¹⁵Yet she will be saved through childbearing, provided they continue in faith and love and holiness, with modesty.

Qualifications of Bishops

3 The saying is sure:^f whoever aspires to the office of bishop^g desires a noble task. ²Now a bishop^h must be above reproach, married only once,ⁱ temperate, sensible, respectable, hospitable, an apt teacher, ³not a drunkard, not violent but gentle, not quarrelsome, and not a lover of money. ⁴He must manage his own household well, keeping his children submissive and respectful in every way — ⁵for if someone does not know how to manage his own household, how can he take care of God's church? ⁶He must not be a recent convert, or he may be puffed up with conceit and fall into the condemnation of the devil. ⁷Moreover, he must be well thought of by outsiders, so that he may not fall into disgrace and the snare of the devil.

^c Other ancient authorities add in Christ
^d Or wife ^e Or her husband ^f Some interpreters place these words at the end of the previous paragraph. Other ancient authorities read The saying is commonly accepted ^g Or overseer
^h Or an overseer ⁱ Gk the husband of one wife

ent; see, however, Job 9.32–33. 2.6 Ransom. See Mt 20.28; Mk 10.45. Attested at the right time (lit. “the testimony to [or in] its own times”) may point to Jesus’ self-giving act as testimony to God’s saving purpose (2.4). 2.7 Herald . . . apostle . . . teacher. See also 2 Tim 1.11. 2.8–15 A concern for women’s behavior dominates this discussion of worship. 2.9 The concern for women’s clothing, jewelry, and elaborate (braided) hairstyles was traditional; see 1 Pet 3.3. 2.10 Good works are stressed in these Letters; see 5.10, 25; 6.18; Titus 2.7, 14; 3.8, 14. 2.11 Women’s silence is also demanded in 1 Cor 14.34–35; cf. 1 Cor 11.5. Submission of wives to husbands is demanded in Eph 5.22; Col 3.18; Titus 2.5; 1 Pet 3.1; see also Gen 3.16. Here the demand is probably not limited to married couples (cf. text notes d and e). On the concern for teaching, see 1.10. 2.13 Adam was formed first. See Gen 2; cf. Gen 1.27. 2.14 On Eve’s being deceived, see Gen 3.13; 2 Cor 11.3. False teachers posed anew the threat of deception; see 4.1; 2 Tim 3.13; Titus 1.10. 2.15 The emphasis on childbearing may be a response to the false teachers’ rejection of marriage (4.3); see also 5.10, 14. The pronoun they may refer to children, though the shift in subject is abrupt.

3.1–13 Conventional and domestic virtues dominate the list of qualifications for bishops and deacons. 3.1 The saying is sure may refer not to 3.1 but to 2.15 (see text note f; see note on 1.15). Bishops (or “overseers”) are mentioned in Acts 20.28; Phil 1.1; Titus 1.7–9. The relationship among bishops, deacons (see 3.8), and elders (see 5.17) is not clear in these Letters, but see note on Titus 1.5–9. 3.2 Hospitality was widely encouraged as a Christian virtue; see 5.10; Titus 1.8; see also Rom 12.13; Heb 13.2; 1 Pet 4.9. 3.3 The warning about love of money is conventional but is repeated in 3.8; 6.9–10, 17–19; 2 Tim 3.2; Titus 1.7. 3.4 The household was the basic unit of and metaphor for the church; see note on 3.15; see also 2 Tim 3.6; Titus 1.11. On keeping . . . children submissive, see Eph 6.1–4; Col 3.20–21. 3.6 The first specifically Christian requirement for a bishop is that he not be a recent convert. The Greek word translated puffed up with conceit may refer instead to being deluded, i.e., by the false teachers; see also 6.4; 2 Tim 3.4. Condemnation of the devil (see also 3.7) probably refers to Satan’s role as tempter of the unwary and accuser of the unrighteous (Job 1–2). The Greek word translated devil here is translated slanderer in 3.11; 2 Tim 3.3. 3.7 A concern for the opinion of outsiders is also found in 5.14; 6.1; Titus 2.5, 8, 10; see also 1 Cor 14.15–17; Col 4.5; 1 Thess 4.12.

Qualifications of Deacons

8 Deacons likewise must be serious, not double-tongued, not indulging in much wine, not greedy for money; ⁹they must hold fast to the mystery of the faith with a clear conscience. ¹⁰And let them first be tested; then, if they prove themselves blameless, let them serve as deacons. ¹¹Women^j likewise must be serious, not slanderers, but temperate, faithful in all things. ¹²Let deacons be married only once,^k and let them manage their children and their households well; ¹³for those who serve well as deacons gain a good standing for themselves and great boldness in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.

The Mystery of Our Religion

14 I hope to come to you soon, but I am writing these instructions to you so that, ¹⁵if I am delayed, you may know how one ought to behave in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and bulwark of the truth. ¹⁶Without any doubt, the mystery of our religion is great:

He^l was revealed in flesh, vindicated^m in spirit,ⁿ seen by angels,

proclaimed among Gentiles, believed in throughout the world, taken up in glory.

False Asceticism

4 Now the Spirit expressly says that in later^o times some will renounce the faith by paying attention to deceitful spirits and teachings of demons, ²through the hypocrisy of liars whose consciences are seared with a hot iron. ³They forbid marriage and demand abstinence from foods, which God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth. ⁴For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected, provided it is received with thanksgiving; ⁵for it is sanctified by God's word and by prayer.

A Good Minister of Jesus Christ

3.8 The Greek word translated deacons here is a common one for "servants" or "ministers." Only here and in Rom 16.1; Phil 1.1 does it seem to designate a church office; cf. 4.6 (text note q). 3.9 The mystery of the faith is defined in 3.16; the faith is thus equivalent here to our religion (v. 16). 3.10 The Letters do not indicate how deacons are to be tested. 3.11 It is not clear whether the women are wives of deacons or deacons themselves (see text note j). Paul knew women deacons (Rom 16.1), but 2.11-15 seems to preclude them here. 3.13 The good standing is probably within the Christian community. 3.14-16 The section closes with a statement of the Letter's purpose that contains a significant liturgical fragment. 3.15 The image of the church as the household of God informs many of the instructions in these Letters; see, e.g., 3.4-5, 12; 5.1-2; 2 Tim 2.20-21; see also 1 Cor 3.16; 2 Cor 6.16; Eph 2.19-22; Heb 3.6; 1 Pet 2.5; 4.17. Pillar and bulwark suggests a defensive stance; see Jer 1.18. On truth, see note on 2.4. 3.16 A hymnic fragment outlines the content of the mystery of our religion. Flesh and spirit designate the earthly and heavenly realms; see Rom 1.3-4; 1 Pet 3.18. Jesus was vindicated through the resurrection and exaltation, which canceled the human judgments against him; see also Acts 2.23-28; 10.39-40. He was seen by angels, not at Easter, but at an appearance before the heavenly court; see Phil 2.10; 1 Pet 3.22; Rev 5.11-14. He was taken up at the ascension; see Acts 1.11, 22.

4.1-5 This description of false teachers (see 1.3-7) contains both stylized accusations and concrete charges. 4.1 The Spirit speaks through Christian prophets; see, e.g., 1 Cor 12.4-11; Rev 2.7; see also 1 Cor 7.40. The later times correspond to the author's present; see also 2 Tim 3.1; 4.3; 2 Pet 3.3; Jude 18. On the faith, see note on 3.9. Paul also linked his opponents with demons or worse; see 2 Cor 11.13-15; see also Jn 8.44; Jas 3.15; 1 Jn 3.8-10. 4.3 Some ascetic groups in early Christianity were known to forbid marriage; see Mt 19.10-12; 1 Cor 7; Rev 14.1-5. Note the positive view of marriage in 2.15; 5.14; Titus 2.4. Abstinence from foods is generally rejected in the NT; see 5.23; Mk 7.15, 19; Acts 10.9-16; Rom 14.1-6; 1 Cor 8. 4.6-16 The positive picture of Timothy in these verses stands in deliberate contrast to the preceding description of the false teachers. 4.6 These instructions include 4.4-5 as well as what follows. Sound teaching. See note on 1.10.

on the words of the faith and of the sound teaching that you have followed. ⁷Have nothing to do with profane myths and old wives' tales. Train yourself in godliness, ⁸for, while physical training is of some value, godliness is valuable in every way, holding promise for both the present life and the life to come. ⁹The saying is sure and worthy of full acceptance. ¹⁰For to this end we toil and struggle,^r because we have our hope set on the living God, who is the Savior of all people, especially of those who believe.

¹¹ These are the things you must insist on and teach. ¹²Let no one despise your youth, but set the believers an example in speech and conduct, in love, in faith, in purity. ¹³Until I arrive, give attention to the public reading of scripture,^s to exhorting, to teaching. ¹⁴Do not neglect the gift that is in you, which was given to you through prophecy with the laying on of hands by the council of elders.^t ¹⁵Put these things into practice, devote yourself to them, so that all may see your progress. ¹⁶Pay close attention to yourself and to your teaching; continue in these things, for in doing this you will save both yourself and your hearers.

Instructions Concerning Various Groups

5 Do not speak harshly to an older man,^u but speak to him as to a father, to younger men as brothers, ²to older women as mothers, to younger women as sisters—with absolute purity.

4.7 Myths. See note on 1.4. Godliness. See note on 2.2. 4.8 Physical training, perhaps a reference to the opponents' asceticism (4.3), though the image of the athlete was common in moral exhortation; see also 2 Tim 2.5; 4.7–8. 4.9 The saying referred to is probably 4.8. 4.10 On God's saving concern for all people, see 2.1–7. 4.12 Timothy's youth (see also Phil 2.22; 2 Tim 2.22) stands in some tension with the leadership role of the elders (4.14; 5.17). 4.14 Paul mentions a number of spiritual gifts (Rom 12.6–8; 1 Cor 12.4–11, 28–31); here the gift is that of ministry and is linked to ordination and the rite of laying on of hands; see 2 Tim 1.6; see also Acts 6.6; 13.3. Prophecy. See note on 1.18. Elders. See note on 3.1; see also 5.17–22; Titus 1.5–6. For other evidence of this office, see Jas 5.14; 1 Pet 5.1–5; 2 Jn 1; 3 Jn 1; Rev 4.4.

5.1–6.2 Commonplace advice relating to age groups opens a series of more specific instructions concerning other groups within the congregation: widows (5.3–16), elders (5.17–22), and slaves (6.1–2); see also Titus 2.2–10. 5.3 Honor probably implies financial support; see 5.16, 17–18; Acts 6.1; cf. 1 Tim 6.1. Concern for real widows pervades the text (see 5.5, 16), but see note on 5.9. There is a long tradition of support for widows; see, e.g., Ex 22.22; Deut 24.17–22; Isa 1.17; Acts 6.1–6; 9.36–42. 5.9 It is debated whether the widows on the list are identical with the real widows or constitute a separate group, an office within the church; cf., e.g., the requirements for widows (5.9–10) with those for bishops (3.2–4). 5.10 Washed the saints' feet, a gesture demonstrating humility and hospitality; see Gen 18.4; 1 Sam 25.41; Lk 7.44; Jn 13.1–17. 5.12 The pledge the widows took was one of perpetual chastity (see 5.11). 5.13 The idle and busybodies are denounced in 1 Thess 5.14; 2 Thess 3.11. The Greek word for busybody (periergos) gets a more ing what they should not say. ¹⁴So I would have younger widows marry, bear children, and manage their households, so as to give the adversary no occasion to revile us. ¹⁵For some have already turned away to follow Satan. ¹⁶If any believing woman^x has relatives who are really widows, let her assist them; let the church not be burdened, so that it can assist those who are real widows.

¹⁷ Let the elders who rule well be considered worthy of double honor,^y especially those who labor in preaching and teaching; ¹⁸for the scripture says, "You shall not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain," and, "The laborer deserves to be paid." ¹⁹Never accept any accusation against an elder except on the evidence of two or three witnesses. ²⁰As for those who persist in sin, rebuke them in the presence of all, so that the rest also may stand in fear. ²¹In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus and of the elect angels, I warn you to keep these instructions without prejudice, doing nothing on the basis of partiality. ²²Do not ordain^z anyone hastily, and do not participate in the sins of others; keep yourself pure.

²³ No longer drink only water, but take a little wine for the sake of your stomach and your frequent ailments.

²⁴ The sins of some people are conspicuous and precede them to judgment, while the sins of others follow them there. ²⁵So also good works are conspicuous; and even when they are not, they cannot remain hidden.

6 Let all who are under the yoke of slavery regard their masters as worthy of all honor, so that the name of God and the teaching may not be blasphemed. ²Those who have believing masters must not be disrespectful to them on the ground that they are members of the church;^a rather they must serve them all the more, since those who benefit by their service are believers and beloved.^b

False Teaching and Greed

Teach and urge these duties. ³Whoever teaches otherwise and does not agree with the sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ and the teaching that is in accordance with godliness, ⁴is conceited, understanding nothing, and has a morbid craving for controversy and for disputes about words. From these come envy, dissension, slander, base suspicions, ⁵and wrangling among those who are deprived in mind and bereft of the truth, imagining that godliness is a means of gain.^c ⁶Of course, there is great gain in godliness combined with contentment; ⁷for we brought nothing into the world, so that^d we can take nothing out of it; ⁸but if we have food and clothing, we will be content with

The opponents seem to reject these roles (see 4.3; Titus 1.11). The adversary, lit. "the one opposed [to us]," probably refers to hostile outsiders; see Titus 2.8; see also Lk 13.17; 21.15; 1 Cor 16.9; Phil 1.28. 5.15 The phrase follow Satan probably refers to embracing the heretical movement. 5.16 Relatives who are . . . widows, lit. See Deut 19.15; Mt 18.16. 5.22 Ordain, lit. lay hands on (see text note z). The laying on of hands is a rite that transmits the Spirit and the Spirit's gifts (see 4.14; 2 Tim 1.6;

Acts 8.17; 19.6). Here it may signify ordination (see also Acts 6.6; 13.3) or restitution after repentance. 5.23 Take a little wine. The false teachers insisted on abstinence (4.3). 6.1–2 This advice on the relationship of slaves to masters was a standard piece of early Christian exhortation; see Eph 6.5–9; Col 3.22–4.1; Titus 2.9–10; 1 Pet 2.18–21; cf. 1 Cor 7.21–24. 6.1 Here honor has no financial significance; cf. 5.3, 17. these. ⁹But those who want to be rich fall into temptation and are trapped by many senseless and harmful desires that plunge people into ruin and destruction. ¹⁰For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, and in their eagerness to be rich some have wandered away from the faith and pierced themselves with many pains.

The Good Fight of Faith

11 But as for you, man of God, shun all this; pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, endurance, gentleness. ¹²Fight the good fight of the faith; take hold of the eternal life, to which you were called and for which you made^e the good confession in the presence of many witnesses. ¹³In the presence of God, who gives life to all things, and of Christ Jesus, who in his testimony before Pontius Pilate made the good confession, I charge you ¹⁴to keep the commandment without spot or blame until the manifestation of our Lord Jesus Christ, ¹⁵which he will bring about at the right time—he who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords. ¹⁶It is he alone who has immortality and dwells in unapproachable light, whom no one has ever seen or can see; to him be honor and eternal dominion. Amen.

17 As for those who in the present age are rich, command them not to be haughty, or to set their hopes on the uncertainty of riches, but rather on God who richly provides us with everything for our enjoyment. ¹⁸They are to do good, to be rich in good works, generous, and ready to share, ¹⁹thus storing up for themselves the treasure of a good foundation for the future, so that they may take hold of the life that really is life.

THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO

TIMOTHY

Nature of Letter

THE SECOND LETTER TO TIMOTHY differs in significant ways from both 1 Timothy and Titus. According to the latter two, Paul was a free apostle, but 2 Timothy assumes that he is in prison (1.8; 2.9), probably in Rome (1.16–17; cf. Acts 28.16), abandoned by all but a few of his friends (4.9–16) and facing imminent death (4.6–8). The Letter thus assumes many aspects of a final testament, a thoroughly pseudepigraphical genre in which a dying patriarch exhorts and blesses a faithful child, warning him of problems to come (see, e.g., 3.1–5; 4.1–5; cf. Acts 20.17–35; see also 2 Peter). Concern for church order is thus less important in this Letter than are personal exhortations. In particular, the example of Paul's endurance in the face of suffering is used to encourage Timothy—and through him all Christians—to similar endurance.

Authorship

The many personal elements in the Letter (e.g., 1.15–18; 4.10–16) are viewed by some interpreters as authentic fragments, but they could equally well have been crafted to lend pathos and concreteness to the Letter's warnings and exhortations. For a further discussion of the Letter's authorship, date, and purpose, see Introduction to 1 Timothy. Jouette M. Bassler

Salutation

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, for the sake of the promise of life that is in Christ Jesus,

2 To Timothy, my beloved child:

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Thanksgiving and Encouragement

3 I am grateful to God—whom I worship with a clear conscience, as my ancestors did—when I remember you constantly in my prayers night and day. 4 Recalling your tears, I long to see you so that I may be filled with joy. 5 I am reminded of your sincere faith, a faith that lived first in your grandmother Lois and your mother Eunice and now, I am sure, lives in you. 6 For this reason I remind you to rekindle the gift of God that is within you through the laying on of my hands; 7 for God did not give us a spirit of cowardice, but rather a spirit of power and of love and of self-discipline.

8 Do not be ashamed, then, of the testimony about our Lord or of me his prisoner, but join with me in suffering for the gospel, relying on the power of God, 9 who saved us and called us with a holy calling, not according to our works but according to his own purpose and grace.

This grace was given to us in Christ Jesus before the ages began, 10 but it has now been revealed through the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus, who abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. 11 For this gospel I was appointed a herald and an apostle and a teacher,^a 12 and for this reason I suffer as I do. But I am not ashamed, for I know the one in whom I have put my trust, and I am sure that he is able to guard until that day what I have entrusted to him.^b 13 Hold to the standard of sound teaching that you have heard from me, in the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. 14 Guard the good treasure entrusted to you, with the help of the Holy Spirit living in us.

15 You are aware that all who are in Asia have turned away from me, including Phygelus and Hermogenes. 16 May the Lord grant mercy to the household of Onesiphorus, because he often refreshed me and was not ashamed of my chain; 17 when he arrived in Rome, he eagerly^c searched for me and found me 18—may the Lord grant that he will find mercy from the Lord on that day! And you know very well how much service he rendered in Ephesus.

^a Other ancient authorities add of the Gentiles

^b Or what has been entrusted to me ^c Or promptly

1.1–2 The brief salutation is very similar to that of 1 Timothy. 1.1 On the promise of life, see 1 Tim 4.8. 1.3–5 Like many of the Pauline Letters, 2 Timothy opens with a statement of gratitude or thanksgiving. 1.3 The reference to Paul's ancestors suggests the antiquity of the Christian religion. The Romans were suspicious of new cults but held ancient religions in high esteem. 1.5 According to Acts 16.1, Timothy's mother was a believer; the reference to Lois pushes this matrilineal line of faith back another generation. See also 3.15. 1.6–14 A series of exhortations to strengthen Timothy in the face of afflictions. 1.6 On the gift of God and laying on of . . . hands, see 1 Tim 4.14. Here the emphasis is on Paul's personal role in this event. 1.7 Spirit, a disposition or state of mind inspired by the Holy Spirit; see 1.14; see also Rom 8.15. Self-discipline. This word, or a variant of it, is prominent in Hellenistic moral philosophy and in the exhortations of these Letters; see, e.g., Titus 1.8; 2.5, 6. 1.8 On suffering for the gospel, see 1 Cor 4.9–13; 2 Cor 4.7–12; Phil 1.27–30. 1.9–10 A liturgical fragment conveying a strong sense of election summarizes the gospel (see 1.11). 1.9 That salvation is not according to our works (see also Titus 3.5) is a very Pauline assertion; see Rom 3.28; Gal 2.16; Eph 2.8–9. The good works emphasized in these Letters (see 1 Tim 2.10) are the result, not the ground, of salvation. 1.10 The word appearing (Greek epiphaneia), applied in 4.1 and 1 Tim 6.14 (translated "manifestation") to Jesus' future coming, is here applied to his birth. Savior. See 1 Tim 1.1. Abolished death, i.e., abolished the power of death. See Rom 8.38–39; 1 Cor 15.54–55. 1.12 That day (see also 1.18) is the day of judgment; see 4.8. What I have entrusted to him. The reading in text note b, what has been entrusted to me, is better; see 1.14; 1 Tim 6.20. The reference is to the apostolic teaching. 1.13 Sound teaching. See 1 Tim 1.10. 1.15–18 Contrasting examples of cowardice and strength. 1.15 Asia, a Roman province in Asia Minor. All . . . turned away. The motif of abandonment is strong in 2 Timothy; see 4.10, 16. Phygelus and Hermogenes. Opponents and friends are frequently named in this Letter (see 2.17; 4.10–15); these two men are not otherwise known. 1.16 Onesiphorus. See 4.19.

Exhortations to Timothy

2 You then, my child, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus; ²and what you have heard from me through many witnesses entrust to faithful people who will be able to teach others as well. ³Share in suffering like a good soldier of Christ Jesus. ⁴No one serving in the army gets entangled in everyday affairs; the soldier's aim is to please the enlisting officer. ⁵And in the case of an athlete, no one is crowned without competing according to the rules. ⁶It is the farmer who does the work who ought to have the first share of the crops. ⁷Think over what I say, for the Lord will give you understanding in all things.

⁸ Remember Jesus Christ, raised from the dead, a descendant of David—that is my gospel, ⁹for which I suffer hardship, even to the point of being chained like a criminal. But the word of God is not chained. ¹⁰Therefore I endure everything for the sake of the elect, so that they may also obtain the salvation that is in Christ Jesus, with eternal glory. ¹¹The saying is sure:

- If we have died with him, we will also live with him;
¹² if we endure, we will also reign with him;
 if we deny him, he will also deny us;
¹³ if we are faithless, he remains faithful—for he cannot deny himself.

¹⁴ Remind them of this, and warn them before God^d that they are to avoid wrangling over words, which does no good but only ruins those who are listening. ¹⁵Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved by him, a worker who has no need to be ashamed, rightly explaining the word of truth. ¹⁶Avoid profane chatter, for it will lead people into more and more impiety, ¹⁷and their talk will spread like gangrene. Among them are Hymenaeus and Philetus, ¹⁸who have swerved from the truth by claiming that the resurrection has already taken place. They are upsetting the faith of some. ¹⁹But God's firm foundation stands, bearing this inscription: "The Lord knows those who are his," and, "Let everyone who calls on the name of the Lord turn away from wickedness."

²⁰ In a large house there are utensils not only of gold and silver but also of wood and clay, some for special use, some for ordinary. ²¹All who cleanse themselves of the things I have mentioned^e will become special utensils, dedicated and useful to the owner of the house, ready for every good work. ²²Shun youthful passions and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace, along with those who call on the Lord from a pure heart. ²³Have nothing to do with stupid and senseless controversies; you know that they breed quarrels. ²⁴And the Lord's servant^f must not be quarrelsome but kindly to everyone, an apt teacher, patient, ²⁵correcting opponents with gentleness. God may perhaps grant that they will repent and come to know the truth, warnings. 2.14 Wrangling over words characterizes the fruitless debate with false teachers; see 2.23; 1 Tim 6.4; Titus 3.9. 2.15 The word of truth. See 2.18, 25; 1 Tim 2.4. 2.17 Hymenaeus. See 1 Tim 1.20. 2.18 The false teachers claim that the resurrection is a present spiritual reality, not a future hope. There is a counteremphasis on the future in 1.1; 2.10-11; 4.8. 2.19 The first quotation is from Num 16.5; the second vaguely recalls a number of texts (see Job 36.10; Isa 26.13). 2.20 For special use or ordinary use (lit. for "honor" or "dishonor"). The author has in mind the distinction between faithful ministers (2.1) and false teachers (2.16-18). 2.22 On Timothy's youth, see 1 Tim 4.12. 2.24 The Lord's servant (see Titus 1.1), one engaged in ministry; cf. the qualities of the bishop in 1 Tim 3.2-3. 2.25 On correcting opponents, see Titus 1.9, 13.

Prediction of the False Teachers

3 You must understand this, that in the last days distressing times will come. ²For people will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boasters, arrogant, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, ³inhuman, implacable, slanderers, profligates, brutes, haters of good, ⁴treacherous, reckless, swollen with conceit, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, ⁵holding to the outward form of godliness but denying its power. Avoid them! ⁶For among them are those who make their way into households and captivate silly women, overwhelmed by their sins and swayed by all kinds of desires, ⁷who are always being instructed and can never arrive at a knowledge of the truth. ⁸As Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses, so these people, of corrupt mind and counterfeit faith, also oppose the truth. ⁹But they will not make much progress, because, as in the case of those two men,^h their folly will become plain to everyone.

Paul's Charge to Timothy

10 Now you have observed my teaching, my conduct, my aim in life, my faith, my patience, my love, my steadfastness, ¹¹my persecutions, and my suffering the things that happened to me in Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra. What persecutions I endured! Yet the Lord rescued me from all of them. ¹²Indeed, all who want to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted. ¹³But wicked people and impostors will go from bad to worse, deceiving others and being deceived. ¹⁴But as for you, continue in what you have learned and firmly believed, knowing from whom you learned it, ¹⁵and how from childhood you have known the sacred writings that are able to instruct you for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. ¹⁶All scripture is inspired by God and isⁱ useful for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, ¹⁷so that everyone who belongs to God may be proficient, equipped for every good work.

4 In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and in view of his appearing and his kingdom, I solemnly urge you: ²proclaim the message; be persistent whether the time is favorable or unfavorable; convince, rebuke, and encourage, with the utmost patience in teaching. ³For the time is coming when people will not put up with sound doctrine, but having itching ears, they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own desires, ⁴and will turn away from listening to the truth and wander away to myths. ⁵As for you, always be sober, endure suffering, do the work of an evangelist, carry out your ministry fully.

3.1–9 The author uses a prediction about the last days (see Mk 13) to attack the false teachers; see also 1 Tim 4.1–5. 3.2–4 This list of vices constitutes a general attack on the opponents, not a specific description of them (see also 1 Tim 1.9–10). 3.5–7 The description of the opponents becomes more specific here. 3.5 Godliness. The reading given in text note i is equally possible. 3.17 Everyone who belongs to God (lit. “the man [person] of God”). The phrase refers here, as in 1 Tim 6.11, to the ordained church leader. Good work. See 1 Tim 2.10. 4.1–2 The charge here assumes a particularly solemn note; see also 1 Tim 5.21. 4.1 His appearing, the Second Coming; see also 1.10; Titus 2.13. 4.3 The time is coming. The author regarded this prediction as being fulfilled in his time; see 3.1. Sound doctrine. See 1.13. 4.4 Myths. See 1 Tim 1.4. 4.5 The work of an evangelist (see Eph 4.11) is described in 4.2. 4.6–8 A reference to Paul's circumstances concludes the charge. 4.6 Poured out as a libation poured out as a libation, and the time of my departure has come. ⁷I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. ⁸From now on there is reserved for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give me on that day, and not only to me but also to all who have longed for his appearing.

Personal Instructions

⁹ Do your best to come to me soon, ¹⁰for Demas, in love with this present world, has deserted me and gone to Thessalonica; Crescens has gone to Galatia, ^j Titus to Dalmatia. ¹¹Only Luke is with me. Get Mark and bring him with you, for he is useful in my ministry. ¹²I have sent Tychicus to Ephesus. ¹³When you come, bring the cloak that I left with Carpus at Troas, also the books, and above all the parchments. ¹⁴Alexander the copper-smith did me great harm; the Lord will pay him back for his deeds. ¹⁵You also must beware of him, for he strongly opposed our message.

¹⁶ At my first defense no one came to my support, but all deserted me. May it not be counted against them! ¹⁷But the Lord stood by me and gave me strength, so that through me the message might be fully proclaimed and all the Gentiles might hear it. So I was rescued from the lion's mouth. ¹⁸The Lord will rescue me from every evil attack and save me for his heavenly kingdom. To him be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO

Addressee

THE OSTENSIBLE ADDRESSEE of this Letter, Titus, is one of Paul's known co-workers (2 Cor 8.23). He accompanied Paul to an important meeting in Jerusalem (Gal 2.1–10), worked on the collection for that church (2 Cor 8.6, 16–24), and served as Paul's emissary during his troubled relations with the Corinthians (2 Cor 2.13; 7.5–16). The Letter assumes that Titus has been left in Crete to organize some churches that Paul had recently established (1.5) and provides instructions for this work. Neither Acts nor Paul's other Letters, however, mention a mission to Crete.

Author, Date, and Purpose

The content of this Letter duplicates in many regards that of 1 Timothy. For a discussion of authorship, date, and purpose, see Introduction to that Letter.

Salutation

1 Paul, a servant^a of God and an apostle of Jesus Christ, for the sake of the faith of God's elect and the knowledge of the truth that is in accordance with godliness,² in the hope of eternal life that God, who never lies, promised before the ages began—³ in due time he revealed his word through the proclamation with which I have been entrusted by the command of God our Savior,

4 To Titus, my loyal child in the faith we share:

Grace^b and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Savior.

Appointment of Elders

5 I left you behind in Crete for this reason, so that you should put in order what remained to be done, and should appoint elders in every town, as I directed you: ⁶someone who is blameless, married only once,^c whose children are believers, not accused of debauchery and not rebellious. ⁷For a bishop,^d as God's steward, must be blameless; he must not be arrogant or quick-tempered or addicted to wine or violent or greedy for gain; ⁸but he must be hospitable, a lover of goodness, prudent, upright, devout, and self-controlled. ⁹He must have a firm grasp of the word that is trustworthy in accordance with the teaching, so that he may be able both to preach with sound doctrine and to refute those who contradict it.

The False Teachers

10 There are also many rebellious people, idle talkers and deceivers, especially those of the circumcision; ¹¹they must be silenced, since they are upsetting whole families by teaching for sordid gain what it is not right to teach. ¹²It was one of them, their very own prophet, who said,

"Cretans are always liars, vicious brutes, lazy gluttons."

¹³That testimony is true. For this reason rebuke them sharply, so that they may become sound in the faith, ¹⁴not paying attention to Jewish myths or to commandments of those who reject the truth. ¹⁵To the pure all things are pure, but to the corrupt and unbelieving nothing is pure. Their very minds and consciences are corrupted. ¹⁶They profess to know God, but they deny him by their actions. They are detestable, disobedient, unfit for any good work.

Exhortations for Various Groups

2 But as for you, teach what is consistent with sound doctrine. ²Tell the older men to be temperate, serious, prudent, and sound in faith, in love, and in endurance.

3 Likewise, tell the older women to be reverent in behavior, not to be slanderers or slaves to drink; they are to teach what is

1.1–4 The opening of the Letter repeats many elements found in 1 Tim 1.1–2 with a new emphasis on the purpose of Paul's apostleship (see also Rom 1.1–6). 1.1 The OT concepts servant of God (see 2 Sam 7.5; Jer 7.25) and God's elect (see Isa 65.9) were appropriated by Christians; see, e.g., Rom 1.1; 8.33; Phil 1.1; Col 3.12; 2 Tim 2.10. Knowledge of truth. See 1 Tim 2.4. Godliness. See 1 Tim 2.2. 1.2–3 Before the ages defines the antiquity of God's recently revealed plan of salvation; see 2 Tim 1.9–10; see also Rom 16.25–26. 1.5–9 The qualifications for elders (see also 1 Tim 4.14; 5.17–22) resemble those for bishops and deacons; see 1 Tim 3.1–13. Here the bishop (1.7) seems to come from the council of elders. 1.9 Sound (healthy) doctrine, or "teaching." See note on 1 Tim 1.10. 1.10–16 A lengthy description of the false teachers; see also 1 Tim 1.3–7.

1.10 Deceivers, in the author's eyes, are particularly dangerous; see 1 Tim 2.14. 1.11 The Pastoral Letters show a pervasive concern for the structure of families; see 2.4–5, 9–10; 1 Tim 2.15; 3.4–5, 12; 5.4, 8, 14. 1.12 This ethnic slur is attributed by later writers to Epimenides of Crete (600 B.C.E.). 1.14 Myths. See note on 1 Tim 1.4. 1.15 All things are pure, a rebuttal of asceticism; see 1 Tim 4.3–5. 1.16 Profess to know God. See 1 Tim 6.20–21.

2.1–10 Various groups in the church are exhorted to conduct that reflects contemporary virtues and the specific concerns of these Letters; see also 1 Tim 5.1–6.2. 2.1 Sound doctrine. See note on 1.9. 2.2 The virtues of the older men resemble those of bishops and deacons; see 1 Tim 3.2, 8. 2.3 On the instructions to older women, see 1 Tim good, ⁴so that they may encourage the young women to love their husbands, to love their children, ⁵to be self-controlled, chaste, good managers of the household, kind, being submissive to their husbands, so that the word of God may not be discredited.

6 Likewise, urge the younger men to be self-controlled. ⁷Show yourself in all respects a model of good works, and in your teaching show integrity, gravity, ⁸and sound speech that cannot be censured; then any opponent will be put to shame, having nothing evil to say of us.

9 Tell slaves to be submissive to their masters and to give satisfaction in every respect; they are not to talk back, ¹⁰not to pilfer, but to show complete and perfect fidelity, so that in everything they may be an ornament to the doctrine of God our Savior.

11 For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all, ^e¹²training us to renounce impiety and worldly passions, and in the present age to live lives that are self-controlled, upright, and godly, ¹³while we wait for the blessed hope and the manifestation of the glory of our great God and Savior, ^fJesus Christ. ¹⁴He it is who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify for himself a people of his own who are zealous for good deeds.

15 Declare these things; exhort and reprove with all authority.^g Let no one look down on you.

Instructions to Titus

3 Remind them to be subject to rulers and authorities, to be obedient, to be ready for every good work, ²to speak evil of no one, to avoid quarreling, to be gentle, and to show every courtesy to everyone. ³For we ourselves were once foolish, disobedient, led astray, slaves to various passions and pleasures, passing our days in malice and envy, despicable, hating one another. ⁴But when the goodness and loving kindness of God our Savior appeared, ⁵he saved us, not because of any works of righteousness that we had done, but according to his mercy, through the water^h of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit. ⁶This Spirit he poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior, ⁷so that, having been justified by his grace, we might become heirs according to the hope of eternal life. ⁸The saying is sure.

See note on 3.1. 2.9 Slaves are also exhorted in 1 Tim 6.1–2. 2.11–15 This passage, which may contain a liturgical fragment (vv. 11–14), provides a theological basis for the Letter's exhortations (see also 3.4–7). 2.11 The grace of God has appeared. Two appearances or manifestations mark God's plan of salvation: one past (see also 3.4; 1 Tim 3.16; 2 Tim 1.10) and one future (2.13; 1 Tim 6.14). 2.12 The Christian life is described in the language of Hellenistic moral philosophy. Impiety is the mark of the false teachers; see 2 Tim 2.16. Worldly passions are described in 3.3. 2.13 Where Paul speaks of Christ's "coming" (Greek parousia; see 1 Cor 15.23; 1 Thess 4.15), these Letters borrow the terminology of the imperial cult and speak of his manifestation (Greek epiphaneia). NT writers rarely speak of Christ as God (but see Jn 20.28; Heb 1.8). 2.14 or concepts are prominent here: redeem us from all iniquity (see Ps 130.8); a people of his own (see Ex 19.5; Ezek 37.23); zealous for good deeds (see Sir 51.18; 1 Macc 2.27).

3.1–8a Brief instructions are buttressed with a lengthy description of God's mercy. 3.1 Be subject. The same Greek word is translated be submissive in 2.5, 9; see also 1 Tim 2.11; 3.4. On submission to rulers, see Rom 13.1–7; 1 Pet 2.13–17; see also 1 Tim 2.1–2. Good work. See 2.7, 3.8; 1 Tim 2.10. 3.3–7 The contrast between life prior to grace and life transformed by it is typical of Christian exhortation; see Rom 6.17–19; 1 Cor 6.9–11; Eph 2.1–10. 3.3 This vice list is similar to Rom 1.19–31. 3.4–7 The dense theological content of these verses suggests a liturgical or creedal origin (see also 2.11–14). 3.4 Goodness and loving kindness. God is described with the humanitarian attributes of an ideal ruler. 3.5 The rejection of the attaining of righteousness by works is very Pauline; see Rom 3.28; 9.11–12; Gal 2.16; see also 2 Tim 1.9. Water (lit. washing, see text note ^h) of rebirth, i.e., baptism. See Eph 5.26. The language of rebirth and renewal echoes Jn 3.3, 5; Rom 6.4; 1 Pet 1.3. 3.6 The Spirit was poured out at Pentecost; see Acts 2.14–18. 3.7 Justified by his grace. See Rom 3.24. On the hope of eternal life, see Rom 5.2–5; see also Titus 1.2. 3.8a The saying is sure refers back to 3.4–7; see 1 Tim 1.15. 3.8b–11 A final warning about the false teachers so that those who have come to believe in God may be careful to devote themselves to good works; these things are excellent and profitable to everyone. ⁹But avoid stupid controversies, genealogies, dissensions, and quarrels about the law, for they are unprofitable and worthless. ¹⁰After a first and second admonition, have nothing more to do with anyone who causes divisions, ¹¹since you know that such a person is perverted and sinful, being self-condemned.

Final Instructions and Greetings

12 When I send Artemas to you, or Tychicus, do your best to come to me at Nicopolis, for I have decided to spend the winter there. ¹³Make every effort to send Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their way, and see that they lack nothing. ¹⁴And let people learn to devote themselves to good works in order to meet urgent needs, so that they may not be unproductive.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO PHILEMON

ALTHOUGH PAUL'S LETTER to Philemon is generally comprehensible, his unusually deferential and indirect language and the very nature of a letter as only one half of a conversation make it difficult for later readers to know its occasion and contents as precisely as the first ones did.

Place and Date

Paul writes from prison (vv. 1, 9, 10, 13, 23) to a Christian living in Colossae in Asia Minor. The letter does not say where he was imprisoned, though some manuscripts add a postscript saying that Paul wrote it "from Rome," i.e., during his Roman imprisonment of 60–62 C.E. (Acts 28.16–31). But Rome is problematic: it involves a long distance for the slave Onesimus to travel to be with Paul; and it causes problems with Pauline chronology, for Paul's plans after Rome were to travel westward to Spain (Rom 15.22–24) and not eastward to Colossae, as he promises Philemon (v. 22). Other imprisonments—e.g., at Philippi (Acts 16.23–40) or Caesarea (Acts 23.35)—are also problematic, so that it is best to leave open the place of Paul's imprisonment. Once Rome is ruled out, so is a precise dating, leaving a period from the mid to the late 50s as most likely.

Occasion and Content

The slave Onesimus is with Paul and during his stay has not only served him but has also been converted by him. In fact, Paul has come to regard him as his child (v. 10) and wants him to continue in his service (v. 13). He has decided, however, to send him back to his master, Philemon (v. 12), so as to obtain Philemon's approval (v. 14) and possibly Onesimus's freedom (v. 16). Paul's problem is that Onesimus, quite possibly a runaway, may have also wronged his master or stolen something from him (v. 18), so that his requests for Onesimus's continued stay and possible emancipation are directed to a master who was more likely to be angry than amenable. To deflect this anger Paul writes cautiously, speaking deferentially to Philemon and indirectly about Onesimus. The result is a masterpiece of church diplomacy, but equally a letter that speaks so obliquely of Onesimus's situation—e.g., his being "separated" from Philemon (v. 15)—that it is far from certain whether Onesimus was a runaway. Likewise, the letter speaks so disarmingly of Philemon's responsibility toward Onesimus—e.g., his being asked to treat him as “more than a slave” (v. 16)—that it is unclear what Paul's intentions for Philemon really were. Ronald F. Hock

1 Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy our brother,^a

To Philemon our dear friend and co-worker, ²to Apphia our sister,^b to Archippus our fellow soldier, and to the church in your house:

3 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Philemon's Love and Faith

4 When I remember you^c in my prayers, I always thank my God ⁵because I hear of your love for all the saints and your faith toward the Lord Jesus. ⁶I pray that the sharing of your faith may become effective when you perceive all the good that we^d may do for Christ. ⁷I have indeed received much joy and encouragement from your love, because the hearts of the saints have been refreshed through you, my brother.

Paul's Plea for Onesimus

8 For this reason, though I am bold enough in Christ to command you to do your duty, ⁹yet I would rather appeal to you on the basis of love—and I, Paul, do this as an old man, and now also as a prisoner of Christ Jesus.^e ¹⁰I am appealing to you for my child, Onesimus, whose father I have become during my imprisonment. ¹¹Formerly he was useless to you, but now he is indeed useful^f both to you and to me. ¹²I am sending him, that is, my own heart, back to you. ¹³I wanted to keep him with me, so that he might be of service to me in your place during my imprisonment for the gospel; ¹⁴but I preferred to do nothing without your consent, in order that your good deed

1–3 Identifying the sender(s) and recipient(s) at the beginning of a letter is typical of Paul and of ancient letter writers generally. 1 Timothy, co-sender of the letter (as also of 2 Corinthians, Philippians, 1 Thessalonians), is one of Paul's closest associates in his missionary work (see 1 Cor 4.17; Phil 2.19–24; 1 Thess 3.1–6). 2 Apphia and Archippus (see also Col 4.17) may be Philemon's wife and son. The characterization fellow soldier (used also of Epaphroditus in Phil 2.25) is figurative, meaning co-worker. If not family members, they are at least leaders along with Philemon in the church that meets in Philemon's house. Using domestic structures for church meetings was typical in the NT period (see also Rom 16.5; 1 Cor 16.15, 19; Col 4.15).

4–7 Typical of Paul's letters is a statement of gratitude to God for something commendable in the recipients' conduct. Here Paul's gratitude is aimed specifically at Philemon (see text note c). 7 Refreshed through you is vague, though it may refer to some act of hospitality, perhaps toward traveling missionaries (see 3 Jn 5–8). Note Paul's similar expression in v. 20.

8–22 In the body of the letter Paul turns to the matter at hand: asking for Onesimus's continued service and possibly his freedom. In vv. 8–16 Paul delicately prepares Philemon for the requests in vv. 17–22. 9 The word love, without the definite article, suggests love in general, but the Greek has the article and thus may refer to Philemon's specific acts of love (vv. 5, 7). 10 Child and father are metaphors Paul uses elsewhere of his converts and himself (e.g., 1 Cor 4.15; Gal 4.19). 11 Useless is a standard term for bad slaves. Useful (see text note f) is a term for good slaves and shows how much Onesimus has changed since he left. 15 Was separated is probably a tactful way of referring to Onesimus's having run away; the passive form of the verb also makes Onesimus less accountable for his action and may even suggest the working of provi-might be voluntary and not something forced. ¹⁵Perhaps this is the reason he was separated from you for a while, so that you might have him back forever, ¹⁶no longer as a slave but more than a slave, a beloved brother—especially to me but how much more to you, both in the flesh and in the Lord.

¹⁷ So if you consider me your partner, welcome him as you would welcome me. ¹⁸If he has wronged you in any way, or owes you anything, charge that to my account. ¹⁹I, Paul, am writing this with my own hand: I will repay it. I say nothing about your owing me even your own self. ²⁰Yes, brother, let me have this benefit from you in the Lord! Refresh my heart in Christ. ²¹Confident of your obedience, I am writing to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say.

²² One thing more—prepare a guest room for me, for I am hoping through your prayers to be restored to you.

Final Greetings and Benediction

²³ Epaphras, my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, sends greetings to you,^g ²⁴and so do Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, my fellow workers.

²⁵ The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.^h

g Here you is singular h Other ancient authorities add Amen

dence. ¹⁶ The phrase more than a slave is vague but may imply release from slavery (see also v. 21: do even more than I say). ¹⁷ Paul also calls Titus his partner (2 Cor 8.23) but otherwise speaks of whole churches—especially the Philippians—as partners (2 Cor 8.4; Phil 4.15). ¹⁹ Paul often writes a portion of his letters in his own hand (see 1 Cor 16.21; Gal 6.11; see also 2 Thess 3.17). Owing me even your own self doubtlessly refers to Paul's having converted Philemon, perhaps at Ephesus (Acts 19.10).

^{23–24} An exchange of greetings often closes ancient letters. Epaphras, Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke are all included in the closing greetings of Colossians (4.10–14). Onesimus is also mentioned in Col 4.9. Mark (Acts 12.12, 25; 13.5) and Luke are the persons later credited with writing Gospels.

THE LETTER TO THE HEBREWS

THE LETTER TO THE HEBREWS forcefully argues that through Christ, faithful Christians have direct access to God. The text urges the faithful, confident of their covenant relationship with God, to follow Christ's example and live as he did, faithful, hopeful, loving, and patient in the face of persecution.

Author and Date

Although Hebrews is occasionally attributed to Paul, even early Christian scholars such as Origen (185–254 C.E.) recognized that its style is quite different from that of Paul's Letters. Scholars have proposed attributing Hebrews to other early Christian leaders, such as Barnabas, Apollos, or Priscilla, but solid evidence for such suggestions is lacking. The work thus remains anonymous.

The elaborate reflections on Christ in Hebrews took some decades to develop. Hence, the text was probably composed after 60 C.E. and before 95 C.E., when 1 Clement was written from Rome quoting several portions of Hebrews.

Genre and Sources

Although classed with the Letters of the New Testament, Hebrews is really an extended sermon or, as its conclusion labels it, a “word of exhortation” (13.22). Hebrews does, however, end like a letter (13.19–25), and the final paragraphs suggest the work was sent to a distant congregation.

The most important source for Hebrews is the OT in its Greek form, the Septuagint, interpreted in the light of belief in Jesus. Texts from all portions of Israel's scriptures come into play: the Pentateuch, Prophets, Psalms, and other Writings. Nonbiblical traditions also play a role. The comparison of Christ and Melchizedek in ch. 7, for example, resembles speculation widespread in first-century Judaism about the shadowy figure of Melchizedek mentioned only in Gen 14; Ps 110.

Audience

The reference to “Hebrews” in the title represents a conjecture about the identity of the audience made by scribes of the second century C.E., probably based on the work's contents. Yet the audience, though possibly including people of Jewish background, clearly shares with the author a Christian commitment (3.1; 4.14; 10.23).

The location of the audience is not known with certainty. The farewell (13.24) contains greetings from "those from Italy," suggesting that the author's companions are saluting friends at home. This fact, plus the early attestation of Hebrews by Clement of Rome, points to a destination in Rome, where Christians continued to be Greek-speaking until well into the second century.

The audience, members of the church's "second generation" (2.3), had experienced persecution (10.32–34) and had perhaps become disappointed that God's promised kingdom had not yet come. Some members may even have begun to abandon the community (10.25). The author confronts this situation with a combination of exhortations to be faithful and warnings not to fall away (see, e.g., 6.4–8).

Language and Style

The Greek of Hebrews is among the most sophisticated in the NT, involving a broad vocabulary knit into complex sentences and balanced, sometimes rhythmic cadences. The author also uses all the devices of contemporary orators to embellish the argument, though many of these effects, such as the repetition of similar sounds, cannot be reproduced in translation. Imagery from various spheres of activity, including education (5.12–14; 12.7–11), agriculture (6.7–8; 12.11), seafaring (6.19), and athletics (5.14; 12.1–3), illustrates the argument. The author delights in teasing out the meaning of individual words (3.1–6; 9.15–17). All of this serves the sermon's goal of reflection on the One through whom God has definitively spoken (1.1–2). Harold W. Attridge

God Has Spoken by His Son

1 Long ago God spoke to our ancestors in many and various ways by the prophets, ²but in these last days he has spoken to us by a Son,^a whom he appointed heir of all things, through whom he also created the worlds. ³He is the reflection of God's glory and the exact imprint of God's very being, and he sustains^b all things by his powerful word. When he had made purification for sins, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, ⁴having become as much superior to angels as the name he has inherited is more excellent than theirs.

The Son Is Superior to Angels

5 For to which of the angels did God ever say,

"You are my Son;
today I have begotten you"?

Or again,

"I will be his Father,
and he will be my Son"?

6 And again, when he brings the firstborn into the world, he says,

"Let all God's angels worship him."

7 Of the angels he says,

"He makes his angels winds, and his servants flames of fire."

8 But of the Son he says,

"Your throne, O God, is^c forever and ever,
and the righteous scepter is the scepter of your^d kingdom.

9 You have loved righteousness and hated wickedness;
therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness beyond your companions."

10 And,

"In the beginning, Lord, you founded the earth, and the heavens are the work of your hands;

11 they will perish, but you remain;
they will all wear out like clothing;

12 like a cloak you will roll them up, and like clothing^e they will be changed.

But you are the same,

1.1–4 An introduction celebrates the Christian confession that the exalted Jesus is God's eternal Son. 1.1 Ancestors includes all the faithful in biblical history, many of whom appear in ch. 11. 1.2 For the widespread Christian belief that the faithful were living in the last days, see Mt 24.32–35; Mk 13.28–31; 1 Thess 4.13–18. Christ's status as heir gives assurance to his followers and fellow heirs (1.14; 6.12, 17); see also Rom 8.17. That God created through Christ is affirmed in Jn 1.3; 1 Cor 8.6; Col 1.16. The plural worlds (see also 11.3) refers either to this world and the world to come (2.5) or to the multiplicity of heavenly realms through which Christ has ascended (4.14; 9.11). 1.3 Divine Wisdom is also described as the reflection and image of God; see Wis 7.26. Purification from sin is the effect of Christ's sacrificial death; see 9.14. The image of Christ seated at the right hand, from Ps 110.1, appears throughout Hebrews (1.13; 8.1; 10.12; 12.2) and in other references to Christ's exaltation (Mt 22.44; Acts 2.34–35; Eph 1.20; 1 Pet 3.22). Majesty is a reverent way of referring to God; see 8.1. 1.4 Christ's special name, received at his exaltation, is mentioned in Phil 2.9–10. Here the name is probably "Son."

1.5–14 A series of scriptural verses, mostly from royal psalms, illustrate Christ's lofty status; see also Eph 1.21; Col 1.16; 1 Pet 3.22. The verses may have been traditionally linked. 1.5 Ps 2.7. Today in the psalm refers to the day of the king's enthronement, when he was adopted, hence "begotten," as God's son. Here it refers either to the day of Christ's exaltation or to God's heavenly generation of the Son. The verse is cited again in 5.5. 2 Sam 7.14 contains God's promise to be a Father to the son of David. 1.6 Here firstborn may be a messianic title; cf. Rom 8.29; Col 1.15, 18; Rev 1.5. The verse appears in Deut 32.43 in the Septuagint. Him, here the Son. 1.7 Ps 104.4. The psalm portrays God as using natural elements, winds and flames, as messengers. The author of Hebrews uses the verse to emphasize the transitoriness of the angels in contrast to the eternal Son (v. 8). 1.8–9 Ps 45.6–7. As the alternative reading (text note c) suggests, the psalm may have assured the Israelite king that his reign was secure because God was his throne. The author of Hebrews understands the psalm to address the Son as God. The eternal throne, then, is where the anointed Son sits; see 4.16. 1.10–12 Ps 102.25–27. 1.13 Ps 110.1. V. 4 of this psalm.

until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet"?
14 Are not all angels^f spirits in the divine service, sent to serve for the sake of those who are to inherit salvation?

Warning to Pay Attention

2 Therefore we must pay greater attention to what we have heard, so that we do not drift away from it. ² For if the message declared through angels was valid, and every transgression or disobedience received a just penalty, ³ how can we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? It was declared at first through the Lord, and it was attested to us by those who heard him, ⁴ while God added his testimony by signs and wonders and various miracles, and by gifts of the Holy Spirit, distributed according to his will.

Exaltation Through Abasement

⁵ Now God^g did not subject the coming world, about which we are speaking, to angels. ⁶ But someone has testified somewhere,

"What are human beings that you are mindful of them,^h or mortals, that you care for them?"ⁱ

⁷ You have made them for a little while lower^j than the angels;
you have crowned them with glory and honor,^k

⁸ subjecting all things under their feet."

Now in subjecting all things to them,
God^g left nothing outside their control.
As it is, we do not yet see everything in subjection to them, ⁹ but we do see Jesus, who for a little while was made lower^l

than the angels, now crowned with glory and honor because of the suffering of death, so that by the grace of God^m he might taste death for everyone.

¹⁰ It was fitting that God,^g for whom and through whom all things exist, in bringing many children to glory, should make the pioneer of their salvation perfect through sufferings. ¹¹ For the one who sanctifies and those who are sanctified all have one Father.ⁿ For this reason Jesus^g is not ashamed to call them brothers and sisters,^o ¹² saying,

"I will proclaim your name to my brothers and sisters,^o in the midst of the congregation I will praise you."

¹³ And again,

"I will put my trust in him."

And again,

"Here am I and the children whom God has given me."

¹⁴ Since, therefore, the children share flesh and blood, he himself likewise shared the same things, so that through death he might destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil, ¹⁵ and free those who all their lives were held in slavery by the fear of death. ¹⁶ For it is clear that he did not come to help angels, but the descendants of Abraham.
¹⁷ Therefore he had to become like his brothers and sisters^o in every respect, so cited in 5.6, will form the basis for ch. 7.

1.14 Salvation will occur when Christ comes again; see 9.28.

2.1–4 The author interrupts the exposition of scripture to warn against neglecting the Son's message; see also 3.12; 4.11; 6.4–8; 10.26–31; 12.16–17. 2.4 For some spiritual gifts, see 1 Cor 12.4–11.

2.5–18 The exposition continues with a new focus on the Son's solidarity with all humanity.
2.6a Similar vague allusions (someone) are found in first-century writers such as Philo; see also 4.4. 2.6b–8 Ps 8.4–6 celebrates the lofty status of all human beings. The author of Hebrews reads the text as a prophetic account of the Son;

see also 1 Cor 15.27. The preferred text is found in text notes h and i. All the plural pronouns here (them, their) are actually masculine singular ("him," "his") in the Greek. 2.10 The title pioneer reappears in 12.2. On Jesus made perfect by suffering, see 2.17–18; 5.8–10; 7.28; see also 10.14; 11.40;
12.2, 23. 2.12 Ps 22.22. 2.13 Isa 8.17–18.
2.17 Later (4.15) the author excludes sin from the ways in which Christ became like human beings.
The document's special title for Christ, high priest, appears here for the first time; see 3.1; 4.14–15; 5.5, 10; 6.20; 7.26–28; 8.1, 3; 9.11, 25.

that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in the service of God, to make a sacrifice of atonement for the sins of the people. ¹⁸Because he himself was tested by what he suffered, he is able to help those who are being tested.

Moses a Servant, Christ a Son

3 Therefore, brothers and sisters,^p holy partners in a heavenly calling, consider that Jesus, the apostle and high priest of our confession, ²was faithful to the one who appointed him, just as Moses also “was faithful in all^q God’s^r house.” ³Yet Jesus^s is worthy of more glory than Moses, just as the builder of a house has more honor than the house itself. ⁴(For every house is built by someone, but the builder of all things is God.) ⁵Now Moses was faithful in all God’s^r house as a servant, to testify to the things that would be spoken later. ⁶Christ, however, was faithful over God’s^r house as a son, and we are his house if we hold firm^t the confidence and the pride that belong to hope.

Warning Against Unbelief

7 Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says, “Today, if you hear his voice,

8 do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion,
as on the day of testing in the wilderness, 9 where your ancestors put me to the test, though they had seen my works¹⁰ for forty years.
Therefore I was angry with that generation, and I said, ‘They always go astray in their hearts, and they have not known my ways.’

11 As in my anger I swore,
“They will not enter my rest.”

¹²Take care, brothers and sisters,^p that none of you may have an evil, unbelieving heart that turns away from the living God.

¹³But exhort one another every day, as long as it is called “today,” so that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. ¹⁴For we have become partners of Christ, if only we hold our first confidence firm to the end. ¹⁵As it is said,

“Today, if you hear his voice,
do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion.”

3.1–6 A comparison between Jesus and Moses introduces the theme of fidelity, which continues to 4.13. 3.1 Only here in the NT is the title apostle given to Jesus. It conveys the notion, prominent in John (4.34; 5.24, 30, 37; 6.38, 44; 7.16, 28; 8.16, 29; 12.44, 49), that Jesus was sent by the Father. Confession refers to the faith in God and Christ professed by the author and the audience; see 4.14; 10.23. 3.2 That Moses was faithful derives from Num 12.7, cited again in v. 5. 3.3 The description of Jesus as builder of God’s house alludes to Christ’s role in either creation (1.2) or redemption (2.12–13). 3.5 Moses’ designation as servant derives from Num 12.7, where it served to exalt him; here it makes Moses inferior to the Son. For similar contrasts, see Jn 8.35; Gal 4.7. For Moses as an example of faith, see 11.23–28. 3.6 We are his house. See also 1 Cor 3.16–17; 1 Tim 3.15; Heb 10.21; 1 Pet 2.5; 4.17. Confidence. The same word is translated elsewhere as “boldness” in confessing and living the faith; see 4.16; 10.19–24, 35. For appeals to retain hope, see 6.11, 18; 7.19; 10.23.

3.7–4.11 A little sermon urges fidelity by pointing to the dire consequences of faithless-ness. 3.7–11 Ps 95.7–11. 3.7 For the Holy Spirit speaking in scripture, see 9.8; 10.15. 3.8 Rebellion is a Greek translation of the Hebrew place-name Meribah. Of testing translates the Hebrew place-name Massah. For both places, see Ex 17.7; Num 20.1–13; Deut 33.8. 3.10 In the original psalm, the phrase forty years was associated with the period of wrath mentioned in the following verse. Its association here with the period of testing of God by the Israelites of the desert generation highlights their rebelliousness. 3.11 Rest in the psalm designates the land of Canaan as Israel’s resting place. The author will find a deeper sense in the word in 4.1–11. 3.12 The admonition to take care, (see also 12.25) is common in the NT. For the danger of turning away, or apostasizing, see Num 14.9, which treats the desert generation, and Mt 24.10–12. A Greek wordplay links turning away (apostēnai) and the unbelieving (apistias) heart. The traditional phrase living God (see, e.g., Deut 5.26) reappears in 9.14; 10.31; 12.22. 3.14 On partners, see 3.1. The term translated confidence is the same as that used in 1.3 for the very being of God. The author may actually be calling the audience to hold on 16 Now who were they who heard and yet were rebellious? Was it not all those who left Egypt under the leadership of Moses? 17 But with whom was he angry forty years? Was it not those who sinned, whose bodies fell in the wilderness? 18 And to whom did he swear that they would not enter his rest, if not to those who were disobedient? 19 So we see that they were unable to enter because of unbelief.

The Rest that God Promised

4 Therefore, while the promise of entering his rest is still open, let us take care that none of you should seem to have failed to reach it. 2 For indeed the good news came to us just as to them; but the message they heard did not benefit them, because they were not united by faith with those who listened.^u 3 For we who have believed enter that rest, just as God^v has said,

“As in my anger I swore,

‘They shall not enter my rest,’”

though his works were finished at the foundation of the world. 4 For in one place it speaks about the seventh day as follows, “And God rested on the seventh day from all his works.” 5 And again in this place it says, “They shall not enter my rest.” 6 Since therefore it remains open for some to enter it, and those who formerly received the good news failed to enter because of disobedience, 7 again he sets a certain day—“today”—saying through David much later, in the words already quoted,

“Today, if you hear his voice,
do not harden your hearts.”

8 For if Joshua had given them rest, God^v would not speak later about another day. 9 So then, a sabbath rest still remains for the people of God; 10 for those who enter God’s rest also cease from their labors as God did from his. 11 Let us therefore make every effort to enter that rest, so that no one may fall through such disobedience as theirs.

God’s Penetrating Wisdom

12 Indeed, the word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing until it divides soul from spirit, joints from marrow; it is able to judge the thoughts and intentions of the heart. 13 And before him no creature is hidden, but all are naked and laid bare to the eyes of the one to whom we must render an account.

to the “reality” that Christ provides. 3.16 See Num 14.22. 3.17 See Num 14.33. 3.18 See Num 14.43.

4.1–11 The little sermon reaches its climax in a demonstration of the way in which rest remains a possibility for the audience. 4.1 Attention shifts to the final verse of the psalm citation (Heb 3.7–11) and the promise it implies. For this motif, see 6.12, 15, 17; 7.6; 8.6; 9.15; 10.36; 11.9, 13, 17, 33, 39. 4.2 The conviction that the same good news has come throughout salvation history is fundamental to Hebrews; see 1.1; 11.39–40. 4.3–5 Comparison of two verses that in Greek use forms of the word rest. (Such an argument is common in rabbinic literature.) 4.3 Ps 95.11, already cited in 3.11, supports the claim that God’s promise remains open. That God’s works were finished at creation implies that “rest” was available long before the Israelites approached Canaan. 4.4 Gen 2.2, with its note that God rested, confirms that “rest” was a reality already present at the creation of the world. 4.5 The author takes the phrase my rest in Ps 95.11 to refer precisely to the “rest” into which God entered on the seventh day. That rest was obviously not the land of Canaan but a heavenly reality. 4.6 The phrase it remains open summarizes the argument of 4.1–5. The remark that the Israelites failed to enter summarizes 3.12–19. 4.7 The Greek version of the OT explicitly attributes Ps 95 to David. The phrase much later refers to the interval between the conquest of Canaan and the time of David. 4.8 The author argues, despite the contrary affirmation of Josh 21.44, that the conquest generation, under the leadership of Joshua did not attain rest, for true “rest” is not to be found in the land of Canaan but is of a different order. 4.9 The description of the promise as a sabbath rest implies not simple inactivity but joyous celebration characteristic of the weekly holy day.

4.12–13 A reflection on the power of God’s word forms an epilogue to the sermon; see also 1.3. 4.12 For God’s word as a sword, see Eph 6.17; Rev 1.16; 2.12. Divine Wisdom also has power to pierce the spirit; see Wis 7.23. 4.13 That nothing is hidden before God’s eyes is a commonplace; see Jer 11.20; Rom 8.27; 1 Cor 4.5; 1 Thess 2.4. In Greek the term for account is the same as that for God’s word (logos).

Jesus the Great High Priest

14 Since, then, we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, let us hold fast to our confession. 15 For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but we have one who in every respect has been tested^w as we are, yet without sin. 16 Let us therefore approach the throne of grace with boldness, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

5 Every high priest chosen from among mortals is put in charge of things pertaining to God on their behalf, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. 2 He is able to deal gently with the ignorant and wayward, since he himself is subject to weakness; 3 and because of this he must offer sacrifice for his own sins as well as for those of the people. 4 And one does not presume to take this honor, but takes it only when called by God, just as Aaron was.

5 So also Christ did not glorify himself in becoming a high priest, but was appointed by the one who said to him,

“You are my Son,
today I have begotten you”;

6 as he says also in another place,

“You are a priest forever,

according to the order of Melchizedek.”

7 In the days of his flesh, Jesus^x offered up prayers and supplications, with loud cries and tears, to the one who was able to save him from death, and he was heard because of his reverent submission. 8 Although he was a Son, he learned obedience through what he suffered; 9 and having been made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him, 10 having been designated by God a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek.

Warning Against Falling Away

11 About this^y we have much to say that is hard to explain, since you have become dull in understanding. 12 For though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you again the basic elements of the oracles of God. You need milk, not solid food; 13 for everyone who lives on milk, being still an infant, is unskilled in the word of righteousness. 14 But solid food is for the mature, for those whose faculties have been trained by practice to distinguish good from evil.

w Or tempted x Gk he y Or him

4.14–5.10 Discussion of Christ's role resumes with the theme of the merciful high priest, whose heavenly presence guarantees help. 4.14 Christ's passage through the heavens refers to his exaltation; see 1.3, 13; 2.9; 9.11. 4.15 On Christ's role as a tested high priest, see 2.17–18. That Christ was without sin is a common assumption; see 7.26 and Jn 8.46; 2 Cor 5.21; 1 Pet 1.19; 2.22; 3.18; 1 Jn 3.5. 4.16 The Son's heavenly throne (see 1.8) is now specified as one of grace, since from it issues help; see 2.18. 5.2 The concern for sinners who are ignorant and wayward is apparently based upon the scriptural texts (Lev 4.2; 5.15–16; Num 15.22–31) that treat “unintentional sins.” 5.3 The high priest's sacrifices for his own sins and for those of the people recall the Day of Atonement; see 7.27; Lev 9.7. That solemn day's ritual dominates chs. 9–10. 5.4 For the call of Aaron, see Ex 28.1; Lev 8.1–9; Num 16–18. 5.5 Ps 2.7, also cited in 1.5. 5.6 Ps 110.4. The psalm's first verse was cited in 1.13. Melchizedek, who appears in the OT only in Ps 110.4 and in Gen 14, is discussed at length in ch. 7. 5.7 Prayers and supplications vaguely recalls Gethsemane (Mt 26.36–46; Mk 14.32–43; Lk

22.40–46), but the overall portrait is different. Loud cries and tears suggests the pious prayers of such psalms as 22.1–2; 116.8–11. 5.8 The obedience that Jesus learned is a model for his followers; see v. 9; 12.1–3. To learn through what one has suffered is a Greek proverb. 5.9 For Christ made perfect, see 2.10. 5.10 The phrase order of Melchizedek echoes Ps 110.4, cited in v. 6, and anticipates ch. 7.

5.11–14 Common sermonic imagery serves as a warning. 5.11 The subject that is lengthy and hard to explain is the interpretation of Christ as heavenly high priest given in chs. 8–10. 5.12 Oracles of God designates Israel's scriptures; see Acts 7.38; Rom 3.2; 1 Pet 4.11. Milk and solid food commonly symbolize levels of teaching, as in 1 Cor 3.1–3. 5.13 Those who live on milk receive only elementary instruction, presumably grammar and rhetoric, and have not yet advanced to the word of righteousness, or ethics. 5.14 The mature have mastered ethical matters and are ready for yet more “advanced” teaching that involves properly understanding Jesus. On being trained by practice, see 12.11; 1 Tim 4.7; 2 Pet 2.14.

The Peril of Falling Away

6 Therefore let us go on toward perfection,^z leaving behind the basic teaching about Christ, and not laying again the foundation: repentance from dead works and faith toward God, ²instruction about baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. ³And we will do^a this, if God permits. ⁴For it is impossible to restore again to repentance those who have once been enlightened, and have tasted the heavenly gift, and have shared in the Holy Spirit, ⁵and have tasted the goodness of the word of God and the powers of the age to come, ⁶and then have fallen away, since on their own they are crucifying again the Son of God and are holding him up to contempt. ⁷Ground that drinks up the rain falling on it repeatedly, and that produces a crop useful to those for whom it is cultivated, receives a blessing from God. ⁸But if it produces thorns and thistles, it is worthless and on the verge of being cursed; its end is to be burned over.

⁹ Even though we speak in this way, beloved, we are confident of better things in your case, things that belong to salvation. ¹⁰For God is not unjust; he will not overlook your work and the love that you showed for his sake^b in serving the saints, as you still do. ¹¹And we want each one of you to show the same diligence so as to realize the full assurance of hope to the very end, ¹²so that you may not become sluggish, but imitators of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

The Certainty of God's Promise

¹³ When God made a promise to Abraham, because he had no one greater by whom to swear, he swore by himself, ¹⁴saying, "I will surely bless you and multiply you." ¹⁵And thus Abraham,^c having patiently endured, obtained the promise. ¹⁶Human beings, of course, swear by someone greater than themselves, and an oath given as confirmation puts an end to all dispute. ¹⁷In the same way, when God desired to show even more clearly to the heirs of the promise the unchangeable character of his purpose, he guaranteed it by an oath, ¹⁸so that through two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible that God would prove false, we who have taken refuge might be strongly encouraged to seize the hope set before us. ¹⁹We have this hope, a sure and steadfast

6.1–12 A more severe warning (vv. 1–8) precedes encouragement (vv. 9–12). 6.1 The same Greek term (teleiōtēs) means both perfection, the result of Christ's suffering (2.10; 5.9), and maturity, to which the audience is called (5.14). Dead works are works that lead to sin (see 9.14), not works of the law. 6.2 For various baptisms, see perhaps Acts 18.25; 19.3–5. For ritual laying on of hands, see Acts 8.17; 19.6. 6.3 This is the movement on to perfection (v. 1). 6.4 For other impossible things, see 6.18; 10.4; 11.6. Like some other early Christian writers, the author of Hebrews takes a rigorous stand against the possibility of repentance after baptism. This condemnation of apostasy is similar to the notion of the unforgivable sin "against the Holy Spirit" of Mt 12.32; Mk 3.29; Lk 12.10 or the "mortal sin" of 1 Jn 5.16. To be enlightened refers generally to accepting the truth (10.32; see also 2 Cor 4.4–6; Eph 1.18) but may also allude to baptism. The heavenly gift may be the Eucharist, although a more general reference to God's saving love is likely. For similar gifts, see Acts 2.38; 10.45; Rom 5.15; 2 Cor 9.15; Eph 3.7. 6.7 Ground that drinks up the rain recalls the promised land of Deut 11.11. 6.8 Thorns and thistles characterize the cursed land of Gen 3.18.

Fields choked with weeds are burned over, but the fiery end here alludes to final judgment. 6.9 The address beloved, common in sermons and letters (see, e.g., 1 Cor 10.14; 15.58; 1 Jn 2.7), begins the message of encouragement. 6.11 For the full assurance of hope, see 10.22. For holding on to the very end, see 3.14. 6.12 Paul frequently calls for imitators; see 1 Cor 4.16; 11.1; 1 Thess 1.6; 2.14. For those who inherit the promises, see 11.1–12.3.

6.13–20 Assurance of God's fidelity reinforces the encouraging tone of the previous verses. 6.13 The promise that Abraham would be the father of a great people is repeated in Gen 12.2–3; 15.5; 17.5. In Gen 22.16, God, to confirm the promise, swore an oath on God's own name. 6.14 Gen 22.17. 6.15 On Abraham, see also 11.17–19. 6.17 The first-century Jewish interpreter Philo (On Abraham 273) similarly holds that God took oaths in order to help human beings accept God's promises. 6.18 The two unchangeable things are most likely God's promise and the oath that confirms it. The author may have in mind Ps 2.7, cited in 5.5, as the basic promise and Ps 110.4, cited in 5.6, as the confirming oath. 6.19 The anchor as a symbol of hope is not scripanchor of the soul, a hope that enters the inner shrine behind the curtain, ²⁰where Jesus, a forerunner on our behalf, has entered, having become a high priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.

The Priestly Order of Melchizedek

7 This “King Melchizedek of Salem, priest of the Most High God, met Abraham as he was returning from defeating the kings and blessed him”; ²and to him Abraham apportioned “one-tenth of everything.” His name, in the first place, means “king of righteousness”; next he is also king of Salem, that is, “king of peace.” ³Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but resembling the Son of God, he remains a priest forever.

⁴ See how great he is! Even^d Abraham the patriarch gave him a tenth of the spoils. ⁵And those descendants of Levi who receive the priestly office have a commandment in the law to collect tithes^e from the people, that is, from their kindred,^f though these also are descended from Abraham. ⁶But this man, who does not belong to their ancestry, collected tithes^e from Abraham and blessed him who had received the promises. ⁷It is beyond dispute that the inferior is blessed by the superior. ⁸In the one case, tithes are received by those who are mortal; in the other, by one of whom it is testified that he lives. ⁹One might even say that Levi himself, who receives tithes, paid tithes through Abraham, ¹⁰for he was still in the loins of his ancestor when Melchizedek met him.

¹¹ Now if perfection had been attainable through the levitical priesthood—for the people received the law under this priesthood—what further need would there have been to speak of another priest arising according to the order of Melchizedek, rather than one according to the order of Aaron? ¹²For when there is a change in the priesthood, there is necessarily a change in the law as well. ¹³Now the one of whom these things are spoken belonged to another tribe, from which no one has ever served at the altar. ¹⁴For it is evident that our Lord was descended from Judah, and in connection with that tribe Moses said nothing about priests.

¹⁵ It is even more obvious when another priest arises, resembling Melchizedek, ¹⁶one who has become a priest, not through a legal requirement concerning physical descent, but through the power of an indestructible life. ¹⁷For it is attested of him,

“You are a priest forever,
according to the order of

The imagery anticipates the discussion of the tabernacle in chs. 8–10. To enter into the most sacred space behind the curtain is the right only of the high priest, once yearly, on the most solemn festival of the Day of Atonement. 6.20 Forerunner recalls pioneer in 2.10.

7.1–28 The author explores the significance of applying Ps 110.4 to Christ. In interpreting the psalm, the author relies heavily on the only other reference to Melchizedek in the OT, the account in Gen 14 of his meeting with Abraham. 7.1 See Gen 14.18–19. For the significance of this action, see 7.7. 7.2 One-tenth of everything. Abraham's tithe appears in Gen 14.20. The explanations of the names are understandable but technically incorrect. Melchizedek means not king of righteousness but “Zedek [a Canaanite deity] is my king.” Salem is not “peace” (Hebrew shalom). 7.3 With- out father and other characteristics listed here are deduced from scripture's silence. A priest forever. For eternality as the central feature of the “order of Melchizedek,” see 7.24. 7.5 For the priestly tithe, see Num 18.21–32. 7.8 It is testified that he lives, because the scriptures do not report Melchizedek's death; see 7.3. Some first-century Jewish texts such as the Dead Sea Scrolls (11QMelch) speculate about an angelic Melchizedek, perhaps on similar grounds. 7.11 Perfection involves effective forgiveness of sin; see 9.14; 10.14, 17–18. 7.12 Necessarily suggests that there is an intimate connection between priesthood and covenant law. For other cases of “necessity,” see 8.3; 9.16, 23. 7.13 Another tribe, specified in the next verse, is one distinct from the priestly tribe of Levi. 7.14 As a descendant of David (Mt. 1.1; 9.27; 15.22; Mk 10.47; Lk 1.32; Rom 1.3; 2 Tim 2.8; Rev 22.16), Jesus was of the tribe of Judah. 7.15 What is even more obvious is that a new priest has come in place of the old order. 7.17 Ps

18 There is, on the one hand, the abrogation of an earlier commandment because it was weak and ineffectual 19 (for the law made nothing perfect); there is, on the other hand, the introduction of a better hope, through which we approach God.

20 This was confirmed with an oath; for others who became priests took their office without an oath, 21 but this one became a priest with an oath, because of the one who said to him,

"The Lord has sworn and will not change his mind,
'You are a priest forever' "—

22 accordingly Jesus has also become the guarantee of a better covenant.

23 Furthermore, the former priests were many in number, because they were prevented by death from continuing in office; 24 but he holds his priesthood permanently, because he continues forever. 25 Consequently he is able for all time to save^g those who approach God through him, since he always lives to make intercession for them.

26 For it was fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, blameless, undefiled, separated from sinners, and exalted above the heavens. 27 Unlike the other^h high priests, he has no need to offer sacrifices day after day, first for his own sins, and then for those of the people; this he did once for all when he offered himself. 28 For the law appoints as high priests those who are subject to weakness, but the word of the oath, which came later than the law, appoints a Son who has been made perfect forever.

Mediator of a Better Covenant

8 Now the main point in what we are saying is this: we have such a high priest, one who is seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, 2a minister in the sanctuary and the true tentⁱ that the Lord, and not any mortal, has set up. 3 For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; hence it is necessary for this priest also to have something to offer. 4 Now if he were on earth, he would not be a priest at all, since there are priests who offer gifts according to the law. 5 They offer worship in a sanctuary that is a sketch and shadow of the heavenly one; for Moses, when he was about to erect the tent,ⁱ was warned, "See that you make everything according to the pattern that was shown you on the mountain." 6 But Jesus^j has now obtained a more excellent ministry, and to that degree he is the mediator of a better covenant, which has been enacted through better promises. 7 For if that first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no need to look for a second one.

8 God^k finds fault with them when he says:

110.4. 7.19 That the law made nothing perfect contrasts with the perfect cleansing of conscience effected by Christ; see 9.9; 10.1, 14. Hope is grounded in the forerunner's exaltation; see 6.19–20. His approach to God enables others to follow; see 10.19–22. 7.20 The importance of another oath was indicated in 6.17. 7.21 Ps 110.4. 7.22 Christ is the new covenant's guarantee as one whose status is assured by God's oath. Mention of a better covenant anticipates chs. 8–10. 7.24 That Christ continues forever (see 7.3) reflects Christian claims (Jn 12.34) perhaps based on Ps 89.36. 7.25 For Christ's intercession, see 9.24; Jn 17.9; Rom 8.34; 1 Jn 2.1. 7.26 For Christ as holy, see Ps 16.10 as cited in Acts 2.27; 13.35. The adjectives applied here recall Christ's sinlessness; see 4.15. 7.27 For ordinary high priests, see 5.3. The once for all character of Christ's sacrifice indicates its decisive function; see 9.12, 25–28; 10.10; see also Rom 6.10; 1 Pet

3.18. 7.28 The word of the oath is Ps 110.4, asⁱ in v. 21. It came later than the law since it is in a psalm of David. For a similar argument about relative dating of scriptures, see 4.7; see also Gal 3.17.

8.1–13 The central section of Hebrews, extending to 10.18, begins with a summary of Christ's role as the heavenly high priest and a prophecy of a new covenant. 8.1 Seated at the right hand alludes to Ps 110.1; see Heb 1.3, 13. On Majesty, see 1.3. 8.2 For a heavenly counterpart to the earthly sanctuary, see Wis 9.8; Rev 3.12; 7.15; 11.19; 14.15; 15.5; 1 Enoch 14.10–20; Testament of Levi 3.2–4; 2 Baruch 4.5. 8.5 Ex 25.40. 8.6 Better promises involve effective forgiveness (10.16–18) in the context of an eternal covenant, mediated by an eternal priest (7.20–22). 8.8–12 The citation of Jer 31.31–34 makes several points to be developed in chs. 9–10. 8.8 The promise of a new covenant leads to criticism of the old (8.13; 9.9–10) and to confi-

"The days are surely coming, says the Lord, when I will establish a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah; 9 not like the covenant that I made with their ancestors, on the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; for they did not continue in my covenant, and so I had no concern for them, says the Lord.
 10 This is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord:
 I will put my laws in their minds, and write them on their hearts,
 and I will be their God,
 and they shall be my people.
 11 And they shall not teach one another or say to each other, 'Know the Lord,' for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest.
 12 For I will be merciful toward their iniquities, and I will remember their sins no more."
 13 In speaking of "a new covenant," he has made the first one obsolete. And what is obsolete and growing old will soon disappear.

The Earthly and the Heavenly Sanctuaries

9 Now even the first covenant had regulations for worship and an earthly sanctuary. ²For a tent^l was constructed, the first one, in which were the lampstand, the table, and the bread of the Presence;^m this is called the Holy Place. ³Behind the second curtain was a tent^l called the Holy of Holies. ⁴In it stood the golden altar of incense and the ark of the covenant overlaid on all sides with gold, in which there were a golden urn holding the manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tablets of the covenant; ⁵above it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy seat.ⁿ Of these things we cannot speak now in detail.

6 Such preparations having been made, the priests go continually into the first tent^l to carry out their ritual duties; ⁷but only the high priest goes into the second, and he but once a year, and not without taking the blood that he offers for himself and for the sins committed unintentionally by the people. ⁸By this the Holy Spirit indicates that the way into the sanctuary has not yet been disclosed as long as the first tent^l is still standing. ⁹This is a symbol^o of the present time, during which gifts and sacrifices are offered that cannot perfect the conscience of the worshiper, ¹⁰but deal only with food and drink and various baptisms, regulations for the body imposed until the time comes to set things right.

11 But when Christ came as a high priest of the good things that have come,^p then through the greater and dence in what Christ made available (10.19-22). 8.12 That God will remember their sins no more is central to the new covenant; see 10.17-18.

9.1-22 The author reflects on the themes of ch. 8 and considers how Christ's "heavenly" sacrifice inaugurates a new covenant. 9.1 The description of the earthly sanctuary relies on the accounts of the desert tabernacle in Ex 25.1-31.11; 36.1-40.38, with some modifications. 9.2 For the lampstand, see Ex 25.31-39; 37.17-24; 40.4; for the table, Ex 25.23-28; 37.10-15; 40.4; for the bread, Ex 25.30; 40.23; Mt 12.4. 9.4 For the altar of incense, see Ex 30.1-10; 37.25-28; 40.5; for the ark, see Ex 25.10-15; 37.1-5; 40.3; for the manna, Ex 16.33-34; for

Aaron's rod, Num 17.1-11; for the tablets of the covenant, Ex 25.16. 9.5 For the cherubim and mercy seat, see Ex 25.17-22; 37.6-9. 9.6 Ritual duties included trimming lamps (Ex 27.20-21) and placing rows of "showbread" (Lev 24.5-9). 9.7 Once a year, i.e., on the Day of Atonement, as specified in Lev 16.29-34. On the blood of the sin offering, see Lev 16.11-19. It is alluded to again in Heb 9.12. 9.8 The way to where God dwells is opened by Christ; see 10.9-20. The first, or outer, tent stands for the whole cultic system. 9.10 Concern with food reappears in 13.9. Baptisms are here cleansing rituals; cf. 6.2. The time to set things right came with the inauguration of the new covenant. 9.11 The greater and perfect tent is perfect^q tent^r (not made with hands, that is, not of this creation), ¹²he entered once for all into the Holy Place, not with the blood of goats and calves, but with his own blood, thus obtaining eternal redemption. ¹³For if the blood of goats and bulls, with the sprinkling of the ashes of a heifer, sanctifies those who have been defiled so that their flesh is purified, ¹⁴how much more will the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit^s offered himself without blemish to God, purify our^t conscience from dead works to worship the living God!

¹⁵ For this reason he is the mediator of a new covenant, so that those who are called may receive the promised eternal inheritance, because a death has occurred that redeems them from the transgressions under the first covenant.^u ¹⁶Where a will^u is involved, the death of the one who made it must be established. ¹⁷For a will^u takes effect only at death, since it is not in force as long as the one who made it is alive. ¹⁸Hence not even the first covenant was inaugurated without blood. ¹⁹For when every commandment had been told to all the people by Moses in accordance with the law, he took the blood of calves and goats,^v with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the scroll itself and all the people, ²⁰saying, "This is the blood of the covenant that God has ordained for you." ²¹And in the same way he sprinkled with the blood both the tent^r and all the vessels used in worship. ²²Indeed, under the law almost everything is purified with blood, and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness of sins.

Christ's Sacrifice Takes Away Sin

²³ Thus it was necessary for the sketches of the heavenly things to be purified with these rites, but the heavenly things themselves need better sacrifices than these. ²⁴For Christ did not enter a sanctuary made by human hands, a mere copy of the true one, but he entered into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God on our behalf. ²⁵Nor was it to offer himself again and again, as the high priest enters the Holy Place year after year with blood that is not his own; ²⁶for then he would have had to suffer again and again since the foundation of the world. But as it is, he has appeared once for all at the end of the age to remove sin by the sacrifice of himself. ²⁷And just as it is appointed for mortals to die once, and after that the judgment, ²⁸so Christ, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, will appear a second time, not to deal with sin, but to save those who are eagerly waiting for him.

The disdainful tone imitates prophetic criticism of the sacrificial system; see Ps 50.13; Isa 1.11. 9.13 The ashes of a heifer were used in purifying rituals; see Num 19. 9.14 Eternal Spirit probably refers not to the Holy Spirit (and probably should not be capitalized) but to the spiritual aspect of Christ's sacrifice, which stands in contrast to the sacrifices of the Jewish cult. Human conscience is the inner sanctuary where Christ's atoning sacrifice has its effect; see 8.10. For similar affirmations of the cleansing effect of Christ's death, see Acts 15.9; Eph 5.26; Titus 2.14; 1 Pet 3.21; 1 Jn 1.7, 9. Dead works are sins (see 6.1) and contrast with deeds of love (10.24). Worship involves Christian prayer (13.15), but also the "sacrifices" of good works (10.24; 13.6). 9.15 For Christians as called, see Rom 1.6; 1 Cor 1.2; Jude 1; Rev 17.14. On inheritance, see also 1.14; 6.12, 17. 9.15–17 Covenant, will. For a similar word-play (see text note u), see Gal 3.15–18. 9.18 The sacrifice concluding the covenant's ratification in Ex 24.3–8 foreshadows Christ's death. 9.19 Various rituals are conflated. For water and hyssop, see Num 19.9, 18, 20. For scarlet wool, see Lev 14.2–6. 9.20 Ex 24.8.

9.23–28 Further consideration of Christ's sacrifice emphasizes its unique character. 9.23 Heavenly things probably symbolize the consciences (9.14) of the faithful. 9.24 For Christ's entry into heaven, see 4.14; 8.1–2; 9.11–12. On our behalf reemphasizes Christ's intercessory role; see 7.25. 9.25 Year after year recalls the high priest's action on the annual Day of Atonement; see 9.7. For the blood, see 9.12–14. 9.26 For the once for all quality of Christ's sacrifice, see 7.27; 9.12; 10.10. 9.27 The notion of final judgment (Dan 7.26; Mt 25.31–46; 2 Thess 2.12; Rev 20.12) is applied to the individual. 9.28 For the sins of many, see Isa 53.12; Mk 10.45; Rom 5.19. Christ's coming a second time was a common expectation; see Mk 13.24–27; Acts 1.10–11; 1 Cor 15.23–24; Rev 1.7.

Christ's Sacrifice Once for All

10 Since the law has only a shadow of the good things to come and not the true form of these realities, it^w can never, by the same sacrifices that are continually offered year after year, make perfect those who approach. ²Otherwise, would they not have ceased being offered, since the worshipers, cleansed once for all, would no longer have any consciousness of sin? ³But in these sacrifices there is a reminder of sin year after year. ⁴For it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins. ⁵Consequently, when Christ^x came into the world, he said,

"Sacrifices and offerings you have not desired,
but a body you have prepared for me;

⁶ in burnt offerings and sin offerings you have taken no pleasure.

⁷ Then I said, 'See, God, I have come to do your will,
O God'

(in the scroll of the book^y it is written of me)."

⁸When he said above, "You have neither desired nor taken pleasure in sacrifices and offerings and burnt offerings and sin offerings" (these are offered according to the law), ⁹then he added, "See, I have come to do your will." He abolishes the first in order to establish the second.

¹⁰And it is by God's will^z that we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

¹¹ And every priest stands day after day at his service, offering again and again the same sacrifices that can never take away sins. ¹²But when Christ^a had offered for all time a single sacrifice for sins, "he sat down at the right hand of God," ¹³and since then has been waiting "until his enemies would be made a footstool for his feet." ¹⁴For by a single offering he has perfected for all time those who are sanctified. ¹⁵And the Holy Spirit also testifies to us, for after saying,

¹⁶ "This is the covenant that I will make with them
after those days, says the Lord:
I will put my laws in their hearts, and I will write them on their minds,"

¹⁷he also adds,

"I will remember^b their sins and their lawless deeds no

10.1–18 A final reflection on Christ's sacrifice indicates how it inaugurated Jeremiah's promised covenant: as an act of conformity to God's will. 10.1 For the old as a shadow of the heavenly, see 8.5. That the law was unable to make perfect was argued in 7.11, 19. 10.3 For year after year, see 9.7, 25. 10.4 For bulls and goats, see 9.12–13. 10.5a The world, not some heavenly realm, is where Christ made his decisive sacrifice. 10.5b–7 Ps 40.6–8. Similar sentiments appear in 1 Sam 15.22; Pss 50.8–15; 51.16–19; Isa 1.10–17; Jer 7.21–26; Hos 6.6. For other OT passages attributed to Christ, see 2.12–13. 10.5b The reading body you have prepared follows the Septuagint. 10.9 Real sacrifice is conformity to the will of God. 10.10 On God's will that believers be sanctified, see 1 Thess 4.3. The composite name Jesus Christ here appears for the first time in Hebrews (see also 13.8), probably to emphasize that Christ's obedience to God's will involved his whole being, including his body

(see 10.5b). For the name Jesus alone, see 2.9; 3.1; cf. 4.14. 10.11 The weakness of the old cult is emphasized for the last time; see 7.11, 19; 9.9–10; 10.1–4. 10.12 Ps 110.1, last encountered in 8.1. 10.13 For this portion of Ps 110.1, see 1.13. The full effects of Christ's sacrifice are yet to be felt. 10.14 That Christ's death, which made him perfect (2.10; 5.9; 7.28), has perfected worshipers is the key point of contrast with old sacrifices; see 7.19; 9.9; 10.1. 10.15 For the testimony of the Holy Spirit, see 3.7. 10.16 A modified citation of Jer 31.33, cited in 8.10. Here with them replaces "the house of Israel." 10.17 Jer 31.34b, cited in 8.12, here with the addition of and their lawless deeds.

10.19–39 The author applies the reflections on Christ to the audience, emphasizing faith (v. 22), hope (v. 23), and love (v. 24). For the triad, see 1 Cor 13.13. 10.19 For the recommended confidence, see 3.6; 4.16. 10.20 On the opening of the new . . . way, see 9.8. In Acts, Christianity is ing way that he opened for us through the curtain (that is, through his flesh), ²¹and since we have a great priest over the house of God, ²²let us approach with a true heart in full assurance of faith, with our hearts sprinkled clean from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water. ²³Let us hold fast to the confession of our hope without wavering, for he who has promised is faithful. ²⁴And let us consider how to provoke one another to love and good deeds, ²⁵not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another, and all the more as you see the Day approaching.

²⁶ For if we willfully persist in sin after having received the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins, ²⁷but a fearful prospect of judgment, and a fury of fire that will consume the adversaries. ²⁸Anyone who has violated the law of Moses dies without mercy “on the testimony of two or three witnesses.” ²⁹How much worse punishment do you think will be deserved by those who have spurned the Son of God, profaned the blood of the covenant by which they were sanctified, and outraged the Spirit of grace? ³⁰For we know the one who said, “Vengeance is mine, I will repay.” And again, “The Lord will judge his people.” ³¹It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

³² But recall those earlier days when,

after you had been enlightened, you endured a hard struggle with sufferings, ³³sometimes being publicly exposed to abuse and persecution, and sometimes being partners with those so treated. ³⁴For you had compassion for those who were in prison, and you cheerfully accepted the plundering of your possessions, knowing that you yourselves possessed something better and more lasting. ³⁵Do not, therefore, abandon that confidence of yours; it brings a great reward. ³⁶For you need endurance, so that when you have done the will of God, you may receive what was promised. ³⁷For yet

the one who is coming will come and will not delay;

³⁸ but my righteous one will live by faith.

My soul takes no pleasure in anyone who shrinks back.”

³⁹But we are not among those who shrink back and so are lost, but among those who have faith and so are saved.

The Meaning of Faith

11 Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen. ²Indeed, by faith^d our ancestors received approval. ³By faith we understand that the worlds were pre-called the “Way”; see Acts 9.2; 18.25; 24.14. The curtain (6.19; 9.3) through which the high priest passes (9.7) to approach God’s presence is identified with Christ’s flesh, a synonym for his “body” (10.10). 10.21 For the high priest and house of God, see 3.1–6. 10.22 For cultic approach, see 4.16. The reference to hearts being sprinkled recalls 9.13–14 and perhaps Ezek 36.25–26. 10.23 For holding to the confession, see 3.1–6; 4.14. On hope, see 3.6. For God being faithful, see Deut 7.9; Ps 145.13. 10.24 For more loving deeds, see 13.1–16. 10.25 Israelite prophets (Isa 2.12; Joel 1.15; 3.14; Am 5.18; 8.9; Zeph 1.14; Zech 14.1) expected the Day of the Lord, as did early Christians; see Mt 10.15; 1 Cor 1.8; 3.13; 5.5; 2 Cor 1.14; 1 Thess 5.2, 4; 2 Thess 2.2; 2 Pet 3.10; 1 Jn 4.17. 10.26 Stern language repeats the warning of 6.4–8. 10.27 For consuming fire, see Isa 26.11; 66.15–16, 24; Zeph 1.18; 2 Thess 1.7–8; Rev 11.5; 20.14. 10.28 Anyone generalizes from the punishment for cases such as blasphemy (Lev 24.14–16) or idolatry (Deut 17.2–5). Hab 2.4 is also cited in Rom 1.17; Gal 3.11. The one who is coming, i.e., Christ.

11.1–3 The definition of faith, which involves both belief and fidelity, is compact and evocative. 11.1 The word translated by assurance (Greek hypostasis) appears in 1.3, where it is translated very being, and in 3.14, where it is translated confidence. Conviction is not simply a subjective attitude; unseen realities are tested and “proved” by experience. The following catalogue provides biblical examples of such experiences. Hopes and things not seen are paralleled in Rom 8.24. 11.3 The plural worlds appears in 1.2. For cre-

pared by the word of God, so that what is seen was made from things that are not visible.^e

The Examples of Abel, Enoch, and Noah

4 By faith Abel offered to God a more acceptable^f sacrifice than Cain's. Through this he received approval as righteous, God himself giving approval to his gifts; he died, but through his faith^g he still speaks. 5 By faith Enoch was taken so that he did not experience death; and "he was not found, because God had taken him." For it was attested before he was taken away that "he had pleased God." 6 And without faith it is impossible to please God, for whoever would approach him must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him. 7 By faith Noah, warned by God about events as yet unseen, respected the warning and built an ark to save his household; by this he condemned the world and became an heir to the righteousness that is in accordance with faith.

The Faith of Abraham

8 By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to set out for a place that he was to receive as an inheritance; and he set out, not knowing where he was going. 9 By faith he stayed for a time in the land he had been promised, as in a foreign land, living in tents, as did Isaac and Jacob, who were heirs with him of the same promise. 10 For he looked forward to the city that has foundations, whose architect and builder is God. 11 By faith he received power of procreation, even though he was too old—and Sarah herself was barren—because he considered him faithful who had promised.^h 12 Therefore from one person, and this one as good as dead, descendants were born, "as many as the stars of heaven and as the innumerable grains of sand by the seashore."

13 All of these died in faith without having received the promises, but from a distance they saw and greeted them. They confessed that they were strangers and foreigners on the earth, 14 for people who speak in this way make it clear that they are seeking a homeland. 15 If they had been thinking of the land that they had left behind, they would have had opportunity to return. 16 But as it is, they desire a better country, that is, a heavenly one. Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God; indeed, he has prepared a city for them.

17 By faith Abraham, when put to the test, offered up Isaac. He who had received the promises was ready to offer up his only son, 18 of whom he had been told, "It is through Isaac that descendants shall be named for you." 19 He considered the fact that God is able even to raise someone from the dead—and figuratively speaking, he did receive him back. 20 By faith Isaac invoked blessings for the future on

The Faith of Moses

²³ By faith Moses was hidden by his parents for three months after his birth, because they saw that the child was beautiful; and they were not afraid of the king's edict.^j ²⁴By faith Moses, when he was grown up, refused to be called a son of Pharaoh's daughter, ²⁵choosing rather to share ill-treatment with the people of God than to enjoy the fleeting pleasures of sin. ²⁶He considered abuse suffered for the Christ^k to be greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking ahead to the reward. ²⁷By faith he left Egypt, unafraid of the king's anger; for he persevered as though^l he saw him who is invisible. ²⁸By faith he kept the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, so that the destroyer of the firstborn would not touch the firstborn of Israel.^m

The Faith of Other Israelite Heroes

²⁹ By faith the people passed through the Red Sea as if it were dry land, but when the Egyptians attempted to do so they were drowned. ³⁰By faith the walls of Jericho fell after they had been encircled for seven days. ³¹By faith Rahab the prostitute did not perish with those who were disobedient,ⁿ because she had received the spies in peace.

³² And what more should I say? For time would fail me to tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, of David and Samuel and the prophets— ³³who through faith conquered kingdoms, administered justice, obtained promises, shut the mouths of lions, ³⁴quenched raging fire, escaped the edge of the sword, won strength out of weakness, became mighty in war, put foreign armies to flight. ³⁵Women received their dead by resurrection. Others were tortured, refusing to accept release, in order to obtain a better resurrection. ³⁶Others suffered mocking and flogging, and even chains and imprisonment. ³⁷They were stoned to death, they were sawn in two,^o they were killed by the sword; they went about in skins of sheep and goats, destitute, persecuted, tormented— ³⁸of whom the world was not worthy. They wandered in deserts and mountains, and in caves and holes in the ground.

A connection between Moses and Christ could be based on Deut 18.15–20, cited in Acts 3.22–23, which speaks of a "prophet like Moses" who is to come. 11.27 Moses left Egypt for Midian in Ex 2.15; see also Acts 7.29. ceive what was promised, ⁴⁰since God had provided something better so that they would not, apart from us, be made perfect.

The Example of Jesus

12 Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us also lay aside every weight and the sin that clings so closely,^p and let us run with perseverance the race that is set before us, ²looking to Jesus the pioneer and perfecter of our faith, who for the sake of^q the joy that was set before him endured the cross, disregarding its shame, and has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of God.

³ Consider him who endured such hostility against himself from sinners,^r so that you may not grow weary or lose heart. ⁴In your struggle against sin you have not yet resisted to the point of shedding your blood. ⁵And you have forgotten the exhortation that addresses you as children —

“My child, do not regard lightly the discipline of the Lord, or lose heart when you are punished by him;

⁶ for the Lord disciplines those whom he loves, and chastises every child whom he accepts.”

⁷Endure trials for the sake of discipline. God is treating you as children; for what child is there whom a parent does not discipline? ⁸If you do not have that discipline in which all children share, then you are illegitimate and not his children.

⁹Moreover, we had human parents to discipline us, and we respected them. Should we not be even more willing to be subject to the Father of spirits and live? ¹⁰For they disciplined us for a short time as seemed best to them, but he disciplines us for our good, in order that we may share his holiness. ¹¹Now, discipline always seems painful rather than pleasant at the time, but later it yields the peaceful fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it.

¹² Therefore lift your drooping hands and strengthen your weak knees, ¹³and make straight paths for your feet, so that what is lame may not be put out of joint, but rather be healed.

Warnings Against Rejecting God's Grace

¹⁴ Pursue peace with everyone, and the holiness without which no one will see the Lord. ¹⁵See to it that no one fails to obtain the grace of God; that no root of bitterness springs up and causes trouble, and through it many become defiled. ¹⁶See to it that no one becomes like Esau, an immoral and godless person, who sold his birthright for a single meal. ¹⁷You know that later, when he wanted to inherit the blessing, he was rejected, for he found no chance to repent,^s even though he sought the blessing^t with tears.

12.1–13 Jesus is the prime example of the faithful endurance to which the audience is called (10.36). 12.1 For the image of the race, see Acts 20.24; 1 Cor 9.24–27; Gal 2.2; Phil 2.16; 2 Tim 4.7. 12.2 For Jesus as pioneer, see 2.10. The perfecter of faith is the one who was perfected by suffering (2.10; 5.8–9; 7.28). Taken his seat, the last allusion to Ps 110.1; see Heb 1.3, 13; 8.1; 10.12. 12.4 The struggle is now described with imagery that may evoke a boxing match or a military conflict. 12.5–6 Prov 3.11–12, in its septuagintal form. 12.7 For suffering as divine discipline, see Prov 6.23; 2 Macc 6.12–17; 2 Cor 6.9; Eph 6.4. 12.9 The description of God as Father of spirits resembles traditional expressions for God's sovereignty over the world of spirits; see 2 Macc 3.24; Rev 22.6; 1 Enoch 37.2–4; 38.4; 39.2, 7.

12.12 Drooping hands and weak knees derive from Isa 35.3. 12.13 For the call to make straight paths, see Prov 4.26. The promise to be healed may echo Prov 4.22.

12.14–29 A final warning. 12.14 Admonitions to pursue peace are common; see, e.g., Ps 34.14, cited in 1 Pet 3.11. Pursuit of peace as a means to see the Lord recalls the Beatitudes of Mt 5.8–9. 12.15 The root of bitterness, inspired by Deut 29.18; is probably idolatry or apostasy. 12.16 On Esau's sale of his birthright, see Gen 25.29–34. 12.17 Esau may have sought the blessing as the translation suggests, but the Greek is ambiguous (see text note t) and the author may be suggesting that Esau sought repentance, which was not open to him. For the denial of the possibility of second repentance, see 6.4–8; 10.26–31.

18 You have not come to something^u that can be touched, a blazing fire, and darkness, and gloom, and a tempest, and the sound of a trumpet, and a voice whose words made the hearers beg that not another word be spoken to them.²⁰ (For they could not endure the order that was given, "If even an animal touches the mountain, it shall be stoned to death.")²¹ Indeed, so terrifying was the sight that Moses said, "I tremble with fear.")²² But you have come to Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to innumerable angels in festal gathering,²³ and to the assembly^v of the firstborn who are enrolled in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of the righteous made perfect,²⁴ and to Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood that speaks a better word than the blood of Abel.

25 See that you do not refuse the one who is speaking; for if they did not escape when they refused the one who warned them on earth, how much less will we escape if we reject the one who warns from heaven!²⁶ At that time his voice shook the earth; but now he has promised, "Yet once more I will shake not only the earth but also the heaven."²⁷ This phrase, "Yet once more," indicates the removal of what is shaken—that is, created things—so that what cannot be shaken may remain.²⁸ Therefore, since we are receiving a kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us give thanks, by which we offer to God an acceptable worship with reverence and awe;²⁹ for indeed our God is a consuming fire.

Service Well-Pleasing to God

13 Let mutual love continue.² Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for by doing that some have entertained angels without knowing it.³ Remember those who are in prison, as though you were in prison with them; those who are being tortured, as though you yourselves were being tortured.⁴ Let marriage be held in honor by all, and let the marriage bed be kept undefiled; for God will judge fornicators and adulterers.⁵ Keep your lives free from the love of money, and be content with what you have; for he has said, "I will never leave you or forsake you."⁶ So we can say with confidence,

"The Lord is my helper;

I will not be afraid.

What can anyone do to me?"

teachings; for it is well for the heart to be strengthened by grace, not by regulations about food,^x which have not benefited those who observe them. ¹⁰We have an altar from which those who officiate in the tent^y have no right to eat. ¹¹For the bodies of those animals whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest as a sacrifice for sin are burned outside the camp. ¹²Therefore Jesus also suffered outside the city gate in order to sanctify the people by his own blood. ¹³Let us then go to him outside the camp and bear the abuse he endured. ¹⁴For here we have no lasting city, but we are looking for the city that is to come. ¹⁵Through him, then, let us continually offer a sacrifice of praise to God, that is, the fruit of lips that confess his name. ¹⁶Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have, for such sacrifices are pleasing to God.

¹⁷ Obey your leaders and submit to them, for they are keeping watch over your souls and will give an account. Let them do this with joy and not with sighing—for that would be harmful to you.

¹⁸ Pray for us; we are sure that we have a clear conscience, desiring to act honorably in all things. ¹⁹I urge you all the more to do this, so that I may be restored to you very soon.

THE LETTER OF JAMES

THE LETTER OF JAMES was accepted as scripture by the church in Alexandria in the third century C.E., by the Western church in the fourth century, and by the Syrian church in the fifth century. Thereafter it has remained in the NT canon of all churches, though at the time of the Reformation Martin Luther questioned its status because it appeared to contradict Paul's teaching on justification by faith, which Luther held to be of central importance.

Author, Date, and Place

The "James" of the opening address has traditionally been identified as James the brother of Jesus (Gal. 1.19), who became the leader of the church in Jerusalem (Acts 15.13; 21.18) and who was martyred during the years before the outbreak of the Jewish War of 66–70 C.E. His loyalty to the Jewish law would explain the high importance attached to law in the letter (1.25; 2.8–12; 4.11–12). However, the memory of James was widely revered in the early church, and his name may have been used by another writer to give authority to his teaching.

If the letter is by James of Jerusalem, then it was written in Palestine before 70 C.E. Its lack of sophisticated theology, its practical OT morality, and its echoes of the teachings of Jesus, probably drawn from oral tradition, would all be consistent with an early, Palestinian origin. References to agriculture and climate in 5.7 might also place it in Syria, while it was in Egypt that it was first treated as scripture. Similarities have also been observed between the Letter and other early Christian documents that come from Rome like 1 Peter, 1 Clement, and the Shepherd of Hermas. The very general nature of its contents makes it difficult to attach it positively to a specific time and place.

Style and Genre

The author writes in Greek with grammatical accuracy and some elegance. He has a wide vocabulary, including many words not found elsewhere in the NT, some of which he may have coined himself; and he has a feel for the rhythm and sound of words. He makes clear and effective allusions to the Septuagint, but some of his imagery is drawn from the nonbiblical Hellenistic world. The document opens with greetings, but it has no comparable ending; it is a letter in literary form only, not a real piece of correspondence. It has been described as Christian wisdom literature because, like Proverbs or Sirach, it is concerned with ethical teaching and often seems to string together unrelated admonitions.

Readers

The author presupposes a real audience. He writes of a community that has its own leaders: "elders" (5.14) and "teachers" (3.1). His antagonism toward the rich (1.10–11; 2.6–7; 4.13–17; 5.1–6) suggests that most members of the community were poor or disadvantaged. His address to them as "the twelve tribes in the Dispersion" (1.1), his reference to their meeting in or as a "synagogue" (2.2), and his appeals to the status of law and the affirmation of the one God (2.19) might indicate that they were Jewish Christians; but there is no concern with characteristic marks of Judaism like circumcision, the sabbath, or food laws. They may have been drawn from the "God-fearers," non-Jews who were attracted to the monotheism and morality of Judaism without becoming full proselytes (see, e.g., Acts 10.2; 13.16; 16.14; 17.4). The author finds it necessary to correct a misuse of Paul's teaching (2.14–26) and thus shows that different interpretations of Christianity were already current. He and his readers represent a Christianity that emphasized prayer and morality and was loyal to the teachings of Jesus, calling him Lord and looking for his return. Sophie Laws

Salutation

1 James, a servant^a of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ,
To the twelve tribes in the Dispersion: Greetings.

Active and Tested Faith

2 My brothers and sisters,^b whenever you face trials of any kind, consider it nothing but joy, ³because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance; ⁴and let endurance have its full effect, so that you may be mature and complete, lacking in nothing.

5 If any of you is lacking in wisdom, ask God, who gives to all generously and ungrudgingly, and it will be given you. ⁶But ask in faith, never doubting, for the one who doubts is like a wave of the sea, driven and tossed by the wind; 7. ⁸for the

1.1 This is unlikely to be an address to Jews, since the historical twelve tribes ceased to exist after the invasion of the kingdom of Israel by Assyria in 721 B.C.E. Probably James is addressing Christians as the new, or true, Israel (see 1 Pet 2.9–10). For Jews the Dispersion meant the Jewish people living outside Palestine, but Christians might also see themselves as strangers in their world (1 Pet 2.11).

1.2–27 The first chapter consists of a series of exhortations, more or less loosely connected, on aspects of religion and morality. 1.2–4 A similar pattern of ethical teaching, where one virtue leads on to another, is found in Rom 5.3–4; 1 Pet 1.6–7. 1.5 James echoes the teaching of Jesus in Mt 7.7–11 and Lk 11.9–13, though instead of Matthew's "good things" or Luke's "Holy Spirit" he specifies wisdom as the object of prayer doubter, being double-minded and unstable in every way, must not expect to receive anything from the Lord.

9 Let the believer^c who is lowly boast in being raised up, ¹⁰and the rich in being brought low, because the rich will disappear like a flower in the field. ¹¹For the sun rises with its scorching heat and withers the field; its flower falls, and its beauty perishes. It is the same way with the rich; in the midst of a busy life, they will wither away.

12 Blessed is anyone who endures temptation. Such a one has stood the test and will receive the crown of life that the Lord^d has promised to those who love him. ¹³No one, when tempted, should say, "I am being tempted by God"; for God cannot be tempted by evil and he himself tempts no one. ¹⁴But one is tempted by one's own desire, being lured and enticed by it; ¹⁵then, when that desire has conceived, it gives birth to sin, and that sin, when it is fully grown, gives birth to death. ¹⁶Do not be deceived, my beloved.^e

17 Every generous act of giving, with every perfect gift, is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation or shadow due to change.^f ¹⁸In fulfillment of his own purpose he gave us birth by the word of truth, so that we would become a kind of first fruits of his creatures.

19 You must understand this, my beloved:^g let everyone be quick to listen, slow to speak, slow to anger; ²⁰for your anger does not produce God's righteousness. ²¹Therefore rid yourselves of all sordidness and rank growth of wickedness, and welcome with meekness the implanted word that has the power to save your souls.

22 But be doers of the word, and not merely hearers who deceive themselves. ²³For if any are hearers of the word and not doers, they are like those who look at themselves^g in a mirror; ²⁴for they look at themselves and, on going away, immediately forget what they were like. ²⁵But those who look into the perfect law, the law of liberty, and persevere, being not hearers who forget but doers who act—they will be blessed in their doing.

26 If any think they are religious, and do not bridle their tongues but deceive their hearts, their religion is worthless. ²⁷Religion that is pure and undefiled before God, the Father, is this: to care for orphans and widows in their distress, and to keep oneself unstained by the world.

Warning Against Partiality

2 My brothers and sisters,^h do you with your acts of favoritism really believe in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ?ⁱ

c Gk brother d Gk he; other ancient authorities read God e Gk my beloved brothers f Other ancient authorities read variation due to a shadow of turning g Gk at the face of his birth h Gk My brothers i Or hold the faith of our glorious Lord Jesus Christ without acts of favoritism

(see also Jas 3.13–18). 1.8 Double-minded is an unusual word, perhaps expressing the Jewish idea of competing impulses, for good and evil, in the human personality (see also 4.8). For another explanation of unanswered prayer, see 4.3.

1.9–10 The contrast between the humble believer and the doomed rich seems to assume that a rich person cannot also be a believer (see also 2.6–7; 5.1–6; cf. 1 Tim 6.17–19). 1.10 Flower in the field. See Isa 40.6–8. 1.12–14 The same words are used in Greek for trial as an external test (see 1.2) and trial as temptation, an internal prompting. 1.17 The lights are stars or angels; see 5.4. Variation, shadow, and change are terms in Greek astronomy. 1.18 The reference could be to the creation of humankind by the word of God (see Gen 1.26) or more probably to the re-birth of Christians by the word of the gospel; see Jn 3.3–7; Titus 3.5; 1 Pet 1.3, 23. 1.21 The implanted word is the gospel. The phrase may derive from the Stoic idea of reason as an indwelling, material power linking each person with the universe.

1.25 Law of liberty. See also 2.12. Jewish teachers also argued that the law is not a constraint, but rather gives true freedom. 1.26 Bridle their tongues. See also 3.2–5. 1.27 In the OT orphans and widows are the objects of special care, both human and divine; see Ex 22.22–24; Ps 68.5. Where 2 Pet 2.20 thinks of contamination by the physical world in terms of sexual vice, James thinks of corruption by selfish worldly values; see also 4.4.

2.1–7 James probably draws his example of partiality from actual experience. 2.1 Favoritism is frequently condemned in the OT (see Lev 19.15; Ps 82.2) and seen to be wholly contrary to God's character (Job 34.17–19; see also Acts 10.34). The reference to Jesus Christ comes in a very awkward Greek construction; the name may have been inserted into an original reference to God. Another translation of the phrase could be "our Lord Jesus Christ, the glory" (see Jn 1.14; 2 Cor 4.6; Heb ²For if a person with gold rings and in fine clothes comes into your assembly, and if a poor person in dirty clothes also comes in, ³and if you take notice of the one wearing the fine clothes and say, "Have a seat here, please," while to the one who is poor you say, "Stand there," or, "Sit at my feet,"^j ⁴have you not made distinctions among yourselves, and become judges with evil thoughts? ⁵Listen, my beloved brothers and sisters.^k Has not God chosen the poor in the world to be rich in faith and to be heirs of the kingdom that he has promised to those who love him? ⁶But you have dishonored the poor. Is it not the rich who oppress you? Is it not they who drag you into court? ⁷Is it not they who blaspheme the excellent name that was invoked over you?

Fulfilling the Law

⁸ You do well if you really fulfill the royal law according to the scripture, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." ⁹But if you show partiality, you commit sin and are convicted by the law as transgressors. ¹⁰For whoever keeps the whole law but fails in one point has become accountable for all of it. ¹¹For the one who said, "You shall not commit adultery," also said, "You shall not murder." Now if you do not commit adultery but if you murder, you have become a transgressor of the law. ¹²So speak and so act as those who are to be judged by the law of liberty. ¹³For judgment will be without mercy to anyone who has shown no mercy; mercy triumphs over judgment.

Faith Without Works Is Dead

¹⁴ What good is it, my brothers and sisters,^k if you say you have faith but do not have works? Can faith save you? ¹⁵If a brother or sister is naked and lacks daily food, ¹⁶and one of you says to them, "Go in peace; keep warm and eat your fill," and yet you do not supply their bodily needs, what is the good of that? ¹⁷So faith by itself, if it has no works, is dead.

¹⁸ But someone will say, "You have faith and I have works." Show me your faith apart from your works, and I by my works will show you my faith. ¹⁹You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe—and shudder. ²⁰Do you want to be shown, you senseless person, that faith apart from works is barren? ²¹Was not our ancestor Abraham justified by works when he offered his son Isaac on the altar? ²²You see that faith was active along with his works, and faith was brought to completion by the works. ²³Thus the scripture was fulfilled that

j Gk Sit under my footstool k Gk brothers

1.3). 2.2 The rich person is probably a visitor to the Christian meeting rather than a regular member; the gold rings may indicate the person's status in the Roman social order. The Greek word for assembly is also used for "synagogue," perhaps indicating the Jewish-Christian character of this community. 2.5 This verse may echo Jesus' blessing on the poor; see Mt 5.3; Lk 6.20. 2.6 It would not at this time have been a crime under Roman law to profess the Christian faith, but Christians may have been taken into court because of allegations made against them by hostile fellow citizens; see, e.g., 1 Pet 3.15–17; 4.14–16. 2.7 Christians were baptized in the name of Jesus (see Acts 2.38; 1 Cor 6.11), which was probably invoked over them as part of the baptismal ritual.

2.8–13 James now turns to the importance of consistency in obedience to God's law. 2.8 Jesus identified Lev 19.18 as the second commandment (Mt 22.39; Mk 12.31; see also Lk 10.27). It may be called royal law because of the importance he gave to it or because it was seen as the law of the kingdom he preached. 2.10–11 Jews would accept that their law must be kept whole and entire, and

Paul uses this principle to warn the Galatians against Judaizing (Gal 5.3). James cites only the Decalogue (Ex 20.13–14; Deut 5.17–18), which suggests that he may have a limited view of the "whole law."

2.14–26 James's contrast of faith and works clearly recalls Paul's arguments in Rom 3.19–5.1; Gal 2.15–3.24, but James, unlike Paul, thinks of works of charity, not works of obedience to the Jewish law. 2.16 The verbs keep warm and eat your fill are passive in Greek, expressing a pious belief that God will relieve the needs of the poor. 2.19 God is one is the central statement of Jewish faith; see Deut 6.4. The demons' belief includes the knowledge that the one God is their enemy (see Mk 1.23–24); hence they shudder, a verb used in magical texts for the effect of an exorcism. 2.21 Gen 22.1–19; Paul demonstrates the faith of Abraham from his acceptance of God's promise rather than from his willingness to sacrifice Isaac (see Rom 4; Gal 3.6–18). 2.23 Gen 15.6, quoted by Paul in Rom 4.9; Gal 3.6. The expression friend of God for Abraham, suggested by Isa 41.8, became popular in later says, "Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness," and he was called the friend of God. ²⁴You see that a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. ²⁵Likewise, was not Rahab the prostitute also justified by works when she welcomed the messengers and sent them out by another road? ²⁶For just as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is also dead.

Taming the Tongue

3 Not many of you should become teachers, my brothers and sisters,¹ for you know that we who teach will be judged with greater strictness. ²For all of us make many mistakes. Anyone who makes no mistakes in speaking is perfect, able to keep the whole body in check with a bridle. ³If we put bits into the mouths of horses to make them obey us, we guide their whole bodies. ⁴Or look at ships: though they are so large that it takes strong winds to drive them, yet they are guided by a very small rudder wherever the will of the pilot directs. ⁵So also the tongue is a small member, yet it boasts of great exploits.

How great a forest is set ablaze by a small fire! ⁶And the tongue is a fire. The tongue is placed among our members as a world of iniquity; it stains the whole body, sets on fire the cycle of nature,^m and is itself set on fire by hell.ⁿ ⁷For every species of beast and bird, of reptile and sea creature, can be tamed and has been tamed by the human species,⁸ but no one can tame the tongue—a restless evil, full of deadly poison. ⁹With it we bless the Lord and Father, and with it we curse those who are made in the likeness of God. ¹⁰From the same mouth come blessing and cursing. My brothers and sisters,^o this ought not to be so. ¹¹Does a spring pour forth from the same opening both fresh and brackish water? ¹²Can a fig tree, my brothers and sisters,^p yield olives, or a grapevine figs? No more can salt water yield fresh.

Two Kinds of Wisdom

13 Who is wise and understanding among you? Show by your good life that your works are done with gentleness born of wisdom. ¹⁴But if you have bitter envy and selfish ambition in your hearts, do not be boastful and false to the truth. ¹⁵Such wisdom does not come down from above, but is earthly, unspiritual, devilish. ¹⁶For where there is envy and selfish ambition, there will also be disorder and wickedness of every kind. ¹⁷But the wisdom from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, willing to yield, full of mercy and good fruits, without a trace of partiality or hypocrisy. ¹⁸And a harvest of Jewish writings and is used by other early Christian authors. 2.24 Cf. Rom 3.28; Gal 2.16. 2.25 Rahab. See Josh 2.1–21; Heb 11.31.

3.1–12 James's attack on sins of speech, personified in an attack on the tongue (see 1.26), is highly rhetorical in tone and language. This concern for sins of speech is also prominent in wisdom literature (see, e.g., Sir 14.1; 19.16). 3.1 Teachers were recognized figures in early Christian communities (see 1 Cor 12.28). James seems to rank himself among them and to assume that the role is a matter of choice rather than of spiritual gift. 3.3–4 The metaphor of ships has no biblical parallel, but, like that of horses, is commonplace in Hellenistic writing. 3.6 The whole verse is very difficult. The tongue may be a world of iniquity because of its peculiar destructive force, which brings the corruption of the world to the human body (see 1.26–27) or because the tongue, with its special potential for sin, is a microcosm of the totality of human sin. In Hellenistic philosophy the cycle of nature denoted the Orphic and Pythagorean idea of the transmigration of souls; see 1.21. For hell James uses the Jewish term "Gehenna"; see also Mt 5.30; Mk 9.45; Lk 12.5. 3.7 See Gen 1.26. 3.9 The ethical principle that human persons should be treated with the reverence appropriate to those made in the likeness of God (Gen 1.26) was familiar in Judaism and finds biblical precedent in Gen 9.6. 3.12 See also Mt 7.16–17; Lk 6.43–44; but the idea and the imagery of tree and fruit were also commonplace in Hellenistic teaching.

3.13–18 As in the OT wisdom literature, wisdom is associated with practical good behavior, not speculative thought. 3.15 The adjective unspiritual (lit. "physical") is used by Paul to contrast the physical and the spiritual (1 Cor 15.44, 46). Here the contrast is between human wisdom and the wisdom that is given by God. 3.17 In Prov 8.22–31 and Wis 9.9–10, 17 wisdom is portrayed as a heavenly being, alongside God at creation; here it is the gift given from above in answer to prayer; see 1.5.

righteousness is sown in peace for^q those who make peace.

Friendship with the World

4 Those conflicts and disputes among you, where do they come from? Do they not come from your cravings that are at war within you? ²You want something and do not have it; so you commit murder. And you covet^r something and cannot obtain it; so you engage in disputes and conflicts. You do not have, because you do not ask. ³You ask and do not receive, because you ask wrongly, in order to spend what you get on your pleasures. ⁴Adulterers! Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world becomes an enemy of God. ⁵Or do you suppose that it is for nothing that the scripture says, “God^s yearns jealously for the spirit that he has made to dwell in us”? ⁶But he gives all the more grace; therefore it says,

“God opposes the proud,
but gives grace to the humble.”

⁷Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. ⁸Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double-minded. ⁹Lament and mourn and weep. Let your laughter be turned into mourning and your joy into dejection. ¹⁰Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will exalt you.

Warning Against Judging Another

11 Do not speak evil against one another, brothers and sisters.^t Whoever speaks evil against another or judges another, speaks evil against the law and judges the law; but if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge. ¹²There is one lawgiver and judge who is able to save and to destroy. So who, then, are you to judge your neighbor?

Boasting About Tomorrow

13 Come now, you who say, “Today or tomorrow we will go to such and such a town and spend a year there, doing business and making money.” ¹⁴Yet you do not even know what tomorrow will bring. What is your life? For you are a mist that appears for a little while and then vanishes. ¹⁵Instead you ought to say, “If the Lord wishes, we will live and do this or that.” ¹⁶As it is, you boast in your arrogance; all such boasting is evil. ¹⁷Anyone, then, who knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, commits sin.

4.1–12 James examines the causes and effects of divisions in the community. 4.1 Within you, lit. “in your members.” The passage might describe disputes within the community as the body of Christ (Rom 12.4–5; 1 Cor 12.12–26), but it more probably recalls James’s familiar theme of division in the individual, now seen as leading to communal strife (see 1.8; Rom 7.21–23). 4.2 Hardly literal murder, but a hyperbole, just as the phrase translated disputes and conflicts is lit. “you fight and make war”; see Mt 5.21–22. 4.3 For another example of improper and thus unanswered prayer, see 1.6–8. 4.4 Adulterers. The noun is feminine; some texts add a masculine to give “adulterers and adulteresses.” 4.5 A notoriously difficult verse. The scripture quotation is not found in the OT; God does not appear in the text (see text note s); the spirit could be the subject or object of the verb and understood as either the Holy Spirit or the human spirit. James could be quoting an otherwise unknown text or alluding to a passage like Ps 42.1 to make the point that the God-given human spirit should yearn after God, not after jealous desires. 4.6–8 A similar sequence of thought is found in 1 Pet 5.5–9. 4.6 Prov 3.34. 4.7 Flee can be the language of exorcism; see 2.19. 4.8 To be double-minded seems to be the essence of sin; see also 1.8. 4.11 On doer of the law, see 1.22–25. The warning against judgment echoes Mt 7.1. 4.12 God is the lawgiver and judge here, but cf. 5.9, where Jesus is the judge.

4.13–17 A new attack on the rich; the message is the same as that of Jesus’ parable of the rich fool (Lk 12.16–21). 4.15 The pious formula does not come from the OT but was familiar in the pagan Hellenistic world; see also 1 Cor 4.19; 16.7.

5.1–6 The attack on the rich now recalls prophetic denunciations. 5.1 See 1.10–11; also the

and your clothes are moth-eaten. ³Your gold and silver have rusted, and their rust will be evidence against you, and it will eat your flesh like fire. You have laid up treasure^u for the last days. ⁴Listen! The wages of the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out, and the cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts. ⁵You have lived on the earth in luxury and in pleasure; you have fattened your hearts in a day of slaughter. ⁶You have condemned and murdered the righteous one, who does not resist you.

Patience in Suffering

⁷ Be patient, therefore, beloved,^v until the coming of the Lord. The farmer waits for the precious crop from the earth, being patient with it until it receives the early and the late rains. ⁸You also must be patient. Strengthen your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is near.^w ⁹Beloved,^x do not grumble against one another, so that you may not be judged. See, the Judge is standing at the doors! ¹⁰As an example of suffering and patience, beloved,^v take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. ¹¹Indeed we call blessed those who showed endurance. You have heard of the endurance of Job, and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, how the Lord is compassionate and merciful.

¹² Above all, my beloved,^v do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or by any other oath, but let your "Yes" be yes and your "No" be no, so that you may not fall under condemnation.

The Prayer of Faith

¹³ Are any among you suffering? They should pray. Are any cheerful? They should sing songs of praise. ¹⁴Are any among you sick? They should call for the elders of the church and have them pray over them, anointing them with oil in the name of the Lord. ¹⁵The prayer of faith will save the sick, and the Lord will raise them up; and anyone who has committed sins will be forgiven. ¹⁶Therefore confess your sins to one another, and pray for one another, so that you may be healed. The prayer of the righteous is woe to the rich in Lk 6.24. 5.3 Or "in" the last days; see v. 5. James shares the early Christian conviction that the end of the age is very near and will be accompanied by judgment; see v. 8. 5.4 To deprive laborers of their wages is a prime example of oppression in the OT; see, e.g., Lev 19.13; Deut 24.14–15. Lord of hosts; lit. "Lord Sabaoth," an OT title; see Isa 5.7. The hosts are stars or angels; see 1.17. 5.6 The righteous one could be Jesus, so described in Acts 3.14; 7.52; see also 1 Pet 3.18; 1 Jn 2.1. More probably James echoes the familiar OT theme that God's righteous ones are the poor and oppressed; see, e.g., Ps 140.12–13; Wis 2.12–20. James of Jerusalem, who became a martyr, was also called "the Just" (i.e., "the Righteous").

5.7–12 An encouragement to endure in hope of a final reward. 5.7 These rains are characteristic of Palestine and Syria and are sometimes taken as a pointer to the Letter's place of origin, but they are also known from the OT (see Deut 11.14; Jer 5.24). 5.8 For the coming or return of Jesus, see, e.g., Mt 24.3; 1 Cor 15.23; 2 Pet 1.16. 5.9 Here the Judge seems to be the returning Jesus (cf. 4.12); see also Mk 13.29; Rev 3.20. 5.10 Prophecy and martyrdom became closely associated in Jewish tradition, though in the OT only two prophets met violent deaths (see 2 Chr 24.20–21; Jer 26.20–23). Jeremiah is, however, an obvious example of a prophet who endured hardship and humiliation; see Jer 20.1–2; 38.6. 5.11 The suffering of Job is the subject of that book, though his endurance of it is hardly an example of patience. Purpose, or "the end," God's final restoration of Job. 5.12 A clear echo of the teaching of Jesus, whose prohibition of any oath was highly unusual; see Mt 5.33–37.

5.13–20 Unlike some earlier sections of the Letter, this final passage seems to envisage a real community, united in faith and mutually supportive. 5.13 See Eph 5.19. 5.14 Some leaders of Christian communities are called elders, perhaps following the model of Jewish synagogue organization; see, e.g., Acts 14.23; 20.17; 1 Tim 5.17–19; Titus 1.5. For the gift of healing, see 1 Cor 12.27–30; here it is exercised by the community's leaders. Oil was a common remedy for pain throughout the ancient world; see Lk 10.34. Christian healing was performed in the name of Jesus; see, e.g., Mk 16.17–18; Acts 3.6. 5.15 It was commonly assumed that sickness was in some measure a punishment for sins, so that healing was both physical and spiritual or moral; see Mk could be read as offering a double blessing, salvation of the soul and forgiveness of sins, to either the convertor or the converted.

THE FIRST LETTER OF

PETER

Author, Addressees, and Date

THE SALUTATION (1.1–2) and final greeting (5.12–14) of 1 Peter give information concerning the Letter's origin and addressees and provide clues concerning its author and date. These verses say it was sent by the apostle Peter from Rome to Christians in five Roman provinces of Asia Minor. The author calls Rome “Babylon” (5.13), a name used for that city only after the Roman destruction of Jerusalem in 70 c.e. The salutation and 5.9 indicate that Christianity was widespread in Asia Minor when the Letter was written; this was possible only after Paul's preaching there in the 60s. On the other hand, the Letter was probably written earlier than the 90s, for unlike Revelation, which dates from that decade, 1 Peter gives no hint that Roman officials themselves instigated charges against Christians—e.g., for refusal to worship the emperor. Therefore, the Letter dates from between 70 and 90 c.e. This date and the high quality of the Greek suggest that 1 Peter is pseudonymous.

Purpose

The social tensions and the suffering reflected in 2.19–24; 3.14–15; 4.12–19; 5.10 are best explained by the conversion of Gentiles in Greco-Roman culture (see 1.18) to Christianity, which was a despised, foreign religion, and by the negative response of the converts' own families. Roman society was patriarchal, and suspicions about foreign religions included the fear that conversion would reverse established hierarchical relationships and cause women to misbehave (see, e.g., Cicero Laws 2.14–15). Romans expected foreign religions to cause immorality (especially adultery), insubordination within the household, and sedition against the state. 1 Peter counters these expectations. The author emphasizes that those converted are to imitate Christ (2.21–23) by, among other things, doing good (2.12, 15, 20; see Lk 6.27) and not retaliating against those who slander their community (2.18, 20–23; 3.9, 14–16).

Social Context

Just how socially distinct conversion rendered these Petrine communities is disputed. As ones chosen by God (1.2), they rejected their former religious beliefs and immoral behavior (1.18; 4.3–4); the author mentions this rejection to confirm their distinctiveness from the dominant society. Yet the author employs the structure of a household code, which was an ethical exhortation to wives and slaves (elsewhere, also to children) to be subordinate to their patriarchal superiors, i.e., their husbands and masters (and fathers). This code expressed core values of Greco-Roman philosophy and society (see esp. Aristotle Politics 1.2.1–2). Like other post-Petrine and post-Pauline writers, the author thus emphasizes ethics shared by pagans and Christians, hoping that pagans will glorify God because they approve of the Christians' conduct (see 2.12). Therefore, the Letter opposes abandoning the world; rather, it calls the converts to critical, responsible service of God in the family and in other institutions of society. These Christians live in the tension between their rejection of some societal values and their acceptance of others.

The five provinces mentioned in the address of 1 Peter (1.1) make up a large proportion of Asia Minor.

Genre and Sources

1 Peter is a single, real letter, not, as some claim, a baptismal homily or liturgy. The author weaves OT prophecy into the argument, often giving it a Christological interpretation. There are also allusions to sayings from the Sermon on the Mount, but our author's sources seem earlier than the written Gospels (cf. 4.14; Mt 5.10; Lk 6.22). Christian catechetical traditions are employed (e.g., the household code), and 1.20; 3.18–22 may contain elements from early Christian hymns.

Salutation

1 Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ,
To the exiles of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, ²who have been chosen and destined by God the Father and sanctified by the Spirit to be obedient to Jesus Christ and to be sprinkled with his blood:

May grace and peace be yours in abundance.

A Living Hope

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! By his great mercy he has given us a new birth into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, ⁴and into an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading, kept in heaven for you, ⁵who are being protected by the power of God through faith for a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. ⁶In this you rejoice,^a even if now for a little while you have had to suffer various trials, ⁷so that the genuineness of your faith—being more precious than gold that, though perishable, is tested by fire—may be found to result in praise and glory and honor when Jesus Christ is revealed. ⁸Although you have not seen^b him, you love him; and even though you do not see him now, you believe in him and rejoice with an indescribable and glorious joy, ⁹for you are receiving the outcome of your faith, the salvation of your souls.

¹⁰ Concerning this salvation, the prophets who prophesied of the grace that was to be yours made careful search and inquiry, ¹¹inquiring about the person or time that the Spirit of Christ within them indicated when it testified in advance to the sufferings destined for Christ and the subsequent glory. ¹²It was revealed to them that they were serving not themselves but you, in regard to the things that have now been announced to you through those who brought you good news by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven—things into which angels long to look!

1.1–2 The Letter's salutation includes the author's self-introduction, a lengthy designation of addressees, and a prayer that replaces the usual greeting. 1.1 Exiles of the Dispersion recalls the Jewish experience of being exiled from Israel to Babylon, as these primarily gentile Christians are exiled and dispersed in pagan society. 1.2 Being chosen by God (see 2.9; 5.13) alienates the Christians religiously and socially (see 2.11). Sprinkled with his blood recalls the blood of the covenant (Ex 24.3–8) or the water sprinkled for purification (Num 19.9–21).

1.3–12 Instead of an opening thanksgiving, a long blessing introduces some of the themes of the Letter (see also 2 Cor 1.3). 1.3 On baptism as new birth, see 1.23; 2.2; Jn 3.3–8. 1.5 Salvation, including judgment, is primarily God's future act (see vv. 13, 17; cf. v. 9). 1.10–11 Christians understood Israel's prophets to have been inspired by the Spirit of Christ and to have foretold events in the life of Jesus and in the history of the early church; see Lk 24.25–27. The reference here is vague but may be to texts such as Dan 9; 12; Hab 2.

A Call to Holy Living

13 Therefore prepare your minds for action;^c discipline yourselves; set all your hope on the grace that Jesus Christ will bring you when he is revealed. ¹⁴Like obedient children, do not be conformed to the desires that you formerly had in ignorance. ¹⁵Instead, as he who called you is holy, be holy yourselves in all your conduct; ¹⁶for it is written, “You shall be holy, for I am holy.”

17 If you invoke as Father the one who judges all people impartially according to their deeds, live in reverent fear during the time of your exile. ¹⁸You know that you were ransomed from the futile ways inherited from your ancestors, not with perishable things like silver or gold, ¹⁹but with the precious blood of Christ, like that of a lamb without defect or blemish. ²⁰He was destined before the foundation of the world, but was revealed at the end of the ages for your sake. ²¹Through him you have come to trust in God, who raised him from the dead and gave him glory, so that your faith and hope are set on God.

22 Now that you have purified your souls by your obedience to the truth^d so that you have genuine mutual love, love one another deeply^e from the heart.^f ²³You have been born anew, not of perishable but of imperishable seed, through the living and enduring word of God.^g

²⁴For

“All flesh is like grass and all its glory like the flower of grass.

The grass withers,
and the flower falls,

²⁵ but the word of the Lord endures forever.”

That word is the good news that was announced to you.

The Living Stone and a Chosen People

2 Rid yourselves, therefore, of all malice, and all guile, insincerity, envy, and all slander. ²Like newborn infants, long for the pure, spiritual milk, so that by it you may grow into salvation— ³if indeed you have tasted that the Lord is good.

⁴ Come to him, a living stone, though rejected by mortals yet chosen and precious in God's sight, and ⁵like living stones, let yourselves be built^h into a spiritual house, to be a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. ⁶For it stands in scripture:

“See, I am laying in Zion a stone,
a cornerstone chosen and precious;

^c Gk gird up the loins of your mind ^d Other ancient authorities add through the Spirit

^e Or constantly ^f Other ancient authorities read a pure heart ^g Or through the word of the living and enduring God ^h Or you yourselves are being built

1.13–21 The author shifts from reflection on the gospel to ethical exhortation. 1.13 Prepare, lit. “gird up your waist,” i.e., gather your robes (see Ex 12.11). On Passover Jews gird themselves for action; here the metaphor is applied to Christian eschatological hope. Hope, introduced in v. 3, is central in vv. 13–21. 1.14 Do not be conformed. See Rom 12.2. The addressees formerly lived in ignorance, so many are Gentiles (see also 1.18; 2.10; 4.2–3). 1.16 Lev 19.2. 1.17 For God as one who judges all people impartially, see Deut 10.17; Acts 10.34; Rom 2.11. On reverent fear, see 2.17. 1.18 Ransomed (see Isa 52.3; Mk 10.45), purchased by Christ, as a slave's freedom is purchased from a Roman master. Reference to their futile ways inherited from . . . ancestors again characterizes the readers as converted Gentiles (see note on 1.14). 1.19 Lamb may recall Isa 53.7, but the context of deliverance from slavery suggests the exodus and the Passover lamb (Ex 12.5). 1.20 Destined . . . revealed. The contrast may be from an early Christian hymn. The author assumes that events of the end of the ages have already happened.

1.22–25 Christians' ethics are grounded in their new birth through the word of God. 1.22 Genuine mutual love (Greek philadelphia) is a term common in Greco-Roman ethics but rare in the NT (but see 3.8; 1 Thess 4.9). 1.23 For another use of seed as metaphor for the word of God, see Mk 4.14–20. 1.24–25a Isa 40.6–8.

2.1–3 The author returns to imperatives, urging all Christian readers, based on their baptism (see 1.23), to grow into salvation. 2.2 The author employs the feminine metaphor of a mother's milk for the word of Christ. 2.3 Tasted, a reference to Ps 34.8. The author returns to this psalm in 3.10–12.

2.4–10 The author quotes Isa 28.16, then links it to two other texts that also describe stones. Ps 118.22; Isa 8.14. See also Mt 21.42; Mk 12.10; Acts 4.11; Rom 9.33; Eph 2.20. 2.5 Spiritual sac-

Live as Servants of God

¹¹ Beloved, I urge you as aliens and exiles to abstain from the desires of the flesh that wage war against the soul. ¹²Conduct yourselves honorably among the Gentiles, so that, though they malign you as evildoers, they may see your honorable deeds and glorify God when he comes to judge.^k

¹³ For the Lord’s sake accept the authority of every human institution,^l whether of the emperor as supreme, ¹⁴or of governors, as sent by him to punish those who do wrong and to praise those who do right. ¹⁵For it is God’s will that by doing right you should silence the ignorance of the foolish. ¹⁶As servants^m of God, live as free people, yet do not use your freedom as a pretext for evil. ¹⁷Honor everyone. Love the family of believers.ⁿ Fear God. Honor the emperor.

The Example of Christ’s Suffering

¹⁸ Slaves, accept the authority of your masters with all deference, not only those who are kind and gentle but also those who are harsh. ¹⁹For it is a credit to you if, being aware of God, you endure pain while suffering unjustly. ²⁰If you endure when you are beaten for doing wrong, what credit is that? But if you endure when you do right and suffer for it, you have God’s approval. ²¹For to this you have been called, because Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example, so that you should follow in his steps.

rifices include worship and social ethics (see Rom 12.1; Heb 13.15–16). 2.6 Isa 28.16. 2.7 The quotation is from Ps 118.22. 2.8 Isa 8.14. 2.9 A chosen race . . . God’s own people, four honorific titles taken from Ex 19.6; Isa 43.20–21. 2.10 Hos 1.9; 2.23.

2.11–3.12 A first-person address, Beloved, I urge you, begins a major new section treating Christian conduct among gentile unbelievers. 2.11 On exiles, see note on 1.1. 2.12 The readers’ honorable conduct is meant to counter pagan gossip, not legal charges (see Introduction; Mt 5.11, 16; see also notes on 3.15; 3.16). 2.13–3.7 A household code (see also Eph 5.21–6.9; Col 3.18–4.1) focusing on the duties of subordinate members of patriarchal Greco-Roman households. 2.13 On submission to governing authorities, see Rom 13.1–7; 1 Tim 2.1–2. 2.14 See Rom 13.3–4. 2.16 The readers are free from ignorance and darkness, and, paradoxically, they are servants (more accurately slaves; see text note m) exhorted to accept others’ authority. 2.17 The author focuses on love of other believers (see Jn 15.12; 1 Jn 2.10), not of enemies (cf. Lk 6.35), and differentiates the fear (reverent awe) due to God (see 1.17) from the honor due everyone, including the emperor. The leading imperative of the following household code is either that, as free persons, the readers should honor everyone (2.17; 3.7) or that, as subordinate persons, they should accept the authority of superiors (2.18; 3.1). 2.18–25 Slaves’ Christian identity and behavior are addressed, although Christ’s example and sacrifice are for all Christian readers. 2.18 The direct address to slaves is unusual in Greco-Roman ethical literature; it is a Jewish and Christian innovation. As 2.15; 3.16 indicate, the author hopes the slaves’ behavior will affect even harsh, non-Christian masters; see also 1 Tim 6.1; Titus 2.9–10. 2.19–20 On credit (lit. “grace”) for enduring wrongs, see 3.14; see also Lk 6.32–34. 2.21–25 Many detect an early ²³When he was abused, he did not return abuse; when he suffered, he did not threaten; but he entrusted himself to the one who judges justly. ²⁴He himself bore our sins in his body on the cross,^o so that, free from sins, we might live for righteousness; by his wounds^p you have been healed. ²⁵For you were going astray like sheep, but now you have returned to the shepherd and guardian of your souls.

Wives and Husbands

3 Wives, in the same way, accept the authority of your husbands, so that, even if some of them do not obey the word, they may be won over without a word by their wives' conduct, ²when they see the purity and reverence of your lives. ³Do not adorn yourselves outwardly by braiding your hair, and by wearing gold ornaments or fine clothing; ⁴rather, let your adornment be the inner self with the lasting beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit, which is very precious in God's sight. ⁵It was in this way long ago that the holy women who hoped in God used to adorn themselves by accepting the authority of their husbands. ⁶Thus Sarah obeyed Abraham and called him lord. You have become her daughters as long as you do what is good and never let fears alarm you.

⁷ Husbands, in the same way, show consideration for your wives in your life together, paying honor to the woman as the weaker sex,^q since they too are also heirs of the gracious gift of life—so that nothing may hinder your prayers.

⁸ Finally, all of you, have unity of spirit, sympathy, love for one another, a tender heart, and a humble mind. ⁹Do not repay evil for evil or abuse for abuse; but, on the contrary, repay with a blessing. It is for this that you were called—that you might inherit a blessing. ¹⁰For

“Those who desire life and desire to see good days, let them keep their tongues from evil
and their lips from speaking

¹¹ let them turn away from evil and do good;
let them seek peace and pursue it.
¹² For the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayer.
But the face of the Lord is against those who do evil.”

Suffering for Doing Right

Christian hymn here; others see simply an interpretation of Isa 53. 2.22 Isa 53.9b. 2.23 See 3.9. 2.24 Christ's redeeming work is interpreted by Isa 53.4–5. 2.25 Astray like sheep. See Isa 53.6; see also note on 5.2. 3.1–7 The household code continues with direct addresses to wives and husbands. Whereas other household codes (cf. Col 3–4) address all household members in pairs, only the wife/husband pair occurs in 1 Peter. 3.1 As is typical in patriarchal Greco-Roman culture, wives are exhorted to be subordinate in the household. The author is sensitive to the response of disbelieving husbands, who would perceive their wives' conversion to a foreign cult as disobedience. 3.3–4 The contrast between external and internal adornment was common in Greco-Roman philosophical writings (see also 1 Tim 2.9–10). 3.6 Sarah calls Abraham lord (or “husband”) in Gen 18.12. To do what is good is a key idea in 1 Peter (see 2.15, 20; 3.17). Fears include wives' fear of their unbelieving husbands; the admonition not to fear is a reinterprettation of Prov 3.25. 3.7 Greco-Roman authors based authority in patriarchal society on alleged intellectual and physical distinctions; thus slaves and women were deemed weaker. 3.8–12 A summary of exhortations closes this section (2.11–3.12). 3.8 Unity of spirit, a central domestic and political concern of Greco-Roman society, was threatened by conversions to Christianity. On love for one another (lit. “brotherly love”) see 1.22; 2.17. 3.9 On not returning abuse, see 2.23; see also Lk 6.28; Rom 12.17. 3.10–12 Ps 34.12–16. The psalm includes terms and ideas central to this Letter, such as the warning against evil speech in 3.10b (see 2.22–23) and the emphasis on doing good in 3.11a. To seek peace (v. 11b) and harmony in household relationships and with society was one purpose of the household code.

3.13–17 The psalm quoted in vv. 10–12 provides a transition to this section, which is focused on doing good. 3.14 On the idea that those who suffer are blessed, see Mt 5.10. V. 14b quotes and interprets Isa 8.12; see also note on 3.6.

and do not be intimidated, ¹⁵but in your hearts sanctify Christ as Lord. Always be ready to make your defense to anyone who demands from you an accounting for the hope that is in you; ¹⁶yet do it with gentleness and reverence.^s Keep your conscience clear, so that, when you are maligned, those who abuse you for your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. ¹⁷For it is better to suffer for doing good, if suffering should be God's will, than to suffer for doing evil. ¹⁸For Christ also suffered^t for sins once for all, the righteous for the unrighteous, in order to bring you^u to God. He was put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit, ¹⁹in which also he went and made a proclamation to the spirits in prison, ²⁰who in former times did not obey, when God waited patiently in the days of Noah, during the building of the ark, in which a few, that is, eight persons, were saved through water. ²¹And baptism, which this prefigured, now saves you—not as a removal of dirt from the body, but as an appeal to God for^v a good conscience, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, ²²who has gone into heaven and is at the right hand of God, with angels, authorities, and powers made subject to him.

Good Stewards of God's Grace

4 Since therefore Christ suffered in the flesh,^w arm yourselves also with the same intention (for whoever has suffered in the flesh has finished with sin), ²so as to live for the rest of your earthly life^x no longer by human desires but by the will of God. ³You have already spent enough time in doing what the Gentiles like to do, living in licentiousness, passions, drunkenness, revels, carousing, and lawless idolatry. ⁴They are surprised that you no longer join them in the same excesses of dissipation, and so they blaspheme.^y ⁵But they will have to give an accounting to him who stands ready to judge the living and the dead. ⁶For this is the reason the gospel was proclaimed even to the dead, so that, though they had been judged in the flesh as everyone is judged, they might live in the spirit as God does.

3.15 Defense (Greek apologia) could refer technically to a legal defense but instead concerns the reputation of Christ and Christian exiles in Greco-Roman society (see Introduction). Jews also had to defend themselves (including their wives and slaves) against accusations (see Josephus Against Apion). 3.16 Concern for outsiders who malign these Christians frames the household code; see note on 2.12. By the behavior recommended in the code, these aliens and exiles (2.11) indirectly address outsiders' objections. 3.17 On suffering for doing good, see 2.20.

3.18–22 The ascent of Christ, who had suffered, gives victory to the baptized. 3.18 Greek and Jewish heroes suffer for other worthy persons and for the law (see 2 Macc 6.28; 7.37; 4 Macc 6.27; see also Rom 5.7–8), but Christ suffered for sins (see 2.21). Many perceive an early Christian hymn behind vv. 18, 22. 3.19 The spirits in prison, perhaps those "sons of God" who corrupted human women and were destroyed by the flood (see Gen 6.1–4; 1 Enoch 10.4–6). The point is that the cosmic Lord is victorious over all the disobedient (see v. 22). 3.20 To establish a parallel with baptism, the author argues that Noah and his family were saved through water, i.e., by means of the flood waters (see Gen 6–8).

3.21 Dirt from the body, lit. "filth of the flesh," i.e., desires of the flesh (see 2.11; 4.2). The reading in text note v is better: baptism is a positive appeal to God out of a good consciousness or awareness of God. 3.22 On Jesus at the right hand of God, see Ps 110.1; see also Eph 1.20–22; Heb 1.3–4, 13.

4.1–6 Exhortations to the moral life that distinguishes Christians from outsiders. 4.1 See 3.18. Has finished with sin means either that those baptized are freed from sin's power (see Rom 6.7) or that Christ by carrying sins to the cross has dealt with them once for all (see Heb 7.27; 9.28), not that whoever has suffered no longer sins. 4.3 The Jewish-Christian author designates those outside the (primarily gentile) Christian community as Gentiles. 4.4 Those who slander the new Christians' life-style blaspheme God. 4.5 The tables will be turned on those who call Christians to give an accounting. See 3.15; see also Mt 7.1–2; Rom 2.3. 4.6 The gospel was proclaimed even to the dead. This means either that the righteous of Hebrew history are considered Christians (see Heb 4.2, 6; 11) or that the Christian dead heard the gospel while still alive.

4.7–11 The focus of the exhortations shifts from relations with outsiders to the ways Christians should treat each other. 4.7 The end of all selves for the sake of your prayers. ⁸Above all, maintain constant love for one another, for love covers a multitude of sins. ⁹Be hospitable to one another without complaining. ¹⁰Like good stewards of the manifold grace of God, serve one another with whatever gift each of you has received. ¹¹Whoever speaks must do so as one speaking the very words of God; whoever serves must do so with the strength that God supplies, so that God may be glorified in all things through Jesus Christ. To him belong the glory and the power forever and ever. Amen.

Suffering as a Christian

¹² Beloved, do not be surprised at the fiery ordeal that is taking place among you to test you, as though something strange were happening to you. ¹³But rejoice insofar as you are sharing Christ's sufferings, so that you may also be glad and shout for joy when his glory is revealed. ¹⁴If you are reviled for the name of Christ, you are blessed, because the spirit of glory,^a which is the Spirit of God, is resting on you.^b ¹⁵But let none of you suffer as a murderer, a thief, a criminal, or even as a mischief maker. ¹⁶Yet if any of you suffers as a Christian, do not consider it a disgrace, but glorify God because you bear this name. ¹⁷For the time has come for judgment to begin with the household of God; if it begins with us, what will be the end for those who do not obey the gospel of God? ¹⁸And

"If it is hard for the righteous to be saved, what will become of the ungodly and the sinners?"

¹⁹Therefore, let those suffering in accordance with God's will entrust themselves to a faithful Creator, while continuing to do good.

Tending the Flock of God

5 Now as an elder myself and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, as well as one who shares in the glory to be revealed, I exhort the elders among you ²to tend the flock of God that is in your charge, exercising the oversight,^c not under compulsion but willingly, as God would have you do it^d—not for sordid gain but eagerly. ³Do not lord it over those in your charge, but be examples to the flock. ⁴And when the chief shepherd appears, you will win the crown of glory that never fades away. ⁵In the same way, you who are younger must accept the authority of the elders.^e And all of you must clothe yourselves with humility in your dealings with one another, for
"God opposes the proud,

things refers to God's universal judgment (see v. 5). The expectation that this event was near was widespread in early Christianity; see Rom 13.12; 1 Cor 10.11; Rev 22.20; cf. 2 Pet 3.3. On prayers, see 3.7, 12. 4.8 Love for one another (see also 1.22; 2.17) is being tested by persecution (see v. 12). 4.10 On the allotment of various gifts, see Rom 12.3–8; 1 Cor 12.4–11. 4.11 The doxology (To him belong . . . Amen) is repeated in 5.11. 4.12–19 The repetition of the address (beloved) signals a new section of the Letter (see 2.11) that restates the themes of 1.6–8; 3.13–17. 4.12 On the fiery ordeal, see 1.6–7. 4.13 On rejoice see 1.6, 8. On sharing Christ's sufferings, see 2 Cor 1.3–11; Phil 3.10–11. 4.14 Reviled . . . blessed. See the beatitude in Mt 5.11; Lk 6.22. 4.16 The name Christian was originally employed by outsiders to designate followers of Christ; see Acts 11.26. 4.17 As the household of God (see also Eph 2.19; 1 Tim 3.15; Heb 3.6), the church is instructed with a household code (2.13–3.7).

4.18 Prov 11.31. 4.19 The author encourages readers by identifying the judge of all (see 4.5, 7) as the faithful Creator. Doing good (see 3.13–17) is mentioned emphatically here at the conclusion of this section.

5.1–5 To the household code (2.13–3.7) are added elements of a congregational code. 5.1 An elder myself, a rare self-reference by the author (see 1.1; 2.11). In their crisis (4.12), some congregations have appointed authoritative elders (see Acts 20.17–38). 5.2 Tend the flock. See Jn 21.16, Jesus' command to Peter. Proper tending is described by three pairs of contrasts (not . . . but) in this verse and in 5.3. 5.3 The command not to lord it over others prohibits the kind of harsh authority some have experienced from outsiders (see 2.18). 5.4 You will win (lit. "receive payment"). This eschatological reward stands in contrast to the greed forbidden in v. 2. 5.5 The younger are an age group; the elders are officials who are also older. On humility, see 3.8; 4.7–11.

6 Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, so that he may exalt you in due time. 7 Cast all your anxiety on him, because he cares for you. 8 Discipline yourselves, keep alert.^f Like a roaring lion your adversary the devil prowls around, looking for someone to devour. 9 Resist him, steadfast in your faith, for you know that your brothers and sisters^g in all the world are undergoing the same kinds of suffering. 10 And after you have suffered for a little while, the God of all grace, who has called you to his eternal glory in Christ, will himself restore, support, strengthen, and establish you. 11 To him be the power forever and ever. Amen.

THE SECOND LETTER OF

PETER

Authorship

THE SECOND LETTER of Peter is presented as Peter's testament, i.e., an account of Peter's teaching as he wished it to be remembered after his death (1.12–15). If Peter himself wrote it, he must have done so shortly before his martyrdom in Rome in 64/65 C.E. Most scholars, however, now believe it was written after Peter's death, with the writer following a literary convention of the time that allowed an author to attribute a "testament" to a great figure of the past. 2 Peter was probably sent from the church of Rome and therefore attributed to the apostle who had for a time played a role in the leadership of that church. By writing in Peter's name, the author was able to restate and defend Peter's teaching in a situation in which opponents were criticizing the apostolic message. He also expressed the normative value of the apostolic teaching for the period after the death of the apostles.

Date

The best clue to the date of 2 Peter lies in 3.3–4. These verses seem to reflect a time when the early Christian expectation that Christ would come in glory within the lifetime of the first Christian generation had been disappointed. Because the problem this posed for Christian hope was soon surmounted, these verses seem to date 2 Peter around 80–90 C.E.

Opponents

2 Peter defends Peter's teaching against critics, who probably wanted to free the Christian message from features that were embarrassing to the church in a pagan environment. Christian moral strictness made life difficult for Christians in the more permissive pagan society, so the opponents argued that Christians were free from moral constraints. The Christian hope that Christ would come to judge the world and to establish a new world of righteousness was also alien to pagan views, so the opponents argued that the idea of a coming judgment was simply mistaken. This skepticism reinforced their moral libertinism. In reply, 2 Peter insists that the Christian hope is essential to the gospel and provides a motive for righteous living.

Purpose

2 Peter faces the problems of Christianity's twin transition from a Jewish to a pagan environment and from the apostolic to the postapostolic age. 2 Peter insists on the ethical demand and the future hope of the gospel, while also (esp. in 1.3–11) translating these features of the gospel from Jewish into Hellenistic cultural terms.

Form and Structure

2 Peter is a testament in the form of a letter. Four passages in which Peter foresees the future and provides for his teaching to be remembered reflect the Jewish testament genre (1.3–11, 12–15; 2.1–3a; 3.1–4). Attached to these are passages defending Peter's teaching against the opponents (1.16–19, 20–21; 2.3b–10a; 3.5–10) and two passages contrasting the evil ways of the opponents (2.10b–22) with the righteous conduct expected of the readers (3.11–16).

Relationship to Jude

There is a close relationship between parts of 2 Peter (esp. 2.1–18; 3.1–3) and the Letter of Jude. Almost all scholars now agree that the author of 2 Peter was dependent on Jude's Letter, from which he adapted material for his own purpose. Richard J. Bauckham

Salutation

1 Simeon^a Peter, a servant^b and apostle of Jesus Christ,

To those who have received a faith as precious as ours through the righteousness of our God and Savior Jesus Christ:^c

2 May grace and peace be yours in abundance in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord.

Peter's Testament

3 His divine power has given us everything needed for life and godliness, through the knowledge of him who called us by^d his own glory and goodness. 4 Thus he has given us, through these things, his precious and very great promises, so that through them you may escape from the corruption that is in the world because of lust, and may become participants of the divine nature. 5 For this very reason, you must make every effort to support your faith with goodness, and goodness with knowledge, 6 and knowledge with self-control, and self-control with endurance, and endurance with

1.3–11 A summary of Peter's teaching as it is to be remembered after his death, stressing both God's grace and the need for moral effort if Christians are to attain final salvation. 1.4 To become participants of the divine nature does not mean to share God's essence but to receive "god-like" immortality. 1.5–7 In this "ladder" of virtues, each virtue is the means of producing the next (this sense of the Greek is lost in translation). All the virtues grow out of faith, and all culminate godliness, ⁷and godliness with mutual^e affection, and mutual^e affection with love. ⁸For if these things are yours and are increasing among you, they keep you from being ineffective and unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁹For anyone who lacks these things is near-sighted and blind, and is forgetful of the cleansing of past sins. ¹⁰Therefore, brothers and sisters,^f be all the more eager to confirm your call and election, for if you do this, you will never stumble. ¹¹For in this way, entry into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ will be richly provided for you.

¹² Therefore I intend to keep on reminding you of these things, though you know them already and are established in the truth that has come to you. ¹³I think it right, as long as I am in this body,^g to refresh your memory, ¹⁴since I know that my death^h will come soon, as indeed our Lord Jesus Christ has made clear to me. ¹⁵And I will make every effort so that after my departure you may be able at any time to recall these things.

The Grounds of Christian Hope

¹⁶ For we did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we had been eyewitnesses of his majesty. ¹⁷For he received honor and glory from God the Father when that voice was conveyed to him by the Majestic Glory, saying, "This is my Son, my Beloved,ⁱ with whom I am well pleased." ¹⁸We ourselves heard this voice come from heaven, while we were with him on the holy mountain.

¹⁹ So we have the prophetic message more fully confirmed. You will do well to be attentive to this as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. ²⁰First of all you must understand this, that no prophecy of scripture is a matter of one's own interpretation, ²¹because no prophecy ever came by human will, but men and women moved by the Holy Spirit spoke from God.^j

False Teachers and Their Punishment

2 But false prophets also arose among the people, just as there will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive opinions. They will even deny the Master who bought them—bringing swift destruction on themselves. ²Even so, many will follow their licentious ways, and because of these teachers^k the way of truth will be maligned. ³And in their greed they will exploit you with deceptive words. Their condemnation, pronounced against them long ago, has not been idle, and their destruction is not asleep.

⁴ For if God did not spare the angels when they sinned, but cast them into hell^l and committed them to chains^m of deepest darkness to be kept until the judgment; ⁵and if he did not spare the ancient world, even though he saved Noah, a herald of righteousness, with seven others, when he brought a flood on in love. 1.12–15 Peter's teaching will be his permanent bequest to the church.

1.16–21 This section replies to the opponents' charges that the apostles' prediction of Christ's future coming was their own invention (vv. 16–19) and that OT prophecies of it did not come from God (vv. 20–21). 1.16–18 At the transfiguration (Mt 17.1–8), the apostles saw Jesus appointed by God as the Messiah who will come to judge and rule the world (Ps 2.6–9). 1.19 The prophetic message refers to OT prophecy in general. The morning star is Christ at his coming in glory (Num 24.17; Rev 22.16). 1.20 One's own interpretation probably refers not to interpretation of scripture by its readers, but to the prophets' interpretation of their visions. 1.21 See Jer

20.9; 23.16–32; Am 3.8.

2.1–3a Peter's prediction of the arrival of false teachers after his death. 2.1 The false teachers probably deny Christ by flouting his moral authority (as in Titus 1.16; Jude 4). 2.3b–10a A reply to the opponents' claim that the expected judgment of the world is not going to happen. Examples of God's judgment in the past (see Jude 6–7) are cited, along with examples of righteous people spared from judgment (see Wis 10.4–9). The judgments are warnings for the wicked; Noah and Lot are models for the righteous in a wicked world. 2.4 The angels are the "sons of God" of Gen 6.1–4, as interpreted in Jewish literature. 2.5 Noah is a herald of righteousness because, according to tradition, he a world of the ungodly;⁶ and if by turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to ashes he condemned them to extinctionⁿ and made them an example of what is coming to the ungodly;^o ⁷and if he rescued Lot, a righteous man greatly distressed by the licentiousness of the lawless ⁸(for that righteous man, living among them day after day, was tormented in his righteous soul by their lawless deeds that he saw and heard), ⁹then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trial, and to keep the unrighteous under punishment until the day of judgment ¹⁰—especially those who indulge their flesh in depraved lust, and who despise authority.

Bold and willful, they are not afraid to slander the glorious ones,^p ¹¹whereas angels, though greater in might and power, do not bring against them a slanderous judgment from the Lord.^q ¹²These people, however, are like irrational animals, mere creatures of instinct, born to be caught and killed. They slander what they do not understand, and when those creatures are destroyed,^r they also will be destroyed, ¹³suffering^s the penalty for doing wrong. They count it a pleasure to revel in the daytime. They are blots and blemishes, reveling in their dissipation^t while they feast with you. ¹⁴They have eyes full of adultery, insatiable for sin. They entice unsteady souls. They have hearts trained in greed. Accursed children! ¹⁵They have left the straight road and have gone astray, following the road of Balaam son of Bosor,^u who loved the wages of doing wrong, ¹⁶but was rebuked for his own transgression; a speechless donkey spoke with a human voice and restrained the prophet's madness.

¹⁷ These are waterless springs and mists driven by a storm; for them the deepest darkness has been reserved.

¹⁸For they speak bombastic nonsense, and with licentious desires of the flesh they entice people who have just^v escaped from those who live in error. ¹⁹They promise them freedom, but they themselves are slaves of corruption; for people are slaves to whatever masters them. ²⁰For if, after they have escaped the defilements of the world through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are again entangled in them and overpowered, the last state has become worse for them than the first. ²¹For it would have been better for them never to have known the way of righteousness than, after knowing it, to turn back from the holy commandment that was passed on to them. ²²It has happened to them according to the true proverb,

“The dog turns back to its own vomit,”

and,

“The sow is washed only to wallow in the mud.”

The Promise of the Lord's Coming

3 This is now, beloved, the second letter I am writing to you; in them I am trying to arouse your sincere intention by reminding you ²that you should remember the words spoken in the past by the holy prophets, and the commandment of the Lord and Savior spoken through your apostles. ³First of all you must under-

The opponents are turning the church's fellowship meals into mere shams. 2.15–16 On Balaam, see Num 22.21–35; Jude 11. 2.17 See Jude 12–13. 2.19 The freedom the opponents promise is liberation from fear of divine judgment and so from moral constraint, but as slaves to sin they cannot give freedom from sin (see Rom 6.15–23; 8.21; 1 Pet 2.16). 2.20 See Mt 12.43–45. 2.22 The first quotation is Prov 26.11; the second is an ancient oriental proverb.

stand this, that in the last days scoffers will come, scoffing and indulging their own lusts⁴ and saying, "Where is the promise of his coming? For ever since our ancestors died,^w all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation!"⁵ They deliberately ignore this fact, that by the word of God heavens existed long ago and an earth was formed out of water and by means of water,⁶ through which the world of that time was deluged with water and perished. ⁷But by the same word the present heavens and earth have been reserved for fire, being kept until the day of judgment and destruction of the godless.

⁸ But do not ignore this one fact, beloved, that with the Lord one day is like a thousand years, and a thousand years are like one day. ⁹The Lord is not slow about his promise, as some think of slowness, but is patient with you,^x not wanting any to perish, but all to come to repentance. ¹⁰But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, and then the heavens will pass away with a loud noise, and the elements will be dissolved with fire, and the earth and everything that is done on it will be disclosed.^y

Final Exhortations and Doxology

¹¹ Since all these things are to be dissolved in this way, what sort of persons ought you to be in leading lives of holiness and godliness, ¹²waiting for and hastening^z the coming of the day of God, because of which the heavens will be set ablaze and dissolved, and the elements will melt with fire? ¹³But, in accordance with his promise, we wait for new heavens and a new earth, where righteousness is at home.

¹⁴ Therefore, beloved, while you are waiting for these things, strive to be found by him at peace, without spot or blemish; ¹⁵and regard the patience of our Lord as salvation. So also our beloved brother Paul wrote to you according to the wisdom given him, ¹⁶speaking of this as he does in all his letters. There are some things in them hard to understand, which the ignorant and unstable twist to their people who treat God's revelation with contempt (see Ps 1.1; Prov 1.22; Isa 28.14; Jude 18). 3.4 Our ancestors, probably the first Christian generation. The scoffers say that the apostles' promise of Christ's coming in glory set a time limit (within the lifetime of the first Christian generation: see Mk 9.1; 13.30) that has now expired. But they also express a rationalistic assumption about the world: nothing has changed since the beginning of creation, i.e., divine interventions in history do not happen. 3.5–7 A reply to the assumption made at the end of v. 4. 3.5 On creation out of water, see Gen 1.2, 6–10. 3.6 Through which, through the word of God and through water (the flood; see Gen 7.11). 3.7 Jewish traditions spoke of two universal judgments, one by water (in the past), the other by fire (in the future). Fire is a common biblical image of judgment. 3.8–10 A reply to the charge (v. 4) that the expectation of the Lord's coming has been disproved by the delay. 3.8 Ps 90.4, to which this verse alludes, was used in Jewish literature to deal with the problem of apparent delay in the fulfillment of God's promises. 3.10 The day of the Lord is a common biblical expression for the time of God's final judgment. For its coming like a thief, see Mt 24.43–44; 1 Thess 5.2. For imagery of it, see Isa 34.4; Mk 13.25; Rev 6.13–14. The wicked and their deeds will be disclosed to God's judicial scrutiny.

3.11–16 Just as the opponents, who scoff at the prospect of divine judgment, live wickedly, so the readers, who hope for the new world of righteousness, should live righteously. 3.12 As God defers the judgment to give time for repentance (v. 9), so God may hasten it (see Sir 36.10) if people repent. 3.13 For new heavens and a new earth, see Isa 65.17; 66.22; Rev 21.1. Probably a renewal of this creation (not its replacement by another) is meant (as in Rom 8.21): the fire will purge it of evil, so that righteousness (personified) can at last find a home in it. 3.15 God's patience is salvation because delaying the judgment gives opportunity for repentance (see v. 9). Paul also treated the hope of the Lord's coming as a motive for righteous living. The reference is too general to identify which Pauline Letters had been written to the churches addressed here. 3.16 Ignorant, lit. "uninstructed." Paul's difficult sayings are open to misinterpretation only by those who have not gained adequate Christian understanding. Either the opponents claimed Paul's teaching on freedom from the law (see, e.g., Rom 4.15; 5.20; 8.1–2; 1 Cor 6.12; 2 Cor 3.17) as support for their own view of freedom (see note on 2.19), or they held that his expectation of the Lord's coming own destruction, as they do the other scriptures. ¹⁷You therefore, beloved, since you are forewarned, beware that you are not carried away with the error of the lawless and lose your own stability. ¹⁸But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be the glory both now and to the day of eternity. Amen.^a soon (see, e.g., Rom 13.11–12; 16.20; Phil 4.5; 1 Thess 4.15) had been disproved (see note on 3.4). The reference to Paul's Letters alongside the other scriptures shows that they were already being treated as scripture, i.e., read in Christian worship along with the OT.

THE FIRST LETTER OF

JOHN

Form

THOUGH IT IS GENERALLY REFERRED to as a “letter” or “epistle,” 1 John does not have the standard opening and closing formulas of a letter. It seems instead to be a kind of essay or homily written to deal with a specific problem.

Author and Relation to Gospel of John

The language, style, and ideas of 1 John are clearly very similar to those of the Gospel of John. Therefore its author was long believed to be identical with the author of the Gospel, who was held to be the apostle John. Though this identification of the Gospel’s author is no longer certain (see Introduction to the Gospel of John), it remains possible that the same author wrote both books. However, differences in writing style and ideas have led many to conclude that 1 John was written by someone else. This person may be the elder who wrote 2 and 3 John, since 1 and 2 John are very similar in style and seem to address the same historical situation. At many points, 1 John seems to quote the words of the Fourth Gospel, or at least the tradition on which that Gospel is based. Thus it is likely that 1 John comes from the same early Christian community or “school” as the Gospel of John, but from a later point in its history. The author may speak for a group who guarded the community’s traditions (1.1–5).

Date and Place

If 1 John was composed after the Gospel of John, it was probably written no earlier than around 100 c.e., though an exact date cannot be given. According to traditions dating from the second century, 1 John was written in Ephesus. Other places have been suggested, but there is no better evidence for them than for Ephesus.

Historical Background

1 John speaks of certain people who “went out from us,” whom it calls antichrists and liars who deny that Jesus is the Christ or that “Jesus Christ has come in the flesh" (2.18–27; 4.1–3). This suggests that 1 John was written to oppose a movement that departed from the community's traditional beliefs about Jesus (2.24). We do not know exactly what these opponents believed and taught, though they probably claimed to be speaking under the influence of the Holy Spirit (4.1), perhaps believing that Jn 14.25–26; 16.12–13 were being fulfilled in them. Most scholars hold that this movement was in some way connected with Docetism, the belief of a number of early Christian groups that Jesus Christ was a spirit, not a physical human being. The opponents of 1 John may have denied that the human Jesus was to be identified with the divine Christ or that Jesus' death had value for salvation.

Message

In opposing this movement, 1 John urges its Christian readers to stay with what they have heard "from the beginning." This means believing in the identity of the physical, human Jesus with the divine Son of God and in the saving value of his death. It also means keeping the commandment to love one another, an area in which the author probably considered the opponents lacking. 1 John repeatedly insists that one cannot truly believe in Jesus Christ without truly and selflessly loving other believers. It is this insistence that "God is love" (4.8) that has kept people interested in 1 John long after the circumstances in which it was written have passed into obscurity. David K Rensberger

The Word of Life

1 We declare to you what was from the beginning, what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we have looked at and touched with our hands, concerning the word of life — ²this life was revealed, and we have seen it and testify to it, and declare to you the eternal life that was with the Father and was revealed to us — ³we declare to you what we have seen and heard so that you also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ. ⁴We are writing these things so that our^a joy may be complete.

1.1–4 Cf. this prologue with Jn 1.1–18, on which it is probably based. The author uses this familiar material to establish some important themes. One of these is Jesus Christ's real humanity. See also Introduction. 1.1 What was from the beginning. See 2.1, 12–14, 21, 26; 5.13. That our joy may be complete. See Jn 3.29; 15.11; 16.24; 17.13; 2 Jn 12.

1.5–2.11 A unit marked by light and darkness at both ends and containing six quotations from the author's opponents (if we say, 1.6, 8, 10, on sin; whoever says, 2.4, 6, 9, on obedience and love).

light and in him there is no darkness at all. ⁶If we say that we have fellowship with him while we are walking in darkness, we lie and do not do what is true; ⁷but if we walk in the light as he himself is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanses us from all sin. ⁸If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. ⁹If we confess our sins, he who is faithful and just will forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. ¹⁰If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

2 My little children, I am writing these things to you so that you may not sin. But if anyone does sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous; ²and he is the atoning sacrifice for our sins, and not for ours only but also for the sins of the whole world.

³ Now by this we may be sure that we know him, if we obey his commandments. ⁴Whoever says, "I have come to know him," but does not obey his commandments, is a liar, and in such a person the truth does not exist; ⁵but whoever obeys his word, truly in this person the love of God has reached perfection. By this we may be sure that we are in him: ⁶whoever says, "I abide in him," ought to walk just as he walked.

⁷ Beloved, I am writing you no new commandment, but an old commandment that you have had from the beginning; the old commandment is the word that you have heard. ⁸Yet I am writing you a new commandment that is true in him and in you, because^b the darkness is passing away and the true light is already shining. ⁹Whoever says, "I am in the light," while hating a brother or sister,^c is still in the darkness. ¹⁰Whoever loves a brother or sister^d lives in the light, and in such a person^e there is no cause for stumbling. ¹¹But whoever hates another believer^f is in the darkness, walks in the darkness, and does not know the way to go, because the darkness has brought on blindness.

Do Not Love the World

15 Do not love the world or the things in the world. The love of the Father is not in those who love the world; 16 for all that is in the world—the desire of the flesh, the desire of the eyes, the pride in riches—comes not from the Father but from the world. 17 And the world and its desires^g are passing away, but those who do the will of God live forever.

Warning Against Antichrists

18 Children, it is the last hour! As you have heard that antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have come. From this we know that it is the last hour. 19 They went out from us, but they did not belong to us; for if they had belonged to us, they would have remained with us. But by going out they made it plain that none of them belongs to us. 20 But you have been anointed by the Holy One, and all of you have knowledge.^h 21 I write to you, not because you do not know the truth, but because you know it, and you know that no lie comes from the truth. 22 Who is the liar but the one who denies that Jesus is the Christ?ⁱ This is the antichrist, the one who denies the Father and the Son. 23 No one who denies the Son has the Father; everyone who confesses the Son has the Father also. 24 Let what you heard from the beginning abide in you. If what you heard from the beginning abides in you, then you will abide in the Son and in the Father. 25 And this is what he has promised us,^j eternal life.

26 I write these things to you concerning those who would deceive you. 27 As for you, the anointing that you received from him abides in you, and so you do not need anyone to teach you. But as his anointing teaches you about all things, and is true and is not a lie, and just as it has taught you, abide in him.^k

Children of God

28 And now, little children, abide in him, so that when he is revealed we may have confidence and not be put to shame before him at his coming.

note on 2.13. 2.15–17 1 John aligns the world with the devil and against God (4.4–6; 5.4–5, 19) more than other NT writings, even John (cf. Jn 1.10; 3.16–17; 6.51; 8.12; 12.31; 14.30–31; 15.18–19; 16.8–11; 17.13–18). 2.16 Flesh is not sexuality, but human self-seeking; see Gal 5.14–17, 24; Eph 2.3; 1 Pet 2.11. Desire of the eyes, perhaps what attracts the senses. Riches. See 3.17. 2.17 Passing away. See 2.8. Live, or “abide.”

2.18–27 The opponents and their “deceitful” ideas about Christ. Note references to anointing near the beginning and end (2.20, 27). 2.18 Many early Christians believed that they lived in the last hour and expected an enemy of God (2 Thess 2.3–12) or false messiahs (Mk 13.5–6, 21–22) before the end. 1 John applies such ideas about an enemy from outside Christianity, an antichrist (“counter-Messiah”; only in 1 Jn 2.18, 22; 4.3; 2 Jn 7), to the many opponents within. 2.19 They, the author’s opponents; us, the community led by the author, with which the opponents broke fellowship. 2.20 Anointed here and anointing in 2.27 probably refer to the Holy Spirit (see 2 Cor 1.21–22; Isa 61.1 may be in mind), who teaches . . . all things (2.27; Jn 14.26). Holy One, probably God, but perhaps Jesus. 2.21 Knew the truth. See Jn 8.32; 2 Jn 1. 2.22 The opponents perhaps denied that the human Jesus was identical with the divine Christ, God’s Son; see 4.2–3, 15; 5.5–12; 2 Jn 7. 2.23 Confesses. See 4.2–3, 15; Jn 9.22; 12.42. Has the Father. See 2 Jn 9. Response to Jesus determines one’s relationship to God in the Gospel of John also; see Jn 5.23; 14.9; 15.23. 2.24 From the beginning. See note on 1.1. Abide in you. See note on 2.6. 2.25 See 1.2. 2.26 Deceive. See 3.7; 2 Jn 7. 2.27 Anointing, teaches . . . all things. See note on 2.20.

2.28–3.10 The focus shifts from the opponents to the readers with an emphasis on revelation. When Jesus comes and is revealed, those who abide in him will also be revealed; indeed, because he was already revealed to destroy sin, God’s children are already revealed by their love. See 1.2; 2.28; 3.2, 5, 8, 10. 2.28–29 At some point the referent of he and him shifts from Jesus to God. 2.28 Confidence. See note on 4.17.

29 If you know that he is righteous, you may be sure that everyone who does 3 right has been born of him. ¹See what love the Father has given us, that we should be called children of God; and that is what we are. The reason the world does not know us is that it did not know him. ²Beloved, we are God's children now; what we will be has not yet been revealed. What we do know is this: when he¹ is revealed, we will be like him, for we will see him as he is. ³And all who have this hope in him purify themselves, just as he is pure.

⁴ Everyone who commits sin is guilty of lawlessness; sin is lawlessness. ⁵You know that he was revealed to take away sins, and in him there is no sin. ⁶No one who abides in him sins; no one who sins has either seen him or known him. ⁷Little children, let no one deceive you. Everyone who does what is right is righteous, just as he is righteous. ⁸Everyone who commits sin is a child of the devil; for the devil has been sinning from the beginning. The Son of God was revealed for this purpose, to destroy the works of the devil. ⁹Those who have been born of God do not sin, because God's seed abides in them;^m they cannot sin, because they have been born of God. ¹⁰The children of God and the children of the devil are revealed in this way: all who do not do what is right are not from God, nor are those who do not love their brothers and sisters.ⁿ

Love One Another

¹¹ For this is the message you have heard from the beginning, that we should love one another. ¹²We must not be like Cain who was from the evil one and murdered his brother. And why did he murder him? Because his own deeds were evil and his brother's righteous. ¹³Do not be astonished, brothers and sisters,^o that the world hates you. ¹⁴We know that we have passed from death to life because we love one another. Whoever does not love abides in death. ¹⁵All who hate a brother or sisterⁿ are murderers, and you know that murderers do not have eternal life abiding in them. ¹⁶We know love by this, that he laid down his life for us—and we ought to lay down our lives for one another. ¹⁷How does God's love abide in anyone who has the world's goods and sees a brother or sister^p in need and yet refuses help?

See 2.2; 4.10; Jn 1.29. No sin. See 2 Cor 5.21; Heb 4.15. 3.6–10 The author here insists that no one who abides in him sins; see also 5.18; but cf. 1.8–2.2; 5.16–17. Perhaps 1 John's opponents claimed sinlessness in principle, while 1 John insists on seeking it in practice and warns here against persisting in sin. See also note on 2.6. 3.6 Known him. See 2.3–4; 4.7–8; also Jn 14.7–9, 17. 3.8 Child of the devil. See Jn 8.44. 3.9 Seed, perhaps the Spirit (see 2.27; 3.24; 4.13; Jn 3.5–8; 14.16–17). 3.10 The intent is probably to identify doing what is right with loving one's brothers and from the truth and will reassure our hearts before him ²⁰whenever our hearts condemn us; for God is greater than our hearts, and he knows everything. ²¹Beloved, if our hearts do not condemn us, we have boldness before God; ²²and we receive from him whatever we ask, because we obey his commandments and do what pleases him.

²³ And this is his commandment, that we should believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ and love one another, just as he has commanded us. ²⁴All who obey his commandments abide in him, and he abides in them. And by this we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit that he has given us.

Testing the Spirits

4 Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God; for many false prophets have gone out into the world. ²By this you know the Spirit of God: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God, ³and every spirit that does not confess Jesus^q is not from God. And this is the spirit of the antichrist, of which you have heard that it is coming; and now it is already in the world. ⁴Little children, you are from God, and have conquered them; for the one who is in you is greater than the one who is in the world. ⁵They are from the world; therefore what they say is from the world, and the world listens to them. ⁶We are from God. Whoever knows God listens to us, and whoever is not from God does not listen to us. From this we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error.

God Is Love

⁷ Beloved, let us love one another, because love is from God; everyone who loves is born of God and knows God. ⁸Whoever does not love does not know God, for God is love. ⁹God's love was revealed among us in this way: God sent his only Son into the world so that we might live through him. ¹⁰In this is love, not that we loved God but that he loved us and sent his Son to be the atoning sacrifice for our sins. ¹¹Beloved, since God loved us so much, we also ought to love one another. ¹²No one has ever seen God; if we love one another, God lives in us, and his love is perfected in us.

¹³ By this we know that we abide in him and he in us, because he has given us of his Spirit. ¹⁴And we have seen and do testify that the Father has sent his Son as the Savior of the world. ¹⁵God abides in those who confess that Jesus is the Son of God, and they abide in God. ¹⁶So we have known and believe the love that God has for us.

God is love, and those who abide in love abide in God, and God abides in them.

¹⁷Love has been perfected among us in this: that we may have boldness on the day of judgment, because as he is, so are we in this world. ¹⁸There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear; for fear has to do with punishment, and whoever fears has not reached perfection in love. ¹⁹We love^r because he first loved us. ²⁰Those who say, "I love God," and hate their brothers or sisters,^s are liars; for those who do not love a brother or sister^t whom they have seen, cannot love God whom they have not seen. ²¹The commandment we have from him is this: those who love God must love their brothers and sisters^s also.

Faith Conquers the World

5 Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ^u has been born of God, and everyone who loves the parent loves the child. ²By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and obey his commandments. ³For the love of God is this, that we obey his commandments. And his commandments are not burdensome, ⁴for whatever is born of God conquers the world. And this is the victory that conquers the world, our faith. ⁵Who is it that conquers the world but the one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

Testimony Concerning the Son of God

6 This is the one who came by water and blood, Jesus Christ, not with the water only but with the water and the blood.

And the Spirit is the one that testifies, for the Spirit is the truth. ⁷There are three that testify:^v ⁸the Spirit and the water and the blood, and these three agree. ⁹If we receive human testimony, the testimony of God is greater; for this is the testimony of God that he has testified to his Son. ¹⁰Those who believe in the Son of God have the testimony in their hearts. Those who do not believe in God^w have made him a liar by not believing in the testimony that God has given concerning his Son. ¹¹And this is the testimony: God gave us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. ¹²Whoever has the Son has life; whoever does not have the Son of God does not have life.

Epilogue

13 I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, so that you may know that you have eternal life.

14 And this is the boldness we have in him, that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us. ¹⁵And if we know that he hears us in whatever we ask, we know that we have obtained the requests made of him. ¹⁶If you see your brother or sister^x committing what is not a mortal

JOHN

Form

A TRUE LETTER, 2 JOHN contains the usual opening and closing formulas. It is apparently addressed to a Christian congregation, referred to as an “elect lady” (v. 1).

Author and Relation to Other Writings

The author calls himself “the elder” (v. 1), suggesting that he holds a position of some authority within the Christian community concerned. He is presumably the same as the author of 3 John and may have written 1 John also. It is no longer certain that he was the apostle John or even identical with the author of the Fourth Gospel (see Introductions to the Gospel of John and 1 John).

Date and Place

The similarities among the three documents suggest that 2 John was probably written at about the same time and place as 1 and 3 John, i.e., around 100 C.E., perhaps at Ephesus.

Historical Background and Message

Like 1 John, 2 John seems to have been written during a conflict with people who denied that the human Jesus was identical with the divine Christ. Though it insists on the importance of loving one another, it calls on its readers to avoid these opponents and even to refuse them the hospitality usually shown to Christian travelers. David K Rensberger

Salutation

1 The elder to the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth, and not only I but also all who know the truth, ²because of the truth that abides in us and will be with us forever:

3 Grace, mercy, and peace will be with us from God the Father and from ^a Jesus Christ, the Father's Son, in truth and love.

Truth and Love

4 I was overjoyed to find some of your children walking in the truth, just as we have been commanded by the Father. ⁵But now, dear lady, I ask you, not as though I were writing you a new commandment, but one we have had from the beginning, let us love one another. ⁶And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; this is the commandment just as you have heard it from the beginning—you must walk in it.

7 Many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not confess that

Jesus Christ has come in the flesh; any such person is the deceiver and the anti-christ! ⁸Be on your guard, so that you do not lose what we ^b have worked for, but may receive a full reward. ⁹Everyone who does not abide in the teaching of Christ, but goes beyond it, does not have God; whoever abides in the teaching has both the Father and the Son. ¹⁰Do not receive into the house or welcome anyone who comes to you and does not bring this teaching; ¹¹for to welcome is to participate in the evil deeds of such a person.

Final Greetings

12 Although I have much to write to you, I would rather not use paper and ink; instead I hope to come to you and talk with you face to face, so that our joy may be complete.

13 The children of your elect sister send you their greetings.^c

8 What we have worked for. See Jn 6.27-29. We may mean the author and other church leaders, or it may include the readers, as elsewhere in 2 John. 9 The teaching of Christ, i.e., the doctrine of Christ coming in the flesh (v. 7; see also 1 Jn 2.22-27; 4.15). On having both the Father and the Son, see 1 Jn 2.23; 5.12. 10-11 Hospitality was essential to traveling missionaries and teachers in the early churches (see, e.g., 3 Jn 5-8; also Rom 12.13; 15.23-24; 16.1-2; Heb 13.2). By forbidding it to the opponents, the author hopes to hinder the spread of their teaching (see also Rom 16.17; 2 Thess 3.6). In 3 Jn 9-10, the author complains of similar tactics being used against him! Evil deeds. See Jn 3.19-20; 7.7; 1 Jn 3.12.

THE THIRD LETTER OF

JOHN

Form, Author, and Relation to Other Writings

LIKE 2 JOHN, 3 JOHN IS A GENUINE LETTER. Its addressee, Gaius, is otherwise unknown. "The elder," as the author of 3 John calls himself (v. 1), is presumably the same as the author of 2 John and may also have written 1 John. Though it is no longer certain that he was the apostle John or identical with the author of the Fourth Gospel (see Introductions to the Gospel of John and 1 John), he evidently held a position of some authority within the Christian community concerned.

Date and Place

The similarities among 3 John and 1 and 2 John suggest that the three documents were probably written at about the same time and place, i.e., around 100 C.E., perhaps at Ephesus.

Historical Background and Message

Unlike 1 and 2 John, 3 John contains no discussion of doctrine or love. Instead, it praises Gaius for his hospitality and criticizes someone named Diotrephes for opposing the elder. It has been suggested that Diotrephes was a leader of the movement confronted by 1 and 2 John, or a church leader seeking either to establish his own authority or to keep his church free from controversies.

David K Rensberger

Salutation

1 The elder to the beloved Gaius, whom I love in truth.

Gaius Commended for His Hospitality

2 Beloved, I pray that all may go well with you and that you may be in good health, just as it is well with your soul. ³I was overjoyed when some of the friends^a arrived and testified to your faithfulness to the truth, namely how you walk in the truth. ⁴I have no greater joy than this, to hear that my children are walking in the truth.

5 Beloved, you do faithfully whatever you do for the friends,^a even though they are strangers to you; ⁶they have testified to your love before the church. You will do well to send them on in a manner worthy of God; ⁷for they began their journey for the sake of Christ,^b accepting no support from non-believers.^c ⁸Therefore we ought to support such people, so that we may become co-workers with the truth.

Diotrephes and Demetrius

9 I have written something to the church; but Diotrephes, who likes to put himself first, does not acknowledge our authority. ¹⁰So if I come, I will call attention to what he is doing in spreading false charges against us. And not content with those charges, he refuses to welcome the friends,^a and even prevents those who want to do so and expels them from the church.

11 Beloved, do not imitate what is evil but imitate what is good. Whoever does good is from God; whoever does evil has not seen God. ¹²Everyone has testified favorably about Demetrius, and so has the truth itself. We also testify for him,^d and you know that our testimony is true.

Final Greetings

13 I have much to write to you, but I would rather not write with pen and ink; ¹⁴instead I hope to see you soon, and we will talk together face to face.

15 Peace to you. The friends send you their greetings. Greet the friends there, each by name.

1-2 An opening typical of Greek personal letters. Gaius was a common Roman name borne by three other men in the NT (Acts 19:29; 20:4; Rom 16:23; 1 Cor 1:14). Whom I love in truth. See 2 Jn 1.

3-8 Some Christian workers are commended to the hospitality of Gaius. ³*Your faithfulness to the truth*, lit. "your truth." Walk in the truth. See 2 Jn 4. ⁵⁻⁸ On the importance of hospitality in the early churches, see note on 2 Jn 10-11. ⁶*Send them on*, i.e., with provisions (see Titus 3:13). ⁸*Co-workers*. Cf. 2 Jn 11.

9-12 A dispute between church leaders. ⁹⁻¹⁰ Diotrephes (see Introduction) uses something like the elder's own tactics (2 Jn 10-11) against him. Acknowledge our authority, or just "welcome us" (cf. welcome the friends, v. 10). ¹¹*Whoever does good is from God*. See 1 Jn 2:29; 3:10. Seen God. See 1 Jn 3:6; 4:12; also Jn 1:18; 6:46. ¹² The identity of Demetrius is unknown; he may have delivered this letter. The author commends him to Gaius's hospitality and support (see vv. 5-8). Our testimony is true. See Jn 5:31-33; 19:35; 21:24.

THE LETTER OF JUDE

Authorship and Date

THIS LETTER IS ATTRIBUTED to Jude (Greek Judas), one of the brothers of Jesus (see Mk 6.3). He is known to have been a prominent leader and traveling missionary in the early Jewish-Christian movement in Palestine (see 1 Cor 9.5). The authenticity of the attribution to Jude has often been doubted, but recent work demonstrates that it is entirely plausible. The Letter cannot be dated with any certainty, but it may well be one of the earliest writings in the NT, as well as one of the few to derive directly from Palestinian Christianity. We do not know to which churches it was originally written.

Purpose and Opponents

The Letter's purpose is to warn the readers about the danger posed by a form of teaching that is being propagated in their churches and to advise them on how to respond. The proponents of this teaching claim to be inspired prophets whose visionary revelations exempt them and all truly spiritual people (i.e., their followers) from any form of moral authority (v. 8). They claim that the grace of God in Christ liberates them to do as they please (v. 4) and apparently demonstrate this freedom especially by sexual indulgence (v. 7). In response, Jude insists that faith in the Christian gospel is inseparable from moral obedience to Christ. The opponents are a serious danger to his readers, because they encourage deliberate immorality that puts their salvation at risk. Such outright rejection of God's moral authority can only incur judgment when Christ comes as judge. But Jude's purpose is not only to warn of the danger (vv. 4–19). It is also to urge his readers "to contend for the faith" (v. 3) by positively living out the gospel in faith, hope, and love (vv. 20–21). His advice on how to deal with the opponents and their followers (vv. 22–23) combines a realistic sense of the danger they pose to his readers with a pastoral concern for their salvation.

Use of the OT and Extracanonical Literature

Jude bases much of his argument on OT allusions and employs current Jewish methods of scriptural interpretation. He also refers to Jewish works that are not in the OT canon, especially 1 Enoch (see vv. 6, 14-15) and an apocryphal story about the burial of Moses (see v. 9) that he probably read in the (now lost) ending of the Testament of Moses. Such apocryphal literature was widely read and valued in Judaism at that time. Richard J. Bauckham

Salutation

1 Jude,^a a servant^b of Jesus Christ and brother of James,

To those who are called, who are beloved^c in^d God the Father and kept safe for^d Jesus Christ:

2 May mercy, peace, and love be yours in abundance.

Occasion and Theme

3 Beloved, while eagerly preparing to write to you about the salvation we share, I find it necessary to write and appeal to you to contend for the faith that was once for all entrusted to the saints. ⁴For certain intruders have stolen in among you, people who long ago were designated for this condemnation as ungodly, who pervert the grace of our God into licentiousness and deny our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.^e

Judgment on False Teachers

5 Now I desire to remind you, though you are fully informed, that the Lord, who once for all saved^f a people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed those who did not believe. ⁶And the angels who did not keep their own position, but left their proper dwelling, he has kept in eternal chains in deepest darkness for the judgment of the great day. ⁷Likewise, Sodom and Gomorrah and the surrounding cities, which, in the same manner as they, indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural lust,^g serve as an example by undergoing a punishment of eternal fire.

1-2 The opening address and greeting are characteristic of early Christian letters. ¹ For Jude, see Mk 6.3. James must be the Lord's brother (see Gal 1.19), leader of the Jerusalem church and so well known as to need no further identification (see Acts 15.13; Jas 1.1). ³⁻⁴ The theme of the Letter is introduced in two parts: an appeal (v. 3) and a reference to the situation that makes the appeal necessary (v. 4). ³ The faith that was once for all entrusted to the saints is the gospel as the readers received it from the apostles who founded their churches. Paul makes similar references to the gospel as it was first preached to his readers; see Rom 16.17; 2 Cor 11.4; Gal 1.9. ⁴ This condemnation refers to the prophecies of judgment (vv. 5-19), especially Enoch's (vv. 14-15). The opponents pervert the grace of our God by understanding Christian freedom as freedom to do as they like. They deny Christ's moral authority by practicing and teaching immorality.

5-19 Jude indicates the character and fate of the opponents by citing a series of OT examples of God's judgment on the wicked (vv. 5-13) and two prophecies regarding the ungodly (vv. 14-19). By identifying the opponents as these ungodly people who are to be judged at the Lord's coming, Jude shows how dangerous they are to the churches. ⁵ A whole generation of faithless Israelites died in the wilderness (Num 14.1-35; 26.64-65). ⁶ The angels who . . . left their proper dwelling. In the story of the "sons of God" (Gen 6.1-4), as interpreted in 1 Enoch 6-19, the angels left heaven to mate with women. ⁷ The Sodomites attempted sexual relations with angels (Gen 19.4-11). ⁸ The unusual term dreamers refers to the visions the opponents claimed as authorizing their immoral behavior. Glorious ones was a common term for angels. Because the angels were seen as guardians of the moral order of creation, the opponents who claimed freedom from this or-

8 Yet in the same way these dreamers also defile the flesh, reject authority, and slander the glorious ones.^h 9 But when the archangel Michael contended with the devil and disputed about the body of Moses, he did not dare to bring a condemnation of slanderⁱ against him, but said, "The Lord rebuke you!" 10 But these people slander whatever they do not understand, and they are destroyed by those things that, like irrational animals, they know by instinct. 11 Woe to them! For they go the way of Cain, and abandon themselves to Balaam's error for the sake of gain, and perish in Korah's rebellion. 12 These are blemishes^j on your love-feasts, while they feast with you without fear, feeding themselves.^k They are waterless clouds carried along by the winds; autumn trees without fruit, twice dead, uprooted; 13 wild waves of the sea, casting up the foam of their own shame; wandering stars, for whom the deepest darkness has been reserved forever.

14 It was also about these that Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied, saying, "See, the Lord is coming^l with ten thousands of his holy ones, 15 to execute judgment on all, and to convict everyone of all the deeds of ungodliness that they have committed in such an ungodly way, and of all the harsh things that ungodly sinners have spoken against him." 16 These are grumblers and malcontents; they indulge their own lusts; they are bombastic in speech, flattering people to their own advantage.

Final Advice

17 But you, beloved, must remember the predictions of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ; 18 for they said to you, "In the last time there will be scoffers, indulging their own ungodly lusts." 19 It is these worldly people, devoid of the Spirit, who are causing divisions. 20 But you, beloved, build yourselves up on your most holy faith; pray in the Holy Spirit; 21 keep yourselves in the love of God; look forward to the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ that leads to^m eternal life. 22 And have mercy on some who are wavering; 23 save othersⁿ by snatching them out of the fire; and have mercy on still others with fear, hating even the tunic defiled by their bodies.ⁿ

Doxology

24 Now to him who is able to keep you from falling, and to make you stand without blemish in the presence of his glory with rejoicing, 25 to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, power, and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen.

der disparaged them. 9 In an apocryphal story about the burial of Moses, Michael and the devil engage in a legal dispute. The devil accuses Moses of murder. Michael knows this charge is slanderous, but he does not presume (dare) to condemn the devil for slander on his own authority. Instead he refers the matter to the authority of the divine judge (the Lord). The implication of v. 9 is to contrast Michael's behavior with that of the opponents, who claim to be exempt from all moral authority (see v. 8) and on their own authority reject all moral charges against them. 11 These or examples are of people responsible for leading others into sin. Cain (see Gen 4.1–16; 1 Jn 3.12), in Jewish tradition, was the first heretic; the prophet Balaam gave the advice that led Israel into apostasy (Num 25.1–4; 31.16); Korah led a rebellion against Moses (Num 16.1–35). 12 Blemishes. Reefs (see text note j) is preferable: the opponents are a hidden danger to the churches, especially at the fellowship meals (love-feasts) where they do their teaching. Feeding them- selves. The text note (k) gives the right sense, which echoes Ezek 34.2. The metaphor of clouds is from Prov 25.14. 13 The metaphor of waves is from Isa 57.20. Wandering stars mislead those who are guided by them. 14–15 The prophecy of Enoch (see Gen 5.18–24) is from 1 Enoch 1.9. 19 The charge devoid of the Spirit is probably directed to the opponents' claim that the Spirit makes them superior to ordinary morality.

20–23 This section explains how the readers are to respond to the appeal made in v. 3, indicating the ways in which they can resist the danger from false teaching (vv. 20–21) and the ways in which they should seek to reclaim the false teachers and their followers (vv. 22–23). 23 The fire is that of divine judgment (see Am 4.11; Zech 3.2). Hating even the tunic defiled by their bodies implies avoiding the danger of personal contact with those who indulge in sins of the flesh. 24–25 A doxology concludes the Letter (as in Rom 16.25–27; 2 Pet 3.18).

THE REVELATION TO JOHN (APOCALYPSE)

Author

THE REVELATION TO JOHN WAS WRITTEN by a person named “John” (1.1, 4, 9; 22.8), an anglicized version of a common ancient Hebrew name often transliterated “Johanan.” Many early Christian writers assumed that the author of this book had also written the Gospel and Letters of John and identified him with John the son of Zebedee, one of the twelve apostles. Both these assumptions seem false. While the author of Revelation regards the twelve apostles as authoritative figures of the past (21.14), he identifies himself simply as a servant of God (1.1) and as a brother who shares the sufferings of those to whom he addresses his book (1.9). On the basis of both literary style and theological emphases, it is unlikely that he wrote either the Gospel or the Letters of John. Although modern critical scholars have abandoned the theory of common authorship, the traditional association of these five compositions with the name “John” has encouraged the view that all five were produced by various members of a “Johannine community” behind which stood the shadowy figure of John the apostle.

Although the specific identity of the author is unknown, Revelation provides some important clues about his general identity. The frequent allusions to the OT (particularly Ezekiel and Daniel) suggest his Jewish origin. The Semitic features of his Greek style indicate that he was a native of Palestine who emigrated to Asia Minor, perhaps in the wake of the first Jewish revolt against Rome (66–73 C.E.), when many were forced to flee for their lives. By calling his composition a prophetic book (1.3; 22.7, 10, 18, 19), he clearly implies that he is a prophet. His familiarity with the circumstances of the seven Christian communities he addresses further suggests that he was probably a well-known itinerant Christian prophet (22.9).

Date

Many early Christian writers thought that Revelation had been written toward the end of Domitian's reign (81–96 c.e.), but a few later writers thought that John had written a generation earlier, during the persecution that occurred in 64 c.e. under Nero (54–68 c.e.). Evidence supporting both dates can be found in the book. Rev 11.1–3 suggests that the Jewish temple in Jerusalem (destroyed by the Romans in 70 c.e.) was still standing when the book was written. Further, the code name of the beast in Rev 13.18 is 666, widely thought to symbolize the name Nero Caesar. However, other data suggest a date after 70. There are several allusions (13.3; 17.9–11) to the legend of Nero's return that circulated throughout the eastern Mediterranean during the two decades following his suicide in 68. Further, Revelation frequently uses "Babylon" as a code name for Rome (14.8; 16.19; 17.5, 18; 18.2, 10, 21), but Jews used this code name only after the Romans destroyed Jerusalem in 70. In the light of this conflicting evidence, it appears likely that the book was actually composed and assembled in stages over many years and was only completed in its present form toward the end of the first century c.e. Though certainty is not possible, the first edition of the book probably consisted of 1.4–11; 4.1–22.5, to which 1.1–3; 1.12–3.22; 22.6–21 were added in a second edition.

Occasion

The date assigned to Revelation has usually been closely connected by both ancient and modern scholars with the situation of persecution reflected in the book (1.9; 2.10; 12.17), a persecution involving the execution of some Christians (2.13; 6.9–11; 13.15; 17.6; 18.24; 20.4; see also 11.7–10). The persecution under Nero in 64, however, only affected Christians in and around Rome. The view that Domitian fomented an official persecution of Christians in Asia Minor has been widely held by ancient and modern scholars, though no clear historical evidence confirms it. It seems that the persecution of Christians in Asia Minor was not the result of an official Roman policy but instead consisted of random outbreaks of hostility between Christians and their pagan and Jewish neighbors, outbreaks into which Roman governors were sometimes drawn, though not always willingly (see Acts 19.23–41). Thus it is difficult to determine whether the widespread and apparently systematic persecution reflected in this book represents what has actually happened or what the author expects will happen.

Genre

Revelation is usually assigned to the ancient literary genre called "apocalypse." In fact, the name for this genre derives from Rev 1.1, which uses the Greek word apokalypsis ("revelation") to designate the contents of the book. An apocalypse is usually a first-person narrative in which the author (normally using a pen name of some famous ancient biblical figure such as Adam, Abraham, or Enoch) relates one or more revelatory visions about the future or the heavenly world or both. Jewish apocalypses often reflect a sharp distinction between the present evil age and the imminent future age of blessing. The conflict between a righteous minority (Israel or a righteous remnant within Israel) and a wicked majority (hostile foreign powers or a hostile group within Israel) is understood as representing a clash between God and Satan. After a period of intense conflict and great suffering, God (sometimes acting through a messianic agent) will decisively intervene in history to vindicate and reward God's people and punish or eliminate their earthly oppressors. Many Jewish apocalypses use a great deal of symbolism, often quite bizarre (e.g., Dan 7.2–8), and Revelation is no exception. One stock figure of Jewish apocalypses also found in Revelation is the "interpreting angel," a heavenly being who explains the meaning of visions to the seer (1.1; 17.1–18; 21.9–22.5). The only other book-length apocalypse in the Bible is Daniel. David E. Aune

The seven churches addressed in the book of Revelation were in the cities underlined on the map, all in the Roman province of Asia (Rev 1.4).

1.1–2 Following ancient literary conventions, the first sentence functions as a title presenting the essential contents of the composition.

1.1 The phrase revelation of Jesus Christ indicates the immediate source of John's revelatory visions; their ultimate source is God. An insistence that the events predicted in John's visions must soon take place frames the book (1.3; 22.6, 10). The mediating angel is mentioned again only in 22.6–9, 16, though two other angelic guides appear in 17.1–18 and 21.9–22.5. 1.3 Blessed introduces the first of seven beatitudes (14.13; 16.15; 19.9; 20.6; 22.7, 14). The fact that a designated person reads aloud John's book means that it is designed for use in Christian worship (see Col 4.16; 1 Thess 5.27). On the book as prophecy, see Introduction. Exhortations that the hearers are to keep or obey (see also 22.7, 9) are largely restricted to the introductory and concluding sections of the book (2.1–3.22; 14.12; 16.15; 22.6–21). The time is near, i.e., the time when behavior will be judged. 1.4–5a Revelation begins like a typical ancient letter with the designation of the sender and receiver and the salutation (see also 22.21); this reflects earlier Christian, possibly Pauline, influence (see, e.g., 1 Thess 1.1). 1.4 The seven churches were located in seven prominent cities (enumerated in 1.11) in western Anatolia (modern Turkey) in the Roman province of Asia; all were within one hundred miles of Ephesus. The number seven (used fifty-seven times in Revelation) symbolizes the divine pattern evident in both the universe and history. The threefold divine name, him who is and who was and who is to come (see also 1.8; 11.17; 16.5), alludes to a widespread Hellenistic Jewish name for God based on Ex 3.14, "the one who is." It differs slightly from a popular Greek formula describing God as "the one who is and who was and who will be" by emphasizing the future visitation of God. The seven spirits are the seven archangels who stand before God (3.1; 4.5; 5.6; 8.2; see also Tob 12.15; Lk 1.19; 1 Enoch 20.1–7). 1.5a The three titles of Jesus (corresponding to the threefold title for God), faithful witness, (1.2, 9; 2.13; 6.9; 12.11; 17.6), firstborn of the dead (see Col 1.18), and ruler of the kings of the earth (17.14; 19.16), describe three essential aspects of his role: the faithful proclamation of the message of God, which led to his execution; the victory signaled by his resurrection; and his future role as universal sovereign. 1.5b–8 The opening doxology (see Gal 1.5), addressed to Christ, is followed by two brief oracles. 1.6 Made us to be a kingdom, priests. See Ex 19.6. 1.7 He is coming with the clouds, an allusion to Dan 7.13 applied to Jesus as the coming Son of Man (see 14.14; Mk 8.38; 13.26). People wail because they fear the impending eschatological judgment (see Zech 12.10). 1.8 The Alpha and the Omega, the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet. The title expresses the idea of totality and symbolizes God's sovereignty (21.6; 22.13); it is similar in meaning to the first and the last (1.17; 2.8; 22.13) and the beginning and the end (21.6; 22.13); see note on 1.17.

1.9–20 John's terrifying vision of the exalted Christ provides an introduction to the seven proclamations that follow. 1.9 On the problem of persecution as the situation motivating John to write, see Introduction. Patmos was a populated on the island called Patmos because of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus.^f 10 I was in the spirit^g on the Lord's day, and I heard behind me a loud voice like a trumpet 11 saying, "Write in a book what you see and send it to the seven churches, to Ephesus, to Smyrna, to Pergamum, to Thyatira, to Sardis, to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea."

12 Then I turned to see whose voice it was that spoke to me, and on turning I saw seven golden lampstands, 13 and in the midst of the lampstands I saw one like the Son of Man, clothed with a long robe and with a golden sash across his chest. 14 His head and his hair were white as white wool, white as snow; his eyes were like a flame of fire, 15 his feet were like burnished bronze, refined as in a furnace, and his voice was like the sound of many waters. 16 In his right hand he held seven stars, and from his mouth came a sharp, two-edged sword, and his face was like the sun shining with full force.

17 When I saw him, I fell at his feet as though dead. But he placed his right hand on me, saying, "Do not be afraid; I am the first and the last, 18 and the living one. I was dead, and see, I am alive forever and ever; and I have the keys of Death and of Hades. 19 Now write what you have seen, what is, and what is to take place after this. 20 As for the mystery of the seven stars that you saw in my right hand, and the seven golden lampstands: the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

island thirty-seven miles southwest of Ephesus. There is no evidence that it was ever a Roman penal colony, but John may have been banished from his home territory and forced to go there. 1.10 I was in the spirit means that John experienced a vision trance (4.2; 17.3; 21.10; see also Acts 10.10; 11.5; 22.6–7). The Lord's day is a term used later, and probably also here, for Sunday, the main weekly Christian day of worship (Didache 14.1; Gospel of Peter 12.50). This usage may derive from the celebration of the Lord's Supper on that day (1 Cor 11.20), the day commemorating Christ's resurrection (Ignatius Magnesians 9.1). 1.12–16 The description of the exalted Christ resembles other epiphanies of divine figures (19.11–16; Dan 10.5–9). 1.12 The seven golden lampstands, representing the seven churches (1.20), are menorahs, lights that burn continually before God in the sanctuary (Ex 27.20–21; Lev 24.2–4). 1.13 One like the Son of Man, an allusion to Dan 7.13 (see also Rev 1.7; 14.14). 1.14 The hair . . . white as white wool characterizes the Ancient of Days (i.e., God) in Dan 7.9 but here is part of the description of Christ, implicitly equating the Son of Man with God. 1.16 The sword proceeding from Christ's mouth (see also 2.16; 19.15, 21; cf. 2.12) is a metaphor both for the word of God and for judgment (see Isa 49.2; Wis 18.15–16; 2 Thess 2.8; Heb 4.12). 1.17 Fell . . . as though dead. The fright of the seer is a stock motif in vision reports (see Isa 6.5; Ezek 1.28; Dan 8.17; Lk 24.5). The first and the last, a divine title derived from Second Isaiah (Isa 41.4; 44.6; 48.12;

see note on Rev 1.8). 1.18 The keys of Death and of Hades, i.e., the keys to Death and Hades (as to a door); because Christ was dead but is now alive forever, he controls them. 1.19 A three-part general outline of Revelation: what you have seen (1.9–20), what is (2.1–3.22), and what is to take place after this (4.1–22.5). 1.20 The angels of the seven churches, later referred to individually (2.1, 8, 12, 18; 3.1, 7, 14), are the heavenly counterparts of the earthly Christian communities.

2.1–3.22 The messages to the seven churches are not in the form of ancient letters (see 1.4–5a) but rather resemble the edicts and decrees issued by Persian kings and Roman emperors. Each proclamation consists of eight stereotypical features: (1) destination, (2) the command to write, (3) the archaic "thus says" formula (these are the words of), (4) titles of Christ (largely based on the vision in 1.9–20), (5) the I know narrative, (6) admonitions and exhortations, (7) the proclamation formula (let anyone who has an ear listen), and (8) the victory formula (whoever conquers and similar phrases). Moral exhortation, usually absent from apocalypses, permeates these proclamations. 2.1 Ephesus, largest city of the Roman province of Asia, seat of the proconsul, and an important early Christian center (Acts 18.19–28; 19.1; 20.16–17; 1 Cor 15.32; 1 Tim 1.3). 2.2 Tested suggests that visiting missionaries were expected to measure up to certain expectations in teaching and behavior (1 Thess 5.21; 1 Jn 4.1–3; Didache 11). Apostles is a general term for itinerant missionaries (Acts 14.4, 14; Rom 16.7; 2 Cor 8.23;

cannot tolerate evildoers; you have tested those who claim to be apostles but are not, and have found them to be false. ³I also know that you are enduring patiently and bearing up for the sake of my name, and that you have not grown weary. ⁴But I have this against you, that you have abandoned the love you had at first. ⁵Remember then from what you have fallen; repent, and do the works you did at first. If not, I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place, unless you repent. ⁶Yet this is to your credit: you hate the works of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate. ⁷Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. To everyone who conquers, I will give permission to eat from the tree of life that is in the paradise of God.

The Message to Smyrna

8 “And to the angel of the church in Smyrna write: These are the words of the first and the last, who was dead and came to life:

9 “I know your affliction and your poverty, even though you are rich. I know the slander on the part of those who say that they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan. ¹⁰Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Beware, the devil is about to throw some of you into prison so that you may be tested, and for ten days you will have affliction. Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life. ¹¹Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. Whoever conquers will not be harmed by the second death.

The Message to Pergamum

12 “And to the angel of the church in Pergamum write: These are the words of him who has the sharp two-edged sword:

13 “I know where you are living, where Satan’s throne is. Yet you are holding fast to my name, and you did not deny your faith in me^h even in the days of Antipas my witness, my faithful one, who was killed among you, where Satan lives. ¹⁴But I have a few things against you: you

h Or deny my faith

Didache 11.3–6). 2.5 I will . . . remove your lampstand (see 1.12, 20) is a threat to obliterate the Ephesian church as a Christian community. 2.6 The Nicolaitans, an otherwise unknown Christian sect found in Ephesus and Pergamum (see 2.15), possibly identical with the false apostles of 2.2 and with Jezebel and her followers in Thyatira (2.20–23). 2.7 To eat from the tree of life is a metaphor for salvation or eternal life (Gen 3.22–24; 1 Enoch 25.4–6; Testament of Levi 18.11). Access to the tree was denied to Adam and Eve (Gen 3.24) but will be available to the righteous (Rev 22.2, 14, 19). The Hebrew term for the garden which was located in Eden, somewhere on earth (Gen 2.8), was translated paradise (Iranian loanword for “garden,” or “park”) in the Septuagint. Later, paradise came to be regarded as the abode of the righteous dead (2 Esd 7.36; Lk 23.43; 1 Enoch 60.8), located in heaven (2 Cor 12.2–4; 2 Enoch 8.1). 2.8 Smyrna, a harbor city forty miles north of Ephesus and a center of the imperial cult (i.e., the worship of the Roman emperor). The first and the last. See 1.17. 2.9 Despite physical poverty, the Smyrnaean Christians are spiritually rich. Slander by the Jews refers to their denunciation of Christians before Roman officials (see Acts 18.12–17; Martyrdom of Polycarp 12.2–3), an indication of sharp conflict between the two communities. 2.10 The devil (from diabolos, a Greek word meaning “slanderer,” which is a synonym for the Hebrew term “Satan”), working through his earthly henchmen, will throw them into prison. Ten days symbolizes a short but indefinite period of time. The crown of life (see 1 Cor 9.25; Jas 1.12), an image based on the wreath awarded to winners in ancient competitions, is a metaphor for the reward of eternal life (Rev 3.11). 2.11 Second death (20.6, 14; 21.8), the eternal punishment of the wicked following physical death. 2.12 Pergamum, a city of 180,000, was the seat of government in the Roman province of Asia and a major center of the imperial cult (see note on 2.8). 2.13 Satan’s throne, an enigmatic phrase that may refer to the proconsul’s judgment seat, to Pergamum as a center of the imperial cult, or to the Great Altar of Zeus erected after 230 B.C.E. (ancients often designated altars as thrones). Antipas, an otherwise unknown Christian executed or lynched in Pergamum. Witness, from the Greek martys, a word that soon took on the connotation of “martyr” (Martyrdom of Polycarp 14.2). 2.14 According to postbiblical Jewish literature, the error of Balaam (see Num 22–24; 31.16; 2 Pet 2.15–16; Jude 11) involved idolatry and sexual immorality. Food sacrificed to idols, sold to the public in pagan temple meat markets, violated the Jewish prohibition of idolatry (Ex 34.15; 4 Macc 5.2) and, because of its connection with pagan worship, was a problem for early Christians as well (2.20; Acts 15.20, 29; 21.25; 1 Cor 8.1, 4, have some there who hold to the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to put a stumbling block before the people of Israel, so that they would eat food sacrificed to idols and practice fornication. ¹⁵So you also have some who hold to the teaching of the Nicolaitans. ¹⁶Repent then. If not, I will come to you soon and make war against them with the sword of my mouth. ¹⁷Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. To everyone who conquers I will give some of the hidden manna, and I will give a white stone, and on the white stone is written a new name that no one knows except the one who receives it.

The Message to Thyatira

¹⁸ “And to the angel of the church in Thyatira write: These are the words of the Son of God, who has eyes like a flame of fire, and whose feet are like burnished bronze:

¹⁹ “I know your works—your love, faith, service, and patient endurance. I know that your last works are greater than the first. ²⁰But I have this against you: you tolerate that woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophet and is teaching and beguiling my servantsⁱ to practice fornication and to eat food sacrificed to idols. ²¹I gave her time to repent, but she refuses to repent of her fornication. ²²Beware, I am throwing her on a bed, and those who commit adultery with her I am throwing into great distress, unless they repent of her doings; ²³and I will strike her children dead. And all the churches will know that I am the one who searches minds and hearts, and I will give to each of you as your works deserve. ²⁴But to the rest of you in Thyatira, who do not hold this teaching, who have not learned what some call ‘the deep things of Satan,’ to you I say, I do not lay on you any other burden; ²⁵only hold fast to what you have until I come. ²⁶To everyone who conquers and continues to do my works to the end,

I will give authority over the nations;

²⁷ to rule^j them with an iron rod, as when clay pots are shattered—

²⁸even as I also received authority from my Father. To the one who conquers I will also give the morning star. ²⁹Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

The Message to Sardis

3 “And to the angel of the church in Sardis write: These are the words of him who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars:

“I know your works; you have a name of being alive, but you are dead. ²Wake up, and strengthen what remains and is on the point of death, for I have not found your works perfect in the sight of my God. ³Remember then what you received and heard; obey it, and repent. If you do not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come to you. ⁴Yet you have still a few persons in Sardis who have not soiled their clothes; they will walk with me, dressed in white, for they are worthy. ⁵If

7, 10; 10.28). 2.15 Nicolaitans (see 2.6) repeat the error of Balaam. 2.17 Manna (also called “bread from heaven,” see Ex 16.4; Neh 9.15; Jn 6.31–34, and “food from heaven,” Ps 105.40) is here a metaphor for eternal life; according to Jewish expectation, the miraculous feeding would be repeated in the last days. White stone, an amulet on which is inscribed a new name, i.e., the secret name of God or Christ (3.12; 19.12), and which is a symbol for the permanent protection of the wearer. 2.18 Thyatira (modern Akhisar), lay thirty-five miles inland, between Pergamum and Ephesus. 2.20 Jezebel, the Canaanite queen of King Ahab of Israel (1 Kings 18–19; 2 Kings 9), who induced Ahab to worship Canaanite deities. John gives this infamous name to a Christian prophetess whose teachings were leading Christians astray. 2.23 Her children, the followers of the prophetess. 2.24 The deep things of Satan, perhaps a sarcastic revision of the prophetess’s motto, which probably was “the deep things of God.” 2.28 The morning star (the bright planet Venus) is an epithet of Christ (22.16) and a messianic symbol (Num 24.17; Mt 2.2, 10). 3.1 Sardis, the ancient capital of the Lydian kingdom, then of the Seleucid kingdom. Seven spirits. See 1.4. 3.3 I will come like a thief, a frequent metaphor for the unexpected arrival of Christ (16.15; Mt 24.42–44; Lk 12.39–40; 1 Thess 5.2; 2 Pet 3.10). 3.4 Soiled clothes represent evil deeds, while white garments symbolize righteousness. 3.5 Book of life, i.e., a heavenly registry of the

you conquer, you will be clothed like them in white robes, and I will not blot your name out of the book of life; I will confess your name before my Father and before his angels. ⁶Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

The Message to Philadelphia

7 “And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write:

These are the words of the holy one, the true one,
who has the key of David,
who opens and no one will shut,
who shuts and no one opens:

8 “I know your works. Look, I have set before you an open door, which no one is able to shut. I know that you have but little power, and yet you have kept my word and have not denied my name. ⁹I will make those of the synagogue of Satan who say that they are Jews and are not, but are lying—I will make them come and bow down before your feet, and they will learn that I have loved you. ¹⁰Because you have kept my word of patient endurance, I will keep you from the hour of trial that is coming on the whole world to test the inhabitants of the earth. ¹¹I am coming soon; hold fast to what you have, so that no one may seize your crown. ¹²If you conquer, I will make you a pillar in the temple of my God; you will never go out of it. I will write on you the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem that comes down from my God out of heaven, and my own new name. ¹³Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

The Message to Laodicea

14 “And to the angel of the church in Laodicea write: The words of the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the origin^k of God’s creation:

15 “I know your works; you are neither cold nor hot. I wish that you were either cold or hot. ¹⁶So, because you are lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I am about to spit you out of my mouth. ¹⁷For you say, ‘I am rich, I have prospered, and I need nothing.’ You do not realize that you are wretched, pitiable, poor, blind, and naked. ¹⁸Therefore I counsel you to buy from me gold refined by fire so that you may be rich; and white robes to clothe you and to keep the shame of your nakedness from being seen; and salve to anoint your eyes so that you may see. ¹⁹I reprove and discipline those whom I love. names of God’s people, a metaphor for salvation and election (13.8; 17.8; 20.12, 15; 21.27; Ex 32.32; Dan 12.1; Lk 10.20; Phil 4.3). 3.7 Philadelphia, a city thirty miles from Sardis. Key of David, symbol of messianic power and authority (see Isa 22.22). 3.8 The open door is a metaphor either for opportunities to evangelize (Acts 14.27; 1 Cor 16.9; 2 Cor 2.12) or for access to salvation (Lk 13.24). 3.9 Synagogue of Satan. See 2.9. 3.10 Hour of trial refers to the period of distress and suffering, often called “the great tribulation,” prior to God’s eschatological triumph (7.14; 13.5–10; Dan 12.1; Mt 24.21; Mk 13.7–20; 1 Cor 7.26; Hermas Visions 2.2.7). 3.11 I am coming soon. The imminent return of Christ is frequently mentioned (1.3; 16.15; 22.12, 20). 3.12 Pillar in the temple means a permanent place in the heavenly temple, a metaphor for salvation. I will write on you the name of my God designates ownership and dedication; the name of God was written on the front of the high priest’s turban (Ex 28.36–38). The name of . . . the new Jerusalem indicates citizenship in the heavenly Jerusalem, which is a model for the imperfect earthly Jerusalem (Gal 4.26; Phil 3.20; Heb 12.22) and will soon replace it (21.2, 10). My own new name, an allusion to Isa 62.2; 65.15, indicates that the believer benefits from the new status of Christ (2.17; 19.12; 22.4). 3.14 Laodicea, a major commercial center located one hundred miles east of Ephesus. Amen is not the common liturgical response meaning “let it be so,” but a transliteration of a Hebrew term meaning “master workman” in Prov 8.30; it is used here as a title of Christ. Origin of God’s creation is a title of Christ (see Jn 1.2–3; Col 1.15). 3.15–16 Cold, hot, and lukewarm are figures of speech meaning “against me,” “for me,” and “indifferent”; lukewarm may also allude to the tepid and nauseous local water supply. Spit, lit. “vomit,” means “reject utterly.” 3.17 Rich, materially wealthy, though morally and spiritually poor; cf. 2.9. 3.18 Gold refined by fire, or metaphor for moral purification through testing (see Jer 9.7; Zech 13.9; Mal 3.3). White robes symbolize moral purity and salvation (4.4; 6.11; 7.9, 13, 14; 19.8, 14). Salve perhaps alludes to eye medicine

The Heavenly Worship

4 After this I looked, and there in heaven a door stood open! And the first voice, which I had heard speaking to me like a trumpet, said, "Come up here, and I will show you what must take place after this." ²At once I was in the spirit,¹ and there in heaven stood a throne, with one seated on the throne! ³And the one seated there looks like jasper and carnelian, and around the throne is a rainbow that looks like an emerald. ⁴Around the throne are twenty-four thrones, and seated on the thrones are twenty-four elders, dressed in white robes, with golden crowns on their heads. ⁵Coming from the throne are flashes of lightning, and rumblings and peals of thunder, and in front of the throne burn seven flaming torches, which are the seven spirits of God; ⁶and in front of the throne there is something like a sea of glass, like crystal.

Around the throne, and on each side of the throne, are four living creatures, full of eyes in front and behind: ⁷the first living creature like a lion, the second living creature like an ox, the third living creature with a face like a human face, and the fourth living creature like a flying eagle. ⁸And the four living creatures, each of them with six wings, are full of eyes all around and inside. Day and night without ceasing they sing,

"Holy, holy, holy,
the Lord God the Almighty, who was and is and is to come."

used at the medical school in Laodicea. 3.21 I ... sat down with my Father on his throne, an allusion to Ps 110.1, understood as the heavenly enthronement of the resurrected Christ (see also 22.1, 3; Mk 14.62; Acts 2.34–35; Eph 1.20).

4.1–11 Several visions of the heavenly throne room occur in Revelation, usually preceding punitive actions on earth, for events in heaven determine events in the world (7.9–17; 8.1–5; 11.15–19; 14.2–3; 15.2–8; 19.1–10; 21.3–8; see also 1 Kings 22.19–23; Job 1.6–12; 2.1–6). 4.1 This door is a metaphor for the entrance to heaven (see Gen 28.17; Ps 78.23), which must be open for revelation (see 19.11) or a heavenly ascent. The first voice, mentioned in 1.10–11, is that of the exalted Christ himself. 4.2 In the spirit, in a vision trance (see 1.10). The throne symbolizes God's sovereignty; heaven is conceived as a throne room filled with angelic courtiers (see 1 Kings 22.19). One seated on the throne, a circumlocution for the name of God frequently used in Revelation. 4.3 Jasper and carnelian. Precious stones and metals were sometimes used in descriptions to emphasize the heavenly splendor of God enthroned (see Ezek 1.16, 26, 27). The rainbow the color of an emerald alludes to the throne vision in Ezek 1.27–28. 4.4 Twenty-four elders, angelic courtiers possibly representing the sum of the twelve tribes of Israel and the twelve apostles. 4.5 Flashes of lightning ... peals of thunder, storm phenomena associated with God's appearance at Sinai (Ex 19.16–19), became incorporated into theophany scenes (see Ps 18.6–16; Isa 29.6) and are mentioned frequently in Revelation at critical points (8.5; 11.19; 16.18). Seven spirits of God. See 1.4. 4.6 The sea of glass (see 15.2) is the celestial ocean above which the throne of God is located (see Gen 1.7; Ps 29.10; 104.3; Ezek 1.22). The four living creatures (a designation drawn from Ezek 1.5–25) are cherubim, angelic beings that guard and support the throne of God (Ex 25.17–22; 1 Kings 6.23–28; Ps 18.10; Isa 6.2; Ezek 10). They are full of eyes (an allusion to Ezek 1.18; 10.12), symbolizing unceasing watchfulness. 4.7 Three creatures have animal forms and one has a human face. This description modifies that in Ezek 1.10, where each creature has four faces. 4.8 Holy, holy, holy. The Trisagion, or "thrice-holy," occurs first in Isa 6.3 and frequently in Jewish and Christian liturgies. 4.10 They cast their crowns before the throne as an act of homage and worship; here throne is a circumlocution for the name of God (7.9; 8.3; see also Heb 4.16; 8.1; 12.2). 4.11 Worthy, a term applied to God as the creator, is also applied to the Lamb in two hymns (5.9, 12).

The Scroll and the Lamb

5 Then I saw in the right hand of the one seated on the throne a scroll written on the inside and on the back, sealed^m with seven seals; ²and I saw a mighty angel proclaiming with a loud voice, "Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?" ³And no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or to look into it. ⁴And I began to weep bitterly because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look into it. ⁵Then one of the elders said to me, "Do not weep. See, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has conquered, so that he can open the scroll and its seven seals."

6 Then I saw between the throne and the four living creatures and among the elders a Lamb standing as if it had been slaughtered, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent out into all the earth. ⁷He went and took the scroll from the right hand of the one who was seated on the throne. ⁸When he had taken the scroll, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell before the Lamb, each holding a harp and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints. ⁹They sing a new song:

"You are worthy to take the scroll and to open its seals, for you were slaughtered and by your blood you ransomed for God

saints fromⁿ every tribe and language and people and nation;

10 you have made them to be a kingdom and priests serving^o our God,
and they will reign on earth."

11 Then I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels surrounding the throne and the living creatures and the elders; they numbered myriads of myriads and thousands of thousands, ¹²singing with full voice,

"Worthy is the Lamb that was slaughtered
to receive power and wealth and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing!"

5.1–14 The focus of the vision shifts to a scroll representing God's final plan for the world. 5.1 The scroll written on the inside and on the back is unusual because papyrus rolls were usually used on one side only, though legal rolls could have a summary of the contents on the outside. Sealed with seven seals. The number of seals means that the scroll is virtually impossible for an unauthorized person to open (5.3). 5.2 Worthy means both able and authorized. 5.5 Lion of the tribe of Judah (Gen 49.9–10), a metaphor for the king or Messiah expected to come from the royal tribe of Judah, a claim frequently made for Jesus (Heb 7.14). Root of David (see also 22.16), meaning stock of David or descendant of David, king of Israel, is a messianic title (see Isa 11.1, 10; Jer 23.5; 33.15; Zech 3.8; 6.12; Rom 15.12). The Davidic ancestry of Jesus is frequently mentioned in the NT (Mt 1.1; Lk 2.4; Jn 7.42; Acts 2.30–32; 13.22–23; Rom 1.3; 2 Tim 2.8). 5.6 The image of Jesus as a Lamb who has been slaughtered is a surprising contrast to his designation as a lion (5.5) and suggests the Passover sacrifice (1 Cor 5.7). Revelation uses Lamb as a designation for the exalted Christ twenty-eight times, highlighting his sacrificial role

(see e.g., 5.9; 7.14; 12.11; 13.8; 17.14; see also Jn 1.29, 36; cf. Isa 53.7). Horns symbolize kingly power, while eyes (an allusion to Zech 4.10) represent divine omnipresence and omniscience (see Judg 18.6; 2 Chr 16.9; Ps 139.16; Prov 15.3). 5.8 The harp, or kithara, was used to accompany hymns (15.2–4; Ps 33.2–3; 43.4), while the golden bowls full of incense, representing the prayers of the saints (8.4; Ps 33.2–3; 141.2), suggest the priestly role of the elders. 5.9 New song, a new composition written to celebrate a very special occasion (14.3; see Ps 33.3; 40.3; 96.1; Isa 42.10). Slaughtered, a violent term for the crucifixion of Jesus (see 5.9, 12; 13.8) that suggests the Jewish Passover (Ex 12.1–28; 1 Cor 5.7). By your blood alludes to the atoning death of Jesus using the metaphor of the twice-daily expiatory sacrifice of a lamb (Ex 29.38–42; Num 28; see also Rev 1.5; 7.14; 12.11). Ransomed, or "redeemed," a metaphor from the slave market meaning "released after a price is paid" (see 14.3; 1 Cor 6.20; 7.23). 5.11 Myriads of myriads and thousands of thousands, an allusion to the innumerable angelic beings in the throne scene of Dan 7.10 (see also Rev 7.9; Jude 14).

and on earth and under the earth and in the sea, and all that is in them, singing,
 "To the one seated on the throne and to the Lamb be blessing and honor and glory and might forever and ever!"

¹⁴And the four living creatures said, "Amen!" And the elders fell down and worshipped.

The Seven Seals

6 Then I saw the Lamb open one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures call out, as with a voice of thunder, "Come!"^p ²¹I looked, and there was a white horse! Its rider had a bow; a crown was given to him, and he came out conquering and to conquer.

³ When he opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature call out, "Come!"^p ⁴And out came^q another horse, bright red; its rider was permitted to take peace from the earth, so that people would slaughter one another; and he was given a great sword.

⁵ When he opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature call out, "Come!"^p I looked, and there was a black horse! Its rider held a pair of scales in his hand, ⁶and I heard what seemed to be a voice in the midst of the four living creatures saying, "A quart of wheat for a day's pay,^r and three quarts of barley for a day's pay,^r but do not damage the olive oil and the wine!"

⁷ When he opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature call out, "Come!"^p ⁸I looked and there was a pale green horse! Its rider's name was Death, and Hades followed with him; they were given authority over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword, famine, and pestilence, and by the wild animals of the earth.

⁹ When he opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been slaughtered for the word of God and for the testimony they had given; ¹⁰they cried out with a loud voice, "Sovereign Lord, holy and true, how long will it be before you judge and avenge our blood on the inhabitants of the earth?" ¹¹They were each given a white robe and told to rest a little longer, until the number would be complete both of their fellow servants^s and of their brothers and sisters,^t who were soon to be killed as they themselves had been killed.

¹² When he opened the sixth seal, I looked, and there came a great earth-

6.1–8.1 The Lamb opens the seven seals and so shows himself in control of history. 6.1–8 The opening of the first four seals, which form a group, unleashes four riders mounted on horses of different colors who are emissaries of God sent to inflict divine punishment on the world (loosely based on Zech 1.7–11; 6.1–8). 6.2 The rider on the white horse represents warfare; the bow can be a symbol of divine chastisement (Lam 3.12–13; Hab 3.9), and his crown indicates victory in war. 6.4 The bright red horse and rider represent death in battle. 6.5 The black horse and rider represent famine. Pair of scales, a tool used by merchants to weigh their products. 6.6 A quart of wheat for a day's pay represents an exorbitant price for wheat, fifteen times higher than normal; shortages were often caused by hoarding for the purpose of profiteering. Do not damage the olive oil and the wine, i.e., do not fraudulently withhold oil and wine to extort exorbitant prices. 6.8 Death and Hades are personified together in Revelation (1.18; 20.13–14), as they are in poetic contexts in the OT (Job 18.13; Isa 28.15, 18; Hos 13.14). Hades is a Greek term for the world of the dead, the Hebrew equivalent of which is Sheol. Sword, famine, and pestilence, and . . . wild animals are stereotypical terms for describing the horrors of war (see Deut 32.23–25; Jer 14.12; 15.3; Ezek 5.16–17; 14.21; Psalms of Solomon 13.2–3). 6.9 The souls of the martyrs are under the altar, the heavenly altar of incense (8.3, 5; 9.13; 14.18; 16.7); this symbolizes their nearness to God. Those who had been slaughtered, the martyrs. 6.10 How long. This cry for vengeance by the murdered righteous (see also 2 Esd 4.35–37; 1 Enoch 47.4) is modeled after petitions for justice directed to a king (1 Macc 6.22–27) or to God (2 Macc 8.2–4). The inhabitants of the earth, a frequent formula in Revelation (e.g., 8.13; 11.10; 13.8) referring to the enemies of God. 6.11 White robe, symbol of heavenly existence or worthiness of heaven (see 3.4; 4.4; 7.13). Rest, metaphor for the repose of death (14.13; Prov 21.16; Sir 30.17; 38.23), though this rest will last only until the final consummation (see 2 Esd 7.75). There is a predetermined number of martyrs known only to God (2 Esd 2.38; 4.36; 1 Enoch 47.4; cf. Rom 11.25; 1 Clement 2.4; 59.2). 6.12–13 The darkening of the sun and moon and the falling of the stars (see 8.10; 9.1; 12.4) are cos-quake; the sun became black as sackcloth, the full moon became like blood, ¹³and the stars of the sky fell to the earth as the fig tree drops its winter fruit when shaken by a gale. ¹⁴The sky vanished like a scroll rolling itself up, and every mountain and island was removed from its place. ¹⁵Then the kings of the earth and the magnates and the generals and the rich and the powerful, and everyone, slave and free, hid in the caves and among the rocks of the mountains, ¹⁶calling to the mountains and rocks, "Fall on us and hide us from the face of the one seated on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb; ¹⁷for the great day of their wrath has come, and who is able to stand?"

The 144,000 of Israel Sealed

7 After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth so that no wind could blow on earth or sea or against any tree. ²I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God, and he called with a loud voice to the four angels who had been given power to damage earth and sea, ³saying, "Do not damage the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have marked the servants^u of our God with a seal on their foreheads."

4 And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred forty-four thousand, sealed out of every tribe of the people of Israel:

- 5 From the tribe of Judah twelve thousand sealed, from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand,
from the tribe of Gad twelve thousand,
- 6 from the tribe of Asher twelve thousand,
from the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand,
from the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand,
- 7 from the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand,
from the tribe of Levi twelve thousand,
from the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand,
- 8 from the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand,
from the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand,
from the tribe of Benjamin twelve thousand sealed.

The Multitude from Every Nation

9 After this I looked, and there was a great multitude that no one could count, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before mic signs anticipating the day of the Lord (see Isa 13.10; Ezek 32.7–8; Joel 2.30–31; Am 8.9; Zeph 1.15; Mt 24.29). Black as sackcloth. See note on 11.3. 6.14 The sky vanished like a scroll rolling itself up, a simile used in Isa 34.4 (see also Sibylline Oracles 3.82–83; 8.233; cf. Heb 1.12), here provides a preview of the eventual destruction of the heavens (20.11; 21.1). 6.16 Fall on us. See Hos 10.8. 6.17 The great day of their wrath, the day of the Lord, involving judgment for the wicked (see 1 Cor 5.5; 1 Thess 5.2; 2 Thess 2.2; 2 Pet 3.10). 7.1–17 A digression (based on the catchword seal) on how Christians will be protected during the impending catastrophes. 7.2 The seal of the living God, a signet ring used to indicate ownership and to provide protection (see Job 9.7; Sir 17.22), bears the name of God (14.1). "Seal" was also a term for Christian baptism (see 2 Cor 1.21–22; Eph 1.13; 4.30; 2 Clement 7.6; 8.6). The four angels who had been given power to damage earth are similar to the four riders who were also divine emissaries (see 6.1–8). 7.3 Those with a seal on their foreheads (see Ezek 9.4–6; Psalms of Solomon

15.6–9) are divinely protected from the plagues, as the Israelites were in Egypt (Ex 8.22; 9.4–7, 26; 10.23). It was widely held in the ancient world that magical sealing could provide protection. 7.4 One hundred forty-four thousand, the martyr-witness cadre of the church, calculated using twelve as a multiple of twelve. The number here represents the people of God but later refers to martyrs (14.1–5). The people of Israel, i.e., the church as the spiritual Israel (see Rom 9.6–7; 11.17–21; Gal 6.16; Jas 1.1). 7.9–17 A heavenly throne room scene; see note on 4.1–11. 7.9 A great multitude, a heavenly assembly that may include but is not identical with the 144,000 Israelites mentioned in 7.4–8 and that represents the spiritualized fulfillment of the promise to Abraham (Gen 22.17; 32.12; cf. Rom 9.27). Its members are identified in 7.14 as the martyrs who have gone through the great tribulation. The throne is a pious substitution for the name of God (see 4.10; 8.3). Robed in white. See note on 6.11. Palm branches, symbols of victory (see 1 Macc

the throne and before the Lamb, robed in white, with palm branches in their hands.

¹⁰ They cried out in a loud voice, saying, "Salvation belongs to our God who is seated on the throne, and to the Lamb!"

¹¹ And all the angels stood around the throne and around the elders and the four living creatures, and they fell on their faces before the throne and worshiped God, ¹² singing,

"Amen! Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving and honor and power and might be to our God forever and ever!
Amen."

¹³ Then one of the elders addressed me, saying, "Who are these, robed in white, and where have they come from?"

¹⁴ I said to him, "Sir, you are the one that knows." Then he said to me, "These are they who have come out of the great ordeal; they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

¹⁵ For this reason they are before the throne of God, and worship him day and night within his temple, and the one who is seated on the throne will shelter them.

¹⁶ They will hunger no more, and thirst no more;

the sun will not strike them, nor any scorching heat;

¹⁷ for the Lamb at the center of the throne will be their shepherd, and he will guide them to springs of the water of life, and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes."

The Seventh Seal and the Golden Censer

8 When the Lamb opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. ² And I saw the seven angels who stand before God, and seven trumpets were given to them.

³ Another angel with a golden censer came and stood at the altar; he was given a great quantity of incense to offer with the prayers of all the saints on the golden altar that is before the throne. ⁴ And the

13.51; 2 Macc 14.4; Jn 12.13). 7.13 One of the elders, like the more typical figure of the interpreting angel (1.1; 17.1–18; 21.9–22.5; see Introduction), provides an explanation of the vision in 7.14–17. 7.14 The great ordeal. See note on 3.10. Washed . . . white in the blood of the Lamb, paradoxical metaphor referring to the forgiveness of sins through the atoning death of Jesus (see Rom 3.25; 5.9; 1 Cor 10.16; 1 Pet 1.2). 7.15 God . . . will shelter them means that God will be present with them or dwell with them (21.3; see Lev 26.11; Ezek 37.27). 7.16 Cessation of hunger, thirst, and intense heat alludes to the idyllic eschatological conditions described in Isa 49.10 (see also Rev 21.4). 7.17 At the center, i.e., of the throne occupied by both God and the Lamb (3.21; 22.1, 3). Shepherd, a stock metaphor for "king" (see 2 Sam 7.7; Isa 44.28; Jer 3.15) and a favorite metaphor for Jesus (Mt 15.24; 25.32; Jn 10.2; Heb 13.20; 1 Pet 2.25). Springs of the water of life, lit. "springs of living water" (cf. Isa 49.10); here "living water" can mean either "flowing water" (as opposed to cistern water) or "water imbued with [eternal] life," a metaphor for salvation (21.6; 22.1, 17; see also Jn 4.14; 6.35; 7.37–38). God will wipe away every tear indicates the absence of sorrow in the new order (see Isa 25.8). 8.1 A transitional verse. The opening of the seventh seal means that the scroll of 5.1 is now completely open; the events narrated in 8.2–22.5 enact the contents of the scroll. After the cosmic destruction caused by the opening of the sixth seal in 6.12–17, the opening of this seal issues in an anticlimactic silence in heaven. Silence precedes divine manifestations (see Job 4.16; Zeph 1.7; Zech 2.13) and is maintained during the incense offering (see Rev 8.3–5).

8.2–9.21 See also 11.15–19. The seven trumpets (like the seven bowls of 15.1–16.21) introduce eschatological divine judgments that are loosely based on the ten Egyptian plagues (Ex 7–12), though they are universal rather than local in effect. Several variant traditions of seven Egyptian plagues have been preserved (Ps 78.44–51; 105.27–36; Am 4.6–11; Wis 11.1–19.9). 8.2–5 Preparatory heavenly throne room scene; see note on 4.1–11. 8.2 Seven angels. See note on 1.4. Trumpets can signal the inauguration of the end (see Isa 27.13; Joel 2.1; Mt 24.31; 1 Cor 15.52; 1 Thess 4.16; Didache 16.6). 8.3 The golden altar, the heavenly counterpart of the incense altar located before the Holy of Holies in the tabernacle and temple (Ex 30.1–10). 8.4 The incense offering, made twice daily in the temple (Lk 1.8–10), lent itself to spiritualization; here it is associated with (but not, as in 5.8, identified with) the prayers of the saints, which, judging by their effect in 8.5, were prayers for vengeance smoke of the incense, with the prayers of the saints, rose before God from the hand of the angel. ⁵Then the angel took the censer and filled it with fire from the altar and threw it on the earth; and there were peals of thunder, rumblings, flashes of lightning, and an earthquake.

⁶ Now the seven angels who had the seven trumpets made ready to blow them.

⁷ The first angel blew his trumpet, and there came hail and fire, mixed with blood, and they were hurled to the earth; and a third of the earth was burned up, and a third of the trees were burned up, and all green grass was burned up.

⁸ The second angel blew his trumpet, and something like a great mountain, burning with fire, was thrown into the sea. ⁹A third of the sea became blood, a third of the living creatures in the sea died, and a third of the ships were destroyed.

¹⁰ The third angel blew his trumpet, and a great star fell from heaven, blazing like a torch, and it fell on a third of the rivers and on the springs of water. ¹¹The name of the star is Wormwood. A third of the waters became wormwood, and many died from the water, because it was made bitter.

¹² The fourth angel blew his trumpet, and a third of the sun was struck, and a third of the moon, and a third of the stars, so that a third of their light was darkened;

a third of the day was kept from shining, and likewise the night.

¹³ Then I looked, and I heard an eagle crying with a loud voice as it flew in midheaven, "Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth, at the blasts of the other trumpets that the three angels are about to blow!"

9 And the fifth angel blew his trumpet, and I saw a star that had fallen from heaven to earth, and he was given the key to the shaft of the bottomless pit; ²he opened the shaft of the bottomless pit, and from the shaft rose smoke like the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened with the smoke from the shaft. ³Then from the smoke came locusts on the earth, and they were given authority like the authority of scorpions of the earth. ⁴They were told not to damage the grass of the earth or any green growth or any tree, but only those people who do not have the seal of God on their foreheads. ⁵They were allowed to torture them for five months, but not to kill them, and their torture was like the torture of a scorpion when it stings someone. ⁶And in those days people will seek death but will not find it; they will long to die, but death will flee from them.

⁷ In appearance the locusts were like horses equipped for battle. On their heads were what looked like crowns of gold; their faces were like human faces,

(see 6.10). 8.5 The throwing of fire from the altar to the earth anticipates the divine judgments that the trumpets will unleash (see Ezek 10.2). Peals of thunder. See note on 4.5. 8.7–12 The first four trumpets form a group (see note on 6.1–8). 8.7 The hail, fire, and blood that fall to the earth correspond to the thunder, hail, and fire of the seventh plague (Ex 9.22–26) and to the fourth and seventh bowls in Rev 16.8–9, 19–21. The Romans regarded blood raining from the sky as an omen indicating the anger of the gods. The eschatological destruction of a third of various aspects of the cosmos (based on Ezek 5.2, 12) emphasizes that the destruction is partial, not total (8.9, 10, 11, 12; 9.15, 18). 8.9 Sea became blood, counterpart to the Nile becoming blood (the first plague in Ex 7.20–21; the second bowl in Rev 16.3). 8.10–11 There is no counterpart to the third trumpet among the Egyptian plagues. 8.11 Wormwood, a plant noted for its bitter taste (see Prov 5.4; Lam 3.15). 8.12 The fourth . . . trumpet. The darkening of the heavenly bodies resembles the darkness of the ninth plague

(Ex 10.21) and of the fifth bowl (Rev 16.10). 8.13 Woe, woe, woe. The three woes designate the last three trumpet plagues in 9.1–12, 13–21; 11.14–19 (see 9.12; 11.14). 9.1–12 The fifth trumpet plague resembles the locust plague of Ex 10.4–20 and is modeled after Joel 2.1–11. 9.1 The star, an angelic messenger sent by God to earth (see 20.1). Bottomless pit, the abode of the dead (see Ps 107.26; Rom 10.7) and the place where demons (Lk 8.31; 1 Enoch 18–21) and Satan (20.1–3) are imprisoned. 9.3 The locusts are an army of demons (based on the locust plague described in Joel 2.1–11). 9.4 Grass of the earth or any green growth or any tree, vegetation that is usually devastated by locusts. People who do not have the seal of God (see 7.2–8) are attacked, but God's people are exempt. 9.5 Five months (see also 9.10), the life span of the locust. 9.6 The statement that people will seek death but will not find it underlines the horror of this plague. 9.7 Like horses equipped for battle, based on Joel 2.4–9. The demonic locust swarm is depicted as a marauding army. Crowns of gold, symbols of invincibility.

8their hair like women's hair, and their teeth like lions' teeth; 9they had scales like iron breastplates, and the noise of their wings was like the noise of many chariots with horses rushing into battle. 10They have tails like scorpions, with stingers, and in their tails is their power to harm people for five months. 11They have as king over them the angel of the bottomless pit; his name in Hebrew is Abaddon,^v and in Greek he is called Apollyon.^w

12 The first woe has passed. There are still two woes to come.

13 Then the sixth angel blew his trumpet, and I heard a voice from the four^x horns of the golden altar before God, 14saying to the sixth angel who had the trumpet, "Release the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates." 15So the four angels were released, who had been held ready for the hour, the day, the month, and the year, to kill a third of humankind. 16The number of the troops of cavalry was two hundred million; I heard their number. 17And this was how I saw the horses in my vision: the riders wore breastplates the color of fire and of sapphire^y and of sulfur; the heads of the horses were like lions' heads, and fire and smoke and sulfur came out of their mouths. 18By these three plagues a third of humankind was killed, by the fire and smoke and sulfur coming out of their mouths. 19For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails; their tails are like serpents, having heads; and with them they inflict harm.

20 The rest of humankind, who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands or give up worshiping demons and idols of gold and silver and bronze and stone and wood, which cannot see or hear or walk. 21And they did not repent of their murders or their sorceries or their fornication or their thefts.

The Angel with the Little Scroll

10 And I saw another mighty angel coming down from heaven, wrapped in a cloud, with a rainbow over his head; his face was like the sun, and his legs like pillars of fire. 2He held a little scroll open in his hand. Setting his right foot on the sea and his left foot on the land, 3he gave a great shout, like a lion roaring. And when he shouted, the seven thunders sounded. 4And when the seven thunders had sounded, I was about to write, but I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Seal up what the seven thunders have said, and do not write it down." 5Then the angel whom I saw standing on the sea and the land raised his right hand to heaven

who created heaven and what is in it, the earth and what is in it, and the sea and what is in it: "There will be no more delay,

9.8 Like women's hair. Demons are sometimes described as having disheveled hair like that of women (Testament of Solomon 13.1; Apocalypse of Zephaniah 4.4). 9.11 Angel of the bottomless pit, not Satan (12.9; 20.2), but an otherwise unknown evil angelic figure. Abaddon, Hebrew term for the realm of the dead (see Job 26.6; Prov 15.11; 27.20), here personified (see also Job 28.22). Apollyon, Greek term meaning "destroyer," linked with the name of the god Apollo. 9.12 The first woe corresponds to the events narrated in 9.1–11; see note on 8.13. The two woes to come are described in 9.12–21; 11.15–19. 9.13 The four horns, the raised corners of the altar. 9.14 Release the four angels who are bound. The bind/release terminology (20.2; Tob 3.17) suggests that these are evil angels who lead demonic armies. Euphrates, a Mesopotamian river symbolizing the enemies of Israel (see Isa 7.20; 8.7; Jer 46.10). 9.18 Fire and sulfur

(see also 14.10; 19.20; 20.10), stereotypical means of divine punishment first used on Sodom and Gomorrah (see Gen 19.24; Ps 11.6; Ezek 38.22). 9.20 Did not repent (see 9.21; 16.9, 11), a theme from the Exodus plague tradition (see, e.g., Ex 7.13, 22; 8.15); actual repentance is not expected. Demons, the supernatural beings behind idols (Deut 32.17; Ps 96.5; 1 Cor 10.19–20).

10.1–11 Two digressions (10.1–11; 11.1–14) delay the sounding of the seventh trumpet. 10.2 The little scroll represents divine revelation. 10.3 The import of the seven thunders is unclear. 10.4 Voice from heaven, probably God or Christ (see 1.11, 19). The instruction to seal up (see Dan 12.4, 9) means that some divine secrets must not be disclosed (2 Cor 12.4). 10.5–7 This scene is modeled after Dan 12.6–7. 10.6 No more delay does not imply a previous postponement, but the imminent end of time and beginning of eschato-

⁷but in the days when the seventh angel is to blow his trumpet, the mystery of God will be fulfilled, as he announced to his servants^z the prophets.”

8 Then the voice that I had heard from heaven spoke to me again, saying, “Go, take the scroll that is open in the hand of the angel who is standing on the sea and on the land.” ⁹So I went to the angel and told him to give me the little scroll; and he said to me, “Take it, and eat; it will be bitter to your stomach, but sweet as honey in your mouth.” ¹⁰So I took the little scroll from the hand of the angel and ate it; it was sweet as honey in my mouth, but when I had eaten it, my stomach was made bitter.

11 Then they said to me, “You must prophesy again about many peoples and nations and languages and kings.”

The Two Witnesses

11 Then I was given a measuring rod like a staff, and I was told, “Come and measure the temple of God and the altar and those who worship there, ²but do not measure the court outside the temple; leave that out, for it is given over to the nations, and they will trample over the holy city for forty-two months. ³And I will grant my two witnesses authority to prophesy for one thousand two hundred sixty days, wearing sackcloth.”

4 These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of the earth. ⁵And if anyone wants to harm them, fire pours from their mouth and consumes their foes; anyone who wants to harm them must be killed in this manner. ⁶They have authority to shut the sky, so that no rain may fall during the days of their prophesying, and they have authority over the waters to turn them into blood, and to strike the earth with every kind of plague, as often as they desire.

7 When they have finished their testimony, the beast that comes up from the bottomless pit will make war on them and conquer them and kill them, ⁸and their dead bodies will lie in the street of the great city that is prophetically^a called Sodom and Egypt, where also their Lord was crucified. ⁹For three and a half days members of the peoples and tribes and logical events. 10.7 Mystery of God (see Am 3.7), God's eschatological plan, hidden in or prophetic books (Rom 16.25–26; 1 Cor 2.6–16; Eph 3.9–10; Col 1.26). His servants the prophets, a frequent designation of or prophets (2 Kings 9.7; 17.13; Jer 7.25; Dan 9.6; see Rev 11.18). 10.8 The voice is that of 10.4. 10.9–10 Eating the scroll, a symbolic action based on Ezek 2.8–3.3, signifies accepting a prophetic commission. 10.11 Prophesy again about means “prophesy against,” i.e., “prophesy judgment” (see Jer 25.30; Ezek 25.2).

11.1–14 The second degression (see note on 10.1–11) describes two mysterious witnesses. 11.1 Measure, a metaphor for preservation (Ezek 40.3–42.20; Zech 2.1–5). The temple of God here is the temple in Jerusalem, not in heaven (see note on 11.19). The altar, i.e., the priest's court where the altar stood. 11.2 The trampling or subjugation of Jerusalem by the nations (i.e., Gentiles) is a common eschatological motif (see Isa 63.18; 1 Macc 3.45; Lk 21.24; see also notes on 11.18; 16.14). Forty-two months, i.e., 1,260 days (11.3; 12.6), or three and a half years, the stereotypical length of a period of eschatological distress (see Dan 7.25; 12.7). 11.3 My two witnesses, prophetic figures, possibly Enoch and Elijah or Moses and Elijah (see Mk 9.4), represent the valid witness of the church (see Deut 17.6; 19.15; Mt 18.16; 2 Cor 13.1; 1 Tim 5.19; Heb 10.28). Sackcloth, often made of dark goat hair (6.12; Isa 50.3), the traditional Near Eastern costume of mourning (Joel 1.13; Mt 11.21). 11.4 Two olive trees and two lampstands (see Zech 4.3, 14), originally metaphors for Joshua the priest and Zerubbabel the royal heir, God's two anointed ones. 11.5 Fire pours from their mouth, often a metaphor for the word of God in judgment (see Jer 5.14; 2 Esd 13.10, 37–38; 2 Thess 2.8). 11.6 Authority to shut the sky is like Elijah's ability to control rain (1 Kings 17.1; 18.1; Lk 4.25; Jas 5.17). Authority over the waters to turn them into blood recalls Moses' actions (Ex 7.14–25). 11.7 The beast is the antichrist, a tyrannical ruler who opposes Christ and Christians (13.1–10; 17.8; 1 Jn 2.18; 4.3). Bottomless pit. See note on 9.1. Kill them (adapted from Dan 7.21). Death was frequently the fate of faithful prophets (see 2 Chr 24.19; Neh 9.26; Mt 23.34–35; Lk 11.49–51). 11.8 The great city is Jerusalem (see Jer 22.8), which the prophets occasionally called Sodom (see Isa 1.10; Jer 23.14; Ezek 16.46), the paradigmatic wicked city (Gen 18–19; Jer 49.18; Mt 10.15). Egypt symbolized idolatry (Isa 19.1; Ezek 20.7) and slavery (Josh 24.17; Judg 6.8; 2 Esd 14.3). 11.9 Refuse to let them be placed in a tomb, a further outrage (see 1 Kings 14.11; 21.24;

languages and nations will gaze at their dead bodies and refuse to let them be placed in a tomb; ¹⁰and the inhabitants of the earth will gloat over them and celebrate and exchange presents, because these two prophets had been a torment to the inhabitants of the earth.

¹¹ But after the three and a half days, the breath^b of life from God entered them, and they stood on their feet, and those who saw them were terrified. ¹²Then they^c heard a loud voice from heaven saying to them, "Come up here!" And they went up to heaven in a cloud while their enemies watched them. ¹³At that moment there was a great earthquake, and a tenth of the city fell; seven thousand people were killed in the earthquake, and the rest were terrified and gave glory to the God of heaven.

¹⁴ The second woe has passed. The third woe is coming very soon.

The Seventh Trumpet

¹⁵ Then the seventh angel blew his trumpet, and there were loud voices in heaven, saying,

"The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Messiah,^d and he will reign forever and ever."

¹⁶ Then the twenty-four elders who sit on their thrones before God fell on their faces and worshiped God, ¹⁷singing,

"We give you thanks, Lord God Almighty, who are and who were,
for you have taken your great power and begun to reign.

¹⁸ The nations raged,
but your wrath has come,
and the time for judging the dead,
for rewarding your servants,^e
the prophets and saints and all who fear your name,
both small and great,
and for destroying those who destroy the earth."

¹⁹ Then God's temple in heaven was opened, and the ark of his covenant was seen within his temple; and there were flashes of lightning, rumblings, peals of thunder, an earthquake, and heavy hail.

The Woman, the Child, and the Dragon

12 A great portent appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars. ²She was pregnant and was crying out in birth pangs, in the agony of giving birth. ³Then another portent appeared in heaven: a great red dragon, with seven

Jer 8.1–2; 14.16; Tob 2.3–10; Mk 12.8). 11.11 Breath of life from God. See Gen 2.7. 11.12 Come up here. See 4.1. In Jewish and Christian tradition, clouds serve as divine vehicles (Ps 68.4; 104.7; Isa 19.1; 2 Esd 13.3) and as means of heavenly ascent (Acts 1.9) and descent (Rev 1.7; Dan 7.13; Mt 24.30; 26.64). 11.13 Gave glory to the God of heaven, i.e., were converted (16.9; Dan 4.34; 1 Esd 9.8; Acts 13.48). 11.14 Woe. See note on 8.13.

11.15–19 The seventh trumpet introduces a throne room scene; see note on 4.1–11. 11.15 Messiah, Hebrew term for Christ meaning "anointed one," i.e., king. 11.18 The nations raged. See Ps 46.6; see also notes on 11.2; 16.14. 11.19 Temple in heaven, the counterpart to the temple in Jerusalem. Ark of his covenant, the heavenly counterpart to the sacred chest, representing the presence of God, placed in the Holy of Holies of the tabernacle and temple (Ex 25.10–22; 1 Kings 8.1–13; Heb 9.4). Flashes of lightning. See note on 4.5.

12.1–17 The portent of the woman, the child, and the dragon is an adaptation of the myth of Apollo's birth. 12.1 A great portent, a celestial phenomenon with a deeper symbolic meaning (see 12.3; 15.1). A woman clothed with the sun, a cosmic queen (described much like Isis), used as a symbol for both the Israel from whom the Messiah came (12.5) and the church (12.6, 14, 17). Twelve stars, the zodiac, representing the twelve tribes of Israel. 12.3 Dragon, a designation for Satan used nine times in Revelation. The Greek translation of the OT uses the same term for Leviathan, the enemy of God (Job 41.1 [40.25]; Ps 74.14 [73.14]; Isa 27.1). A dragon with seven heads (see 13.1; 17.3), a figure in Ugaritic mythology, here symbolizes seven successive rulers (17.10);

heads and ten horns, and seven diadems on his heads. ⁴His tail swept down a third of the stars of heaven and threw them to the earth. Then the dragon stood before the woman who was about to bear a child, so that he might devour her child as soon as it was born. ⁵And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is to rule^f all the nations with a rod of iron. But her child was snatched away and taken to God and to his throne; ⁶and the woman fled into the wilderness, where she has a place prepared by God, so that there she can be nourished for one thousand two hundred sixty days.

⁷ And war broke out in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon. The dragon and his angels fought back, ⁸but they were defeated, and there was no longer any place for them in heaven. ⁹The great dragon was thrown down, that ancient serpent, who is called the Devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world—he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

¹⁰ Then I heard a loud voice in heaven, proclaiming,

“Now have come the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God and the authority of his Messiah,^g for the accuser of our comrades^h has been thrown down, who accuses them day and night before our God.

¹¹ But they have conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony, for they did not cling to life even in the face of death.

¹² Rejoice then, you heavens and those who dwell in them!
But woe to the earth and the sea,
for the devil has come down to you with great wrath, because he knows that his time is short!”

¹³ So when the dragon saw that he had been thrown down to the earth, he pursuedⁱ the woman who had given birth to the male child. ¹⁴But the woman was given the two wings of the great eagle, so that she could fly from the serpent into the wilderness, to her place where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time. ¹⁵Then from his mouth the serpent poured water like a river after the woman, to sweep her away with the flood. ¹⁶But the earth came to the help of the woman; it opened its mouth and swallowed the river that the dragon had poured from his mouth. ¹⁷Then the dragon was angry with the woman, and went off to make war on the rest of her children, those who keep the commandments of God and hold the testimony of Jesus.

the ten horns (see Dan 7.7, 20, 24) represent ten subordinate kingdoms (17.12). 12.4 Swept down a third of the stars, a metaphor for excessive pride (see Dan 8.10). 12.5 Male child, the Davidic Messiah who will rule all the nations with a rod of iron (see Ps 2.8–9), i.e., conquer the enemies of Israel (see note on 11.2). Snatched away . . . to God. The exaltation or ascension of Jesus (see Lk 24.51; Acts 2.32–33; 1 Tim 3.16; Heb 8.1; 10.12) is uniquely depicted here as a rescue from Satan. 12.6 Wilderness, a place of refuge and salvation based on the exodus tradition (see Ps 78.52; Isa 40.3; Jer 31.2). One thousand two hundred sixty days. See note on 11.2. 12.7 War . . . in heaven. Nowhere else in Jewish or early Christian literature is a heavenly battle depicted. Michael, one of the seven traditional archangels (see note on 1.4; Dan 10.13; 12.1; Jude 9), often presented as the commander of the host of angels (Apocalypse of Paul 14). 12.9 The great dragon was thrown down. This eschatological expulsion of Satan from heaven (see Lk 10.18; Jn 12.31) is based on an ancient Jewish expulsion myth (see Isa 14.12–15; 2 Enoch 29.4–5). Ancient serpent, a name for Satan (Gen 3.1–7; 2 Cor 11.3). Devil. See note on 2.10. His angels, i.e., fallen angels or demons. 12.10 “Satan” means accuser in Hebrew (Job 1.9–11; Zech 3.1). 12.11 They have conquered him, paradoxically, like Jesus (3.21; 5.5), by dying. 12.14 Two wings of the great eagle. See Ex 19.4; Deut 32.10–14. Wilderness. See note on 12.6. A time, and times, and half a time (Dan 7.25; 12.7), i.e., three and a half years (see note on 11.2). 12.16 Earth . . . swallowed the river. A personified Earth sometimes swallows the enemies of God (see Ex 15.12; Num 16.32–34). 12.17 The rest of her children. Christians whose persecution is orchestrated by Satan (see 13.7).

The First Beast

18 Then the dragon^j took his stand on the sand of the seashore. 13 ¹And I saw a beast rising out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads; and on its horns were ten diadems, and on its heads were blasphemous names. ²And the beast that I saw was like a leopard, its feet were like a bear's, and its mouth was like a lion's mouth. And the dragon gave it his power and his throne and great authority. ³One of its heads seemed to have received a death-blow, but its mortal wound^k had been healed. In amazement the whole earth followed the beast. ⁴They worshiped the dragon, for he had given his authority to the beast, and they worshiped the beast, saying, "Who is like the beast, and who can fight against it?"

⁵ The beast was given a mouth uttering haughty and blasphemous words, and it was allowed to exercise authority for forty-two months. ⁶It opened its mouth to utter blasphemies against God, blaspheming his name and his dwelling, that is, those who dwell in heaven. ⁷Also it was allowed to make war on the saints and to conquer them.^l It was given authority over every tribe and people and language and nation, ⁸and all the inhabitants of the earth will worship it, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb that was slaughtered.^m

- 9 Let anyone who has an ear listen:
10 If you are to be taken captive, into captivity you go;
if you kill with the sword, with the sword you must be killed.

Here is a call for the endurance and faith of the saints.

The Second Beast

11 Then I saw another beast that rose out of the earth; it had two horns like a lamb and it spoke like a dragon. ¹²It exercises all the authority of the first beast on its behalf, and it makes the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, whose mortal woundⁿ had been healed. ¹³It performs great signs, even making fire come down from heaven to earth in the sight of all; ¹⁴and by the signs that it is allowed to perform on behalf of the beast, it deceives the inhabitants of earth, telling them to make an image for the beast that had been wounded by the sword^o and yet lived; ¹⁵and it was allowed to give breath^p to the image of the beast so that the image of the beast could even speak and cause those who would not worship the image of the beast to be killed. ¹⁶Also

12.18–13.18 Two beasts that serve the dragon are introduced. 12.18 The dragon took his stand on the . . . seashore to await the emergence of the beast. 13.1 The beast (see 11.7). John represents both Rome and its emperors as the sea monster Leviathan (Ezek 29.3; 2 Esd 6.47–52; 1 Enoch 60.7–10, 24). It rises out of the sea (representing the bottomless pit; see note on 9.1) and is a composite of the four beasts of Dan 7.3–7. Blasphemous names, divine titles, such as "Lord," "Savior," and "Son of God," claimed by Roman emperors. Ten horns and seven heads. See note on 12.3. 13.2 The dragon gave it his power, i.e., Rome and its emperors are agents of Satan (2 Thess 2.9). 13.3 One of its heads . . . received a death-blow, refers to the emperor Nero, who committed suicide in 68 C.E. Mortal wound . . . healed reflects the widespread belief in Nero's return from death. 13.4 They worshiped the beast. The imperial cult included worship of the emperors as well as the traditional Greek and Roman gods (see notes on 2.8;

2.12). 13.5 Forty-two months. See note on 11.2. 13.7 Make war on the saints. See 12.17. 13.8 Book of life. See note on 3.5. 13.10 If you are . . . be killed, a reformulation of Jer 15.2; 43.11. 13.11 The beast that rose out of the earth, later called the false prophet (16.13; 19.20; 20.10). John represents the priesthood of the imperial cult (see 13.12) as the male monster Behemoth (2 Esd 6.47–52; 1 Enoch 60.7–10, 24). The beast with horns like a lamb is harmless in appearance, but it spoke like a dragon, i.e., as an agent of Satan (see note on 12.3). 13.13 It performs great signs, a traditional ploy of the antichrist to deceive people (Mk 13.21–23; 2 Thess 2.9–10; Didache 16.4). The motif is derived from Deut 13.1–3. 13.14 An image for the beast, cultic statues of the Roman emperors (see Dan 3). 13.15 Give breath to the image reflects the ancient belief that gods inhabited their images. Speak, i.e., give oracles. 13.16 Marked on the right hand or the forehead, i.e., branded or tattooed as a mark of ownership and it causes all, both small and great, both rich and poor, both free and slave, to be marked on the right hand or the forehead, ¹⁷so that no one can buy or sell who does not have the mark, that is, the name of the beast or the number of its name. ¹⁸This calls for wisdom: let anyone with understanding calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a person. Its number is six hundred sixty-six.⁹

The Lamb and the 144,000

14 Then I looked, and there was the Lamb, standing on Mount Zion! And with him were one hundred forty-four thousand who had his name and his Father's name written on their foreheads. ²And I heard a voice from heaven like the sound of many waters and like the sound of loud thunder; the voice I heard was like the sound of harpists playing on their harps, ³and they sing a new song before the throne and before the four living creatures and before the elders. No one could learn that song except the one hundred forty-four thousand who have been redeemed from the earth. ⁴It is these who have not defiled themselves with women, for they are virgins; these follow the Lamb wherever he goes. They have been redeemed from humankind as first fruits for God and the Lamb, ⁵and in their mouth no lie was found; they are blameless.

The Messages of the Three Angels

⁶ Then I saw another angel flying in midheaven, with an eternal gospel to proclaim to those who live^r on the earth—to every nation and tribe and language and people. ⁷He said in a loud voice, "Fear God and give him glory, for the hour of his judgment has come; and worship him who made heaven and earth, the sea and the springs of water."

⁸ Then another angel, a second, followed, saying, "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! She has made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication."

⁹ Then another angel, a third, followed them, crying with a loud voice, "Those who worship the beast and its image, and receive a mark on their foreheads or on their hands, ¹⁰they will also drink the wine of God's wrath, poured unmixed into the cup of his anger, and they will be tormented with fire and sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. ¹¹And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever. There is no rest day or night for those who worship the beast and its image and for anyone who receives the mark of its name."

devotion to the beast; this marking is a counterpart to the sealing of Christians with the name of God (see note on 7.2). 13.18 The number of the beast, a code name based on the numeric value of letters. Six hundred sixty-six, perhaps the numeric value of the name Nero Caesar in Hebrew.

14.1–20 Three loosely connected visions. 14.1–5 A victory vision of the Lamb and the 144,000. 14.1 Mount Zion, i.e., Jerusalem as the center of God's eschatological action (Ps 2.6; Isa 24.23; 40.9–11; 2 Esd 13.35–40; Heb 12.22–24). One hundred forty-four thousand. See note on 7.4. 14.2–3 Preparatory heavenly throne room scene; see note on 4.1–11. 14.3 A new song. See note on 5.9. No one could learn that song. Knowledge of heavenly hymns is reserved for the pure. 14.4 Virgins, males who are chaste, but not necessarily sexually inexperienced; ritual impurity was widely thought to follow sexual intercourse (Lev 15.18), and temporary celibacy was a ritual requirement for holy warriors (Deut 23.9–14;

1 Sam 21.5–6). Follow the Lamb, a metaphor for discipleship and martyrdom (see Mt 19.28; Lk 9.57–58; Jn 12.26). The first fruits of a harvest were dedicated to God (see Ex 23.19; Lev 23.9); here the term is applied to martyrs as sacrificial victims (cf. Jer 2.3; Rom 16.5; 1 Cor 15.20, 23). 14.6–13 The second vision consists of three angelic messages. 14.6 An eternal gospel, not the saving message of Jesus' death and resurrection, but the message in 14.7. 14.7 The eternal message is the necessity of repentance in light of the imminent judgment (see also Deut 10.12–15; Acts 14.15–17). 14.8 Babylon the great, code name for Rome (see Introduction; 17.1–5, 18; 1 Pet 5.13); Rome's future fall is announced as if past (see 16.19; 17.5, 16–18; 18.2). The wine of the wrath of God, a metaphor derived from Jer 25.15–17; 51.7 (repeated in Rev 14.10; 17.2; 18.3). 14.9 A mark on their foreheads or on their hands. See note on 13.16. 14.10 Wine unmixed with water was considered extremely potent and

12 Here is a call for the endurance of the saints, those who keep the commandments of God and hold fast to the faith of^s Jesus.

13 And I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Write this: Blessed are the dead who from now on die in the Lord." "Yes," says the Spirit, "they will rest from their labors, for their deeds follow them."

Reaping the Earth's Harvest

14 Then I looked, and there was a white cloud, and seated on the cloud was one like the Son of Man, with a golden crown on his head, and a sharp sickle in his hand! ¹⁵Another angel came out of the temple, calling with a loud voice to the one who sat on the cloud, "Use your sickle and reap, for the hour to reap has come, because the harvest of the earth is fully ripe." ¹⁶So the one who sat on the cloud swung his sickle over the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17 Then another angel came out of the temple in heaven, and he too had a sharp sickle. ¹⁸Then another angel came out from the altar, the angel who has authority over fire, and he called with a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, "Use your sharp sickle and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth, for its grapes are ripe." ¹⁹So the angel swung his sickle over the earth and gathered the vintage of the earth, and he threw it into the great wine press of the wrath of God. ²⁰And the wine press was trodden outside the city, and blood flowed from the wine press, as high as a horse's bridle, for a distance of about two hundred miles.^t

The Seven Last Plagues

15 Then I saw another portent in heaven, great and amazing: seven angels with seven plagues, which are the last, for with them the wrath of God is ended.

2 And I saw what appeared to be a sea of glass mixed with fire, and those who had conquered the beast and its image and the number of its name, standing beside the sea of glass with harps of God in their hands. ³And they sing the song of Moses, the servant^u of God, and the song of the Lamb:

"Great and amazing are your deeds,

Lord God the Almighty!

Just and true are your ways,
King of the nations!^r

⁴ Lord, who will not fear and glorify your name?
For you alone are holy.

All nations will come and worship before you, for your judgments have been revealed."

5 After this I looked, and the temple of the tent^w of witness in heaven was opened, ⁶and out of the temple came the seven angels with the seven plagues, robed in pure bright linen,^x with golden sashes across their chests. ⁷Then one of the four living creatures gave the seven angels seven golden bowls full of the wrath of God, who lives forever and ever;

was a metaphor for severe judgment (see Ps 75.8; Jer 25.15). 14.13 Blessed. See note on 1.3. 14.14–20 A vision of the gathering of the righteous (vv. 14–16) and the judgment of the wicked (vv. 17–20), based on the grain and grape harvests of Joel 3.13. 14.14 The white cloud (see note on 11.12) functions as a throne and is also associated with the figure of the Son of Man (Dan 7.13; see notes on 1.7; 1.13), a common title for Jesus in the Gospels; he gathers the elect in Mk 13.26–27. 14.15 The grain harvest symbolizes judgment (Hos 6.11; Mt 13.30, 39) or, as here, the gathering of the elect (Lk 10.2; Jn 4.35–38). 14.18 The angel who has authority over fire. In Jewish tradition various angels superintend particular aspects of the world, including wind (7.1), water

(16.5; 1 Enoch 66.2), and the bottomless pit (9.11); see also 1 Enoch 60.11–22. 14.19 Wine press, another metaphor for divine judgment (see 19.15; Isa 63.1–3; Lam 1.15).

15.1–16.21 The last seven plagues; see note on 8.2–9.21. 15.2–8 A preparatory heavenly throne room scene (see note on 4.1–11). 15.2 A sea of glass, i.e., a sea that appears like glass; see note on 4.6. Harps of God. See note on 5.8. 15.3 The song of Moses. See Ex 15.1–18; Deut 32.1–47. 15.5 The tent of witness, i.e., the heavenly tabernacle (Heb 8.2; 9.11), which was considered the model for the earthly tabernacle (see Ex 25.9, 40; 26.30; 27.8). 15.7 Seven golden bowls, cultic utensils used for libations (Ex 27.3; 38.3;

⁸and the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God and from his power, and no one could enter the temple until the seven plagues of the seven angels were ended.

16 Then I heard a loud voice from the temple telling the seven angels, "Go and pour out on the earth the seven bowls of the wrath of God."

2 So the first angel went and poured his bowl on the earth, and a foul and painful sore came on those who had the mark of the beast and who worshiped its image.

3 The second angel poured his bowl into the sea, and it became like the blood of a corpse, and every living thing in the sea died.

4 The third angel poured his bowl into the rivers and the springs of water, and they became blood. ⁵And I heard the angel of the waters say,

"You are just, O Holy One, who are and were,
for you have judged these things;

6 because they shed the blood of saints and prophets,
you have given them blood to drink.

It is what they deserve!"

⁷And I heard the altar respond,

"Yes, O Lord God, the Almighty, your judgments are true and just!"

8 The fourth angel poured his bowl on the sun, and it was allowed to scorch people with fire; ⁹they were scorched by the fierce heat, but they cursed the name of God, who had authority over these plagues, and they did not repent and give him glory.

10 The fifth angel poured his bowl on the throne of the beast, and its kingdom was plunged into darkness; people gnawed their tongues in agony, ¹¹and cursed the God of heaven because of their pains and sores, and they did not repent of their deeds.

12 The sixth angel poured his bowl on the great river Euphrates, and its water was dried up in order to prepare the way for the kings from the east. ¹³And I saw three foul spirits like frogs coming from the mouth of the dragon, from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet. ¹⁴These are demonic spirits, performing signs, who go abroad to the kings of the whole world, to assemble them for battle on the great day of God the Almighty. ¹⁵("See, I am coming like a thief! Blessed is the one who stays awake and is clothed," not going about naked and exposed to shame.") ¹⁶And they assembled them at the place that in Hebrew is called Harmagedon.

17 The seventh angel poured his bowl into the air, and a loud voice came out of the temple, from the throne, saying, "It is done!" ¹⁸And there came flashes of lightning, rumblings, peals of thunder, and a violent earthquake, such as had not occurred since people were upon the earth, so violent was that earthquake. ¹⁹The great city was split into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell. Num 4.14). 15.8 In the OT, a cloud of smoke represents the presence or glory of God (see Ex 24.16; Lev 16.2; 1 Kings 8.10–11; Isa 6.4). 16.2 A foul and painful sore. See the sixth plague of Ex 9.8–12. 16.3 See the first plague of Ex 7.14–25 (see also Ps 78.44; 105.29). 16.5 Angel of the waters. See note on 14.18. You are just, O Holy One, a doxology emphasizing God's just dispensing of judgment (see Neh 9.33; Dan 9.14; Tob 3.2). 16.9 They did not repent. See note on 9.20. 16.10 The throne of the beast, the center of imperial power in Rome (13.2). 16.12 Euphrates, the natural boundary between the rival powers of Parthia and Rome (see note on 9.14). Its water was dried up. In antiquity the Euphrates never dried up; this miracle is the antithesis of the crossing of the Red Sea (Ex 14). Kings from the east, the Parthians and their subordinate kingdoms. 16.13 False prophet, the beast from the land (13.11–18). 16.14 To assemble them for battle. The tumult and assault of the Gentiles against Israel is a common eschatological motif (see Ezek 38–39; Zech 12.1–9; see also notes on 11.2; 11.18). The great day of God. See note on 6.17. 16.15 I am coming like a thief! See note on 3.3. Blessed. See note on 1.3. 16.16 They, the three demonic spirits. Harmagedon, Hebrew term meaning "mountain(s) of Megiddo," a city in central Palestine that was the site of important ancient battles (see Judg 5.19; 2 Kings 23.29–30). 16.17 It is done. The wrath of God has ended (15.1), yet the end is not yet (see 21.6). 16.19 The great city, Babylon, i.e., Rome. God remembered great Babylon. wine-cup of the fury of his wrath. ²⁰And every island fled away, and no mountains were to be found; ²¹and huge hailstones, each weighing about a hundred pounds,^z dropped from heaven on people, until they cursed God for the plague of the hail, so fearful was that plague.

The Great Whore and the Beast

17 Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls came and said to me, "Come, I will show you the judgment of the great whore who is seated on many waters, ²with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and with the wine of whose fornication the inhabitants of the earth have become drunk." ³So he carried me away in the spirit^a into a wilderness, and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast that was full of blasphemous names, and it had seven heads and ten horns. ⁴The woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and jewels and pearls, holding in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the impurities of her fornication; ⁵and on her forehead was written a name, a mystery: "Babylon the great, mother of whores and of earth's abominations." ⁶And I saw that the woman was drunk with the blood of the saints and the blood of the witnesses to Jesus.

When I saw her, I was greatly amazed.

⁷But the angel said to me, "Why are you so amazed? I will tell you the mystery of the woman, and of the beast with seven heads and ten horns that carries her. ⁸The beast that you saw was, and is not, and is about to ascend from the bottomless pit and go to destruction. And the inhabitants of the earth, whose names have not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, will be amazed when they see the beast, because it was and is not and is to come.

⁹ "This calls for a mind that has wisdom: the seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman is seated; also, they are seven kings, ¹⁰of whom five have fallen, one is living, and the other has not yet come; and when he comes, he must remain only a little while. ¹¹As for the beast that was and is not, it is an eighth but it belongs to the seven, and it goes to destruction. ¹²And the ten horns that you saw are ten kings who have not yet received a kingdom, but they are to receive authority as kings for one hour, together with the beast. ¹³These are united in yielding their power and authority to the beast; ¹⁴they will make war on the Lamb, and the Lamb will conquer them, for he is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those with him are called and chosen and faithful."

¹⁵ And he said to me, "The waters that you saw, where the whore is seated, are peoples and multitudes and nations and languages. ¹⁶And the ten horns that

17.1–18 A vision of Rome as the great whore. 17.1 The great whore. The metaphor of the prostitute is often used in the OT for godless cities (see Isa 1.21; 23.16–17; Nah 3.4). Seated on many waters aptly describes the location of historical Babylon (Jer 51.13). 17.3 He carried me away in the spirit. See note on 1.10. Scarlet beast, the Roman Empire. Full of blasphemous names with seven heads and ten horns, identical with the beast from the sea (13.1). 17.4 Clothed in . . . pearls, i.e., dressed like a wealthy courtesan (see 18.16). 17.5 On her forehead was written a name suggests the lowest form of prostitute, a tattooed slave. 17.6 The saints, the many Christian martyrs. 17.8 Ascend from the bottomless pit. See 11.7. It was and is not and is to come, a parody of the divine title

"who is and who was and who is to come" (see note on 1.4); here is not means "has died." 17.9 Seven mountains. That Rome was located on seven hills was first popularized by Varro (116–27 B.C.E.). Seven kings, either seven actual emperors (either Julius Caesar or Augustus could be counted as the first) or a symbol for a complete series. 17.11 An eighth, the returned Nero (see note on 13.3). 17.12 Ten kings, subordinate kings on the eastern borders of the empire. One hour, an extremely limited period (18.10, 17, 19). 17.14 War on the Lamb, the final end-time battle; see 16.12–16; 19.17–21. Lord of lords and King of kings, a title of Persian origin (Ezra 7.12) usually reserved for God (see Dan 4.37; 1 Tim 6.15; 1 Enoch 9.4). 17.15 Waters (see 17.1), often a symbol for threatening armies (see Isa 8.6–8; Jer 47.2). 17.16 They will make her desolate and naked, the returned Nero, with Parthian allies, will destroy Rome (see 16.19). Devour her flesh, an allusion to the fate of Jezebel (1 Kings 21.23–24).

Column A begins with Julius Caesar, following a traditional way of counting the emperors (see Dio Chrysostom Discourses 34.7; Josephus Antiquities 18.32; Sibylline Oracles 5.12-51).

Column B modifies the sequence of Column A by omitting the three short-lived emperors of 68-69 C.E.

Column C reflects another traditional way of counting the emperors and begins with Augustus, the first actually to receive that title (see Virgil Aeneid 6.789-97; Tacitus Annals 1.1).

Column D modifies the sequence of Column C by omitting the three short-lived emperors of 68-69.

Column E reflects the judgment of some modern scholars that the enumeration begins with Gaius, infamous for his treatment of Jews.

Column F reflects the judgment of other modern scholars that the enumeration begins with Nero, infamous for his treatment of Christians.

Column G represents the scheme of Victorinus of Pettau in his Commentary on the Apocalypse (17.9-11).

Column H shows the first five emperors deified by the Roman senate, followed by Domitian, who claimed divinity while living. The list concludes with a mythical, Nero-like adversary of God derived from legends about Nero's return from death (see Sibylline Oracles 4.138-39; 5.108-10, 214-27).

you saw, they and the beast will hate the whore; they will make her desolate and naked; they will devour her flesh and burn her up with fire. ¹⁷For God has put it into their hearts to carry out his purpose by agreeing to give their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God will be fulfilled. ¹⁸The woman you saw is the great city that rules over the kings of the earth."

The Fall of Babylon

18 After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority; and the earth was made bright with his splendor. ²He called out with a mighty voice,

"Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great!

It has become a dwelling place of demons,

a haunt of every foul spirit,
a haunt of every foul bird,
a haunt of every foul and hateful beast.^b

³ For all the nations have drunk^c of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth have grown rich from the power^d of her luxury."

⁴ Then I heard another voice from heaven saying,

"Come out of her, my people,
so that you do not take part in her sins,

and so that you do not share in her plagues;

⁵ for her sins are heaped high as heaven,

and God has remembered her iniquities.

⁶ Render to her as she herself has rendered, and repay her double for her deeds;

mix a double draught for her in the cup she mixed.

⁷ As she glorified herself and lived luxuriously, so give her a like measure of torment and grief.

Since in her heart she says,

'I rule as a queen;

I am no widow,

and I will never see grief,'

⁸ therefore her plagues will come in a single day — pestilence and mourning and famine —

and she will be burned with fire;
for mighty is the Lord God who judges her."

⁹ And the kings of the earth, who committed fornication and lived in luxury with her, will weep and wail over her when they see the smoke of her burning; ¹⁰they will stand far off, in fear of her torment, and say,

"Alas, alas, the great city,

Babylon, the mighty city!

For in one hour your judgment has come."

¹¹ And the merchants of the earth weep and mourn for her, since no one buys their cargo anymore, ¹²cargo of gold, silver, jewels and pearls, fine linen, purple, silk and scarlet, all kinds of scented wood, all articles of ivory, all arti-

18.1–19.10 Reactions to the fall of Babylon. 18.2 Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, a phrase from Isa 21.9 used here to introduce a prophetic taunt anticipating Rome's fall (see also Isa 23–24; Jer 50–51; Ezek 26–27). A haunt of . . . every foul and hateful beast, i.e., a devastated ruin (see Jer 51.37). 18.3 Fornication, metaphor for political and religious subservience to Rome. Merchants . . . have grown rich. Wealthy Romans bought expensive products from everywhere (see 18.11–13). 18.4 Come out of her, a prophetic summons to flight (see Isa 48.20–22; Jer 50.8–10; 51.6–10).

18.5 Her sins are heaped high as heaven. See Jer 51.9. God has remembered. See note on 16.19. 18.6 Render to her . . . for her deeds, alludes to Jer 50.29; 16.18. 18.7 I rule as a queen. The fatal pride of Rome is personalized in this brief soliloquy. 18.9–20 Three dirges adapted from Ezek 27: of kings (vv. 9–10), merchants (vv. 11–17a), and mariners (vv. 17b–20). 18.11 The merchants of the earth weep . . . for her, actually for themselves; Rome was the hub of a complex economic system that imported products from China, India, Africa, and northern Europe. 18.12–13 The

cles of costly wood, bronze, iron, and marble, ¹³cinnamon, spice, incense, myrrh, frankincense, wine, olive oil, choice flour and wheat, cattle and sheep, horses and chariots, slaves—and human lives.^c

¹⁴ “The fruit for which your soul longed has gone from you,
and all your dainties and your splendor are lost to you,
never to be found again!”

¹⁵ The merchants of these wares, who gained wealth from her, will stand far off, in fear of her torment, weeping and mourning aloud,

¹⁶ “Alas, alas, the great city, clothed in fine linen,
in purple and scarlet,
adorned with gold,
with jewels, and with pearls!

¹⁷ For in one hour all this wealth has been laid waste!”

And all shipmasters and seafarers, sailors and all whose trade is on the sea, stood far off ¹⁸and cried out as they saw the smoke of her burning,

“What city was like the great city?”

¹⁹ And they threw dust on their heads, as they wept and mourned, crying out,

“Alas, alas, the great city, where all who had ships at sea grew rich by her wealth!

For in one hour she has been laid waste.”

²⁰ Rejoice over her, O heaven, you saints and apostles and prophets! For God has given judgment for you against her.

²¹ Then a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone and threw it into the sea, saying,

“With such violence Babylon the great city will be thrown down,

and will be found no more;
²² and the sound of harpists and minstrels and of flutists and trumpeters
will be heard in you no more;
and an artisan of any trade will be found in you no more;
and the sound of the millstone
will be heard in you no more;
²³ and the light of a lamp will shine in you no more;
and the voice of bridegroom and bride
will be heard in you no more;
for your merchants were the magnates of the earth, and all nations were deceived
by your sorcery.
²⁴ And in you^f was found the blood of prophets and of saints,
and of all who have been slaughtered on earth.”

The Rejoicing in Heaven

19 After this I heard what seemed to be the loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying, “Hallelujah!

Salvation and glory and power to our God,

² for his judgments are true and just;

he has judged the great whore who corrupted the earth with her fornication, and he has avenged on her the blood of his servants.”^g

³ Once more they said, “Hallelujah!

The smoke goes up from her forever and ever.”

list of twenty-nine trade goods alludes to Ezek 16.9–13; 27.5–24. 18.16 Clothed . . . in purple and scarlet. See note on 17.4. 18.18 What city was like the great city? The question is based on Ezek 27.32. 18.19 Threw dust on their heads, an act of mourning or sorrow (see Josh 7.6; Job 2.12; Lam 2.10). 18.20 God has given judgment for you against her. The martyrs' prayer is answered (see 6.10).

18.21 The millstone thrown into the sea symbolizes Rome's downfall (adapted from Jer 51.63–64). 19.1–10 A heavenly throne room scene (see note on 4.1–11) reflects on Rome's fall (vv. 1–5) and anticipates the marriage of the Lamb (vv. 6–10). 19.1–6 Hallelujah, a Hebrew term meaning “praise Yah(weh)” (Ps 135.3), oc-

God who is seated on the throne, saying,
“Amen. Hallelujah!”

5 And from the throne came a voice saying,

“Praise our God, all you his servants,^h and all who fear him, small and great.”

6 Then I heard what seemed to be the voice of a great multitude, like the sound of many waters and like the sound of mighty thunderpeals, crying out, “Hallelujah!

For the Lord our God
the Almighty reigns.

7 Let us rejoice and exult and give him the glory, for the marriage of the Lamb has come,
and his bride has made herself ready;

8 to her it has been granted to be clothed with fine linen, bright and pure” —

for the fine linen is the righteous deeds of the saints.

9 And the angel saidⁱ to me, “Write this: Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.” And he said to me, “These are true words of God.”¹⁰ Then I fell down at his feet to worship him, but he said to me, “You must not do that! I am a fellow servant^j with you and your comrades^k who hold the testimony of Jesus.^l Worship God! For the testimony of Jesus^l is the spirit of prophecy.”

The Defeat of God's Adversaries

11 Then I saw heaven opened, and there was a white horse! Its rider is called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he judges and makes war.¹² His eyes are like a flame of fire, and on his head are many diadems; and he has a name inscribed that no one knows but himself.¹³ He is clothed in a robe dipped in^m blood, and his name is called The Word of God.¹⁴ And the armies of heaven, wearing fine linen, white and pure, were following him on white horses.¹⁵ From his mouth comes a sharp sword with which to strike down the nations, and he will ruleⁿ them with a rod of iron; he will tread the wine press of the fury of the wrath of God the Almighty.¹⁶ On his robe and on his thigh he has a name inscribed, “King of kings and Lord of lords.”

17 Then I saw an angel standing in the sun, and with a loud voice he called to all the birds that fly in midheaven, “Come, gather for the great supper of God,¹⁸ to eat the flesh of kings, the flesh of captains, the flesh of the mighty, the flesh of horses and their riders—flesh of all, both free and slave, both small and great.”¹⁹ Then I saw the beast and the kings of the earth with their armies gathered to make war against the rider on the horse and against his army.²⁰ And the beast was captured, and with it the false prophet who had performed in its pres-

See note on 7.9. 19.7 Marriage of the Lamb, metaphor for the union of Christ as bridegroom and the church as bride (see 21.2, 9; 22.17; 2 Cor 11.2; Eph 5.25–33); for Israel as the bride of God, see Isa 54.5; Hos 2.19–20. 19.9 Blessed. See note on 1.3. 19.10 The spirit of prophecy. The prophetic spirit is identified with the testimony about Jesus, which is the essence of prophecy.

19.11–21.8 The judgment of God's adversaries. 19.11–20.3 Christ rides forth as a divine warrior, leading the heavenly armies against God's adversaries (cf. 1.12–16). 19.11 Then I saw heaven opened, stereotypical introduction to revelatory visions (see Ezek 1.1; Mt 3.16; Jn 1.51; Acts 7.56; 10.11). The white horse symbolizes victory. Rider, the Messiah. 19.13 Robe dipped in blood, the garment of a warrior stained with the blood of his enemies (see Isa 63.1–6) and perhaps also a reference to his atoning death (see 1.5; 7.14). The Word of God, a rare designation for Jesus (see Jn 1.1; 1 Jn 1.1; cf. Wis 18.15–16). 19.14 The armies of heaven, angelic hosts. 19.15 A sharp sword. See note on 1.16. He will rule them with a rod of iron. See note on 12.5. He will tread the wine press. See note on 14.19. 19.16 King of kings and Lord of lords. See note on 17.14. 19.17 Come, gather for the great supper of God, an invitation to birds (parodying ancient cultic dinner invitations), not to attend the messianic banquet (Isa 25.6–8; 55.1–2; Mt 8.11; Lk 13.29; 1 Enoch 62.14), but to eat the slaughtered enemies of God. 19.19 The beast and the kings of the earth. See 16.12–14. 19.20 Lake of fire (20.10, 14–15; 21.8), a place of eternal punishment, located not in the underworld but in the presence of the Lamb

ence the signs by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped its image. These two were thrown alive into the lake of fire that burns with sulfur. ²¹And the rest were killed by the sword of the rider on the horse, the sword that came from his mouth; and all the birds were gorged with their flesh.

20 Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, holding in his hand the key to the bottomless pit and a great chain. ²He seized the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, ³and threw him into the pit, and locked and sealed it over him, so that he would deceive the nations no more, until the thousand years were ended. After that he must be let out for a little while.

The Millennial Kingdom

4 Then I saw thrones, and those seated on them were given authority to judge. I also saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their testimony to Jesus^o and for the word of God. They had not worshiped the beast or its image and had not received its mark on their foreheads or their hands. They came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years. ⁵(The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were ended.) This is the first resurrection. ⁶Blessed and holy are those who share in the first resurrection. Over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will reign with him a thousand years.

The Final Defeat of Satan

7 When the thousand years are ended, Satan will be released from his prison ⁸and will come out to deceive the nations at the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, in order to gather them for battle; they are as numerous as the sands of the sea. ⁹They marched up over the breadth of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city. And fire came down from heaven^p and consumed them. ¹⁰And the devil who had deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and sulfur, where the beast and the false prophet were, and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

The Dead Are Judged

11 Then I saw a great white throne and the one who sat on it; the earth and the heaven fled from his presence, and no place was found for them. ¹²And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before

(14.10), and elsewhere called Gehenna (see text note j to Mt 18.9). 20.2 Dragon. See 12.3. Ancient serpent. See 12.9. Devil. See 12.9. Satan. See 12.9, 10. The reference to a thousand years, i.e., the millennium, is unparalleled in Jewish eschatology. 20.4–6 During Satan's imprisonment the Christian martyrs are raised for a thousand-year reign. 20.4 Those seated on them were given authority to judge. The seated figures are not specified; the saints are sometimes associated with God in judgment (see Dan 7.9; Mt 19.28; 1 Cor 6.2). Those who had been beheaded, martyrs of relatively high social status (more painful forms of execution were reserved for the lower classes). They had not worshiped the beast or its image. See 13.11–18. Its mark. See 13.16. 20.5 The rest of the dead, all but the martyrs. The first resurrection, restricted to Christian martyrs, is not mentioned elsewhere in the NT. 20.6 Blessed. See note on 1.3. Second death. See note on 2.11. 20.7–10 The release and second defeat of Satan are unparalleled in Jewish eschatology. 20.8 Gog and Magog, names for a hostile northern king and his nation (Ezek 38–39) that came to symbolize all of Israel's enemies; rabbinic sources refer to the final war as "the war of Gog and Magog" (see, e.g., Babylonian Talmud, Berakot 7b, Sanhedrin 97b). To gather them for battle. See also 16.12–16; 19.19. As the sands of the sea, a metaphor for an enormous, terrifying army (see Josh 11.4; Judg 7.12). 20.9 Marched up. In the biblical idiom one always goes up, never down, to Jerusalem (Isa 2.3; Jer 31.6; Mic 4.2). The camp of the saints implies that the saints constitute an encamped army. The beloved city, a term for Jerusalem (see Ps 78.68; 87.2; Sir 24.11). Fire came down from heaven, the divine destruction of the hostile forces (see Ezek 39.6). 20.10 The lake of fire and sulfur. See notes on 9.18; 19.20. 20.11–15 The final judgment embraces the rest of the dead (cf. 20.4–6). 20.11 A great white throne, the judgment seat of God. The earth and the heaven fled from his presence, a metaphor for the awesome majesty of God (taken literally in 21.1). 20.12 Books were opened (Dan 7.10). The plural suggests two sets of books, one for the righteous, the other for the wicked. Book of life. See the throne, and books were opened. Also another book was opened, the book of life. And the dead were judged according to their works, as recorded in the books. ¹³And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, Death and Hades gave up the dead that were in them, and all were judged according to what they had done. ¹⁴Then Death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire; ¹⁵and anyone whose name was not found written in the book of life was thrown into the lake of fire.

The New Heaven and the New Earth

21 Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and the sea was no more. ²And I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. ³And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying,

"See, the home^q of God is among mortals.

He will dwell^r with them;
they will be his peoples,^s and God himself will be with them;^t

⁴ he will wipe every tear from their eyes.

Death will be no more;
mourning and crying and pain will be no more,
for the first things have passed away."

⁵ And the one who was seated on the throne said, "See, I am making all things new." Also he said, "Write this, for these words are trustworthy and true." ⁶Then he said to me, "It is done! I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. To the thirsty I will give water as a gift from the spring of the water of life. ⁷Those who conquer will inherit these things, and I will be their God and they will be my children. ⁸But as for the cowardly, the faithless,^u the polluted, the murderers, the fornicators, the sorcerers, the idolaters, and all liars, their place will be in the lake that burns with fire and sulfur, which is the second death."

Vision of the New Jerusalem

⁹ Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues came and said to me, "Come, I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb." ¹⁰And in the spirit^v he carried me away to a great, high mountain and showed me the holy city Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God. ¹¹It has the glory of God and a radiance like a very rare jewel, like jasper, clear as crystal. ¹²It has a great, high wall with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and on the gates are inscribed the names of the twelve tribes of the Israelites; ¹³on the east three gates, on the north three gates, on the south three gates, and on the west three gates. ¹⁴And the wall of the city has twelve foundations, and on them are the twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

a measuring rod of gold to measure the city and its gates and walls. ¹⁶The city lies foursquare, its length the same as its width; and he measured the city with his rod, fifteen hundred miles;^x its length and width and height are equal. ¹⁷He also measured its wall, one hundred forty-four cubits^y by human measurement, which the angel was using. ¹⁸The wall is built of jasper, while the city is pure gold, clear as glass. ¹⁹The foundations of the wall of the city are adorned with every jewel; the first was jasper, the second sapphire, the third agate, the fourth emerald, ²⁰the fifth onyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh jacinth, the twelfth amethyst. ²¹And the twelve gates are twelve pearls, each of the gates is a single pearl, and the street of the city is pure gold, transparent as glass.

²² I saw no temple in the city, for its temple is the Lord God the Almighty and the Lamb. ²³And the city has no need of sun or moon to shine on it, for the glory of God is its light, and its lamp is the Lamb. ²⁴The nations will walk by its light, and the kings of the earth will bring their glory into it. ²⁵Its gates will never be shut by day—and there will be no night there. ²⁶People will bring into it the glory and the honor of the nations. ²⁷But nothing unclean will enter it, nor anyone who practices abomination or falsehood, but only those who are written in the Lamb's book of life.

22 Then the angel^z showed me the river of the water of life, bright as crystal, flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb² through the middle of the street of the city. On either side of the river is the tree of life^a with its twelve kinds of fruit, producing its fruit each month; and the leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations. ³Nothing accursed will be found there any more. But the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and his servants^b will worship him; ⁴they will see his face, and his name will be on their foreheads. ⁵And there will be no more night; they need no light of lamp or sun, for the Lord God will be their light, and they will reign forever and ever.

⁶ And he said to me, "These words are trustworthy and true, for the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, has sent his angel to show his servants^b what must soon take place."

⁷ "See, I am coming soon! Blessed is the one who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book."

Epilogue and Benediction

⁸ I, John, am the one who heard and saw these things. And when I heard and saw them, I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed them to me; ⁹but he said to me, "You must not do that! I am a fellow servant^c with you and your comrades^d the prophets, and with those who keep the words of this book. Worship God!"

QUOTATIONS OF THE JEWISH SCRIPTURES IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

The purpose of this table is to help readers study the early church's use and interpretation of the Jewish scriptures. It does not include every possible reference, but only direct quotations and clear allusions to specific passages. The chapter and verse numbering is that of the NRSV.

In using the table, it is important to bear in mind that the NT authors, writing in Greek, generally quoted from the ancient Greek translation of the Hebrew scriptures (known as the Septuagint), whereas the NRSV OT is translated directly from the Hebrew and Aramaic texts. Also, ancient Jewish and Christian interpreters, including the NT authors, were less concerned with the original sense of the Hebrew scriptures than with finding useful and appropriate applications of them in their own situations. For these reasons, there are often differences in wording or meaning between an OT passage and a NT quotation of it.

INDEX TO COLOR MAPS

This index lists geographical names found on the color maps at the back of this book. The number(s) of the map(s) on which the name appears is listed first, followed by the key, or grid reference (a letter-figure combination that refers to the letters and figures at the margins of the map). Places whose names have changed over time are identified by a “see also” reference. For example, the entry for Azotus indicates it can be found on Map 11 in location B-5, and on Map 13 in location A-5, and readers are referred to Ashdod, its alternate name.

Physical Map of the Land of Israel and Surrounding Area in Biblical Times

Elevations are given in feet

The terrain model map here and those on subsequent pages depict the natural vegetation of the Bible world as far as it can be determined. Primary ground cover has undergone changes by time and humans. For example, vast areas of Mediterranean vegetation, originally a maquis-forest type, are now dwarf-shrub with only rare patches of forest. The following sequence of colors applies to maps in the series.

- Mediterranean vegetation
- Grassland — steppe
- Mixed grassland & forest
- Sparse grassland & shrub
- Riverine vegetation & oases
- Snow & ice
- Barren salt flats
- Sandy or salt desert
- Stony desert — hamada
- Barren lava beds
